At the booth F. D. Cockburn, assisted by F. E. Perry, were kept busy receiving old friends, in fact he and the Quebec traveler are considered almost part of the fair. They knew just how to please the public and their experience proved to be of no small value to the various assistants. The pictures on exhibition were, it was explained, merely suggestions of the art galleries in Montreal and Toronto. Pugsley, Dingman & Co., the proprietors of Comfort Soap, 18 Yonge street Arcade, Toronto: premium department and general offices 119 Confederation Life Building, Toronto and 1676 Notre Dame street, Montreal, extend a hearty welcome to the public to visit their art galleries.

A COMMERCIAL TRAVELER ON PROTECTION.

(From The Birmingham Daily Post.)

WE have received, through Messrs. Rosser, Jones & Co., of Wolverhampton, the following letter, sent to them by a commercial gentleman now traveling through Canada. It was written en route from Halifax to Montreal, and expresses the view of the tariff question as it appears to the author of the letter. He says:

"As a commercial traveler, who for fourteen years has traveled in England, but who is now traveling the States and Canada, I venture to put before your readers the very serious position England is sure to be in unless she immediately embraces the only salvation for her trade, and that is adequate protection. Under that very necessary policy this part of the world is becoming more and more progressive and successful. Under it the manufacturers are without fear of outside competition building up vast businesses, and under it the wages earner commands a fair return for his labor. Contentment reigns everywhere. It is nonsense to say the American works harder than the Englishman, that he has more brains, that the circumstances are different. I find a great amount of sameness; the only difference I find is that it is ten times easier to make a living here than at home. The people are doing well, consequently they are better buyers. No man here, if he is worth his salt, will work for a bare living. If he is a skilled man he gets thorough protection for his labor by his union, and the manufacturer has to pay in a fair proportion to his profits. He is protected from outside competition, and can charge accordingly.

"I used to hear, to refute all this, that in America living was so expensive that it neutralized all this high wage benefit. I contend that this is wrong. To start with, most American workmen own their own homes. Such necessities of life as bread and meat are cheaper. Fuel is dearer, so is clothing, but not much. You can get a good working suit of clothes for £2. Anyhow, the great point is this: the American artisan is a far better dressed man, better fed, and more extravagant than his English confrere. His children are given, free, a better education; he is thought more of. The snobs have not as yet come here who look down on a man who works, but honor him for it, and consequently give him more respect for himself. I have visited the lower parts of such large cities as San Francisco, St. Louis, and Pittsburg, but in none, except New York, have I seen a tenth part of the dirt and poverty to be seen every day in similar cities in England. All this is due to a wise protection.

"To give an instance of what we lose by being free to foreigners: Last Sunday I met a Belgian manufacturer at the Windsor Hotel in Montreal, and he said how glad he was that Chamberlain's scheme did not look like going through. He said: 'If it had, I have already secured land in England to erect our factories. My business is that of a manufacturer of cotton blankets, and I employ 2,700 men. Nine-tenths of my trade is done with India, Australia, Africa, and England; consequently I either have to close down or come over to you.' This is only one instance among many. He said he expected the day would come, but he felt confident for some time that British stupidity would hold the field

"To show you how much alive the Canadians are to their own interests I will quote an instance that just lately occurred. The Canadian Government found that a tremendous amount of logs were going into the States and but little sawn timber, consequently they prohibited the importation of logs into the States. Within three days of this becoming law the American Government prohibited sawn timber, but now impose a duty. What has happened is that the saw mills are having a great boom, and the Americans are coming over and erecting their mills in Canada.

"If our own Government had only had as much sense the same course would have been pursued with flour coming from abroad, or a hundred and one other parallel cases. It must come from the people. The voice of the men who now have only a bare living must be heard with no uncertainty. They must make no mistake at the next general election. Whether he be Liberal or Conservative, if he is in favor of the closed door protection, give him your vote. It makes me unhappy to contrast the two countries, but once get adequate protection and England can still stand in her old place as head of all nations of the world. Her sons shall not bow their heads in shame when they hear foreigners call her stupid and hidebound, and, given protection, we shall see a steady flow back again to the Old Country of the sons who left because foreign manufactured articles took their bread out of their mouths. That the day will not long be delayed I pray daily. If long delayed the capital of the country must come over here, as investments yield more certain and larger interest. England, awake."

Canadian Apples in Great Britain.

MR. ALEX. McD. ALLAN, of Goderich, Ont., who has been in charge of Government exhibitions of Canadian fruit in London, Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Glasgow and Paris, comments as follows on the prospects for Canadian apples in Great Britain:

"There is a good crop of apples in England this year, but that's nothing. English apples that get into the market are little bits of things that we would use for nothing but cider if even for that. Good apples are grown in England, but they are in the cultivated orchards of rich men and for their private use. The market apples of England amount to nothing.

"Apples from other countries are sold there, namely, from Russia, Germany, France, the States and Tasmania. I have seen the products of them all, and know that they cannot compete with Canada.

"Yet Canada is not getting anything like the revenue it should from that market. It is the fault of Canadian shippers. They will not take pains.

"You can buy Canadian apples at the village stores of England cheaper than in Canada, but it will not be first-class apples. It will be seconds or refuse or stuff that should not be sent at all. The choice article is very dear, and yet the shippers will not take the care that will get them the fancy instead of the away-down price. If a shipment of fruit is not first-class throughout, it will go as inferior even if there is a lot of first-class fruit in it. That accounts for the heavy losses our shippers make.

"Hardly any packers seem to be able to tell one variety from another. They label them wrongly or get several varieties in one barrel, both of which are very objectionable to the English buyer. It is strange that hardly anybody can tell similar varieties apart well enough to pack a barrel without mixing them. Mixing not only mars the barrel but often results in loss in another way. Take Baldwins and Kings for instance. They look alike, but on the British market Baldwins bring 15 shillings and Kings 24 to 27 shillings. If Kings are put into a barrel marked Baldwins see the loss on that score alone to say nothing of the objectionable mixing.

"Then no apples should be shipped in barrels. Bushel boxes are the right thing. Retailers want that sized package, and if we do not ship our apples that way, somebody over there makes a big profit on putting them into boxes and re-selling them. Fruit should always be shipped in cold storage. All these things, selection, packing, branding, package, and cold storage, ought to be scrupulously and faithfully looked after by Canadians, and our market is assured."

The Granby Fruit Fair.

The annual Fall exhibition of the Fruit Growers' Association of the County of Shefford opened last Thursday, and was continued until Friday, in Granby, Que. The first day was devoted chiefly to the placing and judging of exhibits. The association has been in existence for over twenty years, and is recognized as the leading horticultural exhibition in the Province of Quebec. The fair was a success.

Ten Carloads of Fruit at Auction.

A large sale of fruit, comprising some ten carloads, was held at the Montreal Fruit Auction Rooms, Walter M. Kearns, auctioneer. There were two cars of California fruit, one car of bananas, one of Michigan peaches, and six cars of Canadian fruit, including barrels and baskets.

California fruit was lower all the way round. Pears sold at $1.30 to $1.55 per box, and peaches at 85c to $1.55; Tokay grapes, in four-basket carriers, going at $1.50 each. There were also some grapes in small baskets which sold at 20 to 22½c each.

Michigan peaches, in bushel baskets, were offered. They brought $1.60 to $2.40 per basket. There were also some in six-basket carriers which sold at $1.20 to $1.65.

The car of bananas brought steady prices, being 50 to 60c per bunch.

In Canadian fruit, barrel pears brought $1.50 to $3.10, and barrel apples $1.20 to $1.80, pears being easier. In baskets, pears sold at steady prices, 20 to 30c per basket, peaches being at 47½ to 50c per basket.

Glucose Not an Adulterant.

A deputation of fruit canners from different parts of Canada waited upon the Minister of Inland Revenue, Ottawa, last week, to ask the department to sanction the use of glucose as a sweetening and preserving substance in jams and jellies made in Canada. The deputation represented that pure glucose is as wholesome as sugar, and claimed that it should not be classed as an adulterant.

The Minister suggested that if, when glucose was used, the word "compound" be placed on the can it would meet the requirements of the situation.

Canadian Shippers Careless.

An English correspondent suggests that more care is needed on the part of Canadian shippers of canned fruits, and refers to a recent consignment of strawberries, raspberries, plums, etc., which on being opened proved absolutely useless for the market. The flavor was not bad but the fruit was pulpy in consistency while the juice was cloudy

The Belgian Market.

A report has recently been received from Mr. D. Treau de Coeil, the Government commercial agent in Belgium, stating that a certain quantity of green apples have been imported from Canada, while trial orders have been given for evaporated and dried apples, which in every instance have proved satisfactory. He feels confident that a large trade could be established by Canada with Belgium if proper methods to introduce Canadian goods were adopted. Canned goods, especially meats, would find a ready market. Rolled oats, green and dry fruits, furniture, machinery, bacon, lard, cheese, butter and boots and shoes are imported in large quantities, mostly from the United States. Nothing should prevent Canadians from competing for this trade with every chance of success. Some of the foregoing articles, such as cheese and bacon, being in most cases Canadian produce, are received from England and sold as English goods.

Ontario Fruit for the West.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is making an effort to demonstrate the practicability of shipping tender fruits from South Ontario to Manitoba and the Northwest, and to this end has already arranged for trial shipments from the Niagara District to Winnipeg.

Fruit Notes.

An extensive canning factory will shortly be built at Hull, Que., to employ 150 hands and cost $50,000.

The first carload of apples for the season from the Niagara Peninsula has been shipped for export to Doublin.

The tenth annual report of the fruit experimental stations of Ontario has been issued for distribution. The volume contains a large amount of valuable information prepared by men of experience respecting the various kinds of fruit, as well as recommendations regarding the most valuable varieties for planting in Ontario.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The Wheat Situation.

NOTHING of particular interest has transpired in grain circles during the past week, and local prices continue to hold considerably above an export level. It would seem that the tendency of the wheat market from now onward would be downward, especially in view of the fact that the bull interests have about succeeded in killing all the crops there are to kill.

Reports to hand within the week have been conflicting in regard to damage from rust in the west. There is no doubt that this will be less than first reported, although the loss in many parts of Manitoba, especially the south, is very heavy. In the most westerly portion of the grain-growing division of Assiniboia the wheat yield is most satisfactory, very little loss having been experienced from the depredation of rust. The same conditions also obtain up the Prince Albert line and throughout the Saskatchewan generally.

Various estimates have been made as to the probable crop yield. It is now thought that the totaf loss to the country from rust will not be less than 25 per cent., and that the entire wheat yield will be between 50 and 55 million bushels. By way of compensation it may be added that a moderate yield and good prices usually mean more to the farmers than a heavy yield and low prices, and the advanced market rates assured will in all probability bring to the country quite as great a measure of prosperity as has ever been enjoyed in the Great West. The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. estimates the total crop for the Dominion at 72,000,000 bushels; the requirements of home consumption and seed at 36,000,000 bushels, leaving 36,000,000 bushels available for export.

Rain and snow have interfered with threshing in Manitoba and have reduced the quality of grain in stock. The damage from frost so far is estimated at from 20 to 25 per cent. Receipts of wheat to date grade high.

According to Bradstreet's, uncut Spring wheat has suffered some damage in the Northwestern States. A serious shortage in the Spring wheat yield is now an admitted fact, and estimates of the total yield range from 500,000,000 to 540,000,000 bushels, a decline of over 100,000,000 bushels from a year ago. Thus it is not likely that the United States will be able to export as much as 68,000,000 bushels, which were the figures for 1903, because, at present prices, foreign demand for American wheat ceases, and even the flour trade is crippled. It would seem that the Pacific Coast would be more likely to do whatever export business is offered, that section having more of a surplus available than the sections east of the Rockies.

Broomhall reports an increase of 20 per cent. in Argentine wheat acreage. Four large provinces last year cultivated 10,125,000 acres, which would make now 12,250,000 acres, and on yield 12 bush. per acre produce 144,000,000 bush. if they have an average yield.

Visible supply on this continent is 14,010,000 bush., an increase of 895,000 bush. against visible 13,115,000 bush., an increase of 301,000 bush. a week ago, when it was 15,917,000 bush., and two years ago was 22,526,000 bush., three years ago 32,625,000 bush. Exports last week were 935,834 bush. against 1,996,511 bush. the previous week and 1,909,083 bush. a year ago.

Total exports, wheat and flour since July 1, 1904, are 15,396,983 bush., against 36,130,933 in 1903.

Amount on passage to England, 23,320,000 bush., and to Continent, 13,840,000 bush., total 36,160,000, decrease 880,000 bush. Was 27,840,000 bush. a year ago, and 28,640,000 two years ago, and 29,040,000 three years ago. English farmers delivered last week 415,200 bush. at an average of 89¼c, down ¾c. against 361,600 bush. a year ago at 82½c per bush. Russia shipped 4,376,000 bush. against previous week 4,225,000 bush., and 4,824,000 bush. a year ago. Total since Aug. 1, 16,928,000 bush., against 16,808,000 bush. a year ago. Shipment of wheat from the Argentine last week was 624,000 bush., against 1,104,000 previous week, and 720,000 bush. a year ago. The total exports since January 1, 69,392,000 bush., against 55,056,000 bush. in 1903. Danubian shipments 224,000 bush. against 856,000 a week ago, a total of 46,677,000 bush., against 44,128,200 bush 677,000 bush., against 44,128,200 bush. a year ago. Australian shipment, 720,000 bush., against 344,000 bush. last week; total since Aug. 1, 3,152,000 bush., and none previous year, and total 10,296,000 bush. in 1901-2.

Conditionally Contraband of War.

Russia has given her answer to the British and American notes on the subject of contraband of war. In principle the response meets the views of the British and American Governments regarding foodstuffs, etc., as being conditionally contraband of war, and distinctly places them in the category of articles susceptible of uses both in war and peace. Foodstuffs as such are not confiscable when consigned to blockaded ports or destined for the military or naval forces of the enemy. Shipments in the ordinary course of trade by private persons or firms, even to an enemy's port, may be considered prima facie not contraband, although upon this point reservation is made. The simple fact of consignment by private persons does not preclude the possibility that the articles are destined for belligerent forces, and Russia insists that it be not necessarily regarded as conclusive evidence of the innocent character of the goods.

Trade Between Canada and Mexico.

SIR WILLIAM MULOCK in a recent interview said: "When in Mexico I arranged with President Diaz to receive Canadian delegations in regard to Canadian interests, and planned that they were to be organized as a body to make known Canadian views to the Mexican authorities from time to time. The Canadian clubs of Mexico shortly intend to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded by my visit, to wait upon the president and make suggestions for the promotion of trade. Mr. James H. McLeod, a former resident of Woodstock, who is president of the new club, and at the same time the leading wholesale grocer of Mexico, is coming to this country to further advance the scheme. In his own business alone he imports enormous quantities of bacon, fish, cheese and other food products. At present all his purchases are made in the United States, but Mr. McLeod intends when the proposed direct lines of steamships with Canada are established to purchase exclusively from Canada. There are many other Canadian business men in the southern republic who are prepared to do the same.

"The Canadian clubs in Mexico represent a growing desire throughout that country to develop mutual trade with us, and Mexico will doubtless in the near future be one of Canada's most profitable markets. We can buy from them such things as hides, sisal, coffee, tropical fruits and spices, rubber, mahogany and other hard woods. On the other hand there is a market in the republic for Canadian lumber of all kinds, railway ties in unlimited quantities, coal, furniture, and nearly all classes of manufactured goods, bacon, hams, butter, cheese, fish, etc."

Sir William was advised last week that he had been elected an honorary member of the Canadian Club in Mexico.

Another Advance in Flour.

THE Manitoba grades of flour have taken a big jump of 30c per barrel in sympathy with the record breaking prices of wheat, and the general bad feeling in United States crop advices. Chicago bulls confidently prophesy $2 wheat, but only the very worst of crop failures would justify that price, unless the public can be gulled everlastingly into believing that a national crisis will take place once a week or just as often as the manipulators see fit. Our quotations for Manitoba are as follows : Patents, $5.80, and strong bakers, $5.50. The leading Manitoba milling houses are now in line in regard to prices, and report the market to be very firm at the quotations.

ONTARIO GRADES ALSO ADVANCE.

The market for Ontario grades of flour is even stronger than that of the Manitoba grades, as prices for the latter are more or less fictitious, on account of the necessity of following the wheat markets, while on the other hand Ontario crops are known to be a failure by something like 50 per cent., and any rise in these grades may safely be put down as a matter of supply and demand. There is reported to be a good demand for Winter patents. One miller's agent in Montreal had urgent inquiries for several cars of Winter wheat patents, including high grade.

The greatest difficulty is being experienced by agents of Ontario flour in keeping any stocks in hand. One dealer states that he has been trying all the week to get this grade of flour, but did not succeed in getting a single car under offer.

The sale of a car of high Ontario patent is reported this morning at a price equal to $5.85 for barrels, Montreal freight. We quote as follows : Winter wheat patents, $5.50 to $6 in barrels; $2.50 to $2.60 in bags.

Banana Flour and Coffee.

A Philadelphia company is about to establish a plant in Mexico for the manufacture of banana flour and coffee. It chooses Mexico on account of the slight exportation of the fruit and the consequent abundance of a low-cost supply. In Central America or the West Indies it would have the competition of the fruit buyers for the export trade there conducted upon a large scale.

Banana flour is very easily made and is highly nutritious. The fruit is utilized while green, but should be fully developed. In that stage the starch has not begun to turn to saccharine substances. The fruit, peeled and thoroughly dried, is easily pulverized as fine as wheat flour and is not unlike the latter in flavor. It is possible to develop a great breadstuff supply from the banana. The sort of "coffee" that the banana might produce is yet unfamiliar to the world at large.

Egyptian Wheat and Flour.

Egyptian wheats are poor, says the American Miller, being very mixed and deficient in gluten. It is quite exceptional to find a good sample either white or red, and for bread making by Europeans domiciled in the country an admixture of foreign flour is almost invariably employed. The wheats in Lower Egypt are almost invariably called white, while in Upper Egypt a greater portion of so-called red wheat is found. For making bread natives prefer the wheat grown in the basin lands of Upper Egypt to that grown on irrigated land.

Egypt, instead of being an exporter of wheat, as is often thought, actually imports a considerable quantity of flour from France and Russia, though that from the former country is largely of Russian origin, having been ground at Marseilles.

Possibilities of Rice Culture.

In view of the fact that the rice fields of the Southern States are coming more and more prominently into notice in trade circles the following remarks on rice culture are not without interest:

Very few people have a clear idea how rapidly rice culture has been pushing to the front during the past few years.

During 1902 about 10,000 railway cars of the average capacity were required to haul the product of the southwestern rice fields to market. The crop at present averages about 2,000,000 barrels annually and could supply two-thirds of the present consumption in the United States. When it is remembered this is merely what has been accomplished on a tenth of the area that is available for cultivation in Louisiana and Texas, an idea of the possibilities of the region can be gained.

The agricultural and social development resulting from the influx of people and capital into the section referred to has progressed far beyond the experimental stage and can be said to exist on a permanent basis. It has actually resulted in the formation of a new group or community that is well worth studying. The residents of the town and cities are as dependent upon the soil as are the rice growers themselves. Prior to the division of this prairie land into fields, intersected by a network of canals reaching from one end of the cultivated district to the other, there was no incentive for town building, and had it not been for the efforts of the little group of Iowa farmers who first began growing rice by modern methods, the country would probably still be as poor and as sparsely settled as a half century ago.

Japan Imposes Duty on Flour.

In order to secure a revenue from the heavy shipments of foodstuffs sent to the Orient on various vessels from foreign ports, the Japanese government will impose an import duty of about $1.80 per ton on all flour received after October 1. For that reason many of the big wholesale and retail dealers of the Islands are now laying in supplies. Every vessel sailing to the Orient during the past three months has had to refuse cargo, and the prospects are that vessels departing from now on will have all the freight they can carry.

While the merchants of the Orient will be compelled to raise the selling price of flour considerably, as a result of the import duty to be taxed, the various Oriental steamship companies will benefit by the war as since September 1, when the rate per ton on flour was advanced from $4 to $5. It was decided to raise the rates recently, and all companies to the Orient were parties to the agreement.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Good Cigar Requires Ripe Tobacco.

RIPE tobacco is essential to a really good cigar according to a contemporary. There is the same difference between ripe and green tobacco as between ripe and green fruit. The ripe tobacco smokes mild, smooth and cool—and it burns evenly and gives a clear steel gray ash, called the "Havana gray". The green or unripe tobacco smokes very differently—it is harsher and invariably bitter and unpleasant to the taste, and never has that delicate aromatic flavor and aroma so highly prized by those who know the qualities that make the perfect Havana cigar. Again a dark wrapper does not necessarily mean a strong cigar. A dark color, or as it is expressed in Spanish, maduro, means ripe. The wrapper leaf which encases the cigar determines its color only.

The filler or inside of the cigar, which is 90 per cent. of its weight, determines its character. Both light and dark wrappers may be bitter and strong if they have not been thoroughly ripened and cured by proper fermentation. This is a matter of the greatest importance to retailers.

A preference for the very light shades, claro, has grown up in this country founded on the belief that such cigars afford a milder smoke. These very light shades are simply evidence of an unripe leaf, and the consequence is that the retailer has to hear many complaints concerning the poor quality and bitter taste of the cigars which he sells. Should he, however, succeed in inducing his customers to try the darker shades he would surely find the result to be far more satisfactory. He would win the reputation of keeping really good cigars, with the consequence that his business would be largely benefited.

Tobacco Culture Restricted.

ACCORDING to a contemporary tobacco culture in Ireland is not to be allowed to go on in the free-and-easy unrestricted fashion, that some folks thought. The Board of Revenue has issued regulations and instructions with references to the growth of tobacco in Ireland which will practically prevent farmers going in for growing it. Every person selected by the Department of Agriculture as a grower of tobacco must make a declaration on the approval form that he will afford to the officers of the Inland Revenue, free access at all times to the planted land and to all places and rooms used for drying, curing or storing tobacco grown by him, and that all tobacco grown by him shall be duly produced to the proper officer to be charged with duty or otherwise disposed of in accordance with any regulation relating to the growing of tobacco that may be issued. If any portion of the tobacco shall be considered unfit for use, and its destruction be deemed advisable, written notice must be given to the officer, so that arrangements may be made for its destruction under official supervision. In no case shall the tobacco be destroyed except in the presence of the supervisor or other officer. A refund of one-third of the duty will, on application to the Board of Inland Revenue, be paid to growers, on tobacco grown by them under the above conditions, on which duty has been paid. In the event of any duty paid tobacco being surrendered by the grower, an application for a refusal of whole duty paid thereon will be considered.

Officers shall visit each plot or farm at an early date after planting has taken place to ascertain whether its situation and extent agree with the description given in the application, and his visits should be continued at intervals not exceeding 28 days, until the crop has been cut and gathered. On each visit, the officer must note on the condition of the plants, the effect of climate and season, and any other matter affecting the growth or cultivation of the plant. At the end of every second month after the planting of tobacco and until the duty is paid or the stock removed, supervisors shall report through their collectors on the progress of the experiments. They shall deal therein with the difficulties experienced from season, climate or other cause, the system of curing adopted, the quantity per acre and the quality of leaf cured. They shall also furnish any other information calculated to give a comprehensive view as to the success or otherwise of the experiments.

The whole thing seems very complicated and very few Irish farmers will care to put themselves under such supervision, while the officers of the I. R. will not be too pleased to have so much extra work put on them. Altogether it does not look as if tobacco will ever be a successful industry in Ireland.

Presidential Elections and Tobacco Trade.

IN answer to a circular letter issued by the New York World to its subscribers, asking for a statement of their views on the coming presidential elections, the following interesting letter was received :

Sir,—The tobacco trade in this country involves not alone the farmer who raises the tobacco and the dealer who handles it, but on the other hand we have at present engaged here 26,123 cigar manufacturers, employing between 150,000 and 200,000 people. Under the policy of reducing the tariff on imports from the Philippine Islands these people will be thrown in direct competition with the cheap Chinese labor at present employed there, which at this time is excluded in the United States by the Chinese Exclusion Act, which act cannot be operated with any force or effect in the islands, as long as Chinese labor is so thoroughly imbedded there.

Naturally, the party who will oppose further reduction of tariff on imports from the Philippine Islands will have a great influence on our views, for the tobacco industry in this country, with the capital involved and people employed, is deserving and needs all the protection possible. Our farmers have to be encouraged in raising tobacco, our dealers in handling it, and our cigar manufacturers in carrying on their vocation of life support.

Further than this, the circumstances in connection with the repeal of Section 10 of the Dingley Bill (which forbids the placing of coupons or premiums in packages of cigars and tobacco) has had its influence on our trade. A Phase of South African Trade.

A WESTERN exchange publishes the following interesting statement in regard to the export trade in tobacco between the United States and British Africa during the past three years :

"The British evidently are quite willing to buy their raw material in the United States and there has been an important increase in the quantities and value of our shipments of leaf tobacco to South African ports ; but our exports of manufactured goods, including cigars, cigarettes and plug tobacco, have fallen off at a rate calculated to cause dismay in the minds of those producers who have had a share in this trade. The following table shows our shipments of leaf to British Africa for the fiscal years 1902, 1903 and 1904 :

Year.	Pounds	Value.
1902.....	4,308,379	$409 375
1903.....	6,208,662	592,617
1904.....	7,590,325	721,403

"From the above table it appears that our exports of leaf to British Africa have scored the phenomenal increase of 75 per cent in two years, and that the value per pound has not only been maintained, but has risen slightly.

"Quite another story is told by the figures representing tobacco manufacture. Prior to the Boer war these exports exceeded $1,000,000 per annum. In 1902, however, they amounted to only $891,438, and they have since dwindled rapidly, the total shipments in 1904 amounting to only $155,126, a loss of more than $735,000 in two years. The figures for the three years 1902, 1903 and 1904, are as follows :

Year.	Value.
1903	801,853
1904.....	155,126

"That United States exports still show a downward tendency is indicated by the fact that in June, 1904, our shipments amounted to only $10,487 or at the rate of about $120,000 per annum, while the total for the fiscal year 1904 was $155,126."

British Exeise Laws

It is illegal for the British tobacco manufacturer to add any leaves other than genuine tobacco leaves, and the Revenue Staff and Government Laboratory compel this law to be rigidly obeyed. Once a week, at least, the tobacco in every British tobacco factory, says the Tobacco Weekly Journal, is sampled by revenue officers and analyzed in the Government laboratory. This entails an immense amount of work. In addition to this examination for purity, all the snuffs, tobaccos, cigarettes and cigars made in the ordinary factories, i. e., not made in bond and exported, require to be sampled in order that the Government laboratory may see that they are pure and good before sending them to the colonies, and also to estimate the amount of duty, or drawback, to be paid to the manufacturer.

New Import Duties of Panama.

According to the new law regulating taxes on exports and imports of tobacco into the republic of Panama, the import duty on cigars is fixed at $4 for 2.2 lbs., on cigarettes at $3 for 2.2 lbs. and on tobacco in any other form at $2 for 2.2 lbs.

Demonstration at World's Fair.

A department for the demonstration of how American-grown tobacco is fermented, the seedlings of which were brought from Cuba and Sumatra, has been installed in the tobacco exhibit in the north section of the Palace of Agriculture, World's Fair. When the tobacco crop is harvested later in the season the government will send experts to the World's Fair to demonstrate how this scientific fermentation has been secured.

Previous to the Spanish-American war the curing of Cuban and Sumatra tobacco was a process known only to the tobacco planters of these countries and the members of their families. At the close of the war the Agricultural Department of the Government sent experts to Cuba and Sumatra to study the process.

Within the last five years this process has been acquired by United States experts and through the medium of the government experimental stations in different parts of the country it has been demonstrated that tobacco of as fine quality and flavor as the Cuban and Sumatra tobacco can be grown profitably in the United States.

Cuban Tobacco Districts Compared.

The comparative importance of the tobacco growing districts of Cuba is illustrated by the number of bales brought into the Havana market from January 1, 1904, to August 1, 1904. Vuelta Abajo comes first with 120,739 bales; Partido second with 39,305 bales; Remedios third with 25,175 bales; Semi Vuelta, which could be divided, giving one-half to Vuelta Abajo and the other half to Partidos, comes fourth with 7,945 bales ; Santiago de Cuba, 488 bales; Puerto Principe, 258 bales, and Mantanzas seventh and last with only 185 bales.

Exclusive Contracts Cancelled.

CANADIAN tobacco merchants and agents having contracts with the American Tobacco Co. have received the following letter :

Dear Sirs,—Recent legislation, and the action of the Government based upon it, make it necessary to cancel our contract with you relating to the sale of cigarettes ; and you are notified that this cancellation will take effect from this date.

We hope that the withdrawal of this contract, which has been satisfactory to the trade, and under which you have had a fair and reasonable profit on the sale of our goods, will not prevent your making a satisfactory profit in the future.

Our cigarettes will no longer be shipped on consignment, but will, until further notice, be sold to you, should you desire to obtain them, at the prices now prevailing—terms two per cent. discount for payment within thirty days, freight prepaid.

We offer you a rebate of eight per cent. on cigarettes billed by us to you, on the following terms:

The rebate will only be paid provided we are satisfied that you have not sold any of our cigarettes at less than the retail prices, as shown on our current selling price lists, as fixed from time to time. Dealers who sell at less than the list prices will not be allowed any rebate.

We will remit you all rebates earned in respect of cigarettes purchased during any month, at the end of the next f llowing month.

Thanking you for your support in the past, and trusting for a continuance of the present cordial relations. We remain, yours very truly,

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE demand for ocean freight space has not been increased as much as anticipated and dullness still reigns. Agents of some of the big transportation companies have offered to carry grain, in some cases, almost at any rate, in order to attract exporters to make shipments. Even this radical measure has not been successful in attracting extra business. Old shippers state that the market has not been in such a dull state for many years, at this time, and further that the prospects are by no means encouraging, strength in the near future. The situation in freight might generally be described as disturbed. This is generally the case when there is difficulty experienced in filling space. Some reasons given are the cessation of the packers' strike, and the dullness in butter and cheese export. In regard to the packers' strike it is only natural to suppose, that once the dressed beef begins to go forward again, shipments of live stock will begin to fall off. Liverpool and Glasgow freight is now quoted at 40s. and London 7s. 6d.; Hamburg, 10c.; Antwerp, 9s.; Havre, 12s. 6d.

owing partly to the high prices of wheat ruling on this side, which prevents buyers from importing to any large extent. In flour and provisions there is some hope, as considerable quantities are being shipped. Rates show no important change, but business is steady. Cables from England contain little that is encouraging for the live stock exporters, and this perchance, has left an abnormal amount of space for grain shippers. Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World.

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker o mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claim as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

Wasting Your Energies?

If it pays to push an article, it pays to push it to some purpose and to push more with an object of gaining permanent trade than of temporary profit. If the demand for any article stops when you stop pushing it 95 per cent. of your energy has been wasted.

You waste no energy whatever in advocating the sale of the "Griffin" Brand of Dried Fruits and the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Fish, because people who buy them once will buy them again and again. Briefly, the intrinsic merit of both these articles backs up the highest praise you can give them.

"Griffin" Brand Dried Fruits.

Seedless Raisins and Prunes. Dried Apricots, Peaches and Pears in all their original goodness. A revelation to the grocer who has been buying other Brands.

Selected with the greatest care and shipped in original boxes right from the Vineyards and Orchards on the Pacific Coast.

Look for the "Griffin" trade mark before you buy.

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

Canned Haddies, Kippered Herring and Herring and Tomato Sauce. Selected, cured and packed by Captain Austin of The Thistle Canning Co., Little River, N.S.

Absolutely clean, rich, delicate, appetizing. Prepared right at the water side where they are caught. The brand of highest quality and so recognized the world over.

The only real value of money lies in making use of it.

The money that lies there in your safe from day to day doesn't do you any good until you commence to use it.

Then its value to you depends on how you use it.

Now, if you would only invest some of it in advertising space in THE GROCER, and then use the space right you'd have a valuable assistant, working to increase your trade with grocers and to make yourself and your goods better known among them.

Some folks would sooner save (?) the money—but they are "penny wise and pound foolish."

But you're not.

WILL IT PAY?

If you handle oil of any kind it will pay you to purchase a

BOWSER SELF MEASURING OIL TANK

Let us ask you a few questions:—

Is it worth 10 cents a day to handle your oils without waste?

Is it worth 10 cents a day to sell your oils without loss of time or labor?

Is it worth 10 cents a day to have no leaky, dirty measures and funnels to handle?

Is it worth 10 cents a day to keep your oil room neat and clean?

We might propound a hundred questions equally as pertinent. If any of these is worth 10 cents a day, is not the combination of the many worth more than the cost of a "Bowser Self Measuring Oil Tank" which will give you all of these advantages?

Let us give you full particulars. Ask for Catalog "B."

THE MAN IN BUSINESS IS IN BUSINESS FOR MONEY

It is money that makes the mare go.

In the matter of his tea sales it is even now a safe assertion that the average grocer makes more money out of

than he does out of other makes. And if he can and will endeavor to expel from his stock all other teas, he will greatly simplify matters, make a better tea business for himself and give his customers a better article. There is no doubt about all this being so, though some, it may be, require some persuasion.

We own up to it that we are surprised at the way our own goods have sold. This is our first season, and while we were assured from the beginning that we needn't worry about the sale of our goods, we scarcely expected to see them go so fast, and to have so many retailers in every part of Canada put them in stock. New things generally go a little slower than that. Of course, we have given

A Nova Scotia Fishing Town

A GLANCE at a map of the Maritime Provinces is sufficient to impress one with the great extent of coast line on our Atlantic seaboard. The shore line is a succession of indentations and projections with a generous sprinking of islands, all affording bases for the splendid fishing industries carried on in these parts, and providing the greater part of our Canadian exports of fish and fish products, which for the year ending June 30, 1904, aggregated over $10,000,000.

View of Canso Harbor, showing Part of Fishing Fleet in Distance.

One of the most noticeable heads of land running out into the sea will be found at the extreme eastern end of Nova Scotia, reaching out as if striving to bridge the distance to Newfoundland.

Almost at the end of this cape, built on the solid granite and sheltered from the storms of the Atlantic by a barrier of low island rocks is situated the fishing town of Canso—for over two hundred years associated with the cod fisheries of the North Atlantic.

In this safe haven the bank fleet make their rendezvous and take on supplies and bait before striking out for the fishing grounds. Here at times may be seen as many as 200 "Bankers," representing the Canso and Lunenberg fleets, with perhaps a number of visitors flying the Stars and Stripes.

At the water's edge are located the wharves and fish houses, flanked by the yards for drying the cod. Higher up rise the comfortable dwellings of the citizens, practically all of whom are engaged one way or another in the fishing industry, for Canso is a fishing town par excellence.

The nearest railway to Canso is the Intercolonial at Mulgrave, with which there is steamer connection, and via which a great deal of fish reach the outer world.

Coming into Canso in the evening one is much impressed with the solidarity of the place. The islands forming the harbor are barren of vegetation, with the possible exception of a dark green moss. Some, indeed, swept with the tides, are but smooth grey granite. The rock is abundantly evident on the shore and the inhabitants have for the most part, perforce, obeyed the scriptural injunction to build their houses upon a rock.

At the waterfront, as before mentioned, are the docks. Here in the mornings the fishermen come in, their boats laden with cod, haddock, pollock or hake, fresh from the water.

Formerly the fish were all salt dried. The heads and entrails were removed, the fish were put in brine for a time and then exposed to the sun and wind until dry. Then they were piled into great stacks and allowed to sweat, after which they were ready for shipment.

The more modern method, however, is to ship them in ice to the western markets, in which state they bring much higher prices. The lack of proper transportation facilities interferes considerably with the development of this industry, which in the hands of A. N. Whitman & Son and Andrew Wilson & Sons has made considerable advancement.

The smoked and canned fish business has also been developed to a degree in Canso, and the finnan haddie industry here has of late years become of real importance.

Canso prides itself on being at the very centre of the bank fisheries, and looks forward to a bright future when more capital is brought to bear in gathering the harvest of the sea. At present fishing is carried on by two classes of fishermen or rather vessels—the small boat with one or two dories and a crew of from 3 to 7 men, and the large vessef with 6 to 9 dories and 14 to 20 men. The former ranges from 4 to 20 tons, and the latter will average 100 tons. The small boat fishes comparatively near shore; the larger one can go out much farther and is built to weather severe gales.

Mackerel, halibut, herring and salmon are also taken in the Canso territory, but the cod and haddock fisheries are perhaps the most interesting.

Heretofore the deep sea fisheries have been handicapped by the lack of bait during part of the season. Squid is used for bait, and may be taken in millions at some seasons of the year, while at others vessels may have to lie idle for months through inability to procure bait. A. N. Whitman & Son, assisted by the Government, are building a bait freezer which it is expected will overcome this difficulty, so that bait will be available in ample quantities at all times.

View of Fish-drying Yards, Canso.

A reducing plant is also in course of construction at Canso to convert non-edible fish and fish offal into oil glue and fertilizer. This will give a commercial value to the detested dog fish and will enable fishermen to turn to useful account material that has been a bill of expense and a source of contamination to the water. When these plants are completed the condition of the fishermen should be materially improved and the importance of Canso as a fishing centre enhanced.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

THE Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, is in possession of specifications of banana crates and tomato and potato boxes suitable for the Canary Islands' trade and will be glad to forward copies of these specifications to Canadian firms interested. (8).

The following inquiries in regard to Canadian trade have been received by the High Commissioner for Canada, in London, Eng.

140. Inquiry is made by a London house respecting the prospects of doing business in Canada in pure Dutch cocoa powder, prime chocolate powder, and soaps of all kinds.

141. A Hamburg firm has asked to be placed in communication with Canadian shippers of beans for European markets.

142. A firm in Devon doing a large wholesale trade asks to be placed in communication with a Canadian house manufacturing general groceries, etc.

143. A Cardiff firm asks to be placed in commuincation with exporters of cases from Canada complete with cardboard packings.

144. Inquiry is made by a British correspondent for the names of Canadian manufacturers of high-class butter with 11-4 per cent. salt, for printing and rolling purposes, who desire to be represented in this country on commission.

145. A firm in Trieste (Austria) has asked to be placed in touch with Canadian exporters of peas and beans.

The names of the firms or persons making these inquiries may be had by applying to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. All persons desiring such information will be careful to mention the place under which the inquiry appears and the number.

CANADA AT LONDON, ENGLAND, EXHIBITION.

According to the English press, the Canadian exhibit at the grocery exhibition, Agricultural Hall, London, Eng., is one of the chief features of the show. Mr. F. W. Leigh president of the Federation of Grocers' Association in commenting on the excellence of Canada's display said he hoped the enterprise displayed by the Canadian Government would next year be emulated by other colonies with a view to binding still closer the daughters to the Motherland.

THE CONDITION OF THE MARITIME FISHERIES*

THE fisheries of the Atlantic seaboard and its adjacent waters are second to none in the world. The Portuguese and the French realized this nearly four hundred years ago and fitted out large expeditions to exploit the fisheries of the new world.

The Government of Canada has, during the last twenty years, very profitably expended large sums of money in the scientific development of the agricultural resources of the country; but up to the present time very little effort has been devoted to the scientific development of the fisheries.

THE COD FISHERIES.

The cod fishery has, by the efforts and enterprise of the industrious inhabitants of western Nova Scotia, reached a very high state of development in that section. This is chiefly confined to the bank fishery, which employs three hundred vessels, manned by four thousand men; and it is only necessary to visit the sea-coast towns in western Nova Scotia to be convinced that the industry has been an eminently successful one.

The growth of this industry has been slow; it has taken 125 years to put it on the profitable and permanent basis upon which it now rests. Its development has depended upon the experience obtained by those engaged in the industry, picked up little by little by successive generations in an unscientific and unsystematic way, and from sources not the most reliable. I doubt now if the knowledge possessed of this great industry is anything like as perfect and complete as it should be and would be, if scientific thought were applied to it.

The methods of curing the fish and preparing them for market are about the same as were employed by the early discoverers of the country nearly four hundred years ago and must admit of very considerable improvement.

In Prince Edward Island and the Gulf of St. Lawrence generally, at certain seasons of the year, the waters abound with codfish; and if the attention of our fishing population were properly directed, this fishery might be made to yield a very large return.

HERRING

I shall now take up the herring fishery, and my remarks on this fishery apply to the Gulf of St. Lawrence generally, and to Prince Edward Island particularly.

The herring fishery is a source of wealth, which is almost absolutely ignored, and yet I believe in time it will become one of the chief sources of revenue to Prince Edward Island, and other portions of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. There is no fish that swims in the sea so popular as the herring—none for which there is such great demand. The herring fisheries of England, Scotland, and Norway are reckoned among the chief industries of those countries. It gives employment to thousands of people, and millions of pounds find profitable investment in it. The trade journals of the United States from time to time make mention of the fact that the demand for herring is increasing at an enormous rate every year, and at times it is difficult for dealers to supply the demand. Large consignments of herring from the United Kingdom and Norway arrive in New York every week, where they find a ready market at good prices. We have the herring here as good, I believe, as the Scotch or Norwegian herring, if we employed the same methods of curing. Why should we not get a share of this trade?

From inquiry and personal observation I am satisfied, that the shoals of herring that approach our shores in the early Spring to spawn remain at no great distance from the coast, during the Summer and until very late in the Fall. That these fish could be taken in large quantities by employing the drift-net fishing-system, such as is used in Scotland and Norway, I have not the slightest doubt; and judging from the specimens I have seen taken in gill nets in September and October, the fish are as good as those taken in any part of the world, if they were cured and prepared for market in the same way.

In support of this contention I quote the following extract, taken from the report of Inspector Duvar, dated Alberton, P.E.I., 1887, and embodied in the report of the Royal Commission, appointed by the Dominion Government in 1888 to inquire into the herring fisheries of Great Britain and Holland:

"Actual proof has this year been obtained of the correctness of an impression which I have frequently expressed in reports and otherwise, that the coasts of Prince Edward Island might be made the seat of a great herring fishery.

"Along the north coast, especially off King's County, herring were seen this Fall, and some thousands of barrels were taken, equal to Labrador. According to appearances, this fishery has only to be pursued with energy to attain large proportions."

Proceeding, the report says: "While, from certain favorable circumstances, referred to by Mr. Duvar, Prince Edward Island would be a good locality in which to commence experiments in drift-net fishing, we think that experiments should not be confined to the coast of that island, although there seems little reason to doubt that such a fishery could be successfully established there. We think that experiments with a view to deep-sea drift-net fishing should be made along the entire Atlantic coast of the Dominion. We think that such experiments and the preliminary expense would be more than any combination of our fishermen could bear, and more than any syndicate of fish merchants would be disposed to furnish, especially in a branch of the fishing business, in which, when once developed, everybody could participate. The subject is one of great national importance, and could only be successfully undertaken and successfully carried out by Parliament and the Government, through the department. The Governments of the herring-fishing nations of Europe, Britain, Holland, Norway, Sweden, and France have spent large sums of money in developing and encouraging the herring fishery in their respective countries; and there can be no doubt that Canada will do what may be necessary in this matter. To this end we are of opinion that at least six boats, being two for each province, of the class and build of the Wick boat, with modifications, bringing the boat more into harmony with American lines, and rendering the boat more suitable for our coasts in the prosecution of drift-net fishing, should be procured by the general Government, together with the necessary number of nets, a drift of 40 or 50 to each boat.

"That four men out of the seven constituting a crew, one of whom should be skipper for each boat, should be imported of the best men to be had on the east coast of Scotland—with three local men additional for each boat, picked men, supplied from among the fishermen of the respective provinces, practical herring fishermen thoroughly acquainted with the local tides and currents and the harbors on the coasts. As fast as these local men became instructed in the system of deep-sea drift-net fishing, they could retire, leaving their places to be filled by others ready to avail themselves of the advantages of this educational process.

"Scotland imported experienced fishermen from Holland, in 1750, to teach her fishermen the proper modes of fishing herring. Boats can be modelled and built, and nets made by our own people. The whole amount necessary to test and develop drift-net fishing would not be great, while the results of the experiments, if successful, would be of the greatest importance not only to the fishermen individually and the provinces locally, but to the trade, commerce, and national wealth of the Dominion at large."

I am strongly of the opinion that the introduction of the deep-sea drift-net system, so successfully employed in Scotland and Holland, would be the beginning of a new era in the history of the Gulf fisheries. Not only would the herring fishery be developed, but the mackerel fishery might thereby be restored to its former state of productiveness.

MACKEREL.

Years ago, before the advent of the purse seine, mackerel were caught in very large quantities in the waters adjacent to Prince Edward Island.

The large quantities of bait thrown in the water by the mackerel fishermen would in itself have a tendency to hold the mackerel in large bodies on the grounds, and the small fish life, which would naturally centre there, would be another potent factor in keeping the schools of mackerel together. The absence of this concentration of the food-supply would have the effect of causing the great shoals to disperse. I think there is ample evidence in support of the contention that mackerel come in to the Gulf in as large numbers as ever; but there is nothing now to cause them to concentrate in any one place; hence they are scattered over a large area of sea-bottom in quest of food, and the deep-sea drift-net would make it possible to take them in large quantities.

EXPERIMENTAL STATION.

I understand that the Government has established an experimental fishing station at Canso, where the deep-sea drift-net system is being tried. I think the Gulf of St. Lawrence is more suitable than the Atlantic to this method of fishing, and I hope that should the experiment prove unsatisfactory at Canso, it will not discourage the Government from giving it a trial in the Gulf.

OYSTERS.

The oyster fishery in Prince Edward Island is not made to yield the returns it should, and until such time as the Government can see its way clear to grant areas of sea-bottom other than the natural beds to private individuals, for the purpose of cultivating oysters, the industry can never attain any greater development than at present. In fact we must look for a decline in the industry, as the public beds are being very rapidly depleted by indiscriminate fishing.

I can see no reason why the Government of Canada, or the Provincial Government, if it has the right to do so, should not grant areas of sea-bottom for oyster culture. To grant such areas would not in any way conflict with the rights of the public, and would be the means of bringing in a very large revenue to the country.

Some years ago the Dominion Government brought a very competent person to this country, for the purpose of instructing our people in oyster culture. I refer to Captain Kemp, who is thoroughly competent to fill such a position. Under Captain Kemp's supervision large beds were made at considerable expense, in different places, and large quantities of oysters were planted thereon. In other words regular oyster-farms were created. I do not know what definite plans the Government had in view for making this system an effectual means of educating the people. I supposed at the time they were to demonstrate how oysters may be profitably cultivated and was surprised to learn that after the beds became productive they were thrown open to the public, who in a few days entirely depleted the beds that it took four years to make and bring up to a state of productiveness.

If those oyster-farms are of any use at all to the people of Canada, it is for educational purposes. The Government in that case should market the oysters and take the returns, thus demonstrating the practicability of oyster culture from a financial as well as from a biological standpoint. I feel sure if this matter were represented to the Government, it would gladly revise its methods of conducting this branch of the service.

LOBSTERS.

The lobster fishery—The salient feature of this fishery is its rapid decadence. From all the fishery officers of the Maritime Provinces comes the report of this fact.

Mr. Matheson, inspector of fisheries for Prince Edward Island, reports under date of January 2, 1903: "You will notice that the pack of this crustacean has decreased about 7,000 cases," or 336,000 one-pound tins. Mr. Pratt, inspector for District No. 1, New Brunswick, under same date, reports in his district a decrease of 109,440 one-pound tins. Mr. Chapman, inspector for District No. 2, New Brunswick, reports: "I have again to report a great falling off in this fishery, and I am startled when I look over the returns for the past ten years, taking periods of three or four years."

In 1891,	with 127,198	traps,	3,999,061	cans	were	packed.
In 1894,	" 173,530	"	2,932,500	"	"	"
In 1898,	" 185,820	"	2,311,500	"	"	"
In 1901,	" 221,000	"	1,732,900	"	"	"

This valuable industry, which brought into Canada in the year 1902 over three millions of dollars, must at the present rate of decrease soon become a thing of the past. The erecting of hatcheries under efficient management, and a strict enforcement of the present law, is the only hope of keeping this industry alive.

The greatest decline in the fishery is plainly noticeable in those districts where illegal fishing is carried on.

lack of intelligent information concerning them; and until we are in possession of such information we shall not know exactly how to proceed. necessary for catching them; and the proper methods of curing and preparing them for market.

It is a deplorable fact, that a country like Canada, possessing the most valuable fisheries in the world, should bestow upon this great natural resource so little attention. We have no real knowledge furnished us by the Government of the kinds of fish that inhabit our waters, their migratory course, or the places where they centre in the largest quantities. I have searched the blue books of the Fishery Department in vain for such information. Other countries are in possession of all the facts pertaining to their fisheries; and until our Government places within our reach similar information we shall always be working under a great disadvantage.

PROTECTIVE SERVICE.

The fishery protective service costs the country about $140,000 per year, and the administrative force on shore costs $115,000.

The cruisers employed in the fishery protective service are entirely useless for purposes of defence; and the time has come when we should give up playing man-of-war and place the service under the control of some competent and patriotic Canadian, with instructions to handle it in such a way as to produce practical results. In my opinion the whole fishery service requires a thorough re-organization, and this can best be accomplished by appointing a Royal Commission to enquire into the present working of the service and report to the Government such recommendations as they may find necessary to bring the service up to a higher state of efficiency.

BAIT FREEZERS

The establishing of bait freezers along the coast, aided by the Government, has been a move in the right direction, and the fish hatcheries operated by the Government for the artificial propagation of lobsters and other sea-fish will, it is hoped, prevent the depletion of those branches of the fisheries upon which the drain has been greatest; but we also want scientific men as conversant in fishery matters as the professors employed by the Department of Agriculture are in matters pertaining to agriculture, to instruct our fishermen in the modern methods of catching and curing fish.

The development of the Canadian north will open up in a few years a large outlet for our fish products. The sooner we are placed in a position to take advantage of this growing trade in fish right in our own country the better it will be for all parties concerned. Let us see to it that our friends on the other side of the border do not capture it while we are sleeping.

How Lobsters Are Taken

IT will be news to most Canadians, at least to most inlanders, to learn that Canada possesses the most prolific lobster fisheries in the world; that for the year ending June 30 we exported nearly $3,000,000 worth of this much sought for crustacean. Newfoundland shares with the Dominion in the possession of these rich fishing grounds, as well as the New England States to some extent, for the lobster is found all along the North Atlantic coast. His favorite lair, however, is in the waters and offshoots of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

This region is indeed the chief source of the world's lobster supply, other grounds having been largely fished out; and the demand for the lobster is so great that his extinction has been threatened even here. Recent legislation, however, and the establishment of hatcheries promise to avert such a calamity. For the last few years the outlook has been more encouraging and with more information about the habits of this shell fish and particularly of the requirements of the young an increase in productivity may even be expected.

THE FISHING SEASON.

The lobster is in first-class condition for catching as soon as ice gets out of the Gulf in the Spring and fishermen have a chance to get after him. The season opens on April 20 and from that time on the life of the lobster is a precarious one until the beginning of the close season in the early part of August. After this time the lobster deteriorates. It is necessary for him to get rid of his shell in order to grow. So nature has provided that he shall shrink up until he can withdraw himself, from his bony covering and begin life anew in more commodious quarters. To catch the lobster during this period is sheer wastefulness. A provision has been enacted for preserving the permanent value of the lobster fisheries, by which no fish under 9 1-2 inches shall be taken. Whether or not this is strictly adhered to is another question.

THE LOBSTER INDUSTRY

is in many ways a peculiar one. The nature of the fish makes it necessary that it either be consumed or preserved without delay. Those fisheries therefore that have ready access to the express service ship large quantities of live lobsters packed in ice to the American cities, Boston being one of the chief markets. The value of these exports last year aggregated $384,544. Lobsters that can not be marketed promptly must be canned.

This fact accounts for the astonishing number of small lobster canneries to be found scattered all about the Gulf. A number of the larger firms maintain a considerable lobster fleet and purchase the catch of independent fishermen; these, however, are few compared with the packers who pursue some other occupation, own a small number of boats and put up a few hundred cases in a season.

This is made possible and profitable owing to the great demand, existing for canned lobsters and brokers representing European and American houses vie with each other in securing the output of the small factories.

LOBSTER TRAPS.

Lobster fishing is an interesting process. The fishing gear is usually prepared before Spring opens. Early in April the fishermen take down their traps, ballast them with flat stones, and are ready to bait and set them the day the season opens.

The lobster trap, as a rule, is about 3 1-2 feet long and about 20 inches wide. It is made of slats with a door in the side through which the trap is baited and the lobsters withdrawn. The bait consists of herring chopped up and hung in the middle of the trap in a net bag enclosure. The ends of the trap are of net and lead almost to the centre. The opening in each end is a wooden ring the ends of which are held taut by being tied to each other. The entrances to the trap are thus funnel shaped and the trap itself resembles an hour glass. Having once entered through its wooden ring the lobster is unable to find his way out until he receives the assistance of the fisherman.

Some 50 traps are attached to a line each about 5 or 6 fathoms apart, and the line is laid with the current of the tide in from 2 to 12 fathoms of water. The ballast sinks the trap to the bottom and the line is marked by a buoy at each end.

Two men in a boat will fish 300 traps. One man in a boat will probably have 200 to look after. In the course of a season a boat will require 30 barrels of bait.

The Fishing Grounds of the Maritime Provinces—the "Banks" indicated by dotted lines.

The traps are left over night; then the fishermen go to one end of the line marked by the buoy, take up the traps one by one, remove the catch, put in fresh bait and go on to the next.

WHAT LOBSTERS COST.

Anyone can catch lobsters; but a license, however, is required for a cannery, the fee being $2 per hundred cases. No new license will be granted a poacher.

The fishermen are paid according to their catch. Where the packer supplies boat, supplies, bait, etc., from $1.50 to $2 per hundredweight is paid for the catch. Where the fisherman supplies everything he gets from $3 to $3.50 per hundredweight for his catch. In a good season this pays well.

PREPARING LOBSTERS FOR THE MARKET.

Having removed the fish from the trap the fisherman runs in shore to the factory where the catch is placed in barrows and weighed.

Immediately the lobsters, while still alive, are thrown into boiling water where they remain for from five to ten minutes and until the red color is brought out, for it must be remembered that in his native lair the lobster is dark green in color with just a tinge of pink.

On being removed from the boiler the lobsters are placed in coolers; claws are broken off and thrown in one basket, tails in another, while the bodies are consigned to barrels to be converted in due course into fertilizers.

The claws are then cut with a cleaver and the meat removed, from claws as also from the tails. This is carefully washed in sea water and neatly packed in tins lined with parchment paper to prevent discoloration of the meat. The cans range from 1-4 pound to 2 pounds, talls, flats or picnic shapes as desired.

From the packing table the cans are taken to be sealed and soldered. They are then placed in iron trays and boiled in open steam boilers from an hour to an hour and a half. On being taken out they are punctured to allow the steam to escape and immediately resealed, allowed to cool and sent back for another hour's boil.

They are now ready for the testing room, after which they are cleaned, lacquered, labeled and packed in cases of 4 or 8 dozen for shipment to the markets of the world.

According to the latest trade and commerce reports for the year ending June 30, 1904 Canada exported canned lobsters to the value of $2,519,816. Of this great Britain took $908,617, United States $781,737, France $587.084 other countries $242,378. Of our fresh lobsters the United States took practically the whole of our exports.

Canadian Scotch Cured Herring.

MR. JOHN COWIE, the Scotch herring expert brought over by the Canadian Government has already demonstrated that properly packed Canadian herring are equal to the best Scotch fish. Trial shipments to New York and St. Petersburg, the latter one of the most important markets for Scotch herring, have brought from $10 to $12 per barrel as against $6 for the same fish packed in the ordinary manner.

Seen in Canso recently by a representative of The Grocer Mr. Cowie spoke very encouragingly of the herring outlook. He explained the small catch this season, a matter regarded as ominous in some quarters, by pointing out that there is a Spring run and a Fall run, between which herring are very scarce. He did not get started till June 4 and thus got only the latter part of the Spring run. During this time the catch was satisfactory. When seen by The Grocer's representative the Fall run had not yet begun and the catch was so far light.

Local fishermen criticise the mesh of Mr. Cowie's Scotch nets. They say the Canadian fish are larger than the Scotch fish and cannot be taken in nets of this style. This is the local explanation of the small catch. Mr. Cowie is willing to give larger meshed nets a trial but believes the Scotch nets the best and points to the good catch in the early part of the season as evidence of the effectiveness of his nets.

John Cowie, the Scotch Herring Expert, and a Group of Scotch Fish Girls taken at Canso. Mr. Cowie on the right.

Mr. Cowie's outfit for taking the herring is a steamer, known as Drifter "33," of 80 gross and 32 registered tonnage. The crew consists of two men in the engine room six on deck and the cook. They carry from 50 to 60 nets. When attached together and set these nets make a wall about two miles long and 50 feet deep. They are set over night and hauled into the drifter next morning when the fish, caught in the meshes by the gills are shaken out.

The fishing is carried on from 15 to 20 miles from shore and consequently requires a well built steamer such as the drifter "33" for its prosecution.

Once caught and landed the problem is, how to cure the fish so as to bring the high prices commanded by the Scotch herring. Heretofore there has been no uniformity among the Canadian fishermen, except a uniform poor quality of barrel. The general practice, however, has been to cut open the fish, remove all the entrails and pour off the first brine.

The first requisite for Scotch cured herring is a very heavy, strong, tight barrel. As soon as landed the fish are given into the hands of girls who remove the gills and main gut without splitting. The fish are then packed in barrels, a layer of fish alternating with a layer of salt. When filled the barrels are headed and laid on their sides for 10 or 12 days. They are then reopened when the fish are found to have shrunk considerably, a part of the brine is poured off, the barrel filled up, the head pressed down and the fish are ready for market.

It is important that the fish be left in their original brine which is of a red color, since this retains part of the flavor and is one of the points on which the fish are judged in the European markets.

Mr. Cowie emphasizes the importance of securing greater information in reference to the habits of the fish. On the Scottish coast where the industry has been placed upon a scientific basis the most exact information as to the movements of the fish is always available and the fishermen govern themselves accordingly.

It has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that the quality of Canadian herring is first-class and that cured according to the Scotch method they will bring prices equal to the best. Mr. Cowie will continue his experiments for three years. Before that time it is to be hoped that the herring industry on our Atlantic coast will be one of the most important and profitable branches of the fisheries of Canada.

A photograph is published above showing Mr. Cowie and a group of Scotch fish girls. Canso harbor is seen in the background, and in the foreground barrels of the type used in Scotland.

Herring Plentiful in B. C. Waters.

According to the Victoria Colonist. herring are again running in the Gulf of Georgia, huge shoals of herring being visible all over the harbor just below the surface of the water, shoals so vast that the tide strands tons of the fish every year.

Boatmen simply shovel them into boats to be sent by the hundred barrels as bait for Vancouver halibut steamers. Japanese take them and squeeze out the oil for export to Japan; they are also used in the manufacture of guano. Two fishing companies turn them into human food, curing and salting them, and a trade is now being built up with the United States and Australia. It may not be long before Nanaimo becomes the Yarmouth of the Pacific. The quantity of fish is there and experts estimate the quality of Nanaimo bloaters and kippers as equal to the best caught off the Scottish coast.

Halifax Fish Fire.

The destructive fire at Halifax last week which destroyed the warehouses and offices of Black Bros. & Co., will in no way affect the filling of orders for this firm's products, as the curing and storing department of fish is located at La Have, about 40 miles from Halifax. The premises destroyed were devoted to the outfitting of vessels and the compamy's offices.

Fish Notes.

The Dominion fishery cruiser "Canadienne" is receiving a thorough overhauling after which it will proceed to the Gulf of St. Lawrence to keep a lookout for American mackerel fishermen during the Autumn fishing season.

Latest reports from Halifax say the mackerel fisheries off the Magdalen Islands has been a complete failure this season. Lobster fishing has also been poor.

As a result of a recent meeting between the Puget Sound Packers' Association and the Fraser River Canners' Association the price of salmon will be kept up during 1905, which is expected will be a big year. These two concerns had an agreement to keep prices up for two years. This agreement has now expired, hence the extension of time.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS TARIFF.

An extremely valuable handbook on the Canadian Customs Tariff has been issued by Morton, Phillips & Co., of Montreal. It is strongly bound in stiff covers and is pocket size. The contents include full information on the British preferential tariff, a reprint of the Franco-Canadian treaty, regulations regarding the surtax, a list of the 1904 tariff changes, the customs tariff itself in detail, the free list, imports and exports prohibited, a table of weights, the excise duties, a list of Canadian ports of entry, outports and preventive stations, and currency tables. As a book of reference in all matters pertaining to the customs this book cannot be surpassed.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN TRINIDAD.

THE GROCER has received the following market report under date of Sept. 8 from Gordon, Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad:

Business in breadstuffs as usual at this period is quiet and prices of flour, particularly after advancing appreciably are now inclined to be easier. Split peas in both barrels and bags are in excess of requirements, while oats and oil meal are readily saleable at previous quotations.

There has been no improvement in the demand for pork and lard and all other hog products are selling very slowly. Family beef is in supply with the demand almost exclusively for cheapest grades. French butter continues in sympathy with Marlaix advices and next receipts will command a further advance. Stocks of fish of all descriptions are quite moderate. There have been no late arrivals of Newfoundland cure, for which there is now some inquiry. Scale and pickled fish of all kinds are neglected at the moment. Stocks of potatoes are considerable and for first arrivals of new crop Canadian $1.35 to $1.40 is with difficulty obtained. An improvement in the onion market is expected before long. Blue mottled soap moves steadily, but demand for brown is confined almost entirely to American brands.

Receipts of cocoa have been meagre, and reports from principal districts announce a change of leaves, which will bring about a break in the crop later on, and have some effect on the extent of next picking. The larger pods are expected to mature towards the end of the year when fair deliveries should be forthcoming, but until then no supplies of any importance can be looked for. Exports for the fortnight amount to 4,019 bags and shipments from October 1 to date are 218,531 bags as compared with 193,190 bags for the same period last year.

Enough eggs were imported to supply every man, woman and child with fifty-five. Enough wine was brought in to give all a third of a gallon each, and spirits to provide nearly one-fifth of a gallon. Four-fifths of a gallon of British spirits each has drunk, which meant a total consumption of almost one gallon per head. Besides there was enough beer to give every one twenty-nine and a half gallons. This shows a smaller consumption of liquor than in any of the previous eight years.

The imports of all kinds of merchandise last year were equal to £12 16s 1d per head of the population, which is a larger figure than ever before, and 4s 3d more than in 1902. The exports of British produce alone equalled £6 17s 3d per head, or 2s 2d more than in 1902. The only years with a higher record per head were 1890 and 1900. The total incoming and outgoing trade was £21 6s 3d per head, which is larger than any of the preceeding years save 1900, which exceeded this sum by twopence.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—No appreciable change has occurred in the provision market since last week. Considerable strength however, is still being manifested. At the prices quoted lards are very strong. The fresh meat market is quiet. Mutton and lamb are both down a half cent but there is every indication that the latter will ragain the old figure. We quote the following prices this week:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 08½	$0 08½
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13

Butter—Receipts of butter remain at a satisfactory level, but the quality of what is coming forward is not the best and complaints are being made. Business is quiet. Some dealers are receiving a cent more than the prices quoted, but higher prices rule only for first-class stock and special brands. We quote:

Cheese—The cheese market remains dull with prices hovering between 8 7-8 and 9c, and very little export demand. Board prices ran above 9c in some places but could not possibly retain this figure long. The sales for the week ending September 26 are as follows:

Provisions—A feature of the provision market this week was an advance of a quarter of a cent per pound in the price of pure and kettle lard. Heavy hams are easier, and English boneless bacon dearer. An easier tone was noticed in the fresh killed abbatoir dressed hog market. Sales were made at $7.50 to $7.75 per hundred pounds. Special cables from London report that the Canadian bacon market is much stronger. An advance was noted in price of 1s to 2s per cwt. The range now being 50s to 56s. We quote:

Cheese—The cheese market continues to puzzle even the most experienced. The demand in the Old Country is disappointing and it would appear that the holders of cheese here are asking too much for their August and September make. Plenty of stock is moving and at good prices so that the situation appears paradoxical and some of the big dealers must have sold short for September and October shipments. English buyers are still reluctant to concede the prices which holders demand. It is reported that certain shippers have disposed of large quantities of September make on a basis of 9c spot. If the British importers offered September cheese at 44s c.i.f. they would be very foolish to pay 46c. Judging from the Prices ranged, on Tuesday, for Quebec goods, 8 7-8c to 9c; Township, 9c to 9 1-8c; for Ontario white, 9 1-8c to 9 1-4c; for Ontario colored, 9 1-4c to 9 3-8c. There was also a good demand for seconds at 8 1-2c to 8 5-8c; 5,000 boxes were sold early in the week at 8 3-4c. From England it is learned that the quality and condition of Canadian cheese this year have been poorer than previous years. Early in the season large quantities of fodder-made cheese were shipped to England, which cheese is far inferior to grass-made. The falling off in quality may have some effect on the British buyer. England does not seem to want Canadian cheese like she used to, and members of the trade cannot understand the falling off in consumptive demand. Locally the arrivals of cheese have been falling off this week. At the same period last year there were 90,726 boxes of cheese arrived in the city. Last week the arrivals were over 10,000 boxes less, or a drop of over 11 per cent. For the season to date the arrivals amounted to 1,864,735 boxes, against 1,989,286 in 1903 a falling off of over 6 per cent. The total exports for the season show a falling off of 22 per cent. being 1,410,772 boxes against 1,818,231 in 1903. The exports for the week ending September 25, were 77,794, against 79,504 for the corresponding week of last year.

Butter—An easier tone has taken hold of the butter market. A tendency to decline has been noted and only a moderate volume of business has been done during the week. Quebec butter sold on spot Tuesday around 19 3-4c to 19 7-8c. Early in the week 700 packages of butter were turned over at 19 1-2 to 19 3-4c. Townships butter brought good prices and 20 1-4c was readily obtained. The export of butter has increased. British importers state that the quality of Canadian butter has shown considerable improvement on any previous year, although some complaints have been heard regarding saltless butter being in a mouldy condition on its arrival. English speculators bought it when prices were low and stored it for sale purposes in October and November, hence when the butter was found to have deteriorated the reputation of all Canadian butter suffered. The arrivals in the city last week amounted to 23,381 boxes, against 15,300 for the corresponding week of last year, showing an increase of about 52 per cent. This makes the aggregate arrivals to date 503,596, which is a gain of 99,046 over last year at the same time.

Short spice rolls, per lb	0 10
Long clear rolls, per lb	0 08½
Dry salt backs, per lb	0 09½

Butter—Supplies are still rather short. The market now quotes creamery as having advanced, but dairy is quiet with prices firm and a nominal demand for dairy bricks. Our quotations are as follows:

Creamery, fresh churned, per lb		0 24
" per lb		0 22
Dairy, bricks, per lb	0 18	0 20
" in tubs "	0 16	0 17

Provisions—In spite of the fact that the season is advancing there is very little life in barreled meats. The sale of beef becomes lighter each year. Lard is firm and there is a good demand. New smoked meats are offered. Hams hold at quite full figures. Refined lard is finding improved demand at present low prices. Dealers in fresh meat report dull business. Beef is low. Lamb is very plentiful. Mutton is dull and veal about out of season. Pork is more freely received and price is low.

Borden's "Eagle" brand Milk

Now to be Personal

Are you one of the number who have not yet bought ?

Our proposition should appeal to each individual jobber or retailer. If you are not selling Borden's "Eagle" Brand Milk, it is because you have not got the goods in stock.

If interested, communicate with our representatives.

WILLIAM H. DUNN, - MONTREAL

Why HEINZ 57

PAY BIG PROFITS ?

Suppose two articles cost you 16 cents and you sell each for 20.

Do you figure you make the same profit on each ? Not necessarily.

One sells rapidly. Have to stock it every month. The other sticks four or five months.

You make 25 per cent. on one 12 times a year—300 per cent. Seventy-five per cent. is the other's limit.

IT'S THE TURNOVER THAT COUNTS

Brands of intrinsic merit well advertised sell with the least expense and trouble to the dealer and they pay good profits because they keep your sixpence nimble. The sooner you get your order in for the 57 varieties the sooner the turnover begins.

H. J. HEINZ CO., = Pittsburgh, U.S.A.

Coffees Coffees Coffees

To hold and increase your coffee trade you must sell only the very best brands you can get; if you do not handle the best your competitor will—and get your business.

Our blends are smoother, heavier and more mellow than any others to be found on the market.

PACKING OF FRUIT.

CERTAIN Canadian apple dealers have been taking exception to numerous suggestions that have come across the sea during the present season from men who pose as being able to gauge accurately the requirements of the British market. These authorities claim there is room for improvement in the methods employed by Canadian packers and suggest, for instance, sending apples in small packages instead of barrels. Canadian packers say they have been long enough in the apple business to know where apple barrels are in demand and where apple packages. The larger English markets prefer apples in barrels. whereas it is only the small dealer who can make use of packages.

Friendly advice in regard to the requirements of the export fruit trade has been offered from time to time by the commercial agents of the Dominion Government stationed in foreign countries. Canadian fruit men appreciate the action of the Government in making such advice possible, but there have been occasions when those for whom the trade suggestions were intended have preferred to take them with a grain of salt. The reason for this is that appointees of the Government have not necessarily such wide or thorough practical experience in trade matters as to make their comments authoritative.

In the matter of fruit packing a considerable proportion of the Canadian trade feels that even those employed by the Government can get a few lessons from the present methods employed in commercial packing. Not that the Canadian Government is not undertaking a commendable work in endeavoring to improve certain aspects of the export trade, but practical experience may sometimes strengthen the hand of the educationalist.

INTERESTING CENSUS FIGURES..

MR. ARCHIBALD BLUE, census commissioner, has made public some interesting facts concerning Canadian industries. He shows that in the agricultural industry, including agriculture proper, dairying and the wood industry, Canada has invested $1,787,102,630. The value of agricultural products he shows to be $443,940,995 or nearly twenty-five per cent. on the capital invested. In fisheries, the capital aggregates $11,208,564, and with a product of $19,768,449 the fisheries are paying a percentage of 176. For agriculture, including forest products, the average value of the products per capita is $77. An interesting comparison, instituted by Mr. Blue, shows that in the United States the agricultural production per head is valued at only $62.

In manufacturing industries, employing five hands and over, $446,916,487 are invested, and the value of the product is $481,053,375, or 107.6 per cent. of the total capital. The capital and products of the dairy industry are included in these figures. The per capita production of Canadian manufacturing industries is consequently $90, while in the United States it is $170.

A COMPLAINT.

THE truth of the old saying that "It is impossible to please everybody," was never more clearly demonstrated than it has been within the past few weeks in connection with the new customs revisions, popularly known as the anti-dumping regulations.

Exception is taken in certain quarters to the involved and verbose character of the declaration foreign exporters have to sign in order to secure the entry of their goods into Canada. All will agree that the utmost care is necessary in this particular if the home market is to be effectually protected against dumping. The difficulty is this: Practically ninety-nine foreign exporters out of every hundred know no more of conditions here than that they have goods and want to sell them to Canadian merchants.

If you were to ask them which is the specific and which the ad valorem duty they would throw up their hands in dismay. As a matter of fact, however, the new declarations not only pay scrupulous attention to such items, but require the exporter of Tarragona almonds, for instance, to make a declaration that his goods are of Spanish origin, and further that they are not from Germany. The foreign trade of Canada should be burdened with impedimenta of this sort as little as is compatible with perfect security to the home market. Only a year ago a large firm of exporters in Bordeaux, France, made a direct complaint to the authorities in Ottawa, on the ground of the endless technicalities connected with the Canadian customs. In order to master the situation they contended that it would be necessary to employ a small army of special clerks if they expected to be master of Canadian trade conditions sufficiently to do business here. Such barriers should not exist, and particularly at this time when it is so essential to Canada to establish herself in foreign markets.

Much of the cause of complaint on the part of exporters would be removed if the new elaborate declarations were confined to manufactured goods. As it is they are uniform over the whole range of foreign produce and cover in addition all free imports which are in no way affected by the dumping clause.

A great deal of unnecessary detail is thus imposed on a large class of exporters, who will find it oppressive even when the regulations are thoroughly understood, which is not the case in many instances, nor have they leisure for unravelling the tangle at seasons when they are engaged within the short period of two or three months in exporting the whole year's output to the various consumptive markets of the world.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE 33rd annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association held in Montreal on September 21, 22 and 23, marks another stepping stone in the development of perhaps the most powerful commercial organization in Canada to-day. The aim of the association extends far beyond that for the mere advancement of the interests of its respective members on the assumption that what is good for one is also good in degree for two, and that community of interests is a better policy in the long run than splendid isolation. It places first and foremost the advancement of Canadian manufacturing interests at home and abroad, so much so that it early adopted as its motto the three significant words "Made in Canada."

This year's convention was largely taken up in the investigation of various problems confronting Canadian industries at the present time, and the consideration of ways ad means whereby the manufacturing interests of the country may be improved generally. The various industries as well as the commercial situation were also thoroughly reviewed and commented upon, all with the one object in view, namely that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association might be in a position to seize upon and work out with the greatest possible expedition those aspects of Canadian trade and commerce which are the most vitally connected with the advancement of Canada as a nation.

The key-note of the convention was admirably struck by the president in his opening address when he spoke of the growing importance of Canada as a nation and suggested that one of the first questions to which Canadians must give thought was the importance of establishing, preserving and developing manufacturing industries in Canada. "At the present time no less than $520,000,000 is invested in manufacturing in Canada. In 1881 the figures were $159,000,000. Thus the increase in capital investment during the last twenty years is $361,000,000. As a nation of producers our first thought must naturally be the profitable marketing of our products. There is one market we can safely take, mould and control for the upbuilding of Canadian interests, the home market which is more permanent more remunerative and yields a higher degree of profit to the individual producer than any other.

"The trade and navigation returns for the year 1904 are ample proof of the need of radical changes in the present Canadian Customs tariff if the desired end is to be brought about. The balance of trade has turned against us to the extent of $34,763,131. Imports during the same period from the United States increased by $14,000,000 of which over $8,850,000 was in dutiable goods that to a large extent could be made in Canada. In view of all this the Canadian Manufacturers' Association have declared strongly in favor of an immediate and thorough revision of the tariff upon lines that will more effectually transfer to the workshops of the Dominion the manufacture of many of the goods which are now imported from other countries.

"While such a tariff should be framed primarily for Canadian interests it should also give a preference to the Mother Country and any other part of the British Empire with which reciprocal trade can be arranged. All this in view of the fact that the two great and practically the only markets available for Canadian products to-day are the home market and those of Great Britain.

"The association therefore is in favor of the British and colonal Governments drawing together and appointing representatives to investigate the question thoroughly and to endeavor to evolve a policy of preferential trade that will bind the United Kingdom and her colonies together in a permanent alliance."

In regard to the labor question the stand was taken that it is in the interest of the Canadian workman and the Canadian employer to work together for the protection of native products and to endeavor to arrive at a mutual understanding that will make for peace between capital and labor and prevent the development of class antagonism in this country. The rights of workpeople to organize for the advancement of their mutual interests was conceded although it was pointed out that Canadian interests are continually exposed to inconvenience and menace owing to the fact that the great majority of labor organizations are international. To obtain the best results our labor organizations should be solely Canadian in interest and membership.

The question of insurance, which is agitating Canadian business men at the present time particularly those of Montreal and other cities with congested districts was brought up for consideration. As the manufacturers are the largest payers of such insurance it was strongly urged that measures be taken to secure proper adjustment of rates, and finally proposed that an insurance department of the association be organized. The necessary details of such organization were thoroughly threshed out and a scheme presented to the executive as ground work to build upon.

Among other subjects discussed were the "Fast Atlantic steamship service," "transportation," "increased aid to the woollen industry," "bounties," and "reciprocity with the United States," all of which were ably handled and are certain to be more or less moulded and shaped as to their practical outcome by the opinions of the members of such a representative organization as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

TRADING STAMPS.

A BLACK sheep has appeared to disturb the felicity of the retail grocers and general merchants of Western Ontario in the guise of a system known as "premium exchange," which it is claimed is nothing more nor less than a new form of trading stamps.

The trade will remember that a law was passed by the Ontario Government a year or two ago supplemented by a by-law on the part of the City Council of Toronto, prohibiting the giving or receiving of coupons, trading stamps or other similar devices. In the face of this certain grocers in Toronto and Hamilton have taken to distributing among their customers coupons similar to trading stamps. The matter has been carried to the courts, several cases having been tried recently, one during the week, in which a Toronto grocer was fined $10 for distributing such coupons. A charge has also been laid against a concern known as the Premium Exchange Company, by the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, on the ground that they are selling trading stamp coupons to the retail trade. At last accounts the defendants had issued a writ against the association claiming damages for alleged interference with their business. They claim that they are in no way liable to the law as merchants do not pay for the tickets until after they are redeemed, that they are merely acting as agents for the retail trade interested, and that a retailer is permitted to issue his own trading stamps and redeem them himself. Just what the outcome will be is hard to say. The Retail Merchants' Association thinks it has a clear case against the Premium Exchange Company, and is prepared to carry its case to the highest court of the land if necessary. On the other hand the Premium Exchange Company claims that its scheme of doing business is justified according to the present law.

In any event the retail grocer and general mercantile trade of Ontario as a whole is opposed to the principle of trading stamps, and it is even being whispered that legislation will shortly be attempted to prohibit the giving of premiums in any form whatever.

AUSTRIAN MERCHANTS IN MONTREAL.

THE cosmopolitan character of trade was indicated last Friday, September 23, when the members of the Austrian Manufacturers' Association were entertained by the City of Montreal. There were Englishmen, French-Canadians, English-Canadians, and the Austrians present.

At eleven o'clock the deputation, accompanied by the wives and daughters of the delegates, visited the Montreal Board of Trade, where they were received by Mr. Geo. E. Drummond, president of the Board, and members of the Council.

Col. Sir Howard Vincent K.C.M.G., who was present, was introduced by the Austrian Consul-General, and addressed the delegates in their native tongue, speaking German with fluency. A member of the party responded, first in German and then in English, after which the party left the council room, where the reception had been held, and made a tour of the building. The party then proceeded to the City Hall where they were received by Mayor Laporte and a number of aldermen.

At noon the party left the City Hall in carriages for Mount Royal, where lunch was served in the garden of Park Ranger Henderson. Alderman Robillard (acting Mayor), Alderman Deserres, Ald. Lariviere, and Ald. Turner were present. The health of the city was drunk and responded to in German by one of the delegates. Afterwards the Angus shops were visited where a couple of hours were spent.

In addition to the manufacturers and merchants, a number of literary men were present including Prof. Gressler, of the Stuttgart Idustrial High School; Prof. Loebner, of Vienna, Inspector of technical education; Prof. Gross, of Tetschin Agricultural Academy; Prof. Cicalek of the Commercial High School, Vienna, and Dr. Rudolf Kobatsch, of the Imperial Consular Academy, who is also secretary of the association.

Rudolph Hofherr a member of the party, stated that the association was the oldest of its kind of Austria, having been founded in 1839. It has now a membership of over 3,000. Twenty years ago it founded the technological museum and institute where there were now enrolled nearly 2,000 students. The party left for Boston Friday evening.

MR. MARTIN RETIRES.

MR. J. B. MARTIN, one of the principals in the well-known wholesale house of Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal will to-day retire from the firm. He has been ordered to give up active business, owing to ill-health. His physicians have further ordered him to go entirely away from his present surroundings, and acting upon their orders Mr. Martin will leave shortly on a tour of the world. He is still in the prime of life and very slightly known outside of his own business. His hobby is work, and early and late coupled with the never ceasing grind of an onerous occupation have told keenly upon his strong constitution.

Mr. Martin was one of the founders of the firm, and has, it is said, been a most valuable member of it. While his partner, Mr. Laporte, who is the Mayor of Montreal has been much in the public eye, Mr. Martin has been almost as much a recluse. His familiar figure in the cosy office just inside the main entrance will be missed and his voice either in reproval or praise will be heard no more within the walls of the premises he has occupied for thirty-five years. He explained that his dropping out would not affect the continuation of the business, which had only recently been transformed into a joint stock company limited.

Mr. L. A. Delorme, who has for years been actively employed as one of the managers of the firm, will succeed Mr. Martin as financial director and secretary-treasurer of the house. Mr. Jos. Ethier, who has been with the house for over sixteen years, remains general manager. The Grocer extends to Mr. Martin, bon voyage and best wishes for a speedy restoration to health.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. E. B. Hardwicke, the Canadian representative of James Pyle's Pearline, is a visitor to Montreal this week.

Mr. Chas. Fairall Fisher, of J. W. Windsor & Co., Montreal, is at present making a tour of Great Britain and Continental Europe, visiting London, Paris, Frankfort, Hamburg, and other large centres in the interest of his firm's large trade. Canadian lobsters obtain a high reputation abroad and from reports at hand from Mr. Fisher a larger trade is in prospect.

L. Chaput Fils & Cie., Montreal, have received a large shipment of new peels (York Confectionery Co.) which they quote at low figures.

New crop evaporated apples are in store with L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., report arrival of 200 cases St. Louis Vichy Water, "Red Clover" brand.

"Owl" chop new crop Japan teas, Nos. 100 and 200 are now ready for shipment by Messrs. L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal.

"We Don't Pose as Business Philanthropists"

Not at all, we've only one axe to grind, the axe of self interest---the making of money---But our business education has taught us that the vital successful point upon which this must depend, is the well serving of the trade and the public.

A sale of 12,500,000 packets Annually (and still growing) is proof evidence, incontrovertible, that our barque is being steered upon the right course.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Sept. 29th, 1904.

Groceries.

BUSINESS is good. The big wholesale houses are busier than they were last year at this time and large quantities of goods are being shipped to all parts. Collections are reported excellent, and prosperity seems to be the order throughout the country. Sugar still maintains its interest, the tone of the local market being very firm. The demand for refined sugar is fairly good and considerable business is being done. Spices have advanced all around, peppers being one cent higher and nutmegs also have advanced. Molasses still maintains a strong position with considerable amounts changing hands at 28c. Coffee continues to interest the market and is likely to advance. Maracaibo is scarce on the spot and buyers are finding it a little difficult to fill their requirements. The tea market is firm. Ceylon and Indian greens are not made to any extent and although the demand is not very brisk as a rule, in some quarters enquiries for them still obtain. In canned goods there is a decided firmness and there are many forebodings regarding the new pack. No additional new prices have been issued and continuous speculation is going on in wholesale centres. New prices for tomatoes are expected shortly. The fish market has awakened and and there is a heavy demand for oysters, fresh Malpecques being on the market last Monday; these, however, will be much cheaper when they begin to arrive by freight, instead of express. Dried fruits are very quiet, that is to say, the prices are easy and considerable business is being done. Eggs are still maintaining their firmess; country produce generally is being brought to market freely. There has been a slight advance in the price of eggs, of half a cent. Prices are considerably easier for potatoes, owing to the immense increase of offerings. Flour still maintains its strong position and is likely to keep up as long as the price of wheat is where it is. There is abundance of green fruit on the market, grapes being especially plentiful. Vegetables too, are copiously supplied on the market. A large business is being done locally in onions. Apple exporting is also a prominent feature of the Fall trade, large quantities having been shipped from Montreal this week, as well as from New York.

SUGAR.

The local market for refined sugar is very strong, even more than it was last week. Foreign advices on raw beet remain strong and the recent decline has been recovered. Considerable speculation is in evidence in the London market regarding the condition of the weather and whatever may happen between now and the end of October, it is a safe statement that a large amount of damage has been done by drought, which will, it is estimated, cause a deficiency of a quarter of a million tons in the ultimate yield. This coupled with the remarkable increase in Continental consumption, would serve as a justification of the present prices. It is said that unless heavy rains set in all over the continent during the next two weeks, a further falling off may take place. New York market for refined reports a moderate volume of business and prices are steady. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

No new feature has occurred in the molasses situation. Business is very slight. Sales are taking place at 28c regularly. Offers of 25c have been refused for various sized cargoes of Barbadoes molasses. There has been a marked dullness in New Orleans molasses and prices range from 22 to 28c. Antigua has been sold as low as 24c this week. however, 25c is our quotation. We quote:

COFFEE.

There is a good demand for Maracaibo, owing to the spot scarcity. In other grades sales are in small parcels, and trade is comparatively quiet. Coffee is likely to be higher in price. We quote:

SPICES.

The decline in Pimento has been maintained. Peppers have advanced one cent all around. Nutmegs also were higher. Jamaica ginger is dull, at prices ranging from 8 1-2 to 10c a pound, according to quality. The general demand for spices is very slow. We quote:

TEA.

China greens are firm and showing good value, and stocks are coming in. China blacks are high and nothing can be had in common grades at less than 11 1-2c. Indian teas and Ceylons are meeting with good inquiry and the tone of the market is steady. At present there is little doing in fine grades of tea. The demand from jobbers is slow and owing to the fact of Japan tea of fairly good quality being offered at extremely low prices, holders of Ceylon greens state that they find it somewhat difficult to make sales. CANNED GOODS.

The interest in canned goods is chiefly of a waiting character at present, because in a wholesale way most of the buyers have placed their orders and are waiting for the delivery. The scarcity of tomatoes is still more convincing and corn also is very scarce, new prices being expected daily. Salmon continues

Foreign Dried Fruits.

The weakness reported last week from Greece continues. Further declines have taken place. Fairly active business has been done during the week, considerable demand being noticed from Western buyers. Now that the second direct vessel has sailed from Patras any further orders will come by way of European ports direct here or via New York, so that the extra freight will more than make up the above reduction in prices. New Valencias are in from Spain and are selling at 6 1-2 to 7c. California raisins are selling well on spot, somewhat limiting the demand for Valencias. We quote:

Green Fruits.

The apple export trade was never better than it is this year. Large quantities of apples are being shipped from New York. The Oceanic going out this week with 15,000 barrels. All kinds of fruit seem to be plentiful. Grapes and pears and peaches are selling at good stiff prices. Several carloads of bananas have been disposed of this week at very low prices. Peaches maintain their strength and while they are selling well, high prices are still obtained. Very little change has taken place. We quote:

Vegetables.

Vegetables continue to come in more freely every day. The onion crop is interesting Montreal just now, where sales have been made in carlots at $1.75 to $2 f.o.b. Red onions are said to be a short crop; buyers claim that they can do better in the west where sales have been made from Montreal at 80c per bag of 80 pounds. Red onions are scarce and are reported at $3 a barrel f.o.b. car. Some purchases have been made in this market for shipment to the Lower Provinces. We quote:

Fish.

All kinds of fish are coming in more plentifully. Fish dealers are experiencing improved demand. Prices for fresh fish are lower, especially haddock and cod. Lake fish are arriving freely; haddies continue very scarce, it being almost impossible to secure any regular supply. Other salt fish are plentiful. New smoked herring are now on the market. Prices are on the decline. There is a good demand for bulk oysters. The first Malpecques have arrived and prices are exceedingly high, but this will change when they come in by freight instead of express. They are now selling at from $9 to $10 a barrel. Salt herring are meeting with a ready sale. Green codfish have begun to arrive and are in good demand. Salt salmon is very scarce. Some small lots of choice Labrador salmon have been secured this week by one prominent firm. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

The tone of the egg market is strong. Prices have advanced half a cent per dozen. The demand was good and sales in a wholesale way were made at 18 1-2 to 19c per dozen. Selected stock sold at 21 1-2 to 22c in a jobbing way.

POTATOES.

The tone of the market is easier, owing to increased offerings. The tendency of prices is to drop. Carlots of good sound stock sold at 60 to 65c and common, 55 to 58c per bag.

BEANS.

Steadiness marks the bean market. Prices show no change. We quote:

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Flour continues to hold its high price and is no doubt maintained there by the high price of wheat, coupled with the work of speculators. Certainly the price of flour is considered abnormal. The Ogilvie Milling Co. have most encouraging reports from the harvesting in the Northwest. We quote:

HAY.

Considerable interest is being taken in hay that has been shipped to St. John's, Nfld. Some of this is baled hay. The shortage in hay in Nova Scotia has occasioned considerable demand for stock in Quebec and Ontario; $9 is about all that can be obtained for No. 1 f.o.b. Sales have been made in St. John's, Nfld. for $20 gross ton of 2,240 pounds. Dealers, however, say that there is no money in shipping at $9 per ton here, as the freight and duty amount to $8 per ton. We quote:

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Sept. 29, 1904.

Groceries.

THE grocery trade continues to hold its own, a fair to good volume of business being reported during the week. It is not expected that the full tide of Fall and Winter trade attending the close of navigation will be on before the first of October; meanwhile travelers see the beginning of a big ending to the grocery trade of 1904.

Arrivals of new Valencia raisins, peels, and currants are reported, and quotations are now on the market. The Mediterranean fruit season, which will set in in the course of a month, will tend to stimulate the grocery trade generally.

Sugar is firm but rather dull, owing to the comparatively small quantity being used for preserving purposes as a result of the shortage in the fruit crop. Considerable anxiety is being manifested in regard to the tomato and corn pack of 1904, which it is thought will be seriously curtailed as a result of damage from Autumn frosts. The damage to corn is reported as even greater than that to tomatoes, and it is probable that higher prices will rule than a year ago.

Trade in syrups and molasses is progressing favorably. Tea and coffee continue quiet, the latter being very firm and high. A seasonable trade is reported in rice and tapioca, spices, foreign nuts and bird seed, with no special features. A good and increasing volume of trade in dried fish is reported, improved demand being noticeable for dried cod fish packages. Scaled herring are expected on this market shortly, and will retail at a higher price than usual. Evaporated apples have arrived and are selling at from 6½ to 7c per lb.

CANNED GOODS

The principal item of interest in canned goods this week is the damage by frost to growing tomatoes and corn. In some districts the tomato vines were killed outright and serious damage is reported from the tomato growing districts of Ontario generally. In view of this packers will be seriously inconvenienced, and there is every likelihood now of a comparatively small pack of tomatoes this year with correspondingly higher prices. Corn is in the same predicament, and it is feared the damage has been even more serious than to the tomato crop. Rumors are common that there will be a shortage in the corn pack.

Canned fruits are moving slowly as usual at this, the fresh fruit season, except in extreme north and western markets. A reasonable demand for salmon continues at the high price ruling. There will be few if any sardines offering on the market this year in consequence of the failure of the sardine fisheries in France. We quote the following prices:

SUGAR.

Since our last report the tone of the sugar market has considerably improved, prices in Europe stiffening fully 3d per cwt., and closing after slight fluctuations at from 2¼d to 3d per cwt. above last week. As we go to press prices for September shipment are 11s ¾d, and for October shipment 11s 5¼d, as compared with 10s 10½d and 11s 2¼d a week ago.

A fair business in cane sugar has transpired during the week comprising the sale of a cargo of 5,250 tons Javas at Delaware breakwater to the Arbuckle refinery at 11s 9d per cwt, c. i. f. equal 4½c d. p. for basis 96, and later a cargo of 3,770 tons Javas at breakwater at 11s 10d c. i. f. New York, equal to about 4.30c d. p. for basis 96 to the Federal Refinery. The only other business transpiring was the sale of about 5,000 bags Cuban sugars to the National Sugar Refinery Co., at 2 15-16c c. and f. for basis 95, equal to 4 5-16c landed d. p. for basis 96. We hear of another sale of Cubans to the same refiners at same d. p. parity; quantity not reported. Cuban sugars are getting scarcer all the time and the balance on hand are held at above current prices for Javas. While this state of the market continues refiners are giving more attention to latter sugars except all offerings on basis of 11s 7½d c. and f. and 11s 9d c. i. f. basis afloat. It is reported that they have secured quite large future shipments on this basis. Latest advices from Europe indicate no change in the crop situation.

Receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending Sept. 21 were 45,879 tons, which were fully counterbalanced by meltings of 46,000 tons, leaving stocks practically unchanged from previous week, say 148,462 tons, a decrease of 28,782 tons from last year. There is now only one central factory grinding in Cuba, as against two at the same time a year ago, and stocks in the island are reduced to an abnormally low figure, namely, 15,000 tons, making stocks in U. S. and Cuba combined of 163,462 tons as compared with 347,716 tons last year, a decrease of 184,254 tons. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,183,462, against 1,739,896 tons last year, the decrease now being 556,434 tons.

There are no changes to note in the refined market, the situation remaining firm with steady call for shipments under contract and a moderate amount of new business is reported. There are those who anticipate that the stronger position in raws must ultimately be reflected in refined and a good demand for the latter is anticipated. In Canadian refined there are no changes to note; the demand continues moderate. We quote the following prices :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The molasses trade continues to improve steadily as cold weather approaches, last month's trade having been exceptionally good. New Orleans business is confined largely to one or two brokers, others not being able to meet inquiries with suitable quotations. The demand for corn syrups continues seasonable, while a number of orders for high-grade West Indian molasses were placed during the week, and it is expected that there will be considerable of it on the market in a short time. Years ago Toronto firms handled large quantities of Barbadoes, Porto Rico, etc., molasses, but latterly the trade has diminished considerably because the consumer in Ontario has taken a notion for small fancy packages. It looks as if the old favorite was about to come into general favor once more. Our quotations are as follows :

TEAS.

The tea market is without special features for the week, with business quiet.

The manufacture of Indian and Ceylon green tea has practically ceased for the present, owing to lack of demand generally on this side. This lack of demand is not the result of a falling off in consumption here, as teas are going out steadily to consumers and are as much in demand as ever, but owing to over importations, important contracts having been entered into with India and Ceylon at the time of the declaration of the Russo-Japan war in anticipation of high prices on Japan tea. The fact that Japan teas are actually some cents per pound lower than last year has compelled merchants to import somewhat more freely on top of Indian and Ceylon stocks, resulting in temporary oversupply.

Ceylon and Indian estates have the facilities for turning out green tea as soon as there is an export demand at remunerative prices, so that the fact that they have stopped making green teas at the present time does not mean that they have abandoned the green tea trade.

Business in black teas has been a little better than last week, though buying is still on a moderate scale. Our quotations are as follows :

COFFEES

Only a seasonable demand in coffees is reported for the week at the high level of prices ruling. Locally there is no special feature of the market to report. Brokers report that coffee is dull on the street, and that buyers are still holding off, waiting for more favorable quotations. The latter hint, however, that stocks are already quite low and that they will be obliged to buy in the very near future. Meanwhile actual business is in the air and the brokers are doing nothing more than keeping their customers advised on the state of the coffee market.

Increased speculative interest has been shown the past week in the market for contracts. Early in the week there was an easier turn to prices. Subsequently, however, there developed a better undertone and all of the decline was recovered. The tone of the market at the close was steady.

The easier drift to values which developed during the first half of the week was the effect of selling by tired speculative holders to liquidate their accounts. The movement of the Brazil crop continued heavy, and this, coupled with an indicated large increase in the world's visible supply during September, generally estimated at about 700,000 bags, and which, if true, will place the world's visible supply of coffee on October 1 at about 14,200,000 bags, or about 400,000 bags larger than on the same date last year, had a discouraging effect with some of the trade. It was pointed out, however, that although the world's stock of coffee is larger than at this time last year, Europe's supply is smaller than a year ago, the stock in Brazil ports about the same as last year, and that the increase is in the supply of coffee for the United States, and which is figured as about 900,000 bags larger than the corresponding time last year. The significant fact about this large increase in the supply of coffee for the United States, it is claimed, is that it is believed to be controlled by the two largest trade interests of that country, and who are believed to be accumulating coffee, anticipating higher prices as the season advances.

Crop news from Brazil during the week has continued of a bullish character. Several firms cabled from Santos saying that the flowering or prospects for the 1905-6 Santos crop was unfavorable, and one firm cabled reiterating their estimate of 6,250,000 to 6,750,000 bags as the yield of the present Santos crop. Cable advices also were received saying that a falling off in receipts was expected.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

A seasonable demand exists for rice and tapioca at unchanged prices. This time of year is not the season of greatest consumption in rice and tapioca — their time comes in the Winter and early Spring, when supplies of fruit begin to run low. Patna rice is reported as a fair to good crop and Japan as a full crop, although more of the latter will be required at home this year on account of the war. Our quotations are as follows :

Foreign Dried Fruits

During the week new Valencia raisins, new currants and new peels arrived on the market. The bulk of Mediterranean fruit, however, will not be here for some time yet.

In California the raisin situation is stronger owing to recent rains which have seriously interfered with the gathering of this season's crop. Cable advices just received from Denia say the market in Valencia raisins is very strong and that an advance is expected in the very near future in view of the shortage of the crop as compared with last year, when the average price was not above to-day's quotations. Quotations on Malaga raisins indicate a low price in view of a plentiful crop.

General importations of foreign dried fruits are on a much smaller scale than in previous years. Present indications point to short supplies during the heavy distributing season between the present time and the end of the year. We quote the following prices :

DRIED FISH.

The dried fish trade is improving steadily, a particularly good demand for prepared cod fish being reported during the past week. The next item of interest in dried fish circles will be scaled herring, bought to arrive shortly, which will sell at 20 to 22c per box, the highest point ever reached in this article. The principal reason assigned is the poor herring catch for the present season. Our quotations are as follows:

EVAPORATED APPLES.

1904 stock evaporated apples have arrived on the market and are selling at 6½ to 7c. Indications are that evaporated apples will be plentiful this season, evaporators all over the country being now in operation.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Dealers are gradually taking their wagons off the route and it is likely that larger quantities will be reaching the Toronto market from now on. Prices are irregular, running as high as 23c for first-class eggs. The price quoted this week is 19c, but if a buyer wishes to be guaranteed fresh eggs he must pay over 20c. Dealers would rather sell the eggs as they arrive at 19c than get even 23c for the best quality and grade down to what they are obliged to accept for seconds and cracked eggs.

BEANS.

Prices on mixed beans have advanced 5c per bushel; primes 10c per bushel, and hand-picked have advanced from $1.50 and $1.60 to $1.60 straight. Limas remain unchanged. This change in price

Green Fruits.

Since date of last writing California late Valencias have been struck off the list. The season for importing California fruit is practically over. At present there is one car of Idaho plums on track at local market and this, along with Cape Cod cranberries and bananas, is practically all of the imported fruit here. Cape Cod cranberries are easier this week and are selling at $8 per bbl. Bananas are still plentiful and cheap. Large lemons are scarce. New Messinas are expected on the market next week.

Jamaica oranges are arriving in fair quantities. Shipments are being made in both bbls. and boxes. The quality of these goods is better this year so far as a result of the cold air cells which have been built in the freight compartments of ocean liners, thus keeping the fruit cooler and firmer. As a result of good supply prices have declined $1 on bbls. and 25c on boxes. Shipments of Almeria grapes may be expected within two weeks. Reports state quantity and quality of crop good.

Canadian peaches have arrived in fair quantities during the week and prices have become easier. Prices on pears and plums have advanced. Tomatoes are arriving in larger quantities and we may look forward to good supplies if warm weather continues. The season for Clapp's Favorite pears, Champion and Moore's Early grapes is practically over. Crabapples are selling at from 15 to 25c per basket, and from $1.50 to $2.50 per bbl.; Worden grapes at 30c per basket, and Brightons at from 25 to 40c per basket. Reports state that apples are plentiful in all districts, but that in some districts the quality is 40 per cent. better than in others. All dealers are of the opinion that apples will be cheap during the coming Winter. The market has been dull during the past week, but dealers are looking forward to improved conditions.

Fish.

Pike are very scarce, the market being bare at present. The demand is brisk and prices continue unchanged. The supply of oysters is good, and as a result of the cool weather there is a good demand for this article. In addition to our list we have ciscoes selling at $1.25 per basket. Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

During the week under review lamb skins and shearlings have each advanced 5c, caused by growth of animals, thus making the skins older, larger and more expensive.

Auction sales are being held in London, England. These auctions take place four times a year and rule the markets of the world. There is a liability of a change in prices after present sales are over. With the exception of the two above mentioned articles prices remain unchanged. Our quotations are as follows :

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special Correspondence of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 22, 1904.

TRADE conditions continue normal. Business with the Yukon will drop off from this date, the consignment of through shipments having been refused by the White Pass and Yukon Railway Company. This took place a week ago, and the date is somewhat earlier than last year, but the company wishes to avoid as far as possible the position in which it finds itself at the close of navigation every year, namely, that of having large quantities of merchandise on hand at White Horse, which has to be stored over Winter. Perishables are generally rushed through, and nothing but the staples lie over. Already this year there are 3,000 tons of merchandise at White Horse, besides cattle, awaiting shipment down the river. The water is very low in the upper Yukon this year, and this condition combined with the closing of navigation by frost, which will take place almost any time after the first of the month, will likely prevent all of the goods being taken down to Dawson. What cattle are over are slaughtered, and the carcasses shipped over the ice.

The biggest features in the market are the jump in the price of flour and the scarcity of eggs. Manitoba patents have gone up 30 cents per barrel, one of the largest advances yet, and the market is firm at that. Wheat has also advanced in sympathy. While eggs have not advanced, the figures are very firm, consequent upon the few fresh eggs in the market. Eastern eggs are somewhat better than a month ago, and are worth 26c. The local article goes from 30c to 35c. Butter remains the same, local creamery retailing at 30c, with preferred article at 35c.

Another feature is the corner in potatoes, which it is thought may prove successful. The main source of supply is Ashcroft, where the best potatoes on the coast are grown. They are eagerly sought after, and large shipments are made to all parts of the province, and to the north. Mr. Sol. Oppenheimer, of the firm of Oppenheimer & Sons, who is thoroughly familiar with the produce market, claims he has secured all the potatoes for this Fall, and will be able to command the market. The necessary money for the operation was put up by Mr. J. West, an Australian, who has come to Vancouver and is investing largely in business property. The effect of this action is not yet apparent, it being a little too early, but later in the season the result may be noted.

Generally, local business is up to expectations for this time of the year, and orders for fall trade have been satisfactory. Payments are fairly prompt, and little complaint is made on that score. The vegetable market is featureless, and the fruit business is brisk with very little change to note. Plums are slightly higher, as the season is advancing, and the demand for them is very good. California dried apricots, pears and peaches are all reported to be a short crop, and the market is thus somewhat unsettled. Coffee has an upward tendency, while there is nothing new to report in tea. In cured meats, backs have advanced 1-2 cent, but other standards are the same.

Mr. William Whyte, second vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and general manager for the western lines, is in Vancouver this week on his annual tour of inspection with the president, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. Mr. Whyte understands the west perhaps better than any other man in the company, and he is very sanguine over the great trade possibilities between British Columbia and the Territories and Manitoba. "The market there is constantly increasing," Mr. Whyte said. "With 50,000 and 100,000 settlers taking up land in the Northwest every year, British Columbia will have a fine market for its fruit and lumber, while the Territories should export some of their wheat to the Pacific seaboard. This could go in the way of flour. There are vast developments in store for western Canada."

It will only be two or three months before the steamers are on the new route between Vancouver and the ports on the west coast of Mexico. That there are trade possibilities there is indicated in the interest the Governments of the two countries have taken in the matter, and also from the figures which show the increase of exports from the United states to Mexico. In 1889, $6,500,000 worth were taken from the United States and ten years later this had reached $11,500,000. The greatest increase has been since then, showing that if once the trade be started there will be considerable commerce. In 1900 the exports amounted to $35,000,000, an increase of 300 per cent. and in 1903, $42,250,000. This trade has been secured by the energy of Americans, and there is no reason why Canada should not come in for her share. Her goods are just as good, the tariff is just as favorable, and it but rests with the people, since the Governments have done their share. Apart from lumber, timber, and mining necessaries, there should also be a considerable demand for cured meats, canned goods, and such like. The west coast of Mexico is now being rapidly developed, and in a few years, now that that part is being opened up by railways, there should be admirable opportunities for trade for those who care to go after it. Mr. J. H. Greer, the agent here of Andrew Weir & Co., of Glasgow, who have been awarded the contract to supply the service, has opened offices in Vancouver.

OTTAWA EXHIBITION NOTE.

The exhibit of Armour's Cordials and Extracts of Beef at the Canada Central Fair at Ottawa received a good deal of attention and the merits of the goods were highly commented upon. D. Rattray & Sons are the general agents for Armour throughout the Ottawa Valley and the exhibit was under the direct management of Mr. C. A. Parker, of Ottawa.

REGINA NEEDS NEW INDUSTRIES.

Regina is badly in need of an up-to-date packing house plant, a cold storage plant, a wholesale grocery and a biscuit and candy factory, says the Winnipeg Free Press, and it is understood that every possible assistance will be given capitalists willing to put money into these enterprises.

The Regina Board of Trade has determined that the time has come for the establishment of a live stock market at Regina, and as a preliminary step is inviting correspondence with the official secretary, J. K. Hunter. For years to come the west will be heavy consumers of cereal foods, breadstuffs, ham, bacon, etc., and it is contended that there is no reason why she should be compelled to ship her raw material east to be made into food only to be returned later subject to heavy tolls for manufacture and carriage.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. B. Townsend has just returned from a visit to Newfoundland, in company with Mr. Mark Sanderson, of Robertson, Sanderson & Co., Limited, of Leith, the Scotch distillers.

Mr. Harry Dawson, of "Dawson Bros." Fruit Commission Co., Toronto, has just returned from a tour of inspection through the apple district of Ontario. He reports a good crop in general and is of the opinion that apples will be cheap during the coming Winter.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, reports that it is now shipping large quantities of Canada Cream Cheese for the Fall trade.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, are expecting a car of fine Cape Cod cranberries; also a car of lemons, this week.

The California deciduous fruit business is practically over after a very successful season, forty-four cars having been handled during the past 10 weeks by White & Co., Toronto.

The Park-Blackwell Co., Toronto, reports that its sausage trade has been phenomenal so far this season, "Fresh Pork Sausage" having proved a popular article with the trade. The firm is at the present time filling daily as well as weekly orders for shipment to all parts of the country.

Cape Cod cranberries are arriving in fair quantities, a car coming in this week for White & Co., Toronto.

D. Rattray & Sons report large sales of Armour's Cordial and Extract of Beef, through their offices in Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa.

Leonard Bros., Montreal, report that they have some very choice Labrador salmon in tierces, barrels, and half barrels. These are very select stock and buyers would do well to write for prices.

W. G. Craig & Co., wholesale grocers, Kingston, expect the arrival in a few days of a large consignment of Lipton's pickles, jams, jellies, marmalades, etc.

"King Oscar" sardines are a good seller with Provost & Allard, Ottawa.

Salada tea, for which Provost & Allard, Ottawa, are agents, is going with them at the rate of about 50,000 packages every two months.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, report a good business doing in "Eureka Brand" maple syrup.

A carload of Lytle's pickles, all varieties and styles, has been received this week by Provost & Allard, Ottawa.

Mr. E. D. Marceau's tea report in this issue is worthy of buyers' attention, particularly as it is accompanied by special offerings in teas.

The Joliette Biscuit Co.'s (Limited) products obtain a large sale in the Ottawa District. Provost & Allard of that city have to place orders in carload lots now.

Several shipments of new select Valencia raisins arrived this week for H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., Sept., 1904.

THE Exhibition which was held during the past week was in every way a great success. Never have we had as good a show either as an industrial exhibition or as regards amusement features, which have grown to be so important to the success of any exhibition. Never were there larger numbers attracted to the city from the surrounding country. The weather, which perhaps after all is that which means success or failure, was fine, though perhaps a little cool. Those who had special lines to place before the people of these lower provinces must have realized the immense advantage of the exhibition as an advertising medium. As the exhibition followed the one at Halifax, those desiring to get the benefit of both were able to do so at the minimum of expense. It is expected that when the time for another exhibition comes around there will be even a greater demand for space.

In wholesale lines the week has not been a particularly busy one. But it has had this advantage: buyers and sellers have seen each other. Many who have not been in the city for a year and longer have been able to have a talk with our wholesale merchants, and though much can be done through correspondence and by the traveler, there is nothing like buyer and seller meeting face to face. Nearly all travelers have been in town looking after their customers who were visiting the city. In markets the general tone is very firm.

Oil.

The season of consumption of burning oil is here. Advance sales have been large. The lower prices quoted some weeks ago have not changed. Paint oils, while firm, are unchanged; there is but a fair sale. Lubricating oils, while unchanged, show a light movement. So far receipts of cod oil have been light. The high prices of last year have given way to much lower figures.

Salt.

Two quite large cargoes of Liverpool coarse salt have been received within the last two weeks. They were largely sold while landing. While prices are higher than last year there is a good, steady demand. Another cargo is expected next week, and a further shipment about two weeks later. In the salt, sale is rather less active, chiefly Canadian being sold, though some English factory filled is still offered.

Canned Goods.

There is increased interest, as several lines reported short pack. Prices on New corn, tomatoes, peaches and several other important lines are daily expected. It cannot be said that the methods of the association are popular, still there are advantages particularly in view of the agreement on selling prices between the dealers here. Salmon are firm. There will, however, be fair stocks here. Springs and cohoes are the chief lines offered. Blueberries are quite plentiful. Gallon apples are dull. In domestic fish, such as sardines, etc., there will be a fair pack.

Green Fruits.

There is a steady business. Large quantities of apples are being received. Prices are quite low. Some nice New Brunswick Gravensteins are seen. Oranges are very scarce. Lemons are still quite high. Bananas show less business. Shipments of Ontario fruit have been light this year. It is still early for grapes. While peaches are scarce the demand is not active. Cape Cod cranberries are offered; prices are quite high.

Dried Fruits.

First shipments of California seeded and loose raisins are now on the way. Prices are very low and quality is said to be good. Prunes are very low. It would look as if practically no Valencias would be imported. Prices so far quoted are quite high. Malagas are about as last year. The sale is not large. Dates are low. Currants are now sold almost entirely in cartons cleaned. Prices are unchanged. Apricots and peaches are firm with sale light. Evaporated apples are very light sale. Ontario onions, which were sold very low, are now higher. Splendid Valencias are being received. The market tends higher. In nuts, filberts and shelled almonds are high. Peanuts are lower.

Sugar.

There has been no change for some little time, but the market is a firm one and full stocks are held.

Molasses.

Prices are unchanged. Fair stocks are held, particularly in Porto Rico. It is thought the new customs regulations in regard to duty will tend to increase our molasses business with Western Canada as shipments from Boston and New York will have to pay extra duty.

Fish.

This has been an off year. Fish were never so high. Fresh fish are very scarce. Dry fish continue very light supply. Prices are high. Receipts of pickled herring are very light. Full prices have been maintained. In smoked herring full figures are still asked. Season is yet early. Shipment of haddies is so far small. Smokers cannot get stock.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Dealers were somewhat surprised this week by a small decline in Ontario flour. Market is still considered a firm one. Oatmeal is unchanged. Oats are rather lower. Cornmeal is firmer with a slight advance noted this week. Beans are dull, but price is rather higher. Feed is quite high. Barley is a light sale. Split peas scarce and high.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Sept. 26, 1904.

THE unsettled condition of the weather which has been general throughout the Northwest is still holding back the threshing operations to some extent. The jobbers report that trade on a whole is bright with splendid prospects.

Sugar.

The market is at present firm, quoting Montreal granulated at $5.30 per barrel and $5.20 per sack, yellows at $4.70; Wallaceburg at $5.20 in barrels and $5.10 in sacks.

Rolled Oats.

The market is firm with the usual good demand, quoting 80-lb sacks at $2.25, 40-lb sacks at $2.30, 20-lb sacks at $2.35, 8-lb sacks at $2.65, and 6-lb sacks at $2.85.

Cornmeal.

The market is now not quite so firm, but cornmeal is still holding the price per sack at $1.75 and 90c per half sack.

Canned Vegetables.

The market is now quite firm; canned beans are still quoted at $1.80 to $1.90 per case, and canned peas which have been available for the past few weeks, are also quoted at $1.90 per case.

Coffee.

The market is now somewhat quieter, quoting No. 5 green Rio good quality at the same figure as last week, from 10 1-2 to 11c per lb.

Canned Fruits.

The market is bright and fairly firm All the available new stocks are now in good demand. The market quotes strawberries at $3.25 per case, raspberries at $3 per case of 2 dozen; jams are still holding about at 47 1-2c per pail for both Upton's and Aylmer's brands; pineapples, which are now available, 2 lb. whole at $3.75, 2 1-2 lb. whole, at $4.60, 2 lb sliced at $4.25 and 2 lb. grated at $4.35.

Green Fruit.

The market continues firm and very active. Oranges are quoted at $5.50 per case; lemons $5 per case; bananas, $2.75 to $3 per bunch; Washington pears $2.25 per crate; California pears $3 per crate, basket pears 75c; tomatoes 75c per basket; crab apples 65c per basket; basket apples 40c; Washington peaches $1.25 per crate; Washington plums $1.25 per crate; Ontario apples $3 to $3.25 per barrel; grapes 37 to 40c per basket; sweet potatoes are still quoted at $5 per barrel; celery at 50c per dozen bunches and green tomatoes at 2 1-2c per lb.

Flour.

The market still continues firm, quoting No. 1 patents at $2.90; No. 2 at $2.70; No. 3 at $2.10, and No. 4 at $1.55.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. S. Banks, fruit dealer and confectioner, Brantford, is dead.

Mr. T. J. Doak, Hamilton, formerly manager of the Canada Canners' Co., is dead.

Mr. Hugh McKenna, one of the oldest established grocers and general merchants of St. Stephen, N. B., is dead.

Mr. J. McLean, of McLean Bros., general merchants, North Wiltshire, P. E. I., has left on a two months trip to the Canadian Northwest and Pacific Coast.

Mr. Joel M. Briggs, of Toronto, was a visitor to Montreal last week, attending the meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Mr. Briggs called at the office of The Grocer.

Mr. W. H. Dunn, Montreal, is visiting the trade in Toronto this week. His Toronto representative, Mr. W. F. Clough, will assist him in looking after the numerous customers in that city.

Mr. W. E. Forbes, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, is making a business trip through Ontario's larger business centres in the interest of Rowat's pickles and "Bee" brand goods.

Mr. E. O'Reilly, a well-known member of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, is dead. Mr. O'Reilly came originally from Wolfe Island, Ont., and went west in the early eighties, where he first engaged in the cattle trade and later became interested in the grain business, which he pursued successfully up to the time of his death.

Mr. R. A. Donald, of the Pure Gold Mfg. Co., Limited, Toronto, was a visitor to the Montreal trade, accompanied by the company's Montreal agent, Mr. W. H. Dunn. As a result of their vigorous campaign a carload of Pure Gold goods is going forward this week to Mr. Dunn for distribution to the wholesale trade of Montreal.

Mr. J. G. Bauld, of Halifax, N. S., has joined Mr. Jason S. Creed, Montreal, commission merchant and import agent. Mr. Bauld has had an extensive business experience in Halifax and the Maritime Provinces, having for over fifteen years been in close touch with the eastern trade. Lipton's pickles, jams, marmalades, etc., will be the lines which Mr. Bauld will be interested in placing before the Montreal trade. The Grocer welcomes him to the metropolis.

The Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa

NO better evidence of the growth of Ottawa as a manufacturing and commercial centre can be found than in the steadily increasing importance and popularity of its annual fair. The good people of Ottawa are citizens of no mean city, for not only is it the political centre of the Dominion, but the importance of the industries which flourish in its midst place it in the front rank of Canadian cities, while its splendid situation and natural beauties draw visitors from every nation and clime. Realizing their responsibilities, therefore, the citizens of Ottawa have addressed themselves to the task of providing an exhibition that shall be worthy of the dignity and importance of their city, and this paper takes this opportunity of congratulating them on the success of their efforts. The fair was an unqualified success from first to last and notwithstanding the inclement weather that prevailed during the greater part of the week, the crowds that daily visited the fair grounds constituted a record in the history of the exhibition.

Aberdeen Pavilion.

The main building, or as it is called, the Aberdeen Pavilion, was, of course, the centre of interest. Every inch of space that could be utilized for exhibits was taken and many exhibitors whose applications were late in arriving had to betake themselves to the other and less important buildings. The exhibits were one and all of a high order of excellence and much artistic skill and good taste were expended on their preparation. One was somewhat surprised to note the absence of any exhibit representative of the tea trade. It is difficult to account for this except on the supposition that they were crowded out. With this exception the display was thoroughly representative of Canadian industries. It was indeed, an object lesson on the brains, resources and industrial skill of Canada and its people.

Comparisons are always odious, but, without detracting in any way from the other classes of exhibits, one might say that the soap displays—represented by Pugsley, Dingman & Co., Lever Bros., the Richards Pure Soap Co., and the Metropolitan Soap Co.—were especially noticeable.

A good criterion of the value attached to the Canada Central Exhibition as an advertising medium was afforded by the fact that several exhibitors took this means of introducing new articles to the public for the first time. Entertainment, as well as instruction, was provided for the visitors to the pavilion in the shape of gramophones, musical instruments of different kinds, guessing contests and other devices to engage the attention of the multitude.

Machinery Hall.

The machinery hall had a full complement of exhibits, chiefly of machinery applicable to the farm and demonstrations were given of the capabilities of the latest threshing machines, manure spreaders and other labor saving devices for the farmer. This was the rendezvous for all who were interested in agricultural operations and it was instructive to listen to the critical comments of practical agriculturists on the various types of farming machinery. In the carriage building adjoining the machinery hall an excellent display was made of all that is newest and most up-to-date in carriages. Several large firms were represented and the exhibits were in every way worthy of this important industry.

Experimental Farm Building.

The Experimental Farm had admittedly the best exhibit they have ever shown at the fair. Not only was it distinguished by its very artistic arrangement, but it was thoroughly practical and the fullest information was available to the interested visitor from the attendants with regard to the various experiments that are being conducted at the farm, so that its value from the educational point of view cannot be overestimated. The appearance of the interior was enhanced by a fine collection of pictures lent by the C.P.R., which were gracefully draped with clusters of grain.

Live Stock.

The exhibits of horses and cattle were pronounced to be ahead of anything that has yet been seen at Ottawa, both in regard to numbers and quality. So numerous were the entries of horses and cattle that temporary stables and byres had to be erected to accommodate them. Every class was well represented and the competition for prizes was keen.

The Midway.

On the Midway the fun was fast and furious. Everything was there, from Asiatic jugglers to medicine vendors who gave away ten dollar bills with fifty cent remedies, while the strains of "The Good Old Summer Time" mingled with the resounding blows of the hammer, the crack of the rifle and the hoarse cries of the nigger minstrels. Farmer Hodge sat for his portrait at fifteen cents and the deacon stole surreptitious glances at the Parisian beauties and wondered if he dare go in.

Comfort Soap.

It was difficult to get near the exhibit of Pugsley, Dingman & Co., owing to the crowds that were drawn to their booth by the glittering display of prizes. These included a handsome piano, lamps, clocks, and a great variety of dazzling jewelry. A huge cake of soap was displayed on a stand and the public were invited to guess its weight. In addition to the prizes the booth itself was quite a centre of attraction. It consisted of a model house, the roof of which was built of packets of "Comfort Soap," the sides being decorated with handsome pictures.

Considering the comparatively short time that Comfort Soap has been on the market it has taken a remarkably strong hold on the public and the enterprising firm who manufacture it are confident that its high qualities have only to be known to make it used in every household. The exhibit was under the charge of Mr. Cockburn.

Richards Pure Soap.

The exhibit of the Richards Pure Soap Co. drew big crowds every day and all day. The principal attraction was their unique guessing competition. A horse of sleek and handsome appearance was the prize that went to the fortunate guesser of its correct weight, and many thousands took part in the competition each day. Each guess cost five cents, for which a coupon was given out redeemable at any grocery store in the shape of a cake of Richards Pure Soap. This company's headquarters are at Woodstock and their soap is now so well known to the trade that it is hardly necessary to speak of its merits. The booth had an attractive appearance, being in the form of an archway with a wing on either side. The superstructure was built of the familiar red and black packets of Richards Pure Soap.

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Exhibit of D. S. Perrin & Co.

D. S. Perrin & Co.

The exhibit of D. S. Perrin & Co. was on an imposing scale, occupying a frontage of no less than 50 feet, with a height of about 18 feet. At the two ends were displayed, tier above tier, boxes of the company's popular biscuits embracing "Fancy Graham Wafers," "Cream Sandwich," "Social Tea" and a host of other lines. The centre was composed of a full line of Perrin's delicious confections including forty-six flavors of their "Newport Chocolate" and a new line of chocolate which they are about to place on the market named "Zaza," every piece being stampel on the bottom with that name. This chocolate the company guarantee to be absolutely pure and to possess a delicacy of flavor that will please every palate. The company's bottled goods were also prominent, likewise their pail and drum goods of which they showed an immense range. The company's representatives for Ottawa district are Lanthier & Noble, 530 Sussex street, Ottawa, who were in attendance at the exhibit and displayed great patience and courtesy in dealing with the large crowds that were daily drawn to the exhibit.

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Exhibit of Maclure & Langley.

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Exhibit of The Cowan Co., Limited, Toronto.

The Cowan Co.

The booth of the Cowan Co. was a feature of the main building. The decorations were in burnt orange while the booth itself was painted white. In the interior on a stand was displayed a pile of tins of "Perfection Cocoa," while a number of pictures graced the walls of the booth. A staff of ladies under the superintendence of Mr. Murray served the visitors with cups of the refreshing beverage that has made the Cowan Co. a household name.

The Cowan Co. have lately put on the market a line of milk chocolate that is rapidly becoming a favorite with the public. It can be depended on for absolute purity and delicacy of flavor.

Maclure & Langley.

The booth of Maclure & Langley, sole Canadian agents for Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolates, evoked much favorable comment. The decorations were dainty and artistic. That Tobler's Swiss Milk

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Exhibit of The Frontenac Cereal Co.

Chocolate is a confection that has firmly established itself in the public favor was evident from the large numbers of people who daily visited the booth and regaled themselves with this dainty sweetmeat. Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate is not a product of yesterday, but has a long established reputation and has won gold medals at many European exhibitions. It is put up in an endless variety of fancy boxes, tablets, croquettes, etc. It should be mentioned that one important feature in its manufacture is the fact that it is ground for five days by electric machinery. This adds greatly to its digestive qualities. Mr. Bradley, who was in charge of the exhibit, reported that his firm are experiencing a constantly increasing demand and are satisfied that Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate has taken a permanent place in the public esteem.

Orange Meat.

The Frontenac Cereal Co. were again to the fore with an exhibit that was in every way creditable to them. Their booth was a square one varnished in brown with some pretty lattice work supporting the roof. The Frontenac Cereal Co. started in business just about a year ago and the popularity of their food has grown to such an extent that "Orange Meat" is now to be found not only in every quarter of the Dominion but in every colony of the British Empire. The company make the claim that theirs is the only breakfast food that is put up in hermetically sealed packages lined with mercerised paper thus making the food perfectly moisture and vermin proof.

Mr. Blakeslee, the company's representative, who has had charge of the exhibits at Winnipeg, Toronto, London and Ottawa, was greatly pleased with the way in which the public have appreciated their exhibits.

Bovril, Limited.

One of the most artistic booths in the main building was that of Bovril, Limited. It was situated just opposite the main entrance and was the first object that caught the eye of the visitor on entering. The decorations were in pale green and white. On a stand at the back of the booth was a model of an ox gazing at a bottle of Bovril, while his thoughts are interpreted by the printed words "Alas, my poor brother." This of course is the advertisement that has become a familiar sight all over the civilized globe. It is hardly necessary to add that Mrs. J. H. Small, of Montreal, who was in charge of the booth, and her assistant were assiduous in their attentions to the visiting public and many thousand cups of Bovril were dispensed each day free of charge.

Canada Maple Exchange.

Small's maple syrup, sugar and confections were a centre of attraction in the Honey building where a full line of these goods was displayed. This company has been in existence about thirty years and is the only company exclusively devoted to the manufacture of maple products. They guarantee each and all of their products to be absolutely pure and to satisfy the most delicate palate. Each package bears a certificate by the Quebec analyst that the contents are absolutely unadulterated.

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Canada Maple Exchange.

The Grimm Mfg. Co., Montreal.

The Grimm Mfg. Co.'s exhibit of maple syrup in the dairy and honey building attracted a great deal of attention. The exhibit consisted of sugar and syrup and was enhanced very much by the design of a miniature sugar bush showing the old and new ways of producing the article. The Dominion Government was supplied by the Grimm Mfg. Co. with a similar outfit for display in the Canadian building at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. Mr. Grimm stated that the coming season is expected to turn out the largest in the history of the maple sugar industry. Next Spring the company will extensively push the business both in Canada and abroad and in this connection he remarked that inquiries for his company's products had already been received from Australia and an initial shipment made. The trade in Ottawa was a good one and the display at the fair would materially increase the demand for their high-class products. The Grimm Mfg. Co. also exhibited one of their sap evaporators in the implement building and a number of the machines were sold to farmers and syrup producers.

Empire Tobacco Co.

The thickest part of the crowd was around the booth of the Empire Tobacco Co. Here was displayed a wonderfully large and varied assortment of prizes all to be given away in exchange for the "Snowshoe Tag" on Bobs plug chewing tobacco. One of the attractions was Col. Collins Young, the smallest man in the world, who weighs 42 pounds and is 24 years of age. The gallant colonel was in no way embarrassed by the attentions of the crowd but displayed the greatest good humor and was most energetic in advocating the merits of Bobs plug chewing tobacco and all other brands manufactured by the Empire Tobacco Co.

It was difficult to convince the crowd that such a valuable lot of presents were really given away for Snowshoe Tags, but such was really the case. The manufacturers of Bobs plug chewing tobacco claim to be the only tobacco manufacturers in Canada that share their profits with the consumer.

A large staff were in attendance at the booth and were kept busy attending to the wants of the crowd. It ought to be added that the balloon and parachute that attracted so much attention each day were provided by the Empire Tobacco Co. who have been touring the province of Ontario all Summer giving free balloon ascensions from different cities and towns advertising their brands of tobacco.

William R. Cummings.

Crowds of visitors, especially from the country, were attracted to the booth of William R. Cummings, of Ottawa. The prominent feature was "Fat Equal," a food designed for calves, pigs and cattle. Mr. Cummings informs us that this food has been endorsed by 10,000 farmers. Mr. Cummings, with characteristic enterprise, issued 1,000 invitations to the fair and, judging from the host of visitors at the "Fat Equal" exhibit, most of the invitations were accepted. So successful has he been with his exhibit that he will be unable to fill further orders for "Fat Equal" for at least two weeks.

Besides "Fat Equal" Mr. Cummings has entered the cereal market and has on sale at Ottawa a two pound package of rolled oats in a neat, attractive package in white, edged with gold and bearing in large red letters "K. Y." the registered trade mark of the late McKay Milling Co. and now controlled by the K. Y. people of Ottawa. This is the cereal that has hitherto been sold only to the Montreal merchants under the name of "Cream of Oats." The trade are supplied through D. H. Rennoldson, wholesale grocer, Montreal. The brokers are Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal.

National Cash Register Co.

National Cash Registers were again a good drawing card. The exhibit was situated at a corner of the centre aisle and attracted many visitors. Two of the company's leading machines were displayed on stands inside the booth while the other lines were shown on a ledge that ran around the walls of the booth. The multiple drawer machine was the leader and a beautiful piece of mechanism it was. These registers are equipped with as many cash drawers up to nine as there are clerks in the store. The machine is arranged so that each clerk operates his own cash drawer. The merchant knows how much business each man does and what kind; also the particulars of each sale as made. This printed record is made under lock and key.

The exhibit was in charge of Mr. W. E. Wright, the eastern Ontario sales agent, whose office is at 129 King street west, Toronto. Mr. Wright also has a full line of samples always at the Russell House, Ottawa, and is always glad to show them to anyone who is interested.

Sunlight Soap.

Lever Bros. are to be congratulated on their picturesque exhibit in the main building. It occupied a space of 50 feet by 30 and consisted of an exact model of Windsor Castle, the Royal residence in England. The scale of the model was 3-8 of an inch to the foot and everything was reproduced even to the smallest detail.

On ledges in front of the model was displayed a full line of Lever Bros. soaps, including "Sunlight," "Lifebuoy," "Monkey Brand," "Crest" and the toilet soaps, "Silkskin" and "Coral." The demonstrations of the scouring qualities of Monkey Brand attracted large numbers of visitors.

Library Bureau of Canada, Limited.

The Library Bureau of Canada, Limited, had every reason to be proud of their splendid exhibit, and certainly the public showed no lack of appreciation as was evident from the constant stream of visitors who asked for information regarding the various lines.

The Library Bureau are the inventors and originators of the card index, the system of vertical filing, and numerous other business systems. The methods of the Library Bureau are thorough and will commend themselves to every business man. They make a complete study of the requirements of the individual business and then equip it with a system that will most fully satisfy those requirements, economy of time and labor (and consequently of expense) being the object in view.

Besides being the inventors of those office systems the Library Bureau make a specialty of the manufacture of all kinds of office furniture and library fittings. Many important banks, newspaper offices and other institutions as well as stores owe the handsome and elegant appearance of their interiors to the skill and care of the Library Bureau. Appearances count for much in the business world and every dollar invested in that direction will yield a handsome return.

Quick Easy Loose Sheet Press.

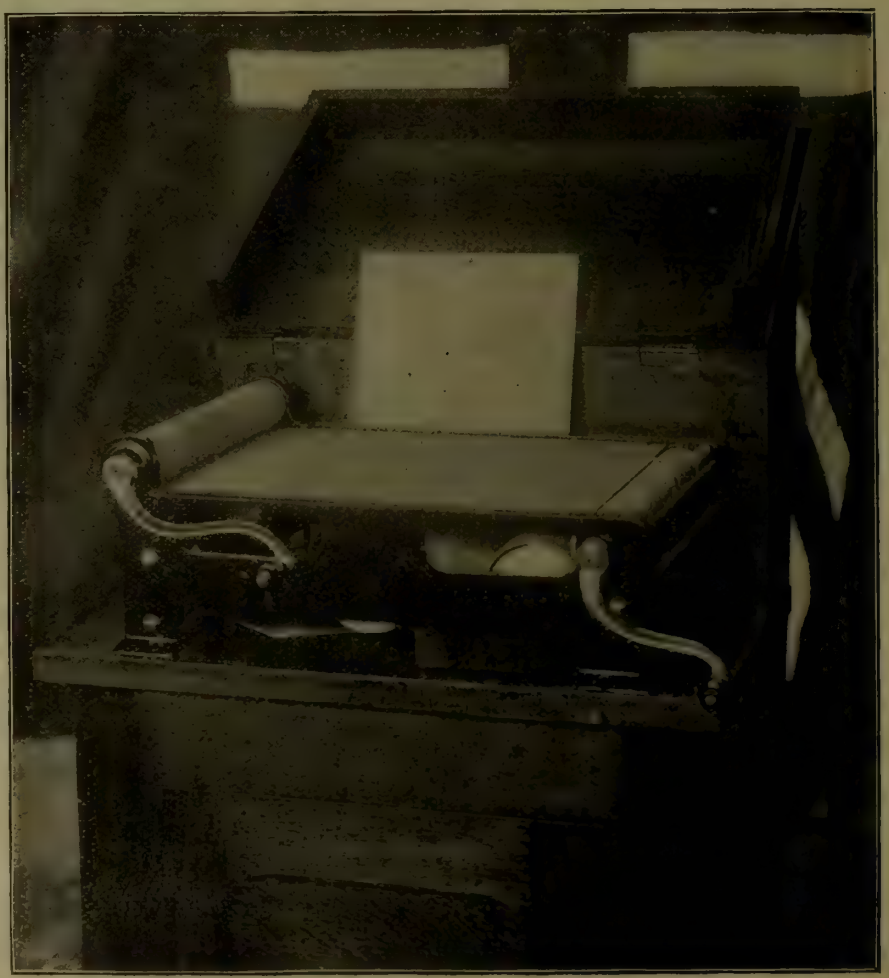
L. W. Hutchinson & Co., of Ottawa, gave a demonstration of their new copying system which is something that has never been seen before in this country. The Quick Easy Loose Sheet Rotary is a new departure, being mechanically different from all other machines for making press copies of business letters, bills, shop orders and all written documents. It is both quick and easy to operate and the firm guarantee it to make better copies and more of them than any other copying press on the market. A postal card or anything written on both sides can be copied at one operation and on one or two sheets as desired. Two letters can be copied at one operation by placing the letters written sides together with two sheets of moist copying paper between them. The firm allow ten days' free trial of these presses and invite the customer to return the press at their expense if not perfectly satisfactory at the end of the trial period.

Intercolonial Railway Co.

The southeast corner of the main building was occupied by the Intercolonial Railway and a splendid display was made of views of the varied scenery that lies along their line. The effect of the display was greatly enhanced by a number of fine caribou heads from Newfoundland. The exhibit was in charge of Mr. A. E. Barton, of the advertising department, Moncton, who was most attentive to visitors and at all times ready to give any information concerning the line.

The I.C.R. trains from Montreal make direct connections with the steamers of the Reid Newfoundland Co. at North Sydney. In addition to their splendid train—the Maritime Express—the I.C.R. have inaugurated a new service between Montreal, Halifax and St. John. This is Canada's new train—the Ocean Limited—which leaves Montreal daily except Saturday, at 7.30 p.m. Through sleeping cars, Montreal to Halifax and St. John are provided. The G.T.R. day express from Toronto makes direct connection at Montreal. Only one night is spent on the road for Moncton, St. John, P. E. Island, New Glasgow and Halifax.

While the passenger service of the I. C.R. is equal to that of any railway in America, this railway also gives an excellent freight service from Montreal to points east along its line, fast freight trains running between Montreal, St. John and Halifax. Shippers of goods from Montreal and points west, and also to Montreal and points west, will find in the I.C.R. a service which is of the best.



Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Exhibit of L. W. Hutchinson & Co., Ottawa.

Gowans, Kent & Co.

Gowans, Kent & Co., Toronto, had a sample room on Queen street near the Windsor Hotel in which a large variety of crockery, glass and art vases were displayed. Special lines of cut glass and special samples of English and French high-class china and art goods and an extensive range of German china were on view. Mr. Angus Orr, representative, reported good sales and numerous callers at his company's rooms, over 200 visitors and buyers having called. It was an opportunity to the trade to inspect a class of valuable samples not usually carried by travelers.

J. H. Maiden, Montreal.

"Molasene," a cattle food product of the West Indies, was shown by Mr. J. H. Maiden, agent and importer, Montreal. in the implement building. This article is of high merit and in use by many of the largest farming institutions of America. The Ottawa exhibit was sold to the Dominion Experimental Farm.

Office Specialty Mfg. Co.

This company had a handsome booth where they showed a great variety of office fittings, including roll top desks, typewriter desks, revolving bookcases, vault fittings, etc. Every article was distinguished by a handsome finish.

High Grade Coffee Specialty Co.

High Grade Coffee Specialties were prominent near the main entrance where they had a handsome display. This company have the only dry roasting plant in Canada which enables them to turn out a specially fine quality of coffee. They supply a large number of the leading hotels, clubs and lake steamers. Their special blend is "Izzogood" and they guarantee it to give entire satisfaction.

Armour & Co.

Armour & Co., had a pretty booth decorated in white and yellow and the grateful and refreshing extract of beef was served out to the public by courteous lady attendants.

Eze Manufacturing Co.

Star Ammonia was prominent at the booth of the Eze Manufacturing Co. This is a scientfiic preparation intended for all kinds of cleaning and washing. It is guaranteed to soften the hardest water and is a powerful disinfectant as well. It cannot evaporate as long as it is kept dry.

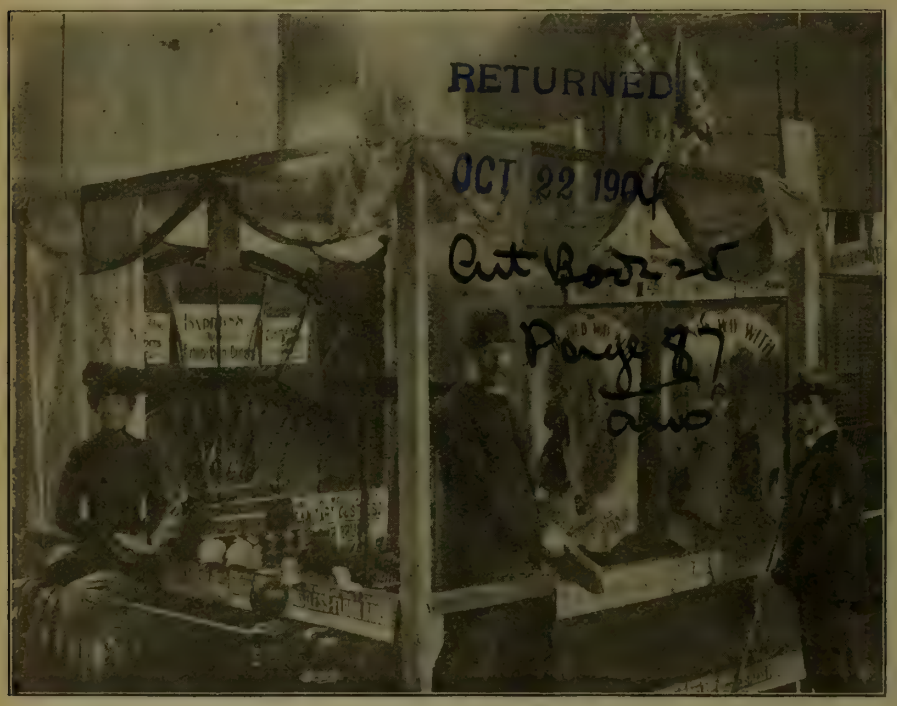
Force Food Co.

Of course the exhibition would not have been complete without the familiar figure of "Sunny Jim." He was there, in the main building as large as life, under the careful guardianship of Mr. Reay, the company's representative in this country. Many thousands of people visited the booth daily and partook of plates of Force daintily served up with cream by the lady attendants. "Force" has firmly established itself in the popular favor as a breakfast food and is now a household word all over the American continent. Abroad, too, it has achieved a remarkable success and the company's export trade has grown to enormous proportions.

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Exhibit of Force Food Co.

World's Dustless Brush Co.

The World's Dustless Brush attracts great attention, especially from the ladies. The company were awarded a diploma for the finest sanitary floor and carpet brush on the market. The company desire to warn the public that inferior brushes are being put on the market purpoting to be dustless brushes, but they claim that the only genuine dustless brush is the "World's Only." These words are stamped on the steel reservoir on the head of the brush so that any fraud can easily be detected. The brush retails at $1.25 up, according to size. The company are prepared to offer liberal terms to the trade and will make it well worth their while to handle these brushes. The head office for Canada is at 29 Colborne street, Toronto, and all inquiries from the trade will receive immediate attention.



Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Exhibit of World's Dustless Brush Co., Toronto.

Christie, Brown & Co., Limited.

The exhibit of Christie, Brown & Co. evoked much admiration and deservedly so, it being one of the finest in the main building. Its formation was square, on each side was displayed a full line of Christie, Brown's famous biscuits. The exhibit was in charge of Mr. Norris, the company's popular representative in the east.

J. S. Hamilton & Co.

J. S. Hamilton & Co., of Brantford, the sole Canadian agents for the Pelee Island Wine and Vineyards Co., Limited, had a good exhibit of their wines, including their "L'Empereur" brand of champagne, and their "J. S. Hamilton & Co." cognac. The display also included their "St. Augustine" brand of communion wine, and also the popular dry and sweet "Catawba" and the "Chateau Pelee" brand of Medoc. This was the sole wine exhibit and made a corresponding impression on the public.

Natural Food Co.

The Natural Food Co. had a pretty booth decorated in yellow and white, with a full line of shredded wheat biscuits and triscuits displayed on the counter. The charming young ladies who superintended the display had their patience severely taxed by the great crowds who apparently could not pass the booth without partaking of the excellent Shredded Wheat, but were alwavs gracious and smiling.

Malta Vita.

The Malta Vita Co. had quite a dainty booth in the main building, the decorations being in blue and yellow chiefly, with some green curtains. The lady attendants were kept busy ministering to the wants of hungry or curious visitors.

Metropolitan Soap Co.

Mrs. Dooley's Laundry Soap was a good drawing card in the main building and Mr. Maybee, of the company, was in charge and highly pleased with the interest evoked by their display.

THE GROCERS' EXHIBITION.

A LETTER from London, Eng., dated September 17 says: This day week will witness the opening of the Grocers' Exhibition at Crystal Palace, and for another week Canada will have another golden opportunity of placing before the grocers and provision dealers of the United Kingdom specimens of Canadian produce and grocery goods, butter, hams, cheese, bacon, fresh, dried and bottled fruits, canned meats, fish, and the various specialties which shippers are pushing in this market.

This will undoubtedly be the most extensive and important show of the series. Canadian goods are very popular, but Canadian shippers, if any have attended the exhibition would be impressed with this above all things, that Canadians who have manufactured specialties to sell here, or packed fruit, or jams, or anything else, demanding care and taste in its preparation for the market, must do the best they know and send only their best to England—if they would successfully compete with other firms exhibiting here. The sentiment in favor of buying from Canada is very strong but it will never book an order unless quality and prices compare favorably with the quality and price to which British traders are accustomed. The rare excellence, skill and taste displayed in all the exhibits of this vast show which so many thousands have been critically examining every day this week, would show the Canadian shipper that the best he can send is none too good for the English market.

FLOUR EXPORTS DECLINE.

A report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, from Mr. Tripp, Canadian Commercial Agent for Trinidad and Tobago, shows a serious falling off in the importation of flour from the Dominion. The colony imports about 230,000 barrels of flour annually, of this Canada in 1902 supplied 15,698 barrels, in 1903 the imports from Canada were 12,428 barrels, and in 1904 the importation of Canadian flour dropped to 5,264 barrels. One of the causes assigned is the carelessness of Canadian millers in the matter of filling orders promptly and keeping up the standard of the different brands.

Mr. R. W. Davis, of Mitchell, Ont., is starting a grocery and crockery business.

TOMATOES IN ENGLAND.

It is authoritatively stated that over 100,000 packages of tomatoes have been entering British ports weekly during the past two months and that in addition the home crop is the heaviest known. Valencias have been selling at 2 shillings a case, and French tomatoes have been sold as low as one shilling 6d a crate. These prices it is claimed, are altogether unprecedented for this time of year. It was expected that tremendous quantities would be on sale during September.

According to the United States Consul at Plymouth, Eng., American tomatoes are not holding their own in the British market, the French tomato having to a large extent already supplanted the American product.

GREEN FRUITS

Changes in Orange and Lemon Trade.

AN enormous increase in the production of lemons in California is causing more than a ripple of excitement in Italian fruit growing circles just now. In fact it is said that dismay reigns in Italy over the report of the Consuls that there is a possibility of Italian fruit, especially lemons, being shut out of the United States altogether. Italian growers had marked success during the first six months of the present year, the increase in the orange and lemon shipments being 2,600,000 lire over the corresponding period of 1903; of this sum Sicily represented two-thirds. During the year 1903-4 the production of oranges and lemons in all Italy was 5,250,000,000 fruits,principally lemons.This was 750.000,000 in excess of totals for the previous season, or 16 per cent. above the average annual production. There are stated to be 16,000,000 lemon and orange trees in Italy of which 10,390,000 trees are in Sicily.

It will be remembered that early last Spring when the immense fruit cargoes arrived in Montreal from Italy, scarcely an American buyer was in attendance at the sales. As a result the fruit markets of Canada were glutted with fruit principally oranges and lemons which sold at prices lower than ever before.

Another point of great interest to Canadians and all users of lemons is that the New York Fruit Exchange is taking steps to secure legislative prohibition of the substitution of acids for lemon juice in manufactures in which the latter article alone should be used. It would not be a bad idea for a similar action to be taken by Canadian fruit dealers and exchanges.

Almeria Grapes of Spain.

THE exportation of white grapes from Almeria, Spain, for the season began in August, although shipments are only now assuming big proportions.

Weather conditions have been favorable this year and a big crop is anticipated. The grapes are at present in excellent condition and bid fair to exceed those of last year in size and quality, the total crop being estimated at 2,000,000 barrels.

The leading grape exporters of Almeria have just effected the organization of a society, the object of which is to control and regulate, so far as possible, the shipments of the white grape. The disastrous experience of last year and the causes thereof were so obvious that a strenuous effort will be made this season to remedy the more serious evils, and the results are being watched with considerable interest.

The chief point in the by-laws of the association may be summarized as follows:

(1) All ships must sail direct to their respective destinations.

(2) The maximum number of barrels that any one boat can load are: For Bristol, Newcastle, Cardiff, and Manchester, 3,000; for Hull, 5,000; for London and Glasgow, 8,000; for Liverpool, 10,000; for Hamburg, 8,000, and for New York, 15,000.

(3) No two boats for the same destination will be permitted to load at the same time. ,

(4) No boat will be permitted to load for New York before September 15.

Much Fruit Marketed in Montreal.

Considerable quantities of fruit have been marketed in Montreal this week. At the Canadian Express Co.'s sale some 3,000 baskets of Crawford peaches were disposed of, bringing 75c to 90c., and clingstones about 60c. Plums brought 70c, and pears 55c to 70c per basket.

At the Montreal Fruit Auction Co.'s rooms some fourteen carloads were disposed of, Walter M. Kearns, auctioneer, negotiating. Three cars were sold, Canadian pears selling at $2.50 to $4 per barrel, and barrel apples at $1.20 to $1.80. Some bananas offered also, these selling at 35c to 47½c. Earlier the offerings consisted of three cars of California fruit, two cars of bananas, one of sweet potatoes, and about five of Canadian fruits.

California pears brought $1.20 to $2.40 per box, and 50c to 80c per half box; peaches brought from 70c to $1.25 per box, and plums $1.05 to $1.95; grapes sold in four basket carriers at $1.45 to $2.75. Bananas were cheap, selling at 35c to 40c per bunch, while the sweet potatoes met a ready sale at $2.25 per barrel. The demand for Canadian fruit was brisk. Pears sold at $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel, and apples at $1.10 to $1.80 per barrel, peaches bringing 45c per box.

Apple Export Trade.

Canadian apple exporters are this season doing a very light business as compared with that of last year. This condition of affairs seems to be the result of greater caution on the part of shippers, who in former years lost more or less heavily on their shipments. Several large English buyers have been looking over the market, but they report little or nothing doing in the way of contracting. A few Canadian sellers have disposed of fruit at 50c to 75c in the orchards, but the majority are holding out, some for as high as $1.

Will Potatoes be Scarce?

IN order ro arrive at a conclusion as to the value of certain bullish reports on the potato situation, current on the Toronto market during the week, The Grocer interviewed a number of Toronto provisioners on the subject.

J. J. RYAN.

Mr. Ryan says good crops are reported in some districts, principally in Western Ontario, although in others the crop is almost an entire failure. Buyers at Owen Sound report medium to good crops.

WHITE AND CO.

The potato crop promised well until the last few weeks, when rot appeared in fully 50 per cent. of the potatoes. There has been an increase in the acreage devoted to potatoes in Ontario of 10 per cent. this year, and in addition certain sections are producing better results than ever before, which means that the price of potatoes is likely to be normal during the coming Winter. Crops in the United States, moreover, promise well, thus precluding the possibility of a potato famine across the line such as occurred last year.

W. BARRETT.

Sixty-five per cent of the potato crop in Ontario this year is the red variety. The rot disease with which Ontario-grown potatoes are to a certain extent affected has been running in the crop for two years. Some dealers think the disease was in the seed when it was planted this Spring. The cold and damp ripening season has not improved conditions, and as a result some dealers claim they will not store stock as in former years on account of the extra risk involved. Prices are sure to be high.

Several produce dealers on the Toronto market in conversation with The Grocer said the percentage of rot-affected potatoes will be twice as large as last year, and express the opinion that $1.25 per bag may be paid if conditions do not improve within the next few weeks. This is undoubtedly the worst year for potato-rot in years. It is probably caused by the extreme wet weather.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Agriculture and the Fiscal Policy.

By Hon. Joseph Chamberlain.

THE GROCER has pleasure in publishing in this week's issue a verbatim report of the Hon. Mr. Chamberlain's speech on the "Coming Fiscal Policy of Great Britain," delivered at Welbeck Abbey August 4. That part of it relating to the taxation of foodstuffs and produce imported into Great Britain reads as follows:

What are my proposals? I want to extend to agriculture the same advantages that the Government promised to manufacturers. I want, in order to equalize the competition—or, at all events, to make it more nearly equal between the foreigner and ourselves—I want to put a moderate duty on the chief products of agriculture as well as on the chief products of manufacture, and I want to arrange this moderate taxation so that, without pressing on any class in the community, it may give the greatest advantage to the farmer in regard to those branches of his industry which are at the present time most profitable and most capable of development.

DUTY ON CORN AND FLOUR.

I propose to put a 2s duty on corn. I do not believe that it will raise by a single farthing the price of bread; I do not think that it will raise to any substantial degree the price of corn, and I do not think, therefore, that the farmer is going to get a great deal out of that. But I attach more importance to a duty on flour. I propose to put such a duty on flour as will result in the whole of the milling of wheat being done in this country. From that I expect two advantages. In the first place, I expect more employment. This trade, which to a certain extent we have lost, will be revived. There will not only be the milling of wheat in the great ports, but we may expect to see mills started again in the country towns, giving employment to a large number of laborers in the district and to that extent benefiting the whole of the laborers. The second advantage is that we shall keep in this country all the bran and all the offal, and, as you know better than I do, that will have the effect of cheapening feeding stuffs. It must have that effect not merely on feeding stuffs produced in this country, but on feeding stuffs imported from abroad; and in these circumstances the farmer, the small owner, and the allotment-holder, would be able to keep more stock, and rear and breed more stock, to increase their dairying operations and to keep more pigs. All those branches of farming are at the present time the branches from which he derives a larger part of his profit. Then I propose to put a smaller duty of 2s a quarter on every other kind of corn—with one exception—barley, oats, rye, etc.

In any scientific tariff we must try to keep raw materials as cheap as possible; and therefore, I myself should not propose to put any duty on maize, which is an important feeding stuff. Neither should I put any duty at all on manure, whether it be natural manure or artificial manure. At the same time, I propose to put a duty of 5 per cent. on meat, upon dairy produce—butter, cheese, and so on—and on preserved milk. I propose a similar duty on poultry and eggs, and upon vegetables and fruit. I believe that these duties will help especially the small farmer — the holder of small quantities of land — to make his cultivation more profitable. When I consider that, excluding meat altogether, we are actually importing at the present time something like £40,000,000 of dairy, vegetable, and other bye-products of agriculture, I cannot help believing that if we are to keep even a portion of that trade for our own people, our own growers and laborers, we should do a great deal to make farming more profitable and to benefit the condition of the working man. What will be the result of these proposals? They may slightly raise the price of the articles affected. It does not at all follow that because they raise the price of the raw produce—of wheat, for instance—that they will necessarily raise the price of the manufactured articles—of bread—but they may raise it somewhat although only to a very small extent; and that will, besides giving the farmer a slightly better price for his produce, help him to increase his production and to cheapen the cost of it. I base my arguments upon the experience of foreign countries. It may be wise sometimes to take a lesson from the foreigner.

I cannot help thinking that our neighbors in France manage these matters better than we do ourselves. They have 18,000,000 acres of land under wheat cultivation, and we have only 1 and ½ million. Those 18 millions of corn land have produced 18 million acres of straw, and having the straw and the offal, the farmer is able to rear a very much larger number of oxen and of dairy cows. The oxen and the cows turn the straw into manure; the manure is used to fertilize the poor soils; the poor soils produce under this system an enormous amount of vegetables and fruit and all the bye-products that are sent into this country to compete with the production of the farmers and the laborers of the United Kingdom, very much to their disadvantage. That is one side of the question—one side of the comparison with France.

But let us look at the other. Does this system in France raise the cost of living? Remember that the duties of France are much greater than anything I propose. The duty on corn in France to-day is 12s 2½d a quarter—more than six times as much as anything I propose. The duty on meat is 1d a pound, which is more than double what I propose. Now, if the radicals were telling the truth the cost of living in France ought to be enormous, and yet it is much lower than it is here. It is probably true the French peasant pays a little more for his bread, but he gains so much on his meat, on his vegetables, on his poultry, on his eggs—on all his other things—that on the whole the cost of his living is much lower and his margin at the end of the week is much greater than that of the laborer here. Now these duties I speak of were imposed in France in the year 1892, and the latest figures only come down to 1900. In those eight years the price of wheat fell in France 20 per cent., while at the same time it only fell 11 per cent. in this country. The price of beef fell 10 per cent. in France and it rose 2 per cent. in this country, and the price of beef in 1900 in France was 6½d a pound, while the price of the same beef in England was 9d a pound.

THE PRICE OF FOOD.

The result is this—that the duty, any duty, placed on the products of agriculture does not necessarily increase the price of food; but I will say more than that; I will say that it never has in our experience, or in the experience of any foreign country, increased the price of food to a proportionate or an equivalent amount. But if it does not increase the price of food, it does, in all cases, extend the production of food, increase the employment of labor, and cheapen the ultimate cost to the consumer; my proposals therefore, I say, will bring to the laborer more employment and will not raise the cost of his living. But I am not satisfied with that. I want to do something more for him and for all the poor in this country. I want to reduce the cost of the living, and I believe it can be done under this system. These duties that I have spoken of will be paid in the main by the foreigner; they will be the foreigner's contribution to our expenditure; but they will bring in a great number of millions a year, which we are going to use to reduce the cost of living and the cost of food for the people of this country.

There are politicians who tell you they are free fooders. There are no free fooders in this country. The taxation of food is very heavy and it always will be, but these people seem to think that there is only one kind af food. They seem to think that you live by bread alone. On the contrary, every laborer will tell you, every class in the community knows, that we have to live upon a good number of other things as well, and most of them are heavily taxed. There are heavy taxes on tea, on sugar, on coffee, on cocoa, and on tobacco. All these millions which come from the pocket of the foreigner we will give you back in reductions upon your tea and your sugar, and, I hope, upon your tobacco. We can afford to take off 4½d a pound on tea, ½d a pound on sugar—which is half the tax—and, as I have said, something on tobacco also. We will put tobacco on one side and ask: What is the effect of the reduction upon tea and sugar alone? Tht Board of Trade says that on an average every agricultural laborer's family uses 2-3 of a pound of tea and 6 pounds of sugar in the week. If that be true, the saving upon the reduction on tea and sugar alone would be 4½d a week to every laborer's family, and although that is not a great deal, I venture to say it is a great deal more than anybody else has ever promised you. The watchword of the new policy which I recommend for your acceptance, the watchword in the agricultural districts, is this: "More profit for the farmer, more employment for the laborer, and cheaper food for his family."

THE COLONIES.

My policy, however, is not merely an economic policy. It is also Imperial. It is not addressed only to your pockets. It is addressed above all to your patriotism. These changes that I propose will enable us to reciprocate the offers that have come to us from our colonies across the sea. It will enable us to arrange a close commercial intercourse with those who are not only our children, but also our best and ever most profitable customers. We must always buy something—buy a large part of what we consume from abroad. We can never produce all our requirements at home. Would you not rather buy what you want from your friends, from those who stand by you in trial and stress, than from the foreigner who is never very sympathetic, never very appreciative of the great work which the British race has undertaken in the world? I do not believe that there are many villages which have not some relatives, some friend, in one or other of the great colonies under the British flag. And these distant connections of ours have not forgotten the old home, the old people, the old flag. They showed their feeling in the late war when we were in difficulty and doubt. They showed no hesitation in coming to our assistance; and when the foreigner, whose industry we have been building up during the last sixty years, sneered at our failures and rejoiced at our losses, these colonists of ours, these men of our flesh and blood, gave us their moral and their material support. They showed that we were one kin, one people and one nation. They did that for you in war, they have not forgotten you in peace.

Now, also, they want to draw closer together to the Motherland. They prefer to deal with you rather that with a stranger. They have proved their sincerity by offering to us preferences on everything that we produce and that we send to them. They ask us to meet them half way. They ask us to give them the trade which we now give to the foreigner. In return they will do more for us even than they have already voluntarily done. They will take more of our manufactures; they will find work for the people in our towns.

They can supply us with all the corn and all the meat we require, and that we cannot produce for ourselves. They can supply it to us as cheaply as the market from which we now obtain it. While those markets only take a few shillings from us, these colonies of ours take as many pounds. Will you snub them? Will you reject the offer that they make to you? Then, indeed, you are not worthy of the inheritance that you have gained from the ancestors who fought for it, and have left to yon the beauty of maintaining it.

Ladies and gentlemen, believe me, here is the greatest of the issues of our time. Let us bind these folk of ours, let us bind them to us by ties of interest as well as by ties of blood and sympathy. Let us unite the Empire, the great aspiration of the wisest and the best of our statesmen. Let us enable the British race throughout the world to hold their own, not unmindful of the traditions, the glorious traditions, of their past, not unable to continue them through generations and the ages yet to come.

Food Supply of Empire.

MR. STEVENS, of the Manchester, Eng., Board of Trade, who is on a visit to Canada in the interests of the British Government, speaking officially on the subject of the food supply of the Empire, in case of war, says it is proposed to provide facilities on the British side of the water by which grain will be stored free of charge to the consignee, the Government making an advance of freight charges which will afterwards be repaid.

The British imports originating in the world's greatest wheat countries at the present time are instructive. Of Great Britain's wheat imports, the United States furnishes 43.5 per cent., Canada 4.5 per cent., Russia 24.5 per cent. Eastern Europe 10 per cent., Argentine 9.5 per cent., and Austria-Hungary 1.5 per cent. Mr. Stevens urges that Canada's 4 1-2 per cent. should be enormously increased. At the present time Canadian wheat is shipped via United States ports to the extent of about 6,000,000 bushels annually, which means that practically one-half of the Canadian exports to Great Britain has to pass through a foreign country.

Cereal Notes.

The International Pure Food Congress (September 26 to October 1) is now in session at Congress Hall, St. Louis. Delegates from many foreign countries are in attendance. The object of the convention is to stamp out commercial piracy.

The Ogilvie flour mills have made a new departure and at their head offices have established an electric bakery, the first thing of its kind ever constructed in Canada.

A meeting of the Western Grain Standards Board will be held in Winnipeg on October 4 for the selection of any commercial grades considered necessary.

Jos. Richardson & Sons, grain merchants, Toronto and Kingston, have appointed Mr. A. C. Ruttan to succeed the late Mr. E. O'Reilly as manager of their extensive western interests.

Tobacco in England.

THERE has been probably no greater social revolution in the last half century than that which has affected the custom and circumstances of smoking.

Before the Crimean war no well bred man would think of being seen in the daytime in a fashionably frequented part of London with a cigar in his mouth. Nowadays a fragrant Havana, if not an emblem of aristocracy, is regarded anyhow as a proof of means.

At the ponderous and protracted banquets in vogue during part of the last reign, to insult the "after dinner claret" by the suggestion of smoking would have constituted a far graver offense than to undervalue the champagne by diluting it with seltzer water.

In these present days, in private houses, at regimental messes, and even at "festival" dinners, coffee and cigarettes trip up the heels of the "savory." The other evening a distinguished foreigner, as he complacently lighted a mammoth cigar, said to his host: "On the last occasion when I had the honor of dining in this house I was your father's guest, and he begged me during dessert not to hesitate to go into the square outside if I would like to smoke; and, so far from being taken aback by the suggestion, I considered him a very liberal-minded man for even recognizing such a requirement on my part."

Formerly men staying in an English country house found that the only indoor provision for the consumption of tobacco in any form lay in a so-called "smoking-room." This was generally a badly lighted and evil smelling apartment, which the housemaid never troubled to air, and whose threshold no lady ever deigned to cross.

It was probably situated at the end of a dark and draughty passage and presented every discomfort which its vocation could suggest. Desperate visitors have been often known to resort to their own bedrooms and blow their tobacco smoke up the chimney to prevent detection of their irregularity; while many an honest shilling has been turned by a sympathetic butler, who has offered the hospitality of the steward's room or pantry.

Clubs for the most part, and for a long time, offered every discouragement to the growing tendency of the younger members, and it is curious in this respect to note how hardly old-fashioned prejudices have died. At a famous political club even now smoking is only permitted in the front hall at stated hours, and at another institution associated with the universities the privilege can only be enjoyed after climbing to the top of the house.

It may not be generally known that the origin of the Marlborough Club is to be found in the dissatisfaction of the then Prince of Wales and his contemporaries with the existing arrangements at that former temple of fashion—White's Club—where, also, in spite of loud protests, a tedious journey upstairs was necessary before cigars or cigarettes could be indulged in.

The more modern institutions, including even the clubs where ladies dictate and predominate, bow to prevailing requirements, and only preclude smoking in one or two rooms.

One curious result of this latter generous treatment in clubs, restaurants and houses, apart from the fact that the smell of cooking food is destroyed, is that no single room reeks of stale tobacco.

Servants (not unreasonably) used to consider it a hopeless matter to deodorize the smoking-room proper, and left it to take care of itself; but the system of decentralization has necessitated a general and drastic shaking of curtains and sweeping of carpets, with a sweet and wholesome result.

The modern liberal views with which smoking is regarded are, of course, largely due to feminine participation in a habit which at one time was considered distinctly "odd" for a lady, if not actually improper.

Just now there are very few dinner parties where cigarettes are not handed to, and in most cases accepted by, the ladies, who sometimes confess that they endure positive torture when circumstances preclude or postpone this form of self-indulgence.

Nor is the increase of cigarette smoking confined to one class. In the days when state chariots, grand barouches, bewigged coachmen and powdered lackeys prevailed, no servant was ever seen smoking when on any sort of duty. To-day coachmen,

The Lattakia Crop.

The British Vice-Consul at Beirut, reporting on the Lattakia tobacco crop and trade, states that the course of the trade in the year 1903 was not so profitable as in former years either for planters or for dealers. The average price realized for 1903 was $320 per ton, as compared with $600 in 1902. It is expected that it will be worse this season, as the price offered by the "Regie" to the planters is 25 per cent. less than last year. Shipments to England, which at one time promised to play an important part in the business of the port of Beirut, in consequence of the demand for London in 1902-3 having disappointed expectations, plantersdiminished their cultivation last year to such an extent that this years' crop is estimated at only 9,000 bags, as compared with 20,000 bags in 1903. In consequence of this depreciation in the price it is expected that many planters will probably abandon the cultivation of the "Abou-Rika" tobacco.

Failure of Shade-Grown Sumatra.

A BIRD'S eye view of the Connecticut Valley in 1904, says the Springfield Republican, shows a remarkable change from 1902 and 1903. The white tents which dotted here and there the green valley between Hatfield and Hartford have been silently folded away, and the raising of Sumatra tobacco under shade is to-day largely a matter of history, and a subject for further experiment. It is estimated that between $800,000 and $1,000,000 have been lost in this venture. In 1902, 700 acres were planted under shade, but this year only a few acres are still being experimented with by a small minority.

The experiment of shade-grown tobacco was first tried in the Connecticut Valley in 1900, on a third of an acre of a Poquonock farm at Windsor, by Prof. Milton T. Whitney, chief of the Bureau of Soils of the Agricultural Department, in connection with the Connecticut Experiment Station. On December 26th, of that year, a bulletin posted by the Secretary of Agriculture at Washington, said:

"The crop has just been sold for $473.70, making an estimated value for one acre of $1,421. The cost of production, including the whole cost of the shade—the frame for which will last five years—will not exceed $500 an acre, leaving a net profit of over $900 per acre. This was an average price of 71 cents per pound * * * The Sumatra tobacco grown under shade has been submitted to New York and Philadelphia business men, and has been pronounced entirely satisfactory and fully equal to imported Sumatra."

To all those familiar with the American tobacco market, among whom, of course, were the tobacco farmers of the valley, this was a statement of the most sensational character. The farmers thought immediately, and very naturally, of the $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 which is annually sent to Holland to buy the choice tobacco of the island of Sumatra, obtainable nowhere else, and on which there is an importing duty of $1.85 per pound. If, as the bulletin posted asserted, it was possible to raise Sumatra tobacco under shade in the Connecticut Valley fully equal to the imported Sumatra, these millions would in the future go into the pockets of the American tobacco grower. This was one of the very facts which the bulletin announced to the world. Attention was also called to the award of two points for Florida-raised Sumatra over that given for the real imported Sumatra at the Paris Exposition, which showed to the satisfaction of the Department of Agriculture that "we can grow tobacco of the highest quality in this country." This short, concise bulletin posted at Washington went on to compare the profits of raising tobacco in the regular way with Sumatra tobacco raised under a tent. A crop grown in the field, said the bulletin, without shade and fermented in the same way, yielded about the same quantity and brought 27 cents a pound—a profit of $300 per acre. The ordinary crop in the Connecticut Valley brings the farmer about 20 cents per pound, or $360 per acre, and, deducting the cost of expenses, leaves a profit of about $260 an acre. Shade-grown Sumatra tobacco, the bulletin already quoted had said, would yield a net profit of $900 per acre.

Wide interest was at once shown in this agricultural experiment, and promoters found little difficulty in securing capital to start companies in the raising of shade-grown tobacco. Two seasons of bad weather and dull markets have swept most of these companies from the tobacco fields. The shade-grown Sumatra of Connecticut had too many flaws in it. The leaf is said to have lacked elasticity, to have been dull in color and green, and to have had an aroma when used in wrapping good cigars that was undesirable. Cigar manufacturers bought small quantities for trial, but with unsatisfactory results, and the consequence is there is no market at present for Connecticut shade-grown Sumatra.

Retail Tobacconists in France.

IN France the number of retail shops for the sale of tobacco is limited by practice to one shop for every 800 inhabitants. This limitation is, however, frequently departed from—mostly for political reasons—and the number of shops increased. No shops can be opened without a license from the Government, and the licensee has to pay a tax which varies according to the probable amount of trade done. The licenses are given either to retired army officers, widows of such officers, or persons who have rendered political services to the Ministers in power or their parliamentary supporters, and are transferable. As a result of the latter condition, licensees rarely open a shop themselves.

They either sell or let their license for a yearly sum to some one who puts his own capital into the trade. This retailer is then supplied with tobacco, cigars and cigarettes by the Government, but on one consideration only, that he can pay cash for it. "No cash, no goods" is the rule, and the cash must be paid before the goods leave the Government warehouse. But there are other conditions as well.

OFFICAL LIST OF WHOLESALE PRICES.

One is that the retailer must hang up in his shop and in a conspicuous place the offical list of the wholesale and retail prices, so that the public may know at what price the retailer may sell and what his profit is. Any departure from the official prices is punished by loss of license and closing of shop. Moreover the difference between wholesale and retail prices is so small that it yields only a starvation profit. On cigars it varies from 7 to 13 per cent; on cigarettes from 8 to 13 per cent; on tobacco from 6⅔ to 8¾ per cent, except on the lowest quality, where it amounts to about 13 per cent. Out of these miserable percentages the tobacconist has to pay the license tax, license rent, shop rent and all other expenses. A look at French tobacco shops is enough to show that this means starvation; whereas in all countries where the tobacco trade is in private hands tobacco shops rival each other for bright and well set up appearance. In France they are miserable holes which one enters only with reluctance.

ELECTIONEERING AGENT FOR GOVERNMENT.

An allusion must be made to another condition which is one that must be most distasteful to any self-respecting man. It is that every tobacconist is expected to be an electioneering agent for the Government in power. Woe to him if he fails in this respect. His license will be canceled by ministerial fiat, and his shop closed.

These are the miserable conditions which State monopoly has created for the retail tobacconist in France. We know perfectly well that Mr. Watson has stated that "for the present" it is not intended to take over the retail trade, but that means nothing even without the proviso "for the present," for let it be noted that the State has not taken over the retail trade in France. It only licenses it, but it prescribes the buying and selling price, as the State would be bound to do here, and the rest follows with absolute certainty. Whether, therefore, the proposal for Commonwealth Monopoly of the tobacco trade is regarded from the standpoint of the revenue; or from the standpoint of the consumer; or from that of the workmen; or from that of the retailer, it is sure, in every case, to be pernicious.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

CONSIDERABLE improvement has been noticed in the demand for ocean freight space and October will see greater activity, so the knowing ones say. Grain is coming forward a little more freely from the west and better cargoes are offered. Still things are not what they should be when compared with previous years. Flour and provisions seem to be improving and the rates remain steady, as previously reported. From Halifax it is learned that the Board of Trade have been notified that Pictou, N.S. The letter was dated September 3rd and was in answer to pressure brought to bear upon the Government by Mr. MacDonald and Senator MacGregor to reduce the freight rates on hay from Ontario and Quebec, there being a hay shortage in Nova Scotia, in the same way that the freight rates on coal to the west were treated when there was a coal scarcity in Quebec and Ontario. It appears that as well as heavy cuts having been made on native bituminous coal, the coal arriving at Halifax and St. John, from Wales, and destined for Quebec and Ontario, was either carried for nothing or at a great reduction from ordinary rates. Senator MacGregor and Mr. MacDonald are now asking to have hay carried free, or at a great reduction from the west to the east, and Mr. Emmerson consents. He says:

My Dear MacDonald—In answer to your inquiry about the probable rates on hay to Eastern Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, I cannot definitely state to you what terms will be offered; but you can depend upon this, that whatever concessions were made to people in the west in regard to coal rates will be made to farmers who have suffered from the loss of their hay crop. These concessions in the west, whatever they were, were made to municipalities. In this instance should the municipalities not take up the matter, as I feel they would be justified in doing, it would be desirable to deal with the Agricultural Societies. Whatever reductions are made should be in the form of a rebate, and not by way of fixing a reduced tariff. Of course, it would be equal in its effect, and would have the merit of not being liable to abuse. At this time of writing (he was on the train) I cannot get positive and reliable information as to the extent of the concession made with respect to coal; but will ascertain the exact facts when I reach Ottawa, and have the opportunity of seeing the Order-in-Council, which I understand was passed.

When ocean charges are collectable at port of destination, rates exchanged on basis of $4 80 to £1 stg. When ocean charges are prepaid, rates exchanged on basis of $4 86 to £1 stg.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

an export rate on Manitoba flour has been put in force to Halifax, which will enable dealers at that point to have flour shipped through Halifax, instead of St. John, or other ports, as heretofore.

A somewhat remarkable situation has occurred in connection with the I.C.R., which shows readily how the yearly heavy deficits of this Government railway exist. The substance of it is in a letter written by the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, to E. M. MacDonald, M.P.P., for Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World.

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker o mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claim as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

The Canadian Grocer

When an Apple Drops

from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.

And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.

In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.

Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.

Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.

The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.

"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

A CHAT WITH A CEYLON TEA PLANTER

THE CANADIAN GROCER had the pleasure this week of a half-hour chat with Mr. A. C. Kingsford, of Ceylon, one of the leading tea-planters of "the sunny isle," and is reproducing the same in this week's issue for the benefit of its readers in Canada and other countries. Mr. Kingsford is on his way home via England after a somewhat extended tour which has included a several months' visit to China and Japan and a short sojourn at the great St. Louis Fair. Mr. Kingsford is justly proud at the splendid showing made there by the Ceylon and Indian Governments, their respective exhibits being undoubtedly among the most attractive features of the Exposition. Both these Governments have authorized and actually taken over the responsibility for placing the Ceylon and Indian teas before the markets of North America. Although it is hard to estimate accurately the value of such a method of advertisement, Mr. Kingsford says the general impression seems to be that it is serving its purpose admirably. The plan was initiated first at the Chicago Fair in 1893, and there can be little doubt that the increased consumption of green and black Ceylon teas in America is due in no small measure to the efforts of the Ceylon Government at that time. During the St. Louis Fair the average sale of Ceylon tea at the Ceylon court has been from 2,000 to 3,000 pots per day, by no means an inconsiderable item.

Mr. Kingsford says there has been a temporary stoppage in the production of green tea in Ceylon, owing to oversupplies in the Canadian and American markets. This is the result of overbuying at the beginning of the Russo-Japanese war. Western tea merchants looked forward to a sharp advance in prices and a shortage in supplies on the assumption that the tea output of Japan would be curtailed. In addition to this fact there was the fear that the war might spread beyond Japan and China. Subsequent events have proved that these fears were unfounded. Japan has produced her usual crop of tea and placed it on the market at a price considerably lower than that which usually rules for this article.

Other tea-growing countries have carried on their operations unmolested and the result is that western markets are supplied for the present with rather more tea than they can conveniently use.

On the other hand, Mr. Kingsford says that there has been of late years a decrease in tea production in Japan which is growing from year to year. The tea-growing industry is not paying there as well as it once did. Some plantations have been abandoned. Others have taken to the culture of the mulberry tree for the silk industry, and present prices for tea are likely to still further curtail the output in the future.

The temporary falling-off in the western demand for Ceylon green tea, however, has caused a minimum amount of inconvenience to Ceylon tea planters since they can change from green to black tea making at short notice, owing to the fact that the difference between the two varieties is only one of withering and fermenting the leaf.

The North American market for the tea products of Ceylon has grown by leaps and bounds within the last few years. In 1893 Ceylon exported to North America in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 pounds. In 1903 the exports increased to 33,000,000 pounds. At a matter of fact the amount of tea consumed in Canada per capita is considerably in excess of the consumption in Uncle Sam's dominion, and the Canadian market is growing rapidly until even at the present time Canada is one of the most important customers of Ceylon. Mr. Kingsford says he has observed a variety of tea known as "English Breakfast Tea" on the Canadian and American markets. As a matter of fact it is a misnomer to call such an article English breakfast tea, when it is nothing more nor less than "China Congou," now for many years displaced by Ceylon and Indian tea on the British markets.

The following extract from the St. Louis World's Fair "Ceylon" handbook will be found of interest:

"The rise of the tea industry of Ceylong affords one of the most remarkable instances of rapid development of an agricultural pursuit, especially when the previous history of the planting industry is remembered. In 1875 there were barely 1,000 acres planted with tea. During the next ten years of depression due to the failure of coffee, this acreage increased to 102,000; by 1889 it attained 205,000, by 1893, 305,000 and it is now 385,000 as compared with from 500,000 to 600,000 acres in India. The island imported its tea in the early days of tea planting but in 1883 the export exceeded 1,600,000 pounds, in 1887 it was 13,813,872 pounds, in 1896, 108,141,412 pounds and in 1903 (including green tea) no less than 151,120,009 pounds. For the present, at any rate, the growth of the industry seems to have reached its upper limit.

"Tea is now the chief industry in the mountain districts, and also covers a large area in the southwestern plains. Above the elevation of 2,500 feet it forms almost the only cultivation, and a journey on the rail from Kandy to Nuwara Eilya affords perhaps one of the most striking instances in the world of a large stretch of country covered with one crop. Excepting only the summits of the mountain ridges, the grass lands, and the actual precipices, a vast sheet of tea covers hill and dale, broken chiefly by the straight lines of the "wind belts," narrow belts of Australian trees planted through the tea fields across the direction of the prevailing winds.

"By far the largest proportion of the tea cultivation is in the hands of European planters resident on estates of which there are some 2,000 in Ceylon. The average size of an estate is between 200 and 300 acres, but there is a tendency of late for estates to be united in groups for economy of working and management, and to enable larger and more economical factories to be used. Whereas formerly a large proportion of the planters were owners of their estates, they are now more often worked by salaried employes of large or small companies, some managed locally, others directed from London.

"The export and general business of the estate or company is worked through a Colombo agency, which also superintends the general conduct of the estate by means of its 'visiting agent,' a planter of long experience, who goes over the estates at intervals, inspecting their working, estimates, accounts, etc.

"The laboring force of a tea estate consists generally of Tamil coolies. They are housed and medically attended at the cost of the estate, and their well-being is carefully attended to. The heavier labor is done by the men, the lighter, such as tea plucking, by the women and children.

"Several varieties of the tea plant are known: The China variety is now rarely cultivated in Ceylon, the usual ones being the Assam indigenous and the Hybrid, a cross between this and the China. Both of these have larger leaves and yield more crop. The tea plant, a small tree when left to itself, is cultivated on estates in large fields, in which the plants are placed about four feet apart and severely pruned at intervals of eighteen months or two years. They form squat bushes about three feet high and with flat spreading tops, so that it is easy for the coolies to get at the young shoots which are constantly appearing on the top of the bushes. These shoots, taken together, are termed the 'flush' and the object of cultivation and pruning is to ensure large, frequent, and regular flushing. In the colder climates of China the Assam flushing ceases in Winter, but in Ceylon it goes on all the year round.

"Tea manufacturing consists essentially in the plucking of the young shoots of the flush and their subsequent treatment by withering, rolling, fermenting, and drying to form tea. In Ceylon the flush is plucked every eight or twelve days by women and children working in gangs under kanganies. They soon become remarkably quick and expert at the work. Plucking is designated as 'fine' when the bud at the tip of the shoot and the two young leaves just below it are taken, 'coarse' when the bud and three leaves are taken. At present fine plucking is much the most usual. The coarser the plucking, the poorer the average quality of the tea produced, though the greater the quantity. Fine plucking produces the various teas known as pekoes, while older leaves give souchongs and congous. Pekoes consisting only of the buds or tips are known as 'flowery' those containing also the first young leaf as 'orange' pekoes.

"The coolies bring in their day's plucking to the factory, usually a large well-equipped building, containing the most modern machinery, and worked by water or steam power. The 'leaf' is examined and weighed and the amount plucked by each coolie recorded, the wage depending partly on the amount plucked.

"After the leaf has been weighed it is taken to the upper floor of the factory and thinly spread out on light openwork shelves of jute hessian (canvas), known as tats, to wither. In good weather it becomes limp and flaccid in about eighteen hours, but in wet weather artificial heat is employed and a current of warm air drawn through shoots into the rollers or rolling machines in the ground floor. A roller consists essentially of a table with a central depression to hold the leaf, and a hopper above it, the two moving over one another with an eccentric motion. Pressure to any required extent can be put upon the mass of leaf that is being rolled, and at the end of an hour or so the door in the bottom of the table is opened and the 'roll' falls out, the leaves all twisted and clinging together in masses, which are then broken up in a machine termed a roll breaker, to which is usually attached a sifter that separates the coarse leaf from the finer. After this the leaf is piled in drawers or on mats to ferment or oxidize, with a free access of air. This process is omitted in the manufacture of green tea. In a couple of hours or so, depending on the weather, the leaf assumes a coppery color, and gives out a peculiar smell. Experience is required to determine the exact point at which to check the fermentation and place it in the firing or drying machines. There are many types of these machines, but all act by passing a current of hot dry air through the damp fermented leaf until it is dry and brittle, when it is removed, sifted into grades by a machine composed of a series of moving sieves of different sizes of mesh, and finally bulked (i.e. the whole mass of each grade made on one or more days is thoroughly mixed together, so as to secure as great uniformity of quality as possible), packed in lead-lined boxes of 100 pounds, soldered up, labelled with the name of the estate, and despatched to the port of shipment.

"The grades of tea usually prepared in Ceylon are known (in order of quality and value) as orange pekoe, pekoe, pekoe-souchong, souchong, congou, and dust.

"TAKE MY ADVICE" EAT CHEESE"
Says John D. Rockefeller
The great financier learned by experience the sustaining and digestive qualities of good cheese. "Eat cheese and you will enjoy good health," he says. The U. S. Government has by recent experiment proved its unequalled energy-producing value, and the government now says "Eat Cheese." But there is cheese and cheese.
MacLaren's Imperial Cheese
(in opal jars)
is the finest cheese ever placed on the market. It has a delicious flavor and contains three times the nourishing power found in an equal quantity of ordinary cheese. It never becomes hard or dry.
Sold in several sized jars by all grocers. Price, from 10c up.
In each jar of Imperial Cheese will be found a coupon, one of which with coupon below entitles the purchaser to a beautiful cheese knife or a handsome silver holder at about one-third the value of the ware. The coupon reproduced below counts as three coupons in the jars. Cut it out and save it.

mentation, is graded as young hyson, hyson (1 and 2), gunpowder, and dust.

"The greater part of the tea shipped from Ceylon at present goes to the United Kingdom. It is interesting to note that consumption of British grown tea in the United Kingdom last year was about 240,000,000 pounds, whereas the total consumption of the United Kingdom is only 250,000,000 pounds. Exports to other countries are steadily increasing so that they bid fair soon to form one half of the total exported. The next best customers of Ceylon are Australia, Russia, and North America. The last named market is the chief destination of the green tea made in Ceylon.

"Twenty years ago China still supplied the bulk of the tea consumed in Britain, while India provided about one-third and Ceylon's share was only a poor one per cent. Now Ceylon's proportion of the total is 35 per cent., and that of China has sunk to 4 per cent. In the early days of planting in Ceylon much better prices were obtained than at present; the price steadily fell from $0.30 1-2 a pound in 1885 to $0.13 1-2 in 1902; in January, 1904, the average wholesale price in bond in London was $0.14 1-2 a pound."

The topics of principal interest in Ceylon tea circles just now are the "Cess" and Mr. Chamberlain's increased duty on tea.

In regard to the latter Mr. Kingsford says it will undoubtedly affect the Ceylon tea trade. When the tea duty was increased a year or two ago from 4 to 6 pence, supplies were fairly large and the advance did not fall on the consumer. The last increase, however, will in all probability be sufficient to curtail the consumption of Britsh grown tea such as is grown in India and Ceylon throughout the Uited Kingdom to the certain loss of the producer. In regard to preferential treatment being accorded to British grown tea Mr. Kingsford says he has not heard much about it in Ceylon, and that it is doubtful if preference would be much of an advantage to the Ceylon tea planter. Free trade in the other tea markets is more essential. At present Ceylon and India have a practical monopoly of the British tea market. If, however, the balance of trade should turn against them there they can further direct their products to new markets in which they have already met with phenomenal success as is readily seen from the fact that these countries exported 90,000,000 pounds of tea to foreign markets outside the United Kingdom last year.

PEELS

THE DAVIDSON & HAY, LIMITED

Wholesale Grocers, Toronto

Mr. Kingsford is in a position to speak with authority on the "Cess" question as he was for two years the chairman of the "30" committee. For upwards of eleven years, beginning with the decision to have a display at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 the planters of Ceylon, aided by the Government, which provides almost all the outlay in connection with International Expositions have made a persistent and remarkable effort to exploit the markets of North America. At the close of the Chicago Exposition a permanent commissioner was appointed; and year after year an executive body called the Thirty Committee, elected by the Planters' Association of Ceylon and the Ceylon Chamber of Commerce, has expended $50,000 per annum in advertising and demonstrating in North America, besides carrying on a propaganda in other countries.

The money for the exploitation of Ceylon's staple export was provided for the first few years from a voluntary tea fund, but since 1892 from a cess collected at the Customs on all teas exported. This cess began at 10 rupee-cents for every 100 pounds, and was twice increased, until 30 cents per 100 pounds was reached. This has enabled the executive body to encourage the new industry of green tea, which during the past three years has made notable progress. It must be remembered that the cess is in no way a bounty, it is simply an export duty collected by the Government but paid by the producer. The plan on the whole has proved successful and a proposition has been broached recently among the tea planters to have the amount of the cess further increased as it is felt that there is no more effective way of Ceylon establishing her self in foreign countries than official advertising.

QUEBEC WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

The Quebec Provincial Wholesale Grocers' Guild is now an established fact. A meeting was held Thursday, September 29, at Montreal, for the purpose of organization, with an attendance of representatives from wholesale grocery firms throughout the province and Ottawa.

The guild is subject to the Dominion guild, composed of the several Provincial guilds. Mayor Laporte, as president of the Dominion guild, welcomed the representatives from other cities. The representatives present were L. E. Geoffrion, president of the Montreal guild; D L Lockerby and Albert Hebert, Montreal; Archibald Miller, P. J. Bazin, J. B. E. Letellier, A. Carrier, and C. E. Langlois, Quebec, and A. Allard, Ottawa. The members of the Montreal guild entertained the visiting grocers at an informal dinner at the Canada Club.

The election of officers resulted as follows: L. E. Geoffrion, Montreal, was elected president; J. P. Bazin, Quebec, first vice-president; H. A. Bate, Ottawa, second vice-president; J. Stanley Cool, Montreal, secretary and treasurer.

THE BREAKFAST TABLE PROBLEM

Do you think any of your customers have one? Don't know just exactly what they should have to make a foundation for a hard day's work? Do you suppose they've ever thought of the appetizing, body-building, brain-strengthening kind that is so popular in Nova Scotia, viz, FISH?

Suggest it to them, and help them further by selling a package of "HALIFAX," "ACADIA," or "BLUENOSE" PREPARED CODFISH. Your interest in their Breakfast Table Problem will build up a lot of trade you do not now possess.

Fresh and Cured Fish

To Benefit Canadian Fishermen.

A MOVEMENT has been set on foot by the I.C.R., which will greatly benefit Canadian fishermen, namely an arrangement to commence a service over the lines of the I.C.R. for bringing a daily supply of fish during the Winter to Montreal, from Gaspe, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. This at once suggests a competitive facility for Boston and Portland. Hitherto a large trade had been carried on between the fish dealers of Montreal and the traders of Boston and Portland. In fact it is well known that a large American fishing house in New England, which also owns an immense establishment in British Columbia, hauls carloads of fish all through Canada and down to Boston, in bond, and then ships it back to Canada. This statement applies to halibut especially.

It is a known fact also that the Maritime Provinces of the Dominion have fish supplies sufficiently abundant to successfully compete with, and shut out all foreign competition. All that has been desired was the necessary transportation faciltiies. The new arrangement is viewed with great satisfaction by large and small fish dealers in Montreal, principally because they will be able in future to bring their fish to Montreal much cheaper than from the American side and considerable sums of money which originally went to the United States, will now be diverted to the pockets of Canadian fishermen. It may be explained that it is only for about five weeks in the year, during the months of August and September, that Canadians have to look to the United States for haddock. At this time of year supplies of all kinds of fish come from the Maritime Provinces, every day of the week except Saturday and when the east fails, the Pacific coast is left to fall back on. The new departure of the Intercolonial should make it possible for Canadians to supply their own market, quite independently of the United States.

Whaling Industry for B. C.

Preparations have been commenced in Sechart Island, B.C., for the construction of works to be used in connection with developing the whaling industry in British Columbia waters, which has hitherto been monopolized by whalers from San Francisco. The estimated cost of equipment is $50,000. The fish will be made into oil, guano and bone fertilizer.

The Japanese Oyster Industry.

THERE are, according to the report of Dr. Dean to the United States Fish Commission, three kinds of Japanese oysters considered in connection with cultivation. The first is a small one, probably a dwarfed sea water variety, and is found in great quantities along the southern and eastern coasts, and is the most abundant of its kind. It is a bay oyster, occurring in shallow water, where it forms an almost barnacle-like incrustation upon the tidal rocks. It is collected in great numbers for local consumption, fisher people opening them on the spot, not detaching the shell from the rock, and marketing them in bulk. In actual size this oyster is rarely larger than one's finger nail, but its flavor makes amends for its size. The shell rarely measures more than two inches in length, and in both size and flavor it resembles the California oyster. The second form is the important one from the standpoint of the culturist. It averages the size of the "Blue Point," and its color is that of cream. It occurs abundantly through the Inland Sea, in the small bays along the northeast coast of the main island, and thrives in bays well tempered by fresh water. The best that are found are those that are found at a depth of a fathom or two below the low-water mark, and it is the form considered by Prof. Dean in his discussion of the culture of the oyster. The third form is a typical sea oyster, and it is most abundant at a depth of ten fathoms. Its value is purely local, no region producing sufficient numbers to warrant a definite fishery. Some of the specimens weigh in the shell as much as six pounds.

The oyster producing region of Japan is par excellence the Inland Sea, and it is here that the culturists have carried on their industry with the greatest success. This body of water can be looked upon as one of the most important natural preserves of fish and shellfish in the world. It can be compared to a deep marine lake, but it is sufficiently open to the sea to insure favorable conditions of density and of renewal of its waters, while its occupants are free from the dangers of an open gulf.

Throughout this entire region oyster culture is carried on more or less generally, but the important seats of the industry are at Okayama, in the east, and near Hiroshama, in the west. In the former locality, a small, nearly enclosed bay, which suggests that of Archachon, in France, proves very productive and supplies no little part of the market of Kobe and Osaka. Here are also the canning factories. Near Hiroshama, however, the industry is conducted on a somewhat larger scale, although on the same general lines.

All cultivable grounds, whether for oysters, other shellfish or seaweed, are—in Aki, at least—the property of the prefecture, and can neither be sold nor subrented. All cultivable tracts are surveyed, the lots tending to decrease in size as the estimated value of the property increases. The farms are rented auction fashion to the highest bidder, and the tenants have the privilege of renewing their lease indefinitely at the original rentals; a privilege, however, which cannot be used speculatively. In addition to the yearly rental, the property is subject to a small local tax upon the total area of each farm, and to a charge of one per cent. of the rental to cover the expenses of administering the oyster cultural bureau of the prefecture. This series of taxes impresses the stranger as formidable, until he learns that it does not represent an accumulation of taxes, but rather an itemized statement as to the apportionment of public funds made thus in accordance with local custom. Rental or concessions from the prefecture, it should further be said, brings with it certain privileges in marketing the oyster in Osaka.

Fish Planting.

The Ontario Government, in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Railway, has inaugurated a vigorous policy of restocking with fish many of the lakes in northern Ontario, where there was any chance of a depletion, and the success which has attended their efforts has been marked. During the Summer season this year no less than 5,305 parent bass were captured and transported from Lake Erie to the several districts that are visited by the angler and Summer tourist. A special fish car was built by the Grand Trunk three years ago expressly for the transportation of live fish for this purpose and it has been used each Summer in the propagation of this good work. This year three carloads of bass, none less than 12 inches in length, and many weighing two and three pounds, were planted in the Muskoka Lakes, two carloads in Lake Simcoe and Couchiching, one carload in the Lake of Bays region, one carload in Balsam Lake (one of the Kawartha group in Victoria county), and a carload in the lakes along the Canada Atlantic Railway in Algonquin Park. These carloads contained in each instance from 500 to 700 fish. In addition to the planting of the parent fish, a carload of 5,000 black bass fingerlings was placed in the Lake of Bays region. The results of each shipment have been most gratifying, and Summer tourist and angler have appreciated the movement and look forward to better sport in these waters in the future.

Fish Notes.

According to the St. John Sun the boneless herring industry will shortly be started up again in St. John, N.B.

The centre of the kippered herring industry in British Columbia has been transferred from False Creek to Pender Harbor.

According to the Victoria Colonist a combination of western capital is being organized to secure control of the property of the defunct Pacific Packing and Navigation Co.

It may surprise readers of The Grocer to know that from 4,000 to 5,000 caribou were butchered in Newfoundland during the past season for bait used in the cod fisheries.

Perhaps the most curious lake in the world is in the centre of Kildine, an island in the North Sea. The surface of its waters is quite fresh and supports fresh water creatures, but down deep it is as salt as the sea itself and salt-water fish live in it.

It is reported that the assets of the Pacific Packing and Navigation Co. will be offered at public auction in the very near future. The Pacific Packing and Navigation Co. owns about $4,000,000 worth of property in Alaska and the State of Washington.

Firing and Decorating Limoges China.

A NEW kiln for firing Limoges china is being tried just now, which promises to revolutionize the whole system of firing. The form of the oldfashioned kiln is entirely changed. The saggers containing the china are placed on cars or slabs made of fireproof material, which are pushed drawn into a hot-air chamber, whose temperature gradually increases as they are advanced towards the firing chamber. At this point a water-cooled damper lined with fireproof bricks is raised, so that the cars proceed into the firing chamber where the heat is concentrated. It remains here until the china is baked; then another water-cooled damper is raised to let the car pass out into the cooling chamber, where the cars move slowly towards the exit of the kiln. By a careful arrangement of drafts, the hot air from the highly heated saggers is drawn under the firebox, thus saving all waste heat. The advantages obtained by this system of firing are (1) economy of fuel, (2) saving of time (it is estimated that china paste can be made into china, passing through the several processes of bisque, glazing, and decorating, in from thirty to forty hours), (3) cheapness in constructing the kilns and repairing them, (4) the saggers last much longer, (5) a gain in the quality of the goods, (6) reducing the number of men required to tend the fires, (7) as the cars or slabs are loaded before entering these kilns, as large a force of men is not required as is necessary in filling a down-draft or oldfashioned kiln, (8) a perfect control and knowledge of all parts of the kiln can be had all the time the fire is going on, (9) this kiln can be used for every purpose in making china, viz., bisque, glazing, and decorating, this latter process being done by covering the cars with a muffler or hood.

DECORATION.

The decoration of china has been reduced to a very fine art in Limoges. The beautiful designs—floral, fruits, and landscapes—so much admired, are produced in such quantities and so rapidly that it would be impossible to make one-thousandth part of the decorations by hand. The processes of lithographing and decalcomania have replaced all hand painting, except for rich decorations and special orders. The small decorators purchase the decalcomania sheets ready prepared. They employ girls to stick the pictures on the china. After the paper has been removed therefrom the articles are fired in "moufles" to set the colors.

The large manufacturers, however, make their own decalcomania sheets, work out their designs, and control their decorations themselves. The design is cut upon a stone in the same manner as a chromo-lithograph, each color having a separate stone, which is passed through a machine. The color, which is in powder, is sprinkled on the paper after it has received the impression from the stone. Only that portion which should receive the given color is impressed, so that after the different paints are passed upon the sheets called for by the design the sheet is ready for transferring.

Much alarm was caused some time ago by lead-poisoning from the colors, but now the powdering is done under cover. The top of the tables are in glass, the backs and sides are of wood, but the front is of cloth, in which are armholes fitted with elastic bands, so that the hands can be thrust through and the powdering done without the danger of inhaling the dry colors. The work is seen through the glass top. A new powder is now being tried which dispenses altogether with lead.

Belgian Glass Industry.

THE Etoile Belge recently published an interesting article on the crisis in the glass industry in Belgium, from which the following is extracted :

"During many years the glass industry of Belgium has rapidly increased. Jealous of us, the United States, formerly our tributary, developed the industry mostly with our workmen, who emigrated in great numbers and finally formed in America a union, which was successful in some disputes with the employers. Imitating the example, Belgium glass workers, on October 1, 1894, formed a federation called the New Glass Union. Instead, however, of remaining a union to resist the reduction of salaries or to assist in raising them, it became purely a political machine and an arm of oppression. Later, certain workmen tried to escape from the yoke, and in their turn founded, in 1898, opposing unions. In 1900 the union attempted to force the seceders back, and, the directors and owners of the glassworks refusing to aid them, a general strike ensued July 1, 1900. After a long time the owners gave in, but not before France and England had become formidable competitors.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

TO IMPROVE THE CHEESE INDUSTRY OF QUEBEC.

THE following letter appeared in a recent issue of the Quebec Journal of Agriculture: For some time past our cheese has brought much lower prices in the market for exportation than that of Ontario, and at the same time many of the leading exporters complained that the quality of this product of the dairy was continually deteriorating in this province.

Some attribute this evil to the want of proper care of the milk; others to the want of cleanliness in the factories; others to the want of efficiency in the service of inspection, etc., etc.

We acknowledge that at least to a certain degree these complaints are well founded; they explain the depreciation of the cheese of Quebec. We also admit that the faults of manufacture and the imperfections, too often seen, are the immediate results of the causes mentioned above. But we believe that behind these causes there is another, a primary cause, of which the negligence of the producers of the milk and the makers of the cheese is but a consequence. This original and chief cause is the system which generally governs the transactions between buyers for exportation and the producers of the cheese. We refer to the system of buying at an average price. By this system the cheese offered on the market are not valued and sold according to the value of each, but a single uniform price is established for the whole of the product which is for sale.

Let us consider the consequences of such a practice.

SELLING METHODS AT FAULT.

With the method "of a sale at an average price," the competent and conscientious manufacturer does not receive the remuneration to which he is entitled, consequently he receives no encouragement to do better. On the other hand, the maker of a poor article has nothing to fear, since the defective cheese turned out by his factory will bring the same price as the best. We will even go further and say that cheese makers who are not over scrupulous, are actually encouraged to do wrong to increase the weight at the expense of the quality by allowing an excess of moisture to remain in the cheese, as in that way they obtain a greater number of pounds, for all of which they receive the same pay.

We might further ask what credit or authority can the advice or teachings of the inspectors have under present conditions when they point out errors committed or defects to be remedied.

PURCHASE ACCORDING TO QUALITY.

Per contra, what would happen if the method of purchase "according to quality," the only equitable one for all parties, should be adopted. In such case the farmers using the factory would take care to bring nothing but milk of irreproachable quality, each one being afraid of being accused by his colleagues of having lowered the quality of the cheese and thus injured the common interest by the delivery of poor or bad quality.

The same parties, so as to obtain better cheese from their milk and consequently better prices, will have a unanimous understanding to prevent or remove the various causes tending to lower the quality of their product, they will see that the factory is well kept, that the surroundings are properly drained, that the milk cans and other utensils are washed with care, etc., etc.

They will keep an eye upon the manufacturer and control his zeal. If he is lazy or incapable they, the parties interested in obtaining a superior product, will not hesitate to call for his dismissal. Instead of finding, as is now too often the case, that the maker, whoever he may be, is paid too high a salary, they will agree to require the proprietor of the establishment to secure the services of a capable operator, even by paying him a larger salary.

WORK OF THE INSPECTORS.

The opinions of the inspectors and their advice, now so often received with indifference, will be scrupulously followed, in the hope that they will bring improvement and a consequent increase in the price of sale. We have only mentioned some of the happy results which would follow the adoption of the method of purchase according to quality. They are, however, sufficient to show the numerous advantages of such a method. Its application would assure an early improvement in our cheese. It would have a durable effect, permanent as the interests which it is to protect; and in our opinion it will be the starting point in the progressive advance towards the production of an article of increasing perfection.

Some years ago the dairy industry in New Zealand passed through a crisis, very similar to that which we are going through at the present time. The Government decided that all dairy products should be examined at the ports of export by expert inspectors, appointed by itself and that these products should be classed in three categories of quality: XXX., XX., and X.

This measure was a work of salvation. From the very first it had the effect of putting into force a scale of prices.

A healthy rivalry in well doing, founded upon self-interest, grew up between the producers; it resulted in a rapid improvement in the quality of the cheese, for which the demand became greater and the prices much higher.

CHANGES ARE NECESSARY.

In our province, unless the system "of purchase at an average price," which discourages first-class manufacturers and chokes wholesome competition, be abandoned and replaced by the system "according to value," the only equitable one, radical changes will take place in a very short time in the manner of transacting business.

Either the producers will be compelled to form important associations among themselves, joining their interests the better to defend them by the power of co-operation. Associations of this nature have long existed in Denmark, in Hungary and other places, and they are of immense value to their members. They have representatives on all the great markets of the continent and carry on business directly with Berlin, and without dealing through intermediates.

Or we will have to follow the course traced out by New Zealand in the first place to guard our dairy industry from danger and next to assure its progress and cause it to yield all the profit which our agricultural classes have the right to expect.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The market for provisions is strong, orders being large as compared with the stocks that remain. The only perceptible advance in prices is in heavy mess pork which is quoted from a cent to a cent and a half higher. There is not much of it on hand at present. The fresh meat market is quiet with no change in beef and a little weakening in lamb and veal. The prices quoted this week are as follows:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 08½	$0 08¾
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09½	0 10
Small hams per lb	0 13	0 13½
Medium hams, per lb	0 13	0 13½
Large hams, per lb	0 11½	0 12½
Shoulder hams, per lb	0 09	0 09½
Backs, per lb	0 15	0 16
Heavy mess pork, per bbl	15 00	15 50
Short cut, per bbl	17 50	18 00
Shoulder mess pork, per bbl	14 40	14 50
Lard, tierces, per lb	0 07¾	0 08

Hogs, light	7 50	7 75

Butter—Butter remains steady with a fair business doing. Receipt and demand are without change. For weeks it has been the quietest part of the dairy and provision market. We quote this week:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 18	0 19
Dairy prints	0 15	0 17
" in tubs	0 13	0 16

Cheese—In cheese prices have not changed nor have the prices offered at the board sales. Sellers are unwilling to take up offers of 8 3-4—8 7-8, the price that has ruled for two weeks. The result is that thousands of cheese are held back without making any apparent impression on buyers. Dealers express the opinion that there may be a dropping off in prices during the next few weeks as October and November cheese are not considered as good as that made during the earlier months. Board sales for the week ending October 3 are as follows:

Board.	Boxes.		Price.
Ingersoll	420	(no sales)	0 08 15-16

*Colored Cheeses.

From this it will be seen that of 29,122 cheese offered only 4,200 were sold on the board and not much more than 8,000 would change hands on board and curb. This leaves at least 20,000 unsold. Last week only 1,140 were sold out of 30,895 offered. At this rate stocks of immense size must be accumulating. We quote dealers' prices:

Montreal.

Provisions—No actual change has taken place in the condition of the market, the feeling was considerably firmer all round, more especially for live hogs, which is occasioned by the strong cable advices on Canadian bacon. Supplies were not extensive. Sales of selected lots took place at $5.50; mixed lots at $5.25, and heavy at $5 per hundred pounds. The demand for dressed hogs was first rate and prices ruled firm at $7.50 to $7.75 per hundred pounds for fresh killed abbatoir dressed stock and at $7 for country dressed. The trade in lard was active and other lines comparatively slow. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 00	$18 00

Cheese—The cheese market remains inactive. Prices hold an easy undertone. Purchases of Quebec goods were reported at 8 5-8c, but these were rare and 8 3-4 to 8 7-8 is about the proper range for the asking price of these, with 9c for Townships and 9 1-8 to 9 1-4c for Ontario. A large quantity of cheese sold at the wharf for 8 5-8c.

Butter—The butter market remains also quite dull and rather heavy in tone. Considerable trading was noted in Townships creamery at 20c, and in Quebec goods at 19 1-2 to 19 3-4c. As many as 1,000 Quebecs were turned over at the wharf early in the week at 19 1-2c.

A Liverpool correspondent states that provisions in that district have been very gloomy for some weeks. He referred to Cumberland butter having cost 52s per hundredweight, which in Canadian money means 12c per pound dry. Cheese has been at a low level for time of the year, although the quality has been very good. Especial reference was made to colonial butter, which, it was explained, had shown good value, adding that the retailer had no trouble to make good profit out of his one shilling butter. The value of butter and cheese as regards Winter months, was uncertain. The general belief is that cheese will go much higher and further, supposing it did avance several shillings, it would still be at a lower price than it has held for the past two or three years. For butter the prospects appear reasonable from all points of view. New Zealand butters are offered for forward contract 1-2d per pound less than the prices ruling last season, but knowing ones state that the New Zealand people will be compelled to take less butter if the Canadian butter continues to arrive in the same excellent condition in which it has been seen during the past three months. First quality Canadian butter is competing strongly with New Zealand in regard to quality, while there is an additional preference in the Canadian in that it is not so highly colored during the Winter months. The outlook regarding American bacon is considered favorable for the retailer, who appreciates the situation thoroughly when American bacon arrives in the neighborhood of 49s as there is usually then a good profit.

Provisions—A feature of the market is the continued dull business in barreled pork and beef. Pork is higher; beef unchanged. Our lumbermen are using fresh beef more each year, causing a much lighter sale for salt beef than in former years. Pure lard is firm and selling freely. Refined lard is still low but price tending higher. There is improved demand. In smoked meats market is largely supplied by local curers. Fresh beef is low. Lamb is freely offered and cheap. Some veal is still offered, price unchanged. Mutton is dull. Pork is more freely offered, price is low.

Provision Notes.

C. W. Bowman, for some time past superintendent of the Ingersoll Packing Co., has been appointed a director of the Montreal Packing Co.

An organization known as the Richmond Dairymen's Association has been formed among the farmers on Lulu Island, B.C. and announces to the Vancouver trade that rates for milk during the coming Winter will be 20 per cent higher than usual.

The report is current in Toronto provision circles that a provision and fruit commission company is being organized in Toronto. Grimsby and Toronto interests are represented.

Mr. H. Parnell, one of the dairy instructors of the Ontario Government, has accepted a position under the Orange River Colony Government of South Africa and leaves on November 1 to open a dairy school there.

Tenders are being received for the purchase of the cold storage warehouse belonging to the estate of the King Darrell, Walker Co., Toronto, and situated at Thedford, Ont.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, are offering new Marbot walnuts to arrive in November at interesting prices.

Jas. Rutherford & Co., Montreal, are offering special inducements in Chna greens, gunpowders and young hysons, cheap teas; also Ceylon and Indian greens.

Just in store with L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, 600 cases and barrels of Boulestin Co.'s famous cognac. They are filling orders promptly.

J. H. Maiden, Montreal, reports delivery this week of three cars of "Peerless" brand salt, small packets. This brand is meeting with ready acceptance in this market and is reported as most satisfactory.

Two carloads new salmon arriving this week for L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., 500 cases Peacock Red, and 500 cases Sunflower pink salmon. Peacock brand is guaranteed finest pack this season.

This is the time of year when the Grocer thinks about his mince meat. The T. A. Lytle Co., Toronto, are again to the front with their well-known mince meat. "Better than has been" is a familiar expression with this firm. Every grocer can rely on getting the very best, because only the best fruits and meats are used in the manufacture. It is put up in convenient sized fibre and wooden pails.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, are showing a fancy glass-front tin of new assorted peel that will retail at $1. It already is finding a good sale amongst high-class trade.

"Eglah" table cream, a delicious new English preparation, is being put on the market by the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto. It retails at 10c, and bids fair to become a popular seller.

The Salada Tea Co., Toronto, reports that its west end city traveler, Mr. A. Irving, took 70 orders on Oct. 3, or in all 3,336 lbs. These orders were all taken from grocers west of Yonge street.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, have just passed into store another shipment of Jacob's celebrated Irish Besents, which includes several new lines.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Reay, the genial Toronto representative of the Force Food Co., left this week on a tour of Western Ontario.

Mr. A. M. Long, formerly in charge of the sample room of T. Kinnear & Co., Toronto, is now on the sample room staff of Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto.

CANADA AND THE WEST INDIES.

Owing to recent developments in trade between Canada and the West Indies the big steamship companies are beginning to realize that there may be in the near future a profitable trade with those islands. As a consequence, at least three well-known lines will tender for the service from Canada the present contract for which, now held by a Halifax firm, expires in July next.

The Elder-Dempster Company will tender for the service, and if successful, will place a fleet of steamships on the route. According to a dispatch received from Liverpool yesterday, the Royal Mail Steamship Line will also send in a tender and another large steamship line has under consideration an offer to the Canadian Government for the contract.

At any rate, indications point to a lively contest. The fact that the Hon. R. H. McCarthy, Collector of Customs, at Port au Spain, a warm advocate of closer trade relations, is at present in Canada, has further stimulated interest here Mr. McCarthy is now touring Canada with a view to promoting the closer trade idea in all parts.

F. Laur has purchased the bakery and confectionery business of G. E. Strachan, Aylmer, Ont.

Why HEINZ 57

PAY BIG PROFITS

Suppose two articles cost you 16 cents and you sell each for 20.

Do you figure you make the same profit on each? Not necessarily.

You may make 25 per cent. on each but one will pay maybe 300 per cent. a year, on account of frequent turn over; the other, perhaps, only 75 per cent.

IT'S THE TURNOVER THAT COUNTS

Brands of intrinsic merit well advertised sell with the least expense and trouble to the dealer and they pay good profits because they keep your sixpence nimble. The sooner you get your order in for the 57 Varieties the sooner the turnover begins.

Are you satisfied with your Baking Powder trade?

Are you selling as much or more than your competitors?

If you answer "yes" to the first query and "a little more" to the second, you must be handling

Forest City Baking Powder

because it has been the favorite baking powder from Halifax to Vancouver for the last twenty years.

If you wish to give your baking powder sales a spurt, just "push" Forest City Baking Powder a little more---introduce it to a few customers who are using inferior brands.

They'll come back for it again and will buy other groceries at the same time.

Years and Years!

For years and years the most persistent buyers of Windsor Salt have been the most successful cooks. One woman has told another about the salt that doesn't cake, the salt of unequalled purity, whiteness, dryness, and each woman is a link in the chain that has been forged from one little word, "confidence."

A woman can make or mar your success in business. She can influence trade—above all, she does like to talk. Think of the cumulative effect of years and years of constant talking—constant praise for Windsor Salt.

Trade Persuaders

A really fine line of Pickles is about as tempting a thing as a grocer can display in his store. We show three lines, Bengal and Lion Mixed Pickles and Priscilla Sweet Pickles, that are the acme of salability. The Bengal is a large package of selected vegetables extra carefully cut; the Lion is a smaller package of the same grade. The Priscilla Sweet Pickle is about as nice a Pickle both in appearance and taste as it is possible to obtain—it is a great seller. Bengal, 3 doz. to case, $2.40; Lion, 3 doz. to case, $2.00; Priscilla (sweet), 3 doz. to case, $2 40.

OATS AND OATMEAL.

ALTHOUGH the final estimate of the oat crops of United States and Canada has not yet been made, the harvest is now so far completed that a sufficiently close estimate of the yield and quality can be made to form a fairly correct idea of the probable effect on the price of oatmeal for the current year. Last year Ontario reaped the largest oat crop on record, the Government estimate putting it at nearly 110,000,000 bushels, and the quality was very fine, especially in those district where most of the oatmeal milling is done. The average test would probably be 34 lbs. per imperial bushel.

On the other hand, in 1903 the United States had only an average crop, the Government report making it 784,000,000 bushels, while the average for ten years past is 773,000,000 bushels. The quality, however, has been very poor, testing only about 28 lbs. per bushel, Winchester measure, or say 29 lbs. imperial.

This placed the Canadian millers in a very enviable position, as they had a large crop of magnificent oats at reasonable prices from which to draw their supplies, while United States mills had to draw from a light crop of poor quality and high priced oats. This gave the Canadian oatmeal mills practically a monopoly of the export trade. This year indications are they will have to divide it with their American competitors or surrender to them the greater part of it, which will cause greater competition for the domestic market and lower prices than have ruled during the past year, as this year the United States mills have a good crop of oats of the finest quality they have had in years, while Canada has neither as good a crop nor as good quality as in 1903. The United States Government estimate of the crop this year indicates 865,000,000 bushels, and the test weight is high. On the other hand, the Ontario Government estimates the home crop at 104,000,000 bushels, and the quality is not nearly up to that of last year. Rust injured the oats as well as the wheat, and it is very probable that the final outcome will show the Government estimate to be too high and the total yield to be considerably less.

As it is also reported that foreign crops of oats are good, the demand is limited, with the result that United States oats are now offering from Chicago at 36c a bushel delivered on track at Toronto in bond, or at about the same price that Ontario oats are bringing on track Toronto.

The price of oatmeal has already been reduced in consequence of the above conditions, but it would not be safe to predict a big decline in the price of oatmeal for two reasons. First, the American Cereal Co. use their mills at Peterboro to supply a large portion of their export trade in Great Britain and the Continent. No doubt they will continue to do so, as the mill was especially established for this purpose. A heavy demand for oats is thus caused and the price kept up above what it would be if this mill had not been established. Low priced oatmeal cannot be made from high-priced oats. Another important factor to be taken into consideration is the fact that with the poorer quality of oats which the Canadian mills will have to use this year, it will take more to make a barrel of rolled oats, thus adding to the cost of a barrel of meal. Thus, while undoubtedly a lower range of prices will prevail than during the past year, taking the above facts into consideration, the trade is not justified in looking for very low prices.

A HINT TO THE CANNERS.

THE opinion is current in Toronto wholesale grocery circles that the announcement of opening prices on 1904 pack canned corn and tomatoes is being unduly delayed. The canned goods situation this year is peculiar in this respect, that corn and tomatoes are being delivered to the wholesale trade without prices yet having been named.

The grocery trade as a whole recognizes the wisdom of canners withholding quotations until the season's pack can be accurately estimated. It means much to the wholesale and retail trade to have a price which under ordinary circumstances will be stable throughout the entire season, and it is manifestly an inexcusable mistake to announce prices and discover afterwards that market conditions will only warrant lower quotations. This has actually happened in Canadian canned goods circles though not of late years, when the occurrence caused not a little inconvenience to retailers who stocked up with the article at the beginning of the season at full prices only to find that the said article was obtainable later at a considerably lower figure. The difficulty is more easily overcome when market conditions warrant an advance on opening prices.

The anxiety of the wholesaler is in the main, however, because retailers are calling for new pack corn and tomatoes while the wholesale trade is in the peculiar position of having the goods on hand without being able to name a price.

FAIR CANADA IN DEMAND.

MISS CANADA has arrived at an age when Uncle Sam thinks he may with due propriety pay court to the fair damsel in the person of his sons. The action of the Democratic party therefore in adopting a strong reciprocity plank in its election platform must be construed in a sympathetic frame of mind. Not to be outdone by their Democratic brethren the Republicans have also inserted a reciprocity plank, which is nothing more nor less than a copy word for word of the Democratic pronunciaments on the question. Both parties now stand committed to reciprocity as their national policy in the following words: "We favor liberal trade arrangements with Canada and with peoples of other countries, where these can be entered into with benefit to American agriculture, manufactures, mining or commerce."

The chapter devoted to the subject of reciprocity in the campaign book issued by the Democratic party quotes statistics from authorities of both countries showing that at whatever period reciprocity has in the part been in operation the United States was the gainer. After pointing out the exact trade situation as it exists at present between the United States, Canada and Great Britain, the opinion is expressed that in the fulfilment of the Chamberlain propaganda lies a menace to American farmers and commerce generally.

The campaign document also pays the following glowing tribute to Canada: "This great country is one of the largest and finest on the globe. It is little inferior if at all to the United States in the vast variety and value of its resources. It is surrounded and indented by seas that teem, to a degree beyond all others, with the wealth of ocean, which in conjunction with its mighty system of international transportation afford a splendid basis for maritime and commercial enterprise. Nothing but the most unexampled lack of foresight could countenance indifference to the commercial possibilities between the two countries."

It goes on further to say that the deliberately selfish policy of the Republican party in wringing from Canada such profits as might be gathered without giving anything in return has cost the United States the respect and almost the friendship of the nation to the north and that the time has now come for the correction of this error and the establishment of closer international relations in the matter of trade and commerce.

That the United States has everything to gain and nothing to lose by reciprocity with Canada is a self-evident fact, owing to the opportunity it would afford the American consumer of purchasing freely Canadian food products and raw manufacturing materials.

Although susceptible to a degree Canada is not likely to fall a victim to the blandishments of her new courtiers, unless she sees something redounding to her advantage. Owing to the indifference of these same individuals in the past she has "sought and found" in other fields and pastures green, and at the present time her attitude cannot be said to be altogether friendly to the above-mentioned gallant proposals. The proposers are keenly alive to the seriousness of the situation, and are sparing no efforts in their endeavor to win what maybe they have irrevocably lost.

BUSINESS MAN WANTED.

AFTER years of constant endeavor to have the department of Trade and Commerce in the Dominion Government transferred from the charge of an incompetent to a qualified administrator, our efforts appear likely to be crowned with success.

Sir Richard Cartwright has simultaneously resigned his portfolio in the Dominion Cabinet and been elevated to the Senate. Practically his political career is ended. At such a time we cannot but refer with gratitude to the many disinterested services which for years he has rendered to the people of Canada, while at the same time we cannot but regret that his withdrawal from the active participation in the government of the country has been so long delayed.

That Sir Richard retired none too soon has been emphasized by the fact that it would have been practically impossible for him to secure his party's nomination in the constituency, which he has represented for so many years—a constituency which has an unique record for piling up enormous Liberal majorities.

While we have long advocated Sir Richard's retirement from the charge of the department of Trade and Commerce, we have not forgotten that true criticism must not be destructive only. Suggestions and advice for the reconstruction of what is destroyed must be offered. In this instance, we have not been wanting. It will be remembered that when the Hon. Charles S. Hyman, of London, was first returned to parliament, we pointed him out as a man admirably qualified to discharge the functions of Minister of Trade and Commerce. At that time we advocated his substitution in place of Sir Richard Cartwright. Today what we in a measure prognosticated seems extremely likely to come to pass. Sir Richard has been deposed and it looks as if Mr. Hyman would reign in his stead.

Our efforts in the direction of a reorganization of the department of Trade and Commerce have been wholly in the interests of the business men of Canada. Now that these efforts have been crowned with a measure of success, we cannot help but feel that the commercial interests of the Dominion will in future receive such a measure of attention as they have never before enjoyed.

SUGAR BOUNTIES.

AN interesting editorial appeared recently in the Montreal Herald in which the ground was taken that the relaxation of free trade principles in the United Kingdom in the matter of sugar bounties has been a grave injury to the jam makers and consumers of Great Britain, in so far as it has raised the price of beet sugar to the British consumer by two shillings per hundredweight, whereas the approach towards free trade principles by the other countries of Europe which were parties to the Brussels convention of 1903, has increased the consumption and diminished the price of sugar in these countries, the consumption in Germany and France having risen by forty-two per cent.

The supporters of the Brussels agreement claim that it is much too early to arrive at any definite conclusion as to the effect of the convention. It must also be remembered that British imports of sugar have gone on increasing throughout the year and that the statistical position is much stronger than it was at this time a year ago, which latter fact is likely in the long run to have been quite as big a factor in the upward tendency of prices during the last twelve months as any of the provisions of the Brussels convention. Another offset is the fact that the sugar industry of the colonies has been greatly benefited by the change, the increase in importations of sugar from the British West Indies alone having increased by 166,000 cwts. during the fiscal year of 1903-04.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Oct. 6, 1904.

Groceries.

THE volume of groceries sold during the week is estimated as fair, regular business being reinforced by a large number of orders coming in to be filled before the close of navigation. Certain localities are accessible only while the great lakes are open; others in the Far West prefer to save the extra expense of haulage by rail, and accordingly get in Winter stocks before the close of November. Additional impetus to the grocery trade is being lent by importations of Mediterranean dried fruits, which are now arriving on the market.

Travelers throughout the country report that business is good, although the retail trade is buying cautiously and not disposed to load up with goods, preferring to buy only for immediate requirements.

Sugar continues firm both in raw and refined, and a brisk trade is reported, although last week's quotations continue unchanged. The grocery trade is anxiously awaiting the announcement of prices on 1904 pack of corn and tomatoes. Supplies have already begun to arrive. The general feeling is that quotations this year will be considerably above those of 1903, owing to shortage in the corn and tomato pack, particularly the latter. Quotations are promised during the coming week. Stocks of "Horseshoe" brand sockeye salmon are practically exhausted, and the trade is now being supplied with various other brands. Generally the canned fish situation is firm with demand active.

Increased sales of corn syrup are reported, and the New Orleans market is beginning to show signs of improvement. Teas are quiet as far as local sales are concerned, considerable anxiety being expressed as to whether Japan teas or Indian and Ceylon are to have first place in the Canadian market. It is authoritatively stated that over-supplies of Ceylon greens are getting pretty well cleaned up and that the consumption of the latter is not only holding its own but increasing. Japans have advanced in price and are not offering as good a quality as a few weeks ago. As against this, Indians and Ceylons are offering better quality than heretofore. Coffee is extraordinarily firm on account of the high prices quoted on Rios. Supplies are low, but wholesalers prefer to rest on their oars than buy at present quotations.

New figs have arrived on the market, and quotations on New Valencias and California seeded have been announced. Old stock is practically exhausted and what yet remains is being quoted lower to correspond with new crop prices. Dried fish are moving actively. Bird seed is scarce and high and evaporated apples are quoted 1c cheaper than last week.

CANNED GOODS.

Considerable anxiety is expressed in canned goods circles in regard to opening prices on canned corn and tomatoes. Packing is still going on, although it is entirely contingent on the weather conditions. Canners are holding back prices until the extent of the pack is determined. The opinion just now is that the corn pack will be at least 40 per cent. short; there will also be a considerable shortage in tomatoes, although not so large as in corn. Another peculiarity in the corn and tomato situation is the fact that deliveries are now being made although no price has been announced. It is hoped that the new prices may be available for next week's Grocer.

In view of the approaching completion of the 1904 pack of fruit and vegetables, stocks of 1903 pack are being reduced and will be revised accordingly in next week's Grocer.

1904 pack apples will be on the market very shortly at prices somewhat below the level of last year. The trade is of the opinion that prices were abnormally high a year ago, and bases its predictions in regard to price on this as well as the fact that there will be a large crop of apples for canning purposes this year. This article is in demand especially for the export trade in the Northwest and foreign countries.

Stocks of "Horseshoe" brand sockeye salmon are practically exhausted and the retail trade is now being supplied with other lines. Generally the salmon situation continues very firm, although there has been no appreciable change in quotations. There has been a considerable reduction in prices of corn beef. Finnan haddies are firm on account of the short pack. We quote the following prices:

SUGAR.

The position in raw sugars is in the main unchanged from last week. The market is holding its strength but in an idle sort of way, no business having transpired to American refiners. Offerings, too, are light and holders are indifferent sellers, in some cases asking an advance which refiners show no intention of conceding.

A Java cargo unsold is offering at 12s c.i.f., which is equivalent to duty paid parity of 4⅜c for 96 test centrifugals. New crop Demerara sugar for forward shipment could be purchased on the same basis and offerings at the moment are limited to these descriptions.
the absence of actual business we quote the market firm on the basis of last transactions, namely, 4.31c duty paid for 96 test. New crop beet sugar for October shipment has reacted fractionally during the week and is quoted at 11s 3¾d basis f.o.b. Hamburg, or equal to 4.40c duty paid New York for 96 test; but where this differential is maintained there is not much likelihood of further purchases in Europe for account of American refiners.

A cargo of Java sugar afloat to New York, in the absence of American buyers, was directed to Clyde refiners at equivalent to 11s 10½d c.i.f. New York. There are now practically no sugars offering from Cuba and grinding there has ceased for the year. The new crop when it comes to be marketed will likely open at a high figure. Stocks in the island are now only 12,000 tons, and it is a long time since such small stocks have been held there. Weather continues favorable for the growing crop, which promises to be considerably in excess of the crop just finished.

Receipts at Atlantic ports for the week ending Sept. 28 were again heavy, being 64,902 tons, while meltings remained at previous figures, 46,000 tons, thus increasing stocks for the week by about 19,000 tons to a total of 167,364 tons in all hands, of which only about 9,000 tons are held by importers. The deficiency in stocks as compared with the same time last year is now 5,300 tons.

Stocks in U. S. and Cuba together are 179,364 tons, a deficiency of 149,301 tons compared with the same time last year. The world's visible supply of raw sugars is 1,540,000 tons, compared with 1,940,000 tons a year ago. Latest cables from Europe report favorable weather for the growing crop, and these are probably accountable for the slight recession in values which has taken place in London. October beet after advancing to 11s 7½d has reacted to 11s 3¾d. Part of this doubtless is to be attributed to the adjustment between the old and new crops, as September at the highest point was only 11s 1½d.

During the week in American refined there has been a reduction by American refiners of 10c per 100 lbs. in the entire list. It now transpires that refiners have been giving this privilege for some time, and have just succeeded in adjusting official quotations. Otherwise there is no apparent reason for the reduction, as on the basis 4.90c for standard granulated in the New York market the margin between raw and refined is reduced to the abnormally low figure of 59c per 100 lbs. compared with a margin of 79c per 100 lbs. a year ago.

In Canadian refined there has been no change in prices or conditions ruling, and we hear of no shadings in values. The immediate outlook is uncertain owing to conditions across the line, but at the moment our refiners show no disposition to reduce quotations. We quote the following prices :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Factories are now grinding in New Orleans and it is expected that new crop molasses will be on the market by the middle of November. Sales of New Orleans have been fair during the week, and conditions of trade in this article are improving steadily. In West Indian molasses the bulk of trade is limited, although a considerable increase is noted. Trade in syrups is reported good at quotations given below. Our quotations are as follows :

TEAS.

Quotations in Japan teas are higher this week although the quality has fallen off considerably. Notwithstanding this, prices have advanced and recent orders cabled from Canada on basis of Japans offering a few weeks ago have been refused under 1c advance. This advice comes with the stipulation that as good teas as were then offering cannot now be shipped.

The Canadian trade is disposed to be very sparing in any event, which news seems to have pretty well extinguished any awakening interest in the article, particularly as Ceylon greens seem to be holding the ground they have gained in the estimation of the Canadian consumer, and are still available at as low a price as at any previous point in the season.

Indian and Ceylon blacks are showing better quality and value than for some time, and as the Indian season is at its height in Calcutta business should be active during the present month for importations. As tea business generally is not brisk locally, however, it is quite possible that a considerable number of buyers will miss their market as they have done in Japans. This, however, would not be an unmixed evil, as it would probably result in importers getting fair margins on tea which has not been the case for many months past.

Importations of China greens up to the present are less than 25 per cent. of importations of last year and less than one half the importations to corresponding date last year. Desirable teas are very scarce, and as the season is pretty well over in Shanghai they must continue so until new importations commence, say in August, 1905.

Locally there are especially good values offering in Indian teas at a cheap figure. We quote the following prices :

Congou—half-chests, Kaisow, Moning,	0 12	0 60

COFFEES.

The coffee market continues in the state that practically little or no business is doing in Rios on account of the high prices ruling. Locally there is very little coffee on the street, but wholesalers prefer to do without than to buy at present quotations. Mild coffees are moving nicely in good volume. We quote the following prices :

Foreign Dried Fruits

The principal item of interest this week in the dried fruit market is the quotations on new prunes, which are given below. Quotations are also given on Valencia and California raisins. Valencias, new selects, are selling at 7½c, and old stock which is said to be scarce and practically off the market has been accordingly reduced in price. California seeded are considerably lower than last year.

California fruit generally continues unchanged in price. The low figure obtaining for seeded raisins is drawing good trade—considerably in excess of the usual volume. New figs have arrived on the market.

With new fruit arriving the dried fruit market will become a very considerable item in the grocery trade from now on. Business generally is reported fair. We quote the following prices :

DRIED FISH.

The dried fish trade may be said to be getting well under way for the Winter trade. Business during the week is reported good and improving. Scaled herring have arrived on this market and are being quoted at 17c. Other prices remain high and unchanged from last week. We quote the following prices :

Boneless fish, per lb		0 04½

BIRD SEED.

Bird seed is slightly lower in price than last week, and an active market is reported particularly for seed in packages. Our quotations are as follows :

Canary seed, per lb	0 06	0 06½
Hemp "		0 05½
Cottam's		0 08

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Stocks of new evaporated apples are arriving on the market slowly and a brisk demand for them is not expected for some time yet. As soon as the cold weather sets in market conditions will brighten throughout the country, and in all probability large quantities of evaporated apples will be sold, particularly in the west. Quotations are 5½ to 6c this week, and it is thought these quotations will rule for some time.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Prices on eggs are gradually working up, although not at all in accordance with the falling off of receipts. These have been very small during the past week, and will be from now on. It is likely that the rise in price will be slow on account of the prevailing high quotations all Summer. We quote now 18 to 19c.

HONEY.

The price list in honey continues unchanged this week and a fair demand is reported. Our quotations are as follows :

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 08	0 08½
" sections, No 1, per doz	1 75	2 00
" " No. 2, "		1 50

BEANS.

The weather of this Spring and Summer has been very detrimental to the growth of beans, and as a result they are now scarce. During the week the price on mixed stock advanced from 15 to 20c per bushel; primes 5c per bushel, and hand-picked advanced from $1.60 to $1.65 per bushel. We quote the following prices :

Beans, mixed, per bush	1 40	1 60
" prime, "		1 50
" handpicked, per bush	1 60	1 65
" Lima, per lb	0 06½	0 07

Green Fruits.

During the week Canadian grapes have been arriving freely on the market. Wine manufacturers are using large quantities for which they are paying from 1¼ to 1½c per lb. This all goes to prove that the crop of grapes this year has been far above the standard. At present peaches are scarce, canners having purchased everything in sight at 3½c per lb. Plums are also scarce, but as prices are at the top notch an advance cannot be expected. There is a good crop of Canadian cranberries. Owing to the cold weather stock is not showing good color. The market for Cape Cod cranberries is firmer this week.

Nothing is arriving from California in the line of fruit, pears having been struck off the list. A few firms have still some peaches and plums in cold storage. The demand for Florida pineapples has ceased.

Since last report fifteen cars of bananas have arrived and sold on the local market. The demand is stronger on account of Fall fairs, although prices have become easier owing no doubt to the strong supply. Sweet potatoes are quiet with a fair demand. The supply of Jamaica oranges is not as good today as a week ago, all stock arriving in good condition on account of the cool weather and cold storage compartments which have been lately added to ocean liners. Florida oranges are expected on the market in three weeks. One car of Idaho plums arrived last week, and another is expected to-morrow, the stock arriving being very good quality. Supplies are expected to cease within the coming week.

The local Summer market is expected to close in a week. During the past few days trade has been quiet, supplies slow and scarce. The yield this year of peaches and plums has been short, but the good crop in apples, pears and grapes has more than made up for the lack, and dealers are satisfied with the amount of business transacted during the season. Prices quoted are as follows :

Vegetables.

At present there is a good supply of cauliflowers on the market which has resulted in the price dropping from 75c and $1.50 to 50c and $1. Onions are becoming scarce and the outlook is for a firm market during the coming Winter. We have added to our list parsnips, selling at 60c per bushel. With the exception of onions, cauliflowers and red peppers, prices remain unchanged. Prices quoted are as follows :

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Wheat is moving more freely, and as a result new Manitoba northern No. 1 has become easier, changing in price from $1.11 and $1.11½ to $1.10 and $1.11½. No. 2 has declined 1½c per bushel, while for No. 3 the prices range from $1.03½ to $1.04. Old oats have been struck off the market. There is a shortage in the yield of rye this year, and prices are advancing; up to date they have advanced 1c per bushel. Quotations given by us for grain on track at Toronto are as follows :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Oct. 6, 1904.

Groceries.

ELECTIONS are interfering with business temporarily. All over the country a certain dulling effect has been felt. Still, business is good. Plenty of orders are at hand and for all kinds of groceries a rousing trade seems to be going on everywhere. Interest in sugar has not abated in the slightest. Raw cane sugars in the London market have been very strong and prices for last week show a rise of 3d with centrifugals quoted at 12s and Muscovadas at 11s. The advance in spices has been well maintained, and the demand seems to have been stimulated by the pickling season and incidentally the copious supplies of certain vegetables incident to this fact. Molasses is quiet at 28c is the order everywhere. Some fluctuations took place in the coffee market, but normal prices rule at the time of writing. Scarcity of Maracaibo on spot has continued and buyers are still bothering about their requirements. Firmness in the tea market is thoroughly maintained. Canned goods dominated interest for a few days and the gloomy prophecies regarding the new pack are still clouding the commercial horizon. Wholesale men are speculating on the prices of the new stock. In the fish market there are grumblings and large dealers state that haddock was sold in Boston on Wednesday for 6 1-2 cents and it was scarce at that. Malpecques are more popular than ever and high prices are ruling. The easiness of dried fruits has caused a large business to have been transacted during the past week, the major portion of which was for Western account. The advance in eggs has been steadily held. Supplies of all kinds of country produce have been generous and of good quality. Potatoes continue to grow easier and the offerings are very abundant. A notable falling off has been recorded in oatmeal of all grades. Flour still maintains its strength and it is a noteworthy fact that in some concerns exorbitant prices are being offered for flour for export and these orders cannot be filled, owing to the over-selling locally. Fruit and vegetables are abundantly supplied and a large business is being carried on without any change in the market. Immense quantities of apples are going forward each week.

SUGAR.

The renewed strength which developed in the foreign market for raw beet sugar a week ago has been maintained and under increased speculation from the Continent coupled with unfavorable crop reports, prices have advanced materially. The September option of last week sold at 11s 3 3-8d, which showed an advance since the week previous of 4 7-8d. The latest cable shows sugar at 11s 1 1-2d. Late mail advices from London state that there is little eagerness to buy on any advance and much less pressure to sell. Crop reports are so conflicting and mixed that it is difficult to judge within several hundred thousand tons, so that it becomes a question, not only of production, but also of the influence of higher prices on consumption. Considering that stocks may be reduced next season to extremely low figures, unless present prices check the consumption and that it may require an increase in sowings of 10 to 15 per cent. to cover bare requirements, it remains to be seen whether the May and August option prices will draw sufficient supplies of roots, but in any case with good premiums thus established for August, which has the tendency to make consumers wait for cheaper sugars ahead, the visible consumption may be reduced, for a time at least. On the other hand, though the yield in France, Belgium and Holland seems fair, producers in Germany and Austria evidently expect an important deficiency per acre. Some factories talking of 30 to 40 per cent. less roots, while others may have only 5 to 10 per cent. less, against which must be put the higher polarization, provided the sugar can all be extracted, which with felerous dried up roots, is rather difficult.

The New York market for the raw article continues strong. There are several cargoes of unsold Java sugar on the way and were expected at the breakwater this week. At present they are withheld from the market. New crop Louisiana and Demerara sugar is also withdrawn from the market. A fair volume of business has been transacted in fine sugar and the market is moderately active, with a firm undertone. The feeling locally is very firm with strong European advices on the raw article, and if an advance in price should take place in New York for refined this market would respond instantly. The demand is good from local and western buyers. We quote:

COFFEE.

The spot scarcity for Maracaibo has occasioned an excellent demand. Other grades, however, remain comparatively quiet and the turn over has been largely in small parcels. The prophesied advance in coffee is expected any day. We quote:

SPICES.

General activity is noticed in spices of all descriptions, notwithstanding the advance in prices. Peppers show an advance of 2c per pound this week, gingers unchanged. Cloves still continue to interest the market, as there is likely to be a shortness. We quote:

TEA.

Tea, generally, shows signs of an overstocked market. A tendency to firmness has ruled steadily during the week. China blacks are held high in common grades. Nothing seems to be doing in the finer grades of teas. Considerable inquiry has been reported for Indian and Ceylon. Jobbers are inactive. Some of them are unable to get their tea before the customers, owing to the scarcity of travelers. Holders of Ceylon greens still find it difficult to make sales. The Japan tea situation is healthy and a good amount of business is turning over; the recent slight advance does not appear to have affected the demand, in fact in some quarters much better inquiry prevails. CANNED GOODS.

Interest still holds in the anticipation of the new pack of canned corn and tomatoes. Tomatoes are not expected to show more than 75 per cent. pack; favorable weather continuing will tend to put a better feeling in the trade. Salmon especially is puzzling to buyers and the high grade stock is likely to be very dear and hard to handle. The new prices for fruit and vegetables are attracting more attention in the trade than usual and increased demand has been noted. The waiting policy is still in order, that is, buyers are waiting for the delivery of orders placed some time ago. We quote:

HAY.

From abroad a good demand is noted for Canadian hay, especially for clover mixed and a slight advance has taken place. The shipping to Newfoundland of baled hay has continued. In this connection the feature of the market for the week has been the advance of 50c per ton on No. 1 grade. Values for all other grades are unchanged. MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, October 1, 1904.

THE weekly report on the wheat question shows that everywhere cutting has been finished and that threshing has again been resumed after a long spell of wet weather which has delayed the farmers to a great extent. With an average yield of 20 bushels to the acre, the crops are generally better than first anticipated. The markets are all fairly firm and active. Business is good and trade generally is moving along very nicely.

Sugar.

The market is now quite firm but active, quoting Montreal granulated in barrels at $5.30; in sacks $5.20, and yellows $4.70. Wallaceburg in barrels at $5.20, and in sacks at $5.10.

Green Fruit.

The market is still very active. Late Valencia oranges are now quoted according to quality from $5 to $5.50 per case; California lemons $5.50 per case; fancy Montana crab apples $1.90 per case; Washington Italian plums $1.25 per case; Washington peaches $1.25 per case; Washington pears $2.25 per case; Ontario Fall apples per barrel $3; Ontario snow apples per barrel $4.50; Ontario basket tomatoes, pears and crab apples, 65c per basket; Ontario basket grapes, blue and green, 35c per basket; California grapes per basket (Tokays) $3 per case; cranberries, Cape Cod, $10 per barrel; Jersey sweet potatoes, Bell brand, $5 per barrel; Spanish onions, $1.50 per case; celery, per doz. bunches, 50c; green tomatoes, per lb., 3c; Chinese figs, $2 per case doz. boxes; dates, 5½c per lb.; California figs, $1 per package; and maple sugar 12c per lb.

Evaporated and Dried Fruit.

The market continues quite firm; the new stock of Valencia raisins is now available. The first shipment of Trenors brand arrived this week and are of a very fine quality, which the market now quotes at $2.10 per box.

Canned Vegetables.

Market continues to hold a general firmness in all varieties of canned vegetables. Canned corn will be scarce owing to the smallness of the crop affected to a great extent by frosts, and we will give no quotations on corn until about the 10th of October. Canned beans the market quotes at $1.80 to $1.90 per case, and canned peas at $1.90 per case.

Cornmeal.

The market continues bright and firm, quoting cornmeal, per sack, at $1.75, and per half sack at 80c.

Coffee.

The market is rather unsettled and prices are stiffening, but quotation on green Rio is still holding on at 10½c to 11c per lb.

Rolled Oats.

The market is very active and prices have advanced slightly. 80 lb. sacks are now quoted at $2.35, with the usual advance in the smaller sizes.

Beans.

White beans are stiffening up a little, the market now quoting prices at $1.60 per bushel.

Canned Fish.

Shipments of the new catch are now on the market, quoting sockeye salmon at the advance price of $7 per case.

Syrups.

The market is very active and prices are slightly in advance of previous quotations. The imperial brand is now quoted at $6 for ½ gals. per doz. in a case. Edwardsburg syrups are now listing 2 lb. tins at $2.40 per case, 5 lb. tins at $2.70 per case, 10 lb. tins at $2.50 per case, and 20 lb. tins at $2.40 per case.

Canned Fruits.

The market is now quoted firm and the canners are very much disappointed that they are only able to fill about 50 per cent. of their orders for canned strawberries owing to the scarcity of this fruit. We may look for an advance in this line before long. Strawberries are quoted at present at $3.25 per case; raspberries at $3 per case of two doz., and Upton's and Aylmer's jams in pails are still quoted at 47½c per pail. Canned peaches and pears are now available and the 1904 crop quotes peaches, 2 lb. yellow, at $3.75 per case; 4 lb. yellow at $5.75 per case, and pears, 2 lb. F. B., at $3.25 per case, and 3 lb. F. B. at $4.25 per case.

Eggs.

The market is very bright and continues fairly firm with a heavy demand, and eggs are still jobbing to the trade at 21c per doz.

GIFT TO THE UNIVERSITY.

Through the generosity of Mr. P. C. Larkin, of the Salada Tea Co., Toronto, the medical faculty of the University of Toronto have been enabled to continue the Dean Reeve Scholarship for research. The Grocer has particular pleasure in making this announcement as it serves to further substantiate the ground taken by the MacLean Trade Newspapers that in the long run the business men of Canada are the backbone of its educational institutions.

DAIRY PRODUCE EXPORTS.

Cheese—The exports of cheese for the week ending October 5 were 87,804 boxes, being a considerable decrease when compared with the same week of last year. The total exports of cheese to date were 1,506,303 boxes.

Butter—The exports for the week ending October 5, were 23,724 boxes, against 17,442 for the corresponding period of last year. The total exports to date were 396,493 boxes.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, received a shipment of Missers choice Eleme figs this week.

Leonard Bros., Montreal, have an excellent stock of Malpecque oysters, finnan haddies, kippers and bloaters arriving specially for them each day in first class condition. It would pay to write for prices.

Mr. O. Lefebvre, proprietor of Chinese starch, Montreal, has during the month of September received several large orders from wholesale grocers in Auburn, Me., for his well-known brand of starch. The merits of the goods have been carried across the line by visitors and orders are coming in. Mr. Lefebvre anticipates still larger trade from the contiguous American States, and feels it quite a compliment that Chinese starch has taken such a hold across the border.

Mr. Thos. Bell, of Lindsay & Co., Winnipeg, was in Montreal last week. Mr. Bell is very enthusiastic over the west and says things were booming.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,

St. John, N.B., Oct. 4.

WITH this month Fall business may be said to be in full swing. Our large retail dealers, particularly the dry goods men, report larger sales than during any previous exhibition. That the exhibition meant much to the city there can be no doubt.

The new Customs regulations which go into effect this month are causing much confusion. While perhaps all favor the principle involved very few endorse the method. There is a very general feeling that there have been too many changes in the forms of certificates, etc., which are needed.

A feature of the market is the increased interest in canned goods, because of reports of damage to crops, particularly in regard to corn and tomatoes. A lower price quoted in Ontario flour came as a surprise, but in the face of the wheat market dealers feel market is still very firm.

Oil.

Burning oil has shown no change in price since the change of duty. Present price is not, however, low. A large Fall business has been done. Dealers are now busy making shipments of orders previously taken as well as looking after new business. Lubricating and paint oils show but a limited demand. Prices are firm. Receipts of cod oil have not been large. Prices are rather easier. Some oil is being carried over.

Salt.

St. John is a large importing point for Liverpool coarse salt. Having regular sailings this year between Manchester and St. John there has been a better opportunity than usual to keep the market regularly supplied. Prices are one cent higher from store than last season. There is a good demand. Sales of factory filled are light. In fine salt market is chiefly supplied by Canadian.

Canned Goods.

There was more interest shown in this line this week than any time this season, because of the reports of damage from frost to corn and tomatoes in particular. It is now thought corn will open at at least one dollar and tomatoes at $1.10. All lines of vegetables are more firmly held. Very few of either sockeye or pink salmon are being imported this year. Lobsters are high. Gallon apples are a weak spot. Blueberries are quite plentiful. In domestic fish there will be a fair pack of sardines. There will not be heavy stocks of any line.

Green Fruits.

Business has been but fairly active. Apples are low. Even fine Gravensteins are cheap. Oranges are scarce with Jamaicas chiefly offered. It is getting late for large business in bananas. Lemons are quite freely offered. Cape Cod cranberries are freely sold and quality is particularly good and price low. There was a good crop of Nova Scotia plums. Receipts of Ontario pears, peaches and grapes have not been as large as usual. Malaga grapes are on the market.

Dried Fruits.

The feature of the market this season is the small quantity of Valencia raisins being sold. Not only is this because California raisins are so low, but there is not the demand there was. Californias are still quoted low. They are this season shutting out Malaga loose and seeded. Samples of the latter, which are shown, are far ahead of stock received last year. Currants are very reasonable. This is a large market for onions. Quite a quantity of American are seen. There is very light call for evaporated apples. Plums will be very cheap.

Sugar.

This is a very firm line. Quite large quantities of foreign granulated sugar have been received this week.

Molasses.

Prices are unchanged. There is a fair stock held, particularly of Porto Rico. Our trade seem well pleased with the new Customs regulations in regard to this line.

Fish.

Nothing has been more noticed during the season than the high price of fish. In fact it has been impossible to get fish enough to supply the demand, particularly in dry cod, pickled and smoked herring. The position of the latter has entirely changed in the last two years. Prices have advanced two hundred and fifty per cent. Unless there is a change finnan haddies will be high this season. Alewives, of which a large quanty are packed here, show about the same price as last year.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

The trade were surprised to find a small drop last week in Ontario. The market, however, is considered strong. It is thought Ontarios have been too close to Manitobas. At one time there was but 15c difference; there is now 50c. Oatmeal and cornmeal keep at full figures. Oats are rather lower. Full figures asked for feed. Beans are dull but prices tend upward. Barley has light demand. Split peas are high and scarce.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 29, 1904.

WITH business conditions satisfactory, payments prompt, and merchants contented, the outlook for the Winter trade is very promising. Local markets are brisk, the only special feature being eggs and butter. Figures for eggs are very firm, and the reliable freshly laid local article is retailing for 45 cents, with a tendency to raise. Butter, too, is on the increase, eastern creamery having gone up a cent a pound. These are the two articles of common household use which are always at a good price in Vancouver, and which at times begin to soar. With high prices at this time of year, it is not improbable that they will climb to a still greater height before the Christmas season is over. Chickens are also at a good price, and though many have gone into this business exclusively, the satisfactory bird will always command a figure which would surprise people from other portions of the Dominion.

The strengthening of the coffee market is having an effect here, and an increase of from two to three cents is expected at any time. The strong demand for China teas has caused an advance in quotations for the better parcels.

New canned vegetables are now coming in, and beans are slightly lower. Quotations for corn and tomatoes have not yet been fixed. Most of the Californian fruits are slightly higher. The fruit trade generally keeps active, but with little change in prices. Lemons are very firm, and from present indications prices will be high this season. The crop of mushrooms has been very large and the market is still flooded with them. The quality is good, wholesalers getting 10 cents per pound, and retailers 10c per basket. The fine Fall weather is the cause of this unusual growth. most of the supply coming from the Fraser Valley, Hammond being the point for large shipments. Ashcroft potatoes are already $24 to $25 per ton, and with the corner in the market, mentioned last week, the prices will rule high this Winter, as the crop has been small. Ashcrofts are the favorite tubers on the coast, and are in great demand. The excellence of the product is because of the dry soil in the vicinity of Ashcroft. In other parts of the province the crop has been fairly good, and there is much speculation as to whether the corner will be as successful as anticipated, in view of this fact.

Cured meats are steady. Manitoba flour has not risen since the last report, although the Okanagan brands have advanced in sympathy.

There has been an appreciable improvement in the condition of the shipments and the quality of the fruit imported from Washington, Oregon and California, since the numerous condemnations by the inspector of the Provincial Horticultural Board. British Columbia has a very efficient officer in Mr. Thomas Cunningham, and it is due to the adoption of his suggestions and the strict carrying out of the laws that this province is free from all kinds of fruit pests. This Summer there has been an unusual lot of fruit from the States condemned, it having been infected with codlin moth and San Jose scale. Fruit trees from nurseries have also come under the ban. Since August the fruit has been much better, the shippers evidently realizing the fact that any old thing will not go with the officials here, or that bad fruit may be passed over by accident.

Assistance is being given by the action of the transportation companies. Formerly condemned fruit was returned free, but lately the rule has been adopted to charge return freight, and thus double cost falls on the shipper.

Winter is setting in early in the Yukon this year, fully a month earlier than usual. Business is good in Dawson of late, the creeks getting in their Winter supplies. On the 16th instant the advance went into effect of 10 per cent. on all goods leaving British Columbia and Puget Sound ports for Dawson. This requirement of advance payments for freight on all perishables is a regular charge every year. The boats are still running on the Yukon. but with comparatively light loads, as the water is low.

Mr. Thomas Cunningham, provincial fruit inspector, who has just returned from a trip to the interior, states that 500,000 trees will be put in the ground before the 15th of May next. One person has ordered 100,000 assorted stock.

Second crop strawberries are being shipped from Hatzic, Hammond and other Fraser River points. It may seem unusual to those who do not know this prolific clime. Mr. Arthur Brealey, of Hatzic, shipped 40 crates to Moosejaw last Sunday.

The Government steamer Ruth caught the American steamer Alert at Oyster Bay, Vancouver Island, with two scows of fish. The Alert was seized for poaching, and is now being held pending orders. She hails from Bellingham.

Salmon is now being brought from the north by all the coasting steamers.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

To the Window Dresser.

THE window dresser in the larger stores not only commands a greater salary but is allowed more freedom than any of the other employes. His work is more of an irregular nature; at the best it should be subjected to but little orders even from the proprietor, but at the same time always open to suggestions from the newest clerk. If the window dresser is merely a salesman who is supposed to crowd in window dressing with waiting on customers, he is nevertheless allowed latitude not accorded to the other clerks. He must have time to plan windows, to forage around and discover stock that is "sticking," and to arrange the display upon which he has decided. He should not be disturbed when building the window, and should be allowed as far as possible to adopt his own ideas.

Given a free hand, his aim should be to do his best to sell goods. And there is a difference between a display that sells and a display that attracts attention. All his spare moments will be filled in with working out the next window trim. To assist him in this several things are at his disposal. He can read trade journals, keep his eye open for attractive points in other windows, talk with travelers, and receive suggestions from anyone willing to give them. The trade newspapers are devoting more space than ever to window dressing, and any worth mentioning will contain valuable ideas and illustrations from time to time. Travel and a constant readiness to receive ideas from other windows are great hint-givers and the traveler, through his constant intercourse with merchants and their stores, can transfer to the window dresser, a design that can perhaps be copied in toto. After a few months experience new ideas will present themselves with far more frequency.

No window should be commenced without a definite plan to be followed in all the more important features, the details alone admitting of some freedom in working out. If this is followed much time will be saved and many faults avoided. The goods shown should be of a special nature, very seldom those which might be called staples. The public knows that staples are carried, and a staple window will attract no one. The display should also consist of seasonable goods; in a careful study of this point exists much of the profit of window dressing. Lines should be displayed a few days in advance of the best selling period and then brought out more prominently during the proper season. In this way not only will customers be shown goods when they are needed, but they will be prepared beforehand for the needs of the season and know where to get the required articles.

Shop-worn goods should not be shown unless the fact is plainly mentioned as a cause for low prices. Price tickets and show cards are of value but both must be neat, and deception should not be practiced in the prices shown and remarks made.

The detail work is as important as the general plan. Where many window dressers fail, however, is when filling in is attempted. Every inch need not be occupied, but every inch open to view should be examined to see that no rough framework, inverted packages, or soiled and old goods are in sight. The window dresser, when all is done, should view the display from the street, and in the arrangement remember to trim for the front of the window. When once the display is completed it should not be disturbed under any circumstances until it is to be changed or unless the article required is not available elsewhere. In that case no one but the window dresser should interfere with the arrangement in removing a part of it. Goods that are soiled by exposure in the window should be disposed of at a reduction.

Wine Window—Dressed by J. E. Whiteside for F. Carne Jr., Victoria, B.C.

SUGAR BEET SEASON COMMENCED

The Ontario beet sugar season has set in and beets are already being hauled to the Wallaceburg and Berlin factories. The test this year so far has been satisfactory, the lowest being 14. With this average the price of beets will be $5 a ton, at which price a fair crop pays the farmer better than an average crop of wheat.

CORRECTION.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., in their ad. in The Grocer last week stated Trenor's Valencia Raisins were to arrive by second direct steamer. This should have read "by first direct steamer, Escalona.

Association News

Grocers Make Presentation.

TWO old and highly esteemed members of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association were honored by their associates at a special meeting of that body on September 28. One was J. Ronan, who was recently appointed bursar at the preventory reformatory; the other T. Hazell, who acted as chairman of the grocers' picnic committee.

An address was presented to Mr. Ronan expressive of the high regard in which he is held by every member of the association, accompanied by a handsomely upholstered oak Morris chair and rocker. The gift was duplicated to Mr. Hazell, who also received the hearty congratulations of the association for his work in connection with their annual picnic—conceded to be the most successful ever held by the association.

Retailers Organize.

The retail merchants of Goderich, Ont., have organized, as follows : President, C. A. Nairn, grocer; first vice-president, George Porter, bookseller; second vice-president, Chas. C. Lee, hardware merchant; treasurer, W. A. McKim, dry goods merchant; secretary, W E Elliott, bookkeeper.

TRADE WITH SOUTH AFRICA.

TRADE with South Africa is an important issue in Canadian commerce to-day, at least it should be. Such was the opinion given by Mr. J. W. Jagger, past president of the Cape Town Chamber of Commerce, and of the Associated South Africa Chambers of Commerce, who called at the Montreal office of the MacLean newspapers on Saturday afternoon, October 1.

Mr. Jagger is head of a large departmental store in Cape Town and handles large quantities of dry goods, manufactured papers, and wooden ware of all descriptions. He has been touring Canada on business widening pursuits. He does not seem as much impressed with the enterprises of Canadian business men as he had expected he would be. For instance, there seemed an apathy on the part of some Canadian manufacturers regarding South African trade. Perhaps the difficulties might be the excessive freight rates, and the utter lack of commission houses, as compared with United States. As an example he explained that the great commission house of Peabody & Co., who had an office in Cape Town, were able to supply almost anything that business men might desire. He had ordered such a peculiar necessity as a pair of mules. Peabody & Co. never questioned what difficulty they might have in securing the mules, but they got them. On the other hand, if he wanted dry goods, paper, wooden ware, or anything that came from the United States, all he had to do was call up Peabody by telephone and they did the rest. He believed that a commission house dealing exclusively with Canada could do an immense business in Cape Town.

Mr. Jagger seemed to feel annoyed at the cool manner in which several manufacturers treated his call upon them. He said that there was certainly an evidence of lack of enterprise, in some cases, on the part of either the manufacturers themselves, or the men whom he had seen as their representatives. He instanced the case of one of the managers of a well known firm who nonchalantly smiled and said that they could not compete with the Americans and they did not intend to try. Mr. Jagger thought that was a great mistake.

He at one time imported large quantities of leather and cotton from Canada, but lower prices and better facilities from New York compelled him to give up the trade. This had all been changed by the preferential tariff, however, which brought the duty down to 7½ per cent. Under these conditions there were opportunities for very large increases of trade.

He would recommend the Manufacturers Association to deal with the question of commission houses at once. With trade stimulated, better steamship facilities would follow immediately. He had bought a large consignment of chairs from Owen Sound, which he hoped would be landed in South Africa by the 21st of October, perhaps going over on the same steamer as he would go himself. Large numbers of importers were looking towards Canada and it was certainly the duty of Canadians to seize upon a market which heretofore had been supplied so extensively by the Americans.

He spoke glowingly of the resources of the Dominion and prophesied amazing development in a very short period. He told briefly the development of business in South Africa during the last quarter of a century. He said that he often saw the MacLean trade newspapers in Cape Town, and on leaving took with him a copy of each one of the company's publications. As he said goodbye he remarked knowingly, "Remember, I am an Englishman and don't wish to be interviewed."

Mr. Chris. A. Maxwell has accepted a position with the Canadian Gelatine Co. as their Toronto representative.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. McConnell, grocer, of Harriston, Ont., is dead.

Mr. C. A. Low, of Swift & Co., commission merchants, Kingston, was married last week to Miss Carrie Price of Aylmer, Ont.

Mr. Fred W. Mason, representing I. D. Bradshaw, Toronto, is explaining the virtues of oiled paper and chewing gum to the Montreal trade this week.
Ottawa Fairs this season.

George H. Thompson, the newly appointed British representative of the Canadian Canners Limited, has arrived in London, and is now fitting up offices and sample rooms at 19 Eastcheap.

G. Cobley, formerly in the employ of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, and for the last few years associated with the Alberta Mercantile Co., of Frank, Alta., has started in a grocery business in Frank.

Mr. R. J. Campbell, of the firm of Campbell Bros. & Wilson, wholesale grocers at Winnipeg, who was recently married, was the recipient of a very beautiful silver service from the employes of his staff.

Mr. E. Cowan, western representative for the Cowan Co., chocolates and cocoas, in conversation with the Winnipeg representative of The Canadian Grocer, expressed his appreciation of and satisfaction with the results of business in his recent trips through the Province of Manitoba, as he says it entirely surpassed his expectations.

Mr. D. W. Douglas, eastern representative of E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, has just returned from a three months' trip through Eastern Quebec and the Gaspe coast. Business is reported as most satisfactory. At present Mr. Douglas is looking after the Montreal trade.

Mr. J. H. Grimm, of the Grimm Mfg. Co., Montreal, is taking in the Exhibition at St. Louis. Mr. Grimm, who is interested extensively in the production of maple syrup and sugar and sap evaporators had his model sugar bush on exhibition at St. Louis where it was favorably commented upon. The model was also on view at the Toronto and

Mr. C. W. Callon has severed his connection with the Salada Tea Co., Toronto, with which he has been associated for about 7 years, and is about to remove to Seattle, Wash. Prior to his departure the staff of the Salada Tea Co. presented him with a Russian leather-fitted suitcase as a slight token of the esteem in which he is held by his former associates.

WALL PAPER.

TENDENCIES OF WALL PAPER DESIGN.

BEFORE attempting to outline the tendencies of wall paper design at the present time I should like to earnestly direct the attention of architects especially to a kindred subject, one at least inseparably connected with the decorator's work. I think I can say without exaggeration that decorators approach the work of covering the plaster walls of houses and other buildings erected of late years with trepidation amounting almost to terror as to the results. To see one's best laid plans and most cherished schemes completely frustrated by the treacherous under surface is more than disappointing. The "skin or putty coat" so much in use to impart that beautiful snowy smooth surface which so strongly appeals to some people has usually no actual adhesion to the coat beneath it and only waits the application of some material to sever its weak connection and destroy the decorator's work. The so-called sand finish of many plasterers is almost as great a delusion. On walls thus treated many patches will be found into which no sand and very little plaster of Paris has entered—nothing but lime. Plasterers freely admit these imperfections and also that it is possible to get as good results as were obtained in houses a generation ago, but they claim that current prices do not admit of the use of sufficient plaster nor of sufficient time being given to the work. Surely it is a false economy to cheapen a material which is admittedly imperfect at best, which covers so much surface and which places a stamp of dilapidation on the house out of all proportion to its relative cost to the total cost of the building. I feel satisfied that this work does not receive the attention it deserves at the hands of the architect, and that not only would the problem of decoration be greatly simplified but that the life of the plastering would be materially lengthened if honest work were insisted upon.

Another feature in the preparatory work of ceilings and walls for decoration deserves more than passing notice. I refer to the obtaining of true perpendicular and horizontal lines in the angles of the room. It is no uncommon thing to see the ceiling run from one to one and one-half inches out of true in a wall of twelve or fifteen feet. The upright angles of the room are frequently as much out and in many cases meander in and out of line as they climb to the ceiling. Many rooms are two or three inches wider at one end than at the other. It can be easily understood how difficult it becomes under these circumstances to apply pattern of any sort so that it shall not appear to be leaning one way or the other. These defects are not by any means confined to cheap buildings but may be seen in some of our most pretentious structures.

And while I am on this portion of my subject I should like to point out what is always to the decorator at least the unexplainable practice of many architects, of carrying doors and windows in the room to two, three or more different heights. My own dining room has five such openings and every one is of a different height, varying from the others by several inches. There was no reason why the three doors at least should not have been of the same height.—W. H. Elliott, in Canadian Architect.

A FESTIVE OPENING.

Harry G. Macdonald opened his new retail grocery store at the corner of Sorrauren and Wright avenues, Toronto, on September 17. The opening was of an unusually interesting and striking character. Mr. Macdonald sent invitations to a large number of people in the west end of Toronto. He secured the services of an orchestra and served refreshments, the cocoa being served by the Cowan Cocoa Co. About 4,000 people visited the store during the day and although curiosity, no doubt, actuated a great many a large business was done by the eight clerks employed. A number of the ladies who visited the store presented Mr. Macdonald with handsome bouquets. Mr. Macdonald it might be noted is a young man and began business on Sorrauren avenue about ten years ago. His new store is about 30x90 and three stories high. Mr. Macdonald is reaping the fruits of his enterprise.

Biscuits And Confectionery

The Profit Side.

THE grocers who to-day are making the most out of their business are those who are introducing new features or lines which do not compete with other interests and which being special, not staple, yield a much better margin of profit. For example, grocers have introduced a bread and pastry department, a confectionery department, a fish department, a crockery department. In addition they are continually on the alert for specialties in the line of groceries proper.

They do not take up their customer's or their own time with urging the sale of a barrel of sugar or a heavier purchase of canned goods, upon which sales the margin of profit is inconsiderable. They rather allow the customer to give her order as she pleases, and when the "list" is exhausted the grocer takes up the customer's attention with grinding the mind and developing the desire in the direction of other things which bear a good profit, and which cultivate the buying tendencies of the mistress of the household.

One line that can be successfully and profitably introduced by many grocers is that of confectionery—not the lower grades, but the best grades. And just here it may be remarked that there are grocers who are handling a good grade of confectionery who are not making all the profit possible. There are lines of fancy chocolates that will bring 50c just as readily, perhaps more readily, than they will 40c. The 40c chocolate is not ranked by the customer in the same class with the 50c article, even though the grocer is actually giving the 50c grade. Those who buy chocolates at 40c will pay 50c if they feel they are getting a better quality. Some may be disposed to argue this point, but experience is the final authority. It must be remembered that chocolate buying is an extravagance, a luxury—not a necessity, and when a man or woman spends money in the line of high-grade confectionery it is not much more difficult to make the sale at 50c than at 40c. Of course there should be something in the fancy box or in the choiceness of the variety as a reason for getting 10c more per pound.

High-grade confectionery is an almost certain seller if attractively displayed. Indeed the confectionery department cannot realize its highest possibilities without good display. The more enterprising grocers have found it expedient to put in special showcases, and silent salesman variety is unquestionably the best for this purpose. Among grocers in Ontario who have made a distinct success of handling high-grade chocolates are: J. A. McCrea, of Guelph; Geo. A. Young, of Chatham; E. H. Williams, of Barrie; Hugh Crozier, of Coburg; G. W. Armstrong, of Cornwall; H. Brennan & Sons, of Ottawa, and Michie & Co. and R. Barron, of Toronto.

To Locate Impure City Food.

ON account of the sensation created in Ottawa over the sale of adulterated and impure foods the Food Inspection Department of Montreal has been redoubling its efforts to locate any impure food that may be sold. Last week Mr. L. F. Robert, bread inspector, seized 227 pounds of candy which was so dirty as to be a menace to health. He also seized a number of samples of highly colored cheap candies that were being sold in scores of small stores all over Montreal. In the place where the candies were manufactured Mr. Robert found green and red powders which were used to color the sweets. A considerable quantity of alum was also found on the premises.

"The alum," Mr. Robert said, "is used to keep the candies soft. I do not consider this ingredient good for health. From what I know of candies being sold in some places it is quite evident that some change will have to be made. Candies should not be colored with ingredients that are not fit to be taken into the human system."

It has been decided by the Food Department to have a thorough inspection made of all candies now being sold in Montreal, and it is expected some interesting results will follow the campaign. The work is being attended by good results and the inspectors are now hopeful of ridding Montreal of the unhealthy if not impure candy that is sold in a number of small shops.

Mr. Milton Hersey, the city analyst, returned to Montreal last Saturday, and was given a large quantity of dyes taken from confiscated candy and asked to make an analysis and submit a report. If the dyes are found to be of an injurious nature large amounts of similar candy on sale in different stores will be confiscated.

GREEN FRUITS

SUCCESSFUL FRUIT SHIPMENT TO WEST.

HOW to bring Ontario fruit to Manitoba and Northwest markets, by freight, in first-class condition, is a problem the Agricultural Department of the Government of Ontario have set themselves to solve, says the Manitoba Free Press. Ontario has the fruit, which for flavor and general excellence everybody knows completely discounts the best that California can produce; the west has a large and increasing market for good fruit. What more fitting than that Manitoba and Alberta should buy from Ontario?

A most interesting experiment along this line has been completed within the past few days under the direction of Prof. J. B. Reynolds, of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, who has made a special study for three or four years of the whole subject of cold storage and transportation. Two cars of fruit were loaded in the most approved manner and sent to Winnipeg. Besides some cases of apples whose transportation by freight has, of course, passed the experimental stage, there were boxes of pears, peaches, grapes, plums, and tomatoes, all of which arrived not only in good but in perfect condition.

The apples were of Gravenstein, St. Lawrence, Calvert, and Blenheim pippin varieties. There were Crawford and Alberta peaches. Bartlett pears, Morris Early and Warden grapes, and Reine Claude plums.

The Crawford peaches are not noted as the best shippers, and in this case were judged by experts over-ripe for shipment when they started. They arrived, however, in perfect condition. literally without a sign of rot. The hardier Albertas were, of course, in perfect condition, but the lesson learned about them was that they could have been left on the tree a week longer and have reached the west safely very much better peaches.

The grapes were shipped in cardboard trays, each tray bearing two and one half pounds, twelve of these trays being packed in a case.

The peaches and pears were each wrapped in paper. There is still room for considerable improvement in the appearance of the packed fruit. The boxes are somewhat rough, and the paper coarse, but these externals can easily be improved. One very important matter is the packing of the boxes in the car. Boards are nailed across the car to keep rows of boxes of fruit in place. Proper packing makes necessary, of course, shipment in at least car lots.

Fruit Transportation Charges Reduced.

IT is announced in the October issue of the Horticulturist, that as a result of evidence given recently before the Railway Commission, by representatives of the fruit interests the railway companies have voluntarily made some material concessions. A reduction has been made in the rate on mixed car lots of fruit, from the principal shipping districts to the larger centres of distribution, such as Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, and Winnipeg. A special rate for one-half car lots, of 10,000 pounds, or over, has also been made. The reduction, it is estimated, from the average point in Ontario to Montreal or Quebec will amount to $10 a car and to Winnipeg over $36 a car. In addition the flat rate for icing cars, destined for Manitoba, has been abolished, and hereafter shippers will only be charged for the actual amount of ice supplied. While these concessions are by no means all that the fruit interests ask for, they are, however, considered to be a considerable measure of relief to a very serious situation.

Fruit Growing in British Columbia.

PEOPLE in British Columbia are just awakening to their opportunities for fruit growing, lumbering and manufacturing, according to the views of G. E. Whitney, of the Dominion Express Co., who has returned from a trip to Vancouver and vicinity of Port Simpson.

Fruit growing, he thinks, will become one of the chief agricultural pursuits of British Columbia. There are fine valleys and stretches of land where fruit trees would flourish. Of course, in many places orchards are at present to be found, but now that Manitoba and the Territories are offering such a good market it will not be long, in his opinion, before the Pacific province will make an effort to supply its share of the demand.

Speaking of his trip from Vancouver north, Mr. Whitney says the coast line is quite irregular and flanked by almost innumerable islands, mountainous generally, and covered with trees.

One of the things that impressed him most was the vastness of the forest. Everywhere a man looks from the boat he sees trees, trees, trees. The mountains look like great banks of foliage. He was told that lumbermen are only cutting down what can be easily got out, but that in time, when lumber is scarce in other parts of Canada, the forests on the Pacific coast will be resorted to. Lumbering then will become a lively industry.

Mr. Whitney says it is a matter of general conversation on the coast that pulp mills are shortly to be built up near Port Simpson.

Fruit Notes.

The Fruit Division, Ottawa, is receiving complaints that the quality of XXX fruit offering this season in many cases is dangerously near the XX mark. The explanation is that many buyers are very wisely instructing their packers to put up no No. 2 grade, and the packers under stress of other influences, are erring upon the side of putting in too many No. 2's as No. 1 fruit. The fruit inspectors have been instructed to rigidly enforce section 6 of the Fruit Marks Act, under which no apple may be classed as No. 1 unless it is of good size and color for the variety and practically free from worm holes, scab, bruises or other defects.

A. K. Bossard, representing the firm of B. Pressley & Co., St. Paul, Minn., was fined in Winnipeg lately for selling fruit not marked and packed according to the standard of the Fruit Marks Act. It would perhaps have been excusable if there had been nothing wrong but the marking. The apples, however, were overfaced, and comparatively worthless varieties were given the names of good varieties. American firms or their representatives selling fruit in Canada must comply with the requirements of the Fruit Marks Act.

The Wheat Situation.

ALL doubt as to the success of the harvest in the Canadian west has now been set at rest, and there is the best assurance that the yield is from four to six million bushels in excess of first estimates, namely sixty-four million bushels, and eleven million bushels in excess of last year's crop. The quality of the wheat is of fairly uniform excellence. The marketing of the Manitoba crop is now proceeding with, however, rather more delay than has been experienced in recent years. The explanation of this is that buyers are not yet familiar with the grades owing to the amount of rusted grain. Buying is not likely to be heavy until samples of the rusted grain can be placed in agents' hands throughout the country. So far, it is said, the threshing returns do not back up the heavy damage stories that were in circulation a little while ago. Threshing reports have ranged from 13 to 27 bushels to the acre. The quality of the wheat shows a larger proporton of higher grades than last year, and the price paid is high, as much as $1 being given for choice wheat. This year the total elevator capacity west of Lake Superior has greatly increased, being nearly 45,000,000 bushels, as compared with 39,000,000 bushels a year ago. Both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern have made large additions to their rolling stock and motive power in order to handle the western crop.

According to Beerbohm's London List dated September 16, the weather has been unfavorable for threshing in the various grain-growing countries of Europe; this, together with the recent excitement in the American market has affected European markets although there has been no radical change in the latter where supplies are ample for present requirements. The impression is gaining ground that America this season will be practically independent of Europe in the matter of wheat prices. If such be the case the fact will soon assert itself in the minds of Russian and Indian shippers who will conclude that with America out of competition as a wheat selling country the necessity on the part of importing countries of buying their wheat will be greatly increased and a higher level of prices be justified in consequence. During the present season the demand may easily overtake the available supply. The quantity afloat just now, however, for the United Kingdom has seldom if ever been so large at this season of the year, thanks to a large contingent from Australia. Another six weeks will witness a large decrease in the quantity afloat when the probable abnormal condition in America will begin to assert a greater influence upon the European market. The supplies and requirements of various countries are estimated as follows:

REQUIREMENTS.

Total	56,425,000

Or 451,400,000 bushels.

Estimated deficiency 6,575,000 quarters, or 52,600,000 bushels.

This represents 1 3-4 per cent. of the world's average crop and may be wiped out by later records of the year's production. In any event the world's deficiency is not such as to imply any particular pinch in wheat supplies for the current year. The possibility appears to be that current values for wheat in the world's markets will look high before the season has progressed many months.

China Will Protect Trademarks.

MILLERS selling flour in Chinese markets will be interested in a treaty between Great Britain and China, under which the Chinese Government undertakes the registration and protection of trademarks. The regulations for carrying the undertaking into effect have been officially published and will probably be put into effect as soon as the United States Government assents to them, as they have been approved by the British Government and Japan has raised no objection. Briefly, the regulations are as follows:

Any person desiring to use a trademark in China must first register the same according to these regulations. The Board of Commerce shall establish a Bureau of Registration. Every application must contain a statement giving a general description of the trademark, and the class and particular kind of goods for which it is to be used. The application will be placed on file for three months and advertised by the bureau, and if no one petitions against it, it will be registered. If two persons apply for similar trademarks, the first applicant will receive registration; but in the case of a trademark already registered in a foreign country, the date of such foreign registration will be recognized, if application in China be made within four months. During the first six months of the establishment of the bureau, applications can be made for registration of trademarks already registered abroad, and the bureau shall recognize such trademarks as entitled to precedence. Any mark which has been publicly applied in China to a special article for more than two years before application for registration cannot be registered. Suits for infringement by foreigners against Chinese are tried by a local magistrate and the consul sitting together; but if both parties to the suit be foreigners, the consular court has jurisdiction.

The penalties for infringement are very severe and it is believed that trademarks will be effectively protected under the new treaty. It should be borne in mind, however, that failure to register a trademark may result in loss of rights.

New Cereal Product.

AN American inventor has discovered a process for preparing cereals which renders them ready for consumption without causing them to lose their original shape or identity.

The cereals are heated in a substantially air-dry condition under gas pressure to a point above the boiling point of the liquid contained in the starch granules of the cereal at normal atmospheric pressure for a period of time not long enough to permit the escape of too much of the liquid contained in the starch granules of the cereal through the granule coatings by diffusion.

While substantially maintaining the same temperature the pressure is removed with such rapidity that the liquid will suddenly flash into gaseous form or steam, which results in an instantaneous expansion, or explosion, of the entire mass of the cereal into several times its original volume. This expansion is such that the grains or kernels of the cereals preserve their exact original shape and become very much enlarged and porous copies of the originals, provided the heat applied is sufficient to render the granule material sufficiently coherent after the explosion.

Important Ruling.

THE board of general appraisers of the United States has just made an important ruling on wheat. W. P. Devereaux & Co., of Minneapolis, dealers in flour, feed, etc., received an invoice of wheat from Canada, designated as "screening wheat." It was frozen before ripening and could not be used for flour or seed. The Devereaux Co. protested that the grain should be received under the Dingley tariff bill at 10 per cent. duty, while the deputy collector of customs at Minneapolis insisted that it should be rated as wheat and that the duty should be 25c. His finding is overruled by the general board and the duty is fixed at 10 per cent.

The decision in part is as follows: "Every word used in the tariff law to specifically designate a commodity upon which duty is to be assessed is used in its commercial meaning. The word 'wheat' is sometimes used to designate the growing grain, as when we speak of a field of wheat; also to designate this same grain after it is ripened and cut and bound, as when we speak of a sheaf of wheat. And so this word may properly be used to designate this species of vegetation at every stage, from the time it first sprouts through the ground until the hulled grain is deposited in the hopper for grinding; but the wheat of commerce is the grain. Except for germination and reproduction this grain has but a solitary use; and that use is to be ground into flour or meal for human food."

According to a contemporary this decision will tend to keep down somewhat in the United States the high prices that were feared this year on Canadian wheat feed.

Our Trade with British Guiana.

The sentiment of the merchants of Georgetown, British Guiana, says Mr. F. W. Collier, postmaster general of British Guiana, is that the bulk of the trade which now goes to the United States should be diverted to Canada.

Not many years ago the greater part of the foodstuffs consumed in British Guiana, if not all, were bought from the United States. Canadian shippers, however, have stepped in and are competing with no small measure of success. Trial shipments of flour put up in Canada were made some years ago, but merchants complained that it did not "catch on," and further importations met with a certain amount of disfavor. The cause of failure in the first attempts was the difference in packing. Shippers were made aware of the nature of the case and asked to meet the requirements of the trade. Improvement thereafter was slow, but Canadian flour is now steadily gaining in popularity. Since Canada has granted British Guiana sugar a preference the bulk of the produce of the latter country comes to the Canadian market. And if, during the crop season in Canada, fast steamers could be sent down, they would invariably have full cargoes to bring back.

The Andrew Gage Co., Winnipeg, is about to build an elevator at Heward.

Cannot Export Maize From Servia.

The Servian and Austria-Hungarian Governments have prohibited the exportation of maize and fodder. It seems probable that this year's crop, together with the surplus left over from last year, will be sufficient to supply the needs of the Balkan States themselves, but other countries which have heretofore depended upon these States for their supplies must seek them elsewhere this year. Considerable quantities of Roumanian maize have usually been exported to Holland and Denmark, as well as to Italy.

More Favorable Rates for Flour.

The Halifax Board of Trade has succeeded in having a favorable railway rate fixed on Manitoba flour for shipment via Halifax. A short time ago the council of the board took the matter up on the ground that Halifax was at the disadvantage of a practically prohibitive rate as compared with other Atlantic ports. As a result the rate has been reduced until it is now only 1c more per 100 pounds to Halifax than to other Atlantic ports. It is to be hoped Halifax dealers will be in a position to handle Manitoba flour for export.

New Wheat Coming.

The next week or ten days will see the first arrival of 1904 crop Canadian wheat in the port of Montreal. The C.P.R. is about to begin the removal of this year's crop from interior points to Fort William where there is practically no wheat, the total at last accounts being only 65,000 bushels.

Cereal Notes.

The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. has closed a contract for a new 3,000-barrel flour mill at Fort William to cost $200,000.

The Alberta Grain Co. is erecting a new elevator at Wetaskiwin which will have a capacity for 40,000 bushels.

An American firm manufacturing flour milling machinery has the contract to erect a flour mill for the China Hsing Milling Co., of Shanghai.

It is reported that 9,000,000 bushels of grain have recently been purchased in the States of Oregon and Washington by eastern buyers for shipment. There is a shortage in the east for the millers and these purchases on the Pacific coast are simply to supply the increased demand.

Tobacco in U. S. Elections.

IT is stated that the war between the American Tobacco Co. and the independent cigar manufacturers may become an issue in the impending presidential campaign. The American Tobacco Co. is engaged in an effort to control the tobacco trade of the whole world. The independents are organizing to maintain their position in competition with the trust.

According to the U. S. Tobacco Journal there is another important factor to be considered. If Secretary Taft's Philippine tariff smashing agitation is not checked, if the Administration does not authoritatively disavow its share in the fanatical hobby of the Secretary of War, President Roosevelt's success at the polls in November is likely to be endangered by the united opposition to him of all the branches of the tobacco trade and cigar industry. The tobacco trade and cigar industry are naturally Republican in sentiment. They are so because of the protective policy of the Republican party. But that policy does not make them uncompromising partisans. They showed it in 1892 when they resented the excessive rates of the McKinley tariff.

There are over 6,000 cigar factories in the State of New York. Averaging but five votes to each cigar factory, a most conservative estimate, there would be 30,000 votes at stake for President Roosevelt. But if the cigar factories will have to be closed on account of Secretary Taft's fanatical hobby, the cigar box factories will have to close too, and the lithographing establishments which subsist on the business of making cigar labels will have to curtail their working force too. Then there are hundreds of leaf packers and dealers on whom thousands are dependent for a livelihood who are about to resent the ruin staring them in their faces if Secretary Taft should succeed in his crusade for free trade in Philippine tobacco and cigars.

Furthermore, as New York is the largest port of entry American warehousemen are also up in arms against an administration that plans to deprive them of the profits accruing to them of the storage of about 15,000,000 pounds of foreign leaf which will fail to reach the American market if the cheap Philippine cigar is admitted free and effects the closing of the cigar factories. Last, but not least, New York is also a cigar leaf growing state, and the tobacco raisers of Onondaga county and Chemung Valley will hardly vote for keeping a party in power that is credited with an intention to impoverish them in the free admission of Philippine tobacco.

Counting up all these interests, whose very existence is threatened, there cannot be less than 50,000 Republican votes in the balance, more than sufficient to turn the state over to the Democratic party. For it is conceded on all hands that New York State will be very close this year and to lose his own state will be particularly humiliating for the President. But he will have nobody else to thank for that but to the idiosyncracy of his Secretary of War, who has taken it into his head to enrich his Filipinos to the destruction of the tobacco trade and cigar industry.

Should the Connecticut tobacco growers realize the peril threatened them from free trade in Philippine tobacco and cigars that state would surely be lost to Roosevelt.

Neither can Wisconsin be counted upon as a safe Republican state in this campaign. If the thousands of Wisconsin tobacco growers become influenced to array themselves against Roosevelt's election because of his Secretary of War's intention to impoverish the American tobacco farmers, in order to fill the pockets of the Filipino, Wisconsin may give its electoral vote to Parker as it did once before to Cleveland.

Such a prospect is not mere idle speculation or "rainbow-chasing," as it is called in political parlance. For the tobacco trade is just now so thoroughly organized as never before to pursue its end with ruthless energy. It is manned by officers who are religiously devoted to the welfare of the trade above their own partisan sentiments, ever tireless of work, and resourceful in the means of accomplishing their object. And all the plans are being perfected, on behalf of the trade interests, to make a red hot campaign against Roosevelt's carrying New York, Connecticut and Wisconsin if Secretary Taft's hobby in regard to free trade in cigars and tobacco from the Philippines is not quelched at once and forever.

The Ubiquitous Cigarette.

Reviewing the trade of India for 1903-1904, the "Pioneer" says: – "The growth of the cigarette trade has been frequently commented on in recent reports, and last year the increase in quantity was no less than 30 per cent. while the value rose by 25 per cent. Altogether 2,240,200 lbs. of cigarette tobacco was imported. During four years the trade has grown by over 90 per cent., and there is every promise of further rapid expansion. The increasing prevalence of cigarette smoking among native young men is noticeable in every large town, and though the cheapness of the cigarettes is proof that they are not made of very good quality tobacco they are probably more wholesome than the Australian Tobacco Monopoly.

AT present there is going on in Australia a Socialistic agitation to make a Government monopoly of tobacco, the object being to increase the Government receipts. The conduct by the Government of the post office, telegraph and railroads is pointed out as an illustration of how easily it can successfully be done.

When a Government undertakes to control an agricultural product it is tackling a more difficult proposition than the controlling of a public utility. It is evident that it is not within the Government's province to raise and manufacture and license the selling of tobacco if it can not do that as equally well as private enterprise does it. The quality of tobacco is a constantly changing condition from one year's growth to another. The manufacturer to-day has to carefully guard against an inferior grade in his manufactured product for fear its use in one season would mean ruin. A Government monopoly would have no fear of a ruined business, and hence would miss this prompting to keep up the quality. There would be no real necessity to provide fresh novelties, nor the incentive to create the wonderfully skillful advertising devices which to-day are used to increase business.

From a financial standpoint the obvious greater expense of Government control, even of post office over private control, would waste the manufacturer's profit, which Governmental control aims to take, and if Australia is wise it will avoid a Regie Government of tobacco.

How Tobacco Was Named.

The term "tobacco" does not arise from the original name of the herb, but from the manner in which it was used. When the Spaniards first landed in San Domingo they found the natives smoking the herb through a hollow forked cane shaped like the letter Y. The two upper ends of this forked cane were adjusted to the nostrils, whilst the lower end rested upon a paste composed of the leaves of the herb. From this paste, when ignited, the smoke was drawn throgh the hollow cane by way of the nostrils. The name supplied to the herb which we now call the tobacco plant varied in different parts of the American continent. The Carribee Indians called it "cohiba," those of Virginia "uppwoc," those of Brazil "petuni," whilst among the Mexicans it was named "voli." The true term "tobacco" seems to have arisen from the fact that Columbus whilst on his homeward journey after his discovery of America, passed the island from which ultimately the first product of the herb reached Europe. Finding the island resembled in out line the shape of the Indian smoking instrument, he called it "Tobago."

Exhibit of American Tobacco Co. at Eastern Townships Exhibition, Sherbrooke.

Some Tobacco Secrets.

HOW many people, even among the most confirmed smokers, know what is the difference between Turkish and Virginian tobaccos? The smoker, of course, can tell you which is which at the first whiff, but if you ask him what the original distinction is between the two he will tell you that one comes from Turkey and the other from the States. He is wrong. You could grow Turkish and Virginian tobacco in the same field, for they are merely two different varieties of the same plant. Turkish is the leaf of "Nicotiana Rustica," while Virginian is "Nicotiana Augustipolia." Of course the two are very often blended by tobacconists.

Again, what constitutes the difference between "strong" and "mild" tobaccos? It is simple enough. The strong product is so manufactured that it burns badly—or, perhaps, one should say, slowly—the result being that the contained nicotine is distilled in an unaltered state. Mild tobaccos are those which burn well, and thus their contained nicotine is consumed or decomposed, with the result that a less narcotic smoke is formed.

We often hear cheap cigars spoken of as "cabbage leaves," and, doubtless, many people believe that these are actually adulterated with other substances than tobacco. Often, in such a weed, the outside wrapper is noticed to be patched with pale green, and this fact is held proof of the cabbage-leaf libel. The piece of greenish leaf is real tobacco which has been plucked unripe, or not properly cured. It is only to be found in thin, poor leaf.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

FREIGHTS generally are dull. There has been little or no demand either from local or Western shippers, and it is many a day since freight rates were as low as they are to-day. At the different steamship freight offices, the report is given out that business is dull every day. A glance at previous years shows that generally steamship agents were alive with activity at this period, and it is somewhat alarming to find the reverse so much in evidence. Still some more optimistic freight men believe that things will be better in October, as considerable bookings have been reported at better rates for this month and also November. The reason given for the extremely light tonnage is partly due to the fact that prices for most lines of grain have been away above export basis during the early Fall, and in fact up-to-date. At present things are a little brighter looking for the future, as bids from abroad on Manitoba wheat have been advancing. They seem to be almost on a par now with the values existing in Canada. As a result the probabilities are that if they come up a little more some business will be worked and then more ocean freight will be wanted. Probably the best business done in export from Montreal has been in flour, and the probabilities are that both in flour and provisions a steady business will be carried on during the winter months. One large firm has made extensive arrangements for export flour through Halifax during the winter months, and the railways have conceded good rates so that general co-operation may promote an increase of trade. The grain rates to Liverpool are 6d. to 7½d, October; London, 6d.; Glasgow, 1s.; Avonmouth, 6d.. Leith, 1s. 6d.; Newcastle, 1s. 6d.; Manchester 9d. to a shilling, and Antwerp, 6d. Flour—Liverpool, 5c. per hundred; Glasgow, 7c.; London, 6c.; Bristol, 9c.; Belfast, 11s. 3d.; Leith, 10s.; Aberdeen, 11s. 3d.; Dublin, 11s. 6d.; Manchester, 7s. 6d.; Hamburg, 10c.; Antwerp, 9s.; Havre, 12s. 6d.; Rotterdam, 10s. Cheese—Liverpool, 20s. a ton; London, 25s.; Glasgow, 26s. 3d.; Leith, Aberdeen, Bristol, Dublin and Belfast, 25s. Butter—Liverpool, cold storage, 40s.; ordinary 25s.; London, Glasgow, Bristol, Leith and Aberdeen, cold storage, 25s., ordinary, 30s.

When ocean charges are collectable at port of destination, rates exchanged on basis of $4 80 to £1 stg. When ocean charges are prepaid, rates exchanged on basis of $4 86 to £1 stg.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

FIREMEN REMEMBERED.

The firm of L. Chaput, Sons & Co., Montreal, donated fifty dollars to the Firemen's Benevolent Association, Montreal, in recognition of the services of the firemen in connection with the fire at their store in De Bresoles street a week ago. In their letter accompanying the cheque they suggested the wisdom of the department providing a canteen wagon or sleigh, according to the season, for supplying teas, coffees, sandwiches, etc., to the firemen when they are fighting fires of several hours duration. The firm would like their contribution to be applied to such an object if sufficient amount could be added to it by the corporation or private subscription to purchase the outfit. In view of the approaching winter the suggestion is considered very timely in civic circles, and especially by the firemen.

SCIENTIFIC SALESMANSHIP

can be displayed in selling inferior goods, but you can't fool the consumer "twice" when reliable goods such as are to be had from all first-class dealers in Canada. The result of the first sale is far reaching. Fully "guaranteed" goods such as Boeckh's, make it safe for you to say good things about them without fear of losing your customers' good will. They are popular, because they never fail to please even the most exacting.

They are the Standard goods of Canada.

None so Blind As Those Who Won't See.

THE CANADIAN GROCER can prove of valuable assistance to the selling end of any business which seeks trade among the grocery and general storekeepers of Canada.

We advance many plain, indisputable arguments to this effect.

And still there are some folks who can't see it.

Some who can't see how it's going to pay them.

And won't even invest a few dollars to find out.

Very few folks like this, but we would like to convince even them.

If we only could, we'd get a good deal of satisfaction out of it—and we know they would, too.

Don't you think they're blind to their own interests?

Here's a paper that finds a welcome in every worth-while grocery store from Halifax to Vancouver once every week—so can't you see that an announcement of any interest must surely command some attention?

The advertising columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER provide about the best way we know of keeping in close touch with all the grocers of Canada all the time.

You can see value in a paper like this—

received in 1893, 2,000,000 lbs. of Ceylon Tea; ten years later, in 1903, the shipments amounted to 33,000,000 lbs. Will the teas of other countries show figures to compare with these?

In 1875 there were barely 1,000 acres planted with tea in the island of Ceylon. To-day there are upwards of 400,000 acres devoted to this industry. What other tea-growing country can quote a history such as this?

ANNUAL ELECTION OF OFFICERS, MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION

THE annual meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was held Thursday evening, October 6, at Monument National, when members to the number of about fifty turned out. It is to be regretted that a larger number of Montreal grocers do not regularly avail themselves of the opportunity of participating in the duties of an association devoted to their entire interests. With a membership of over 300 the hall should have been packed.

After the minutes of the last meeting had been read by Secretary J. A. Beaudry and the treasurer's statement read and adopted, the election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with.

For the presidency N. Chartrand, P. Daoust and Ald. Lariviere had been nominated at the September meeting. Letters of resignation having been received in the meantime from President Chartrand declining to stand for re-election, and also from Ald. Lariviere, P. Daoust becomes president for 1904-05. The result of election of the other officials is as follows : 1st vice-president, E. Upton ; 2nd vice-president, N. Sequin ; treasurer, A. Laurendeau ; secretary (pro tem.), J. A. Beaudry.

A motion to increase the number of directors from seven to ten was constitutionally made and carried. The following were elected : A. D. Fraser (of Fraser, Viger & Co.), A. O. Galarneau, J. A. Archambault, J. B. Deschamps, E. P. Beaudoin, N. Raby, P. Filion, J. A. Labonte, E. P. Guillemette, M. De Repentigny.

Owing to the resignation of the present secretary, J. A. Beaudry, whose other business interests prevent him from devoting his time to the arduous duties of the office, it will be necessary to elect his successor at the November meeting. Mr. Beaudry, who was desirous of giving up the office at once, was persuaded by the meeting to continue the duties until next meeting.

N. Chartrand, the retiring president, in leaving the chair to his successor, Mr. Daoust, expressed his thanks to the members for the manner in which they had supported him in his work. He felt that there were men more capable of filling the office than he, but he had done his duty to the best of his ability and spared neither time, labor nor personal expense to further the association's interests. He was much indebted to Secretary Beaudry and the officers for the very generous help accorded him in his work. He assured the members that though withdrawing from direct contact with the inner work of the association, he would in every way maintain a close communion with whatever was for the good and welfare of all.

Mr. Beaudry, secretary, took occasion to express to the members his firm resolution not to continue in office during the current year, his business interests requiring his entire time. The office was one that entailed a vast amount of work, as it was constitutionally necessary that the clerical work be done in both English and French. There were so many members to interview and new ones to interest towards membership and a host of other matters requiring much time, that he felt he could not afford to spare so much time from his business. He appreciated with gratitude the many kind words and compliments expressed for the work he had done and the wishes of the association for a further term of office, but regretted that he could not acquiesce. He affirmed his intention of remaining a loyal member of the association and doing all he could to strengthen the hands of the officers in their work, and said that any experience he had would be at the service of his successor.

MR. PLACIDE DAOUST,
President 1904-5 Montreal Retail Grocers' Association.

The newly elected president, P. Daoust, then took the chair amid applause testifying to his popularity. He thanked the members for the honor they had conferred upon him in electing him to their most honorable office and promised to do his utmost to continue the good work of his predecessor. He asked and felt satisfied that his fellow officers would do all they could to help in the work of making the association stronger and its influences for good greater. After the other officers had taken their places on the platform a few matters were discussed, such as the trading stamp issue and the question of peddlars. The next meeting will be held on November 10 instead of November 3 on account of the federal elections falling upon the latter date.

The Grocer takes pleasure in presenting in this issue to its readers the portraits of the newly elected president and vice-president with sketches of their careers.

Mr. Placide Daoust started work at the age of thirteen when he came to Montreal from Isle Perrot and entered the dry goods business as junior clerk. After a short engagement he started in the grocery line at the corner of Chatham and Notre Dame streets, where he remained for nearly four years. He then removed to his present stand at the corner of St. Catherine street and City Hall avenue, in the heart of the city and in the midst of a never-ceasing traffic and transient trade. Here he has conducted a general grocery and wine and spirit business for over sixteen years. Mr. Daoust runs another grocery at corner of St. Charles Borrommee and Lagauchautiere streets. He is president of the Club Liberal de Quartier St. Louis, and a member of the A.O.U.W. and I.O.F. Mr. Daoust is in the prime of life, speaks English well and is a bright, genial and keen business man. The Montreal retail grocers will find in him a worthy president.

Mr. E. Upton, as his name indicates, is an Irishman, born in the village of Ashford, County Limerick. He came to Canada in 1875 and obtained a position as locomotive fireman with the Grand Trunk Railway Co. Being a hard-working, energetic, painstaking and active employe he was speedily promoted to an engineer's position, securing the throttle of the Fast Express. This responsible position he filled until the ambition seized him to embark on a mercantile career on his own account. That his judgment in his ability was a true one his very prosperous grocery, wine and spirit house at 358 Bourgeoise street, Point St. Charles, clearly shows. He has only been in business twelve years, but to-day, it is claimed by those conversant with the trade of the Point, that his is one of the largest, if not the largest, business in that section of the city. Judging by the busy time Mr. Upton and his large staff had when The Grocer's representative called, there was certainly a good deal of business doing. On inquiry Mr. Upton stated that his daily cash sales over the counter average over $100, while his monthly pass book business (which was largely a railway trade) was very heavy. Mr. Upton has all the characteristics of a progressive and long-headed Irishman. He has with these good attributes the proverbial Irishman's ready reply. That he is popular goes without saying. As an officer of the Retail Grocers' Association he will do his duty.

NOTES.

Some little protest has of late been observed on part of the members of the association on account of the proceedings being entirely in French. This is constitutionally wrong, and, as a matter of diplomatic progress, decidedly not in the interest of the association. The French-speaking members, who are strongly in the majority, should, as everyone of them speak and understand English, at least magnanimously use both languages. This was evidenced at the annual meeting, where a French member arose and addressed the chair with a view of having the discussion in both French and English, as there were a number of good English members present who did not understand what was going on, and were consequently deprived of the benefit and privilege of sharing in any questions.

J. A. Beaudry, the retiring secretary, deserves the many flattering encomiums passed upon him during the evening, and it is to be regretted that he cannot continue to hold the position.

Retiring President Chartrand has during his tenure of office unselfishly given his time and labor for the best interests of the association. Sincere regret was expressed that he could not see his way clear to filling the office for the customary two years.

A. D. Fraser, of Fraser, Viger & Co., heads the list of directors elected. He and Mr. Upton, 1st vice-president, are the only two English grocers on the board. Still they are both heavy workers and experienced men and their work will no doubt be good and strong.

CANADIAN STARCH MANUFACTURER AT ST. LOUIS.

Mr. O. Lefebvre (of Chinese starch fame) has returned from a two weeks trip to the St. Louis Fair. While there he naturally was interested in products similar to his own, and especially the starch lines. It was a pleasant surprise to him to learn from an exhibitor there that his well known brand "Chinese Starch" was known and recognized in Uncle Sam's country. Of the fair Mr. Lefebvre speaks in glowing terms, the very immensity of the exposition struck him as being one of its principal features. He and his party were much pleased with the treatment accorded them by the officials in charge of the Canadian section. "It was home to us," said Mr. Lefevre, "and we were proud as Canadians of the show made by Canada. Through the courtesy shown us by Canada's representatives we were saved much worry and time in hunting up the most interesting features of the exhibition." Mr. Lefebvre regretted that business prevented him from making a longer stay.

The course of trade in North America may be predicted from the figures given for Great Britain. History repeats itself. The year corresponding to 1882 in Great Britain is, for North America, 1908. At that time some 70,000,000 pounds will be used here on the basis of the above calculation.

MR. WILSON IN MONTREAL.

MR. A. WILSON, of A. Wilson & Son, wholesale fish dealers, Halifax, N.S., a keen and successful Scotchman, and head of a firm known for its high standing during the last quarter of a century, when in Montreal recently gave The Grocer a few interesting facts on the Scotch method of herring curing which has been introduced in Nova Scotia this season by Mr. John Cowie. Mr. Wilson at one time worked with Mr. Cowie's father in Scotland in the fishing business, hence they should know each other well.

The great success of the Scotch curing system is not all based upon the difference in the curing. Great credit must be given to the excellent quality of the barrels. The Scotch barrels are made absolutely air tight. They were coopered differently, being much stronger and preserving the original pickle. Mr. Wilson detailed briefly a test which the Scotch cooper always gives to his herring barrel. In addition to the four bands of wood hoops which are at the bottom and near the top, there is a four-inch iron band put on the top, where the barrels are headed. When a barrel is ready for use one and all are submitted to severe tests. A little peg might be noticed, like a plug, running through a tiny hole in the iron band at the top of the barrel. At some previous hour each barrel has been blown full of air and this little plug inserted. As the inspector passes round, he withdraws the little peg and if the air hisses out as if from an air-tight compartment, the test of the barrel is complete. This is final and so it is with all Mr. Cowie's barrels, which are coopered especially for him. Herring curing depends to a very large extent upon the excellence of the barrel. What injured the herring trade in the Maritime Provinces in its early days, was the trade with the blacks in the West Indies, from whom inferior stock was shipped, the general product deteriorating thereby.

Mr. Wilson was glad to hear that the Intercolonial was making arrangements for better facilities for the transportation of fish from the Maritime Provinces to Montreal. It would be a good thing for both consumer and producer to keep the trade distinctly within Canada. He was glad to see The Grocer paying attention to the Maritime Provinces, and said the special reference to the Maritime fisheries was highly praised in the east.

THE GROCERS' EXHIBITION IN LONDON.

THE Grocers' Exhibition, which took place in the Agricultural Hall, London, England, the week of September 19, lacked none of the features that made the former exhibitions so successful. There was at least one exhibit of great interest on this occasion which was entirely new to those of both trade and public who attended the show. In the Minor Hall, occupying about one half of the total space, was a remarkable exhibit of Canadian produce arranged by Mr. W. H. Hay, of the Department of Agriculture, who had for his assistants Mr. J. H. Moore and Mr. Brodie. While the exhibit was made by the Department of Agriculture, and not by the individual firms whose products made up the exhibit, there was a fair representation of Canadian food products. There were huge pyramids of bags of flour from the Ogilvie Mills, the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., and A. Campbell of Toronto Junction. Full lines of cereals bearing the names of P. McIntosh & Son, Frontenac Cereal Co., Goldie of Galt, and the Tillson Co. There were no dairy cheeses shown, but "Paragon" and "MacLaren" cheese were tastefully exhibited. Sides of bacon, with the familiar names of Matthews, Davies and Lang, commanded instant attention, and the show of canned goods and fruits in tin and glass was specially noticeable. Goodwillie's fruits in bottles were particularly admired. Canadian confectionery was represented by exhibits of chocolates, creams and maple sugar tablets from the Harry Webb Co., candies from Robertson Bros., and biscuits from Christie Brown & Co. The exhibit of Clarks' meats was also very attractive. There were also exhibits of "Radnor" water and "Canadian Club" whisky.

The English people have not yet learned to appreciate the delicate flavor of maple syrup and maple sugar, but a great many visitors invested in sample penny tablets of the latter and seemed to enjoy the toothsome sweetmeat. Splendid specimens of Canadian apples were also sold at a penny apiece.

Those in charge of the exhibit are confident that good results will follow this kind of advertising. The innumerable inquiries regarding Canadian produce show that the British merchants are taking more interest in Canada as a source of supply, and there can be no doubt that good business in many lines will result from these exhibits throughout the Mother Land. The Canadian exhibit will occupy the same stand at the dairy show early in October. The chief features of the exhibit will be changed, and goods allied closely to dairying will be shown.

SUGAR MAKING BEGUN.

The factory of the Ontario Sugar Co., of Berlin, Ont., began its campaign for 1904-05 Saturday last. It is expected that the output this season will be about 50 per cent. larger than that of last year. The outlook is much more favorable than it was a year ago, as not only has the company been guaranteed a larger supply of beets, but of last year's output practically every pound has gone into consumption.

Upton's

are the product of a clean, up-to-date factory. This is one of the reasons why they sell so well.

LOTS of wide-awake merchants think it's good business to handle "ACADIA BONELESS CODFISH" and "HALIFAX FISH CAKES" because they don't need pushing, but sell readily on account of their tastiness, cleanliness, and convenience. They are good-selling and profitable lines. How about yourself? If you are not selling them,

Don't you think it would be good business to do what so many successful business men find it pays them to do? To make leaders of "ACADIA BONELESS COD" and "HALIFAX FISH CAKES?"

YOU have lots of grounds of appeal when you offer them, especially if you have once tried them yourself. They make good, healthful, nourishing food; and, what is quite important, they are about the tastiest thing possible. Your customer's appetite can be satisfied if it's good, and coaxed if it's poor by "ACADIA CODFISH" or "HALIFAX FISH CAKES," and, you may depend, such nice things are bound to "go." If you don't know about them, communicate with us. We will be only too glad to correspond.

Fresh and Cured Fish

The Magdalen Lobster Fisheries.

IN the Winter of 1903 the fishermen of the Magdalen Islands, thinking that they would fare better if the regulations governing the lobster industry were a little different, sent a representative to Ottawa to interview the Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the subject. At this time a commission had just been appointed to look into the herring fishery of the Bay of Fundy and decide whether a sardine packing industry could be developed with the kind of fish the bay affords. So the duty was added to the work of this commission to go down to the Magdalens and investigate the lobster fishery there.

After visiting the islands they decided to end the season this year on June 25 and to visit the islands later to decide whether the prosecution of the fishery in September would be advisable. Meantime, the people being in a state of uncertainty about the matter, were not prepared to go ahead when the commission decided to declare September open for this year, and only four or five factories operated during the month, instead of all the thirty which are licensed. This was equivalent to a loss of 35 days for nearly all the factories, and as a result, the Magdalen pack is considerably short of what it might have been.

With regard to the results of the fisheries this year in the Magdalens, Spring herring were good, Spring mackerel a total failure, Summer mackerel only fair, lobsters a good catch during the Spring months, and cod about an average catch. Taking it as a whole, the situation is not nearly so good as it was last year, there having been quite a falling off in the volume of the fisheries. Still, the people do not seem to suffer hard times. Prices, particularly in cod, have been good enough to largely atone for shortages.

The lobster market is in an unsatisfactory state, having gone back considerably since the opening of the season, without any apparent reason. If it can be accounted for at all, it must be due to the unwillingness of consumers in Europe to buy, which may be traceable in turn to hard times in Europe. It is certainly not due to quantity or quality, for the pack this year is probably short of what it was last year, and it was a short pack then, and as for the general quality, it is probably quite as good as ever it was. The lobster is more of a luxury than any other canned fish stuff. Salmon, for instance, does not cost the consumer more than half what lobster does, and many other canned fish stuffs are cheaper than salmon. When people have to pull the purse strings together, they pull first on the luxuries, of which lobster is one. The result is that failing a demand, holders have had to cut prices, until they are selling at $2 below the figure ruling at this time last year. Stocks are still quite large and do not seem to move even at the reduced figures.

French Sardine Catch.

THE sardine catch of this year is much the best France has enjoyed for five years. In 1902-03 there was almost no catch at all, and as a consequence French exporters were unable to supply even a reasonably small percentage of the demand. This led to the practice of importing inferior Spanish and Portuguese sardines into France, which were subsequently exported and sold under French marks and labels as of French production.. The prompt action taken by the U. S. Department of State and the Treasury Department, however, have served as a salient warning, so effectively, that the practice was at once stopped in French markets, in so far as the United States is concerned. This year, in view of the large catch, there will be no necessity to import any sardines into France from the Iberian Peninsula further than to supply the local demand for those cheaper products.

It is estimated that the catch this year, along the coast from Brest to Bordeaux, will amount to considerably more than 2,300,000 cases, which is above that of an average season. As a consequence, all the packers are working hard to lay in as much excess stock as they can, in view of the possible failure of next year's catch.

It is believed that the good catch this year is due to the early Spring and fine warm Summer. In 1902-03 the Spring was late and the Summer cold and wet. To this was attributed the failure of the sardine to appear off the French coast.

An idea of the importance of the sardine industry may be had when the exports to the United States alone are considered. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, which was a good year, the declared value of these exports from Bordeaux was $437,225; from Nantes and its agencies, $541,168. This year these exports will probably be exceeded.—From U. S. Consul Ridgely, Nantes, France.

Preserving Fresh Fish.

At the recent congress at Marstrand, Sweden, Dr. Barclay, of Bergen, described a new method of preserving fish fresh, says the English Fish Trades Gazette. The fish, after being washed and immediately on being caught and killed, are placed in a tinned case, which is then hermetically closed. This is then placed inside a box containing a mixture of ice and salt, which can be renewed daily if necessary. This method is said to preserve the fish well, and they do not lose their flavor as they do when preserved directly in ice.

Fish Skins as Clothing.

The United States Fish Commission has recently been giving considerable attention to utilizing the skins of water animals for clothing. They have already proved that several kinds of fish skins make excellent leather for some purposes. Salmon hide is found not only serviceable for boots but among the Esquimaux it has been used for generations in making waterproof clothes. The people of the far north also use codfish skins for jackets. The skins which the Fish Commission people have found practicable and durable are whale skins and seal leather which dye in beautiful colors.

Fish Notes.

The first dog fish reduction works to be erected by the Canadian Government will be at Canso, N. S.

According to official returns the season just closed in Ontario has been one of the best fishing seasons on record..

Two new salmon hatcheries for Northern British Columbia have been promised by the Liberal Government at Ottawa, one on the Skeena River and the other at Rivers' Inlet.

According to the St. John Sun sardines have been more plentiful this year than last, as a result of which prices have dropped from $5 and $10 per hogshead to an average of $2 per hogshead.

The staff of men and girls from the Highlands of Scotland brought over to Canada to initiate the Canadian fishermen into the mysteries of herring curing by the Scotch method, have concluded their operations for the season, and most of them left for home. A number of the fishermen are remaining over to give demonstrations during the Winter on the Scotch method of fishing for cod.

No Filled Cheese Made in Canada.

CANADA'S good reputation for cheese is being weighed in the balance. A recent despatch from England with reference to a grocer, accused of selling "Margerine" cheese as Canadian cheese, has excited considerable interest.

J. A. Ruddick, chief of the Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture, speaking on the subject says: "I am not clear as to what is meant by 'margerine' cheese unless it is the product generally known as filled cheese. Filled cheese, so called, is made from skim milk to which some inferior fat has been added as a substitute for butter fat. The manufacture of such cheese is prohibited in Canada by the Dairy Products Act, 1893. I have never heard of any infraction of the law. Any tampering with the cheese in this way would have to be done at the ordinary cheese factory, and as these places are very public and the process of filling cheese would require considerable machinery and material in the ordinary cheese factory, it would be impossible to carry it on without a great many people being aware of it. I do not believe that any filled cheeses have been made in Canada. In any case if an attempt is being made to carry on the manufacture of such cheese it will be a very easy matter to stop it."

Poultry Station for B. C.

A chicken-fattening station, with resident manager, staff and buildings, to cost about $2,000, is to be erected at once in British Columbia.

With a view to the betterment of the poultry industry the Government is establishing poultry stations throughout Canada, having already started seventeen in Ontario and two in Manitoba. The work of these stations is divided into three branches—chickening, poultry rearing and breeding.

Russia As a Meat Exporter.

A British Consul, in a recent report on the foreign commerce of Russia, says:

"Considerable efforts have been and are being made by persons of influence in the United Kingdom and Russia to create a trade in meat from the Baltic ports of Russia to supply the London market. Among other difficulties to be encountered in the realization of such a scheme, the chief would seem to be those connected with the quality and price of the local article and the general sanitary state of animals in Russia. If the project be carried out, the chief source of supply would be Rostov-on-Don, Samara and Siberia, with Libau and St. Petersburg as the ports of shipment. On the other hand, just before the outbreak of hostilities in Asia there was a proposal on foot for supplying Siberia with meat, tallow and butter from Australia by a fast line of steamers from Port Darwin to Port Arthur.

Poultry is chiefly produced in the southwest; the governments of Archangel, Vologda, Viatka, Olonetz, Perm, Ufa and Siberia supply the market with game. The local dealer's profit is estimated at from 30 to 40 per cent. There has been a great rise in prices during the last ten years due partly to improved means of transport, but chiefly to the destruction of game.

Provision Notes.

Word has been received of the death of Mr. S. B. Williams, one of the pioneers of the dairy industry of Canada when cheese factories were first inaugurated in Ontario.

The Canadian Government for the first time sends a collection of dairy produce and dressed poultry to the Dairy Show at Islington, London, Eng., the excellence of which is admitted, but one gathers that the British dairy farmer does not view it with favor. Lord Crewe says one cannot fail to see that to some extent it competes with English produce.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—Stocks in many lines are getting very low and the result is a stiffening of prices. This is most noticeable in long clear bacon and lard. In the former there is a brisk demand to be supplied as the lumbering camps will soon be going back to their Winter operations. Many dealers are out of bacon. Lard has advanced a quarter to half a cent. In the fresh meat markets the weather has deadened business temporarily. The only change worthy of mention is the fact that hind quarters have eased off while front quarters are a little higher. Although as high as $7.50 was received for Spring lamb within the past few days, $7.25 is likely to be the high limit by the time this report is published. We quote:

Butter—Receipts of butter are fairly large, with a quantity of held over tubs coming forward at a loss to the merchant. Prices are considered high for this time of the year, and while the local demand is good the sale abroad is small. There has been no change in price. While 13c is quoted as the low limit for tubs this held-over inferior quality sells for less than that, although it is for restricted purposes only.

Cheese—Nothing of importance has happened to change conditions in the cheese market. Eight and three-quarters cents seems about the limit offered on board although it is seldom accepted. It is certain now that almost all the cheese is selling off the board at 8 7-8c Foreign demand is small. Board reports for the week ending October 10 are as follows:

Provisions—The provision market is active. Prices are easier than they were last week at the same time. The activity in pure lard was noticeable, inasmuch as an advance took place of a quarter of a cent. Early in the week the supply of live hogs was large and considerably in excess of requirements, hence the easy market. No actual change in prices took place. Sales of choice lots were made at 5 1-2c, mixed lots at 5 1-4 and heavy fat at 4 3-4 to 5c per lb. Cured meats were selling well for the season and prices generally are considered steady. We quote:

Cheese—The cheese condition has improved and prices averaged on Tuesday an 1-8 of a cent per lb. higher than on Saturday. It was, however, not caused by the demand from importers in the Old Country, but from local competition. There is a general belief that the Fall make may turn out considerably lighter than last year, and hence Fall cheese at current prices should bring considerable profit to holders in the near future. There are two or three reasons for a lighter make this Fall. the chief ones being the heavy advance in the price of feed, and on the other hand the extremely low price of cheese. These observations are based largely upon the immense shortage of arrivals since the September make began to be marketable. Another fact of considerable interest is that a large quantity of earlier make, carried on this side in cold storage, is owned by English houses. It is believed that these goods on the average stand the owners a cost of 8 1-4c to 8 1-2c on eastern and 8 3-4 to 9c on western goods, thus during the coming Winter, it is fair to assume that first class Fall goods at present prices would advantageously compete for the British consumptive demand. Shippers on Tuesday reported some favorable cable requests for Fall make, and expanded business with new customers is probable. Certain shippers who have headquarters in Ontario have been buying freely on a figure of 8 7-8c at the factory for September cheese. This has had a tendency to make the Quebec holders firmer and higher prices were asked than at the same time last week. At the wharf early in the week, over 4,000 boxes were disposed of at 8 3-4c which is an eighth of a cent in advance of last week's ruling. Spot prices were as follows: Ontario colored, 9 1-8c to 9 1-4c; Ontario white, 9c to 9 1-8c; Townships, 8 7-8 to 9c; Quebecs, 8 3-4 to 8 7-8c, and Summer makes from any quarter, 8 3-8 to 8 5-8c.

Butter—An unusual dullness has overtaken the butter market, and little signs of betterment are in sight. Some business may be done with importers in the Old Country at a range of 19 1-4c to 19 1-2c, but local holders are not ambitious to yield to those prices. On Monday and Tuesday it was impossible to get finest Townships under 19 1-2c to 20c for boxes, while on the other hand there was considerable inquiry for unsalted Townships at 20 1-4c. It will be remembered that The Grocer warned butter shippers regarding the complaint of mold by English importers, and this has been accentuated by buyers demanding a guarantee of the absence of mold. On this basis little business was done. Offerings of butter were very light this week and about 500 boxes sold at 19c. Our quotations are: Townships, unsalted creamery, 20 1-4c; Townships, salted, 19 1-2c to 20c in boxes, and in tubs, 19 1-4c to 19 1-2c. Undergrades, 19c to 19 1-2c.

Cheese—There is at present very little cheese moving and the stock is rather light for the demand, but the market continues firm.

Cheese, per lb.	0 10½

Butter—The market continues active and demand is rather heavy for the amounts of stock on hand. There is practically little or no dairy coming in from the country and our quotations are now in advance of last week's price lists and are as follows:

COMMENDABLE ENTERPRISE.

All readers of The Grocer are familiar with the fact that E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, whose former fine factory and offices were destroyed in the big conflagration last April, purchased the elegant premises on corner King and Duncan streets erected by the Pure Gold Co. a couple of years ago. During the last week or ten days the Gillett company has been busily engaged in installing a complete new set of machinery and moving from their temporary premises in three other buildings to their new location. The Grocer extends congratulations to the Gillett company for the commendable enterprise displayed in connection with the disaster which overtook them a few months ago and in getting their business straightened out and running smoothly again in such a short time.

HOW TO JUDGE TEAS.

EVERY dealer in teas should have an apparatus to draw his tea. The importers, jobbers and wholesale grocers have copper kettles in which the water is boiled with the use of gas ; also small tea scales and teacups made for the express purpose ; these cups are rather expensive. Some of the country dealers who have not the benefit of gas use alcohol for boiling, using the ordinary teacup. By drawing teas in this way the buyer can soon become expert enough to recognize the flavor that pleases his customers. In drawing teas one should be careful that the kettle is clean and the water fresh. Before putting the water on the leaf the water should come to a good boil. If put on when the water just commences to bubble the leaves will float on the surface. Really choice tea leaves will sink to the bottom of the cup as soon as boiling water is poured on them. Many merchants who have not the facilities for drawing teas judge of them by chewing the leaves. After chewing the tea should be of a very bright, light green color, and in chewing the leaf it will, if choicest, be found to be very tender. After the leaf of the choicest kinds has been drawn it will be of a uniform green color, except the edge, which is apt to be of a light brown color. This brown edge is caused by the fermentation through which the leaf goes in course of curing.—American Grocer.

BANANA CROP DAMAGED.

Cable despatches received from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, tell of a disastrous storm within the past week, followed by a cloudburst which has visited the Puerto Cortez banana district, damaging banana plantations to a great extent. Advices to banana importers are that the banana crop is damaged to such an extent that there is no possibility of obtaining fruit for months.

Why HEINZ 57

PAY BIG PROFITS

Suppose two articles cost you 16 cents and you sell each for 20.

Do you figure you make the same profit on each ? Not necessarily.

You may make 25 per cent. on each but one will pay maybe 300 per cent. a year, on account of frequent turn over ; the other, perhaps, only 75 per cent.

IT'S THE TURNOVER THAT COUNTS

Brands of intrinsic merit well advertised sell with the least expense and trouble to the dealer and they pay good profits because they keep your sixpence nimble. The sooner you get your order in for the 57 Varieties the sooner the turnover begins.

SPECIAL FALL GROCER.

ON October 21 The Canadian Grocer will issue its Annual Fall Special for the benefit of thousands of readers throughout Canada, the United Kingdom, the British colonies and foreign countries of Europe and Asia.

In general outline the editorial columns will reflect the industrial and commercial progress of Canada during the past year, particular attention being paid to the newest phases of the home and export trade in groceries and natural products. A large number of special articles have been contributed by authorities on the fish, fruit, canned goods, tobacco, confectionery and crockery trades. Special attention has also been paid to the department of fancy goods and novelties in view of the fact that the holiday season is fast approaching, and patrons of The Grocer throughout the country must needs know what to buy and the most effective way to sell.

In addition to special features the regular reading columns have been materially enlarged with the object of making the Fall Special an epitome of all that is of interest to the grocery trade. The charge is often brought against the grocer that his trade is at best a mechanical, uninteresting sort of thing. Next week's issue of The Grocer is offered as a refutation of this unjustifiable charge.

OVERCHARGING THE GOVERNMENT.

A correspondent of The Canadian Grocer makes a serious charge against some of the manufacturers whose goods were exhibited at the Grocers' Fair, London, Eng. The Government, with commendable enterprise, assembled an exhibit of Canadian-manufactured goods, which won the general approval of visitors to the "Fair." This was done at no cost to the manufacturers, yet, according to our informant, the manufacturers charged the Government from 30 to 40 per cent. more than the regular trade prices.

For a section of maple tree 4½ feet long and 24 inches girth, used to show how sap is taken from the tree, the Government was charged $5. Such a charge was exorbitant, but this does not compare with the action of manufacturers who charged $4 for cases of goods which sell in the ordinary way at $2.75.

Our correspondent concludes with the comment that the Canadian manufacturers should be willing to give away their goods for the sake of having them introduced over "there instead of charging fancy prices where the Government buys the goods outright," a comment with which The Canadian Grocer is in hearty accord. If Canadian produce is to become popular in England, the greatest market in the world, the Canadian producer should encourage rather than discourage the good work done by the Government agents, and at least be fair and honest in sharing with the Government in its efforts to extend Canadian trade.

AN APPRECIATION.

THE GROCER learns with regret that Mr. W. R. Brock, of The W. R. Brock Co., wholesale dry goods merchants, Toronto, has decided not to allow his name to stand for re-election in the riding of Centre Toronto.

Mr. Brock proved a worthy representative of his constituency in the last Dominion Parliament, but, apart from this fact, he represents one of the most extensive business interests in Canada, and The Grocer has always taken the stand that the legislation of a country should be in the hands of those most immediately affected thereby, namely, its business men. The last Dominion Parliament was an improvement in this respect, although the representation of business men was altogether too small to be as effective as might be desired.

USE YOUR LARGE COMPETITORS.

SMALL retailers are continually commenting on the inroads of the city departmental stores upon their legitimate trade. Some retailers have not faced the problem, but have gone on in the old rut, carefully watching the fellow across the street, ignoring the neighboring town or village, sitting quietly by and watching express parcels come down the street, sometimes emitting a futile howl, but not taking the initiative to prevent it.

Undoubtedly the consumer is the person to be got at, and it must be clearly proven to him that his own best interests are served by spending his ready cash at home. Many and varied are the means devised, and there is undoubtedly some virtue in each. We do not propose to solve the problem, but we wish to call attention to a phase of the situation which is only too apparent.

We refer to the diffidence expressed by retailers, when in large centres, to visiting and studying the methods of the large departmental stores. Many are the excuses offered. Some ignore these stores through petty jealousy and foolish rivalry; others consider it useless to spend their valuable time, owing to a limited stay, in seeing what they consider is altogether beyond their sphere, and utterly useless as applied to them. In this connection we take issue with the retailer. While agreeing with him that the multiplicity of departments and intricacies of store management are entirely out of his scope, yet there are many and valuable lessons to be learned by a walk through one of these stores.

Moreover, the visiting retailer must not think himself unwelcome. He should mention the fact that he is in the grocery or general mercantile business, and that generally insures him a cordial welcome, supplemented sometimes by a personal tour through the premises. This is certain to make him a better and wiser merchant. If he labors under the impression that his particular trade does not want a neat, up-to-date store, let him be sure to be the first to inaugurate these things or perhaps he may regret it too late. It is generally a hard problem to get a store too good for a town. In most cases such an one usually takes the legitimate business of some neighboring town or village as well as the best part of its own.

It is easily apparent that the system, order and neatness displayed by large concerns will wake up the retailer to many weak spots, which were formerly ignored. Perhaps he will return with the impression that his windows might be used for display purposes, and with the realization that they are his best and cheapest advertisements. Or he may be imbued with the idea that a more careful supervision of his stock would not be amiss, not counting the many little improvements at a slight cost which mean wonders in the general appearance of his store. He may even realize that a few fixtures are perhaps a sound investment. Old methods cannot help but be revolutionized.

By all means the local paper should be informed as to what is being done. The dealer will find the paper quite ready to co-operate in giving him a place in its news columns. All this tends to discourage foreign dealing. It will soon be found that the catalogue will be used as a last resort—the local merchant will get the preference.

A COOL SUGGESTION.

ON another page of this week's issue of The Grocer direct reference is made to a suggestion of Mr. Bryson, Canadian Commercial Agent in Antigua, Montserrat and Dominica, as to proper ways and means of overcoming the existing prejudice against Canadian flour in the West Indies. According to Mr. Bryson the Canadian trade should export via New York without the word "Canadian" appearing on the brands.

The above suggestions may not have been altogether groundless. At the same time we cannot help regretting that one in charge of a foreign department of Canadian trade and commerce should find it necessary to take such an unsympathetic view of the possibilities of the export trade. If Canadian flour is ever to become established in foreign markets it will be on its merits and not by parading under an assumed name or no name at all. What is more, the millers of Canada are not afraid of foreign competition; on the other hand they have every assurance that their products are holding their own and are being acceptably received in West Indian markets.

There is more or less truth in the statement that some years ago a prejudice did exist against Canadian flour in certain West Indian markets because it failed to answer the requirements of the trade and sufficient care was not exercised in packing. This, however, has become a matter of ancient history. Probably Mr. Bryson had been ruminating over something of the sort when he volunteered to tell the Canadians something they didn't and couldn't know.

At the present time Canadian flour is in big demand in the West Indies, although with one or two exceptions the trade has not been systematically and persistently exploited. In these few cases the results have been more than gratifying. In the majority of instances where Canadian millers have gone to the length of sending consignments of flour to the West Indies sufficient care has not been taken in catering to the West Indian trade. There has been a lack of perseverance and patience shown in following up the opportunity once it was created through immediate contact with the market. Evidently there have been those who thought all that was necessary was to send down a trial consignment of flour, and immediately a demand would spring up for it. That is not the way trade works; a lot of hard labor is entailed in permanently placing an article in a foreign market. Where the situation has been squarely faced and honestly grappled with—not however as Mr. Bryson suggests—the results have exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

DEBASING THE BENCH.

APROPOS of our recent article disapproving of the connection of Judge Britton with the Alberta Central Loan Corporation, Limited, the attention of our readers may be drawn to a case which illustrates the dangers which arise from judges being connected with similar concerns.

The case in point is this: A member of the Ontario judiciary was induced to allow his name to be connected with the directorate of a new financial company. As an honorarium for this he was given shares to the value of $5,000. Bye-and-bye the company failed. The assets in evidence not being sufficient to liquidate the liabilities the creditors naturally investigated, the result of which was the discovery that the judge in question had not paid a dollar for his shares. Being of opinion that he should have paid for them, they brought suit to recover the $5,000 they represented at the formation of the company.

And here is where the interesting phase of the case comes in. The presiding judge should have been the defendant himself. But while he could not try his own case, he did the next best thing he could; he argued his own case.

Someone has said that an independent judiciary is the firmest bulwark of freedom. If judges are to become part and parcel of public corporations they can scarcely be expected to be independent and single for the public interest in the hour of temptation.

Undoubtedly the low salaries which judges in Canada receive cause some of them to turn aside from the strict path in which they should walk in order to supplement a revenue which is not in keeping with the dignity and importance of their high office. The duty of the State is to remove the cause.

THE PREMIUM QUESTION.

IN a recent issue of The Grocer was outlined the attitude of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada and the Retail Grocers' Association, of Toronto, in regard to "premium exchange" which is alleged to be nothing more or less than a revival of the trading stamp system.

The charge was brought against the company controlling the sale of such premiums in Toronto that they were violating the trading stamp by-law and a nominal fine was inflicted by the magistrate. A retailer was also brought into the police court for using premium exchange coupons, and convicted likewise. During the past week an appeal from the latter decision was made with the result that the judge in chambers reaffirmed the decision of the magistrate to the effect that it is contrary to the existing by-law for a retailer to traffic in trading coupons.

The Grocer is opposed to trading stamps in any form whatever, and congratulates the Retail Merchants' Association on the signal success its cause has met at the hands of the law. By way of further endorsation it can offer nothing better than the following pertinent criticism of trading stamps by an esteemed contemporary:

"It is one of the most delusive and pernicious schemes for making money that has ever found favor with the public. It is more objectionable than a lottery or gambling device, because it lives upon an assumption that something is obtainable for nothing. The deception is transparent to anyone; a dollar that is paid to a purchaser of goods in trading stamps or coupons comes out of the price or profit of what is purchased. It is an insidious method of deception that has a serious effect upon legitimate trade, since it obliges one merchant to use the stamps if his competitor does, and in the end the trading stamp company gets the margin which the buyer and seller would otherwise have.

"The trading stamp agent claims that articles may be secured without cost by a purchaser who has collected a certain number of dollars' worth of stamps. Such a claim is, of course, misleading and false and contrary to the standards of legitimate business. The buyer and seller, in paying tribute to the trading stamp companies, maintain a system that is obviously detrimental to fair and honorable dealing. The stamp companies make excessive profits on stuff that is 'given' in return for stamps presented for redemption, which stamps are sold only for cash, while their gains, by reason of the stamps that are never presented, are said to be enormous.

"The reputable retail merchants, in their own interests and that of their patrons, are united in condemning the system and in opposing its growth."

LETTER OF THANKS.

To Editor Canadian Grocer:

We beg to tender our sincere thanks to all who have shown us their sympathy either personally or by letter, telephone, despatch, or cable, on the occasion of the recent fire which destroyed the stores we occupied on De Bresoles street. The number is so great that under the circumstances, in order to reach every one, we are compelled to use the press.

Association News

Toronto Retail Grocers Meet.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday evening, October 10, in St. George's Hall, with President Johnson in the chair.

E. P. Nettlefield, secretary of the association, was present in his official capacity for the last time. Four applications were read for the position rendered vacant by Mr. Nettlefield's resignation. A motion was passed accepting the application of B. Panter, provided he can fulfill certain requirements of the position, otherwise it will fall to J. Irving, formerly traveler for the Walkerville Match Co.

A decided stand was taken by the association on the "Premium" question, the majority of the members being of the opinion that any firm giving away premiums with goods cannot carry on a legitimate business, since the retailer not the manufacturer has indirectly to stand the cost of the coupons as well as the profit cut off by the use of coupons. A suggestion was made by the president that measures be taken immediately to investigate the tea trade and that the members of the association give a special amount of business to firms selling the best brand of tea without premiums.

Regarding the funds left over from the annual excursion, it was decided to set aside one hundred dollars for the general fund, one hundred dollars for the special fund, the balance to be paid to the members of the executive for their services in connection with running the excursion.

It was decided to secure more suitable quarters for the meetings of the association, and a committee was nominated to look into the matter.

The question of lard boxes, left over from last meeting, was allowed to stand for the present until the New York representative of the firm which sold the boxes to the Toronto retail trade arrived to adjust matters.

Note.

It is rumored that B. Panter, formerly in the retail grocery business at the corner of King street and Cowan avenue, Toronto, will shortly resume operations at the corner of Davenport and Bedford roads, North Toronto.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Oct. 13, 1904.

Groceries.

THE grocery trade for the week is reported satisfactory as compared with the same week last year, whereas the volume of Fall business is steadily increasing some wholesale firms have about completed their orders for the close of navigation. A considerable trade usually begins about this season of the year in foreign dried fruit. Direct shipments, however, have not arrived and until then comparatively little will be doing in dried fruits. In canned goods considerable interest has been evinced in opening prices of corn and tomatoes, namely $1.10 and $1.15 as compared with 90c and $1.05 last year at the opening of the season. The shortage in corn and tomatoes is estimated at 25 and 30 per cent. respectively. Sockeye salmon continues very firm. Coffee prices are still soaring above the heads of the wholesale trade. Stocks of spot tapioca are very low. The spice, foreign dried fruit, foreign nut, syrup and molasses markets continue practically unchanged from last week. Teas are quiet, particularly Japans, notwithstanding the fact that offerings are exceptionally low in price.

CANNED GOODS.

The item of principal interest in canned goods circles this week is undoubtedly the announcement of opening prices on 1904 pack of canned corn and tomatoes, viz., tomatoes, 3's per dozen $1.15, and corn, 2's per dozen, $1.10. The trade has been anxiously awaiting this announcement which will facilitate business in no small measure. Sales are increasing gradually, as retailers are now stocking up for the requirements of the coming year. Considerable diversity of opinion prevails as to the extent of the season's pack in corn and tomatoes which is still going on although the bulk of it is completed. A shortage there will be beyond a doubt, conservatively estimated at 30 per cent. in tomatoes and 25 per cent. in corn. One authority estimates that there will be sufficient to go around, but that the consumption will be curtailed on account of the relatively high price ruling at the opening of the season. Whereas retailers formerly sold 3 cans for 25c (generally one can each of corn, tomatoes and peaches) they will in future be compelled to cut down the allowance to 2 cans for 25c. Another prominent wholesale grocer is of the opinion that this will not affect sales appreciably since consumers throughout the country were never in as prosperous state financially as they are this year and if the working man wants corn or tomatoes he will not hesitate to buy whether they are selling at 2 or 3 cans for 25c.

The market in fish continues firm generally, particularly in Sockeye salmon which seems to be practically cleaned up at the coast. There will be sufficient salmon, however, to meet the requirements of regular trade.

This week's quotations have been thoroughly revised in view of the arrival and delivery of new pack vegetables, fruits, etc. We quote the following prices:

SUGAR.

A rather easier tone to the sugar market developed during the past week and raws are quotably 1-16 lower while in refined no further change has taken place following the reduction made by U. S. refiners just prior to going to press last week. Since last issue, sales have transpired of large quantities Java sugars afloat and loading, totalling about 22,000 tons; one cargo afloat selling at 11s 10 1-2d c.i.f., which is equivalent to 4.29c duty paid; the remainder at 11s 9d c.i.f., equal to 4.25c duty paid. There have also been sales of new crop Demerara centrifugals, totalling 4,000 tons, as well as a small parcel of Porto Rico; the former at 2 5-8c c. and f. New York, which equals 4.31c duty paid; the latter at 4.25c duty paid ex store. At the moment the market remains steady on the lower basis with buyers and sellers both indifferent. It now transpires that recent sales of Demerara centrifugals for shipment amount to 12,000 tons, and further lots are offering on the same terms, but buyers have withdrawn from the market pending further developments in Europe. The course of the market has been downward, declining from 11s 3 3-4d to 11s 3-4d, reacting to 11s 1 1-2d and at the close is nominal at 11s 3-4d, which is equivalent to duty paid parity of 4.35c for 96 test centrifugals.

Latest weather reports are favorable to growing crops and harvesting; it would be observed, however, that there is still a differential of 10c per 100 lbs. in favor of cane sugar.

Receipts at Atlantic ports for the week ending October 5 amounted to 29,656 tons; meltings were unchanged at 46,000 tons; total stocks equalled 151,020 tons, or a reduction of 16,000 tons for the week, but practically the same as for the corresponding period a year ago. As before advised Cuba is no longer a factor in the situation and for the week under review stocks were reduced to 8,500 tons as compared with 147,541 tons last year. Combined stocks of U. S. and Cuba show a decrease of 138,962 tons from last year. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,170,520 tons against 1,655,488 tons last year, the decrease being 484,968 tons. European consumption is still increasing phenomenally, thus showing the salutary effect of the removal of the bounties. From September, 1903, to August 31, 1904, the total increase in all principal countries excepting Russia amounted to 895,921 tons or 28 per cent. for the year. The largest increase was in Germany, amounting to 400,000 tons; in France it amounts to a little over 300,000 tons. In the United Kingdom the increase is barely 7,000 tons.

An unsettled feeling has prevailed in the refined sugar market since the decline in New York last week, but there seems to be little room for further reduction with the margin between raw and refined only 65c per 100 lbs. However there are now more refiners looking for a share of the distribution and its is thought that America, which is by far the largest producer, will not suffer too much encroachment without fighting. Meanwhile the trade looks on awaiting further developments, and we have now entered upon the season of narrowest consumption when refiners may show more eagerness to sell.

Locally there are no changes to record and no particular indications for the immediate future. Buyers here are watching the trend of events across the line, but as conditions are not strictly parallel it does not do to assume that our market must follow the course of New York. Meanwhile there is a fair consumption with buying limited to absolute requirements. Our quotations are as follows:

TEAS.

It was reported in last week's markets that no Ceylon green tea was being manufactured at present. This condition of the market continues. Locally the tea trade is quiet with very little doing in Japans, although prices are unusually favorable to buyers.

The season for Ceylon and Indian blacks is now at its period of greatest production and as the gardens both in India and Ceylon which last year were making greens have reverted to blacks the quantity coming in sale each week in Calcutta and Colombo is larger than usual and prices have reached a very moderate figure for good ordinary quality. Eastern cables from most authentic sources state that they do not expect a lower range of value.

Ceylon teas with point and flavor have advanced from 1-2d to 1d; this, however, is not an unusual circumstance, as it is well known that when ordinary qualities are at their lowest, high grade teas au contraire are usually at a higher level. The chief reason for this apparent anomaly is that conditions favorable to the production of large quantities of leaf are unfavorable to the production of a really fine quality of tea; thus with the largest supplies of tea for the season so far on the market at present the quantity of really fine tea is comparatively limited.

General reports on local sales of green tea are to the effect that Japans are moving very slowly and that the bulk of the trade continues to pin its faith to Ceylon greens of which there is a full supply in the country. Further importations on a large scale will not be necessary for some months. As soon as sufficient demand sets in the gardens of Ceylon will again turn out green tea. This will have a tendency to shorten the supply of blacks towards the latter end of the season, which points to the present as a good opportunity for securing full supplies of black tea.

Greens are being sold to the wholesale trade from spot stocks at a price below the cost of importation, and some buyers have been taking advantage of this, which has had a tendency to relieve the situation locally. There can be little doubt that the value of Ceylon greens will continue to harden as the consumption absorbs local supplies. We quote the following prices:

COFFEES.

The feature of the coffee market which is attracting the greatest attention of the grocery trade at the present time is the abnormally high price of "Rios" which has practically stopped business for the time being. The wholesale grocer is face to face with the following peculiar situation: Increasing visible supplies, decreasing supplies of coffee on spot and sky-high prices. Our quotations are as follows:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The only special feature of the rice and tapioca market this week is the fact that supplies of tapioca on spot are getting pretty low. In fact the situation is so aggravated in certain quarters that little or no tapioca is selling to the trade at present. Most of the tapioca consumed in this market comes from Singapore and owing to large stocks held at the beginning of the year comparatively small quantities were brought on. Certain firms, however, have already received fresh supplies. We quote the following prices:

Foreign Dried Fruits

Business in foreign dried fruits is less animated than for many years past and on the whole conditions have not been favorable to heavy importations. Direct shipments of fruit, however, are not here yet and until their arrival a brisk trade can hardly be expected.

Currants are reported slightly dearer with a higher tendency; but the article has been selling at a low price since the season opened until the present moment, and fluctuations have been within very narrow limits. The last direct steamer left Denia last Monday, October 10.

Valencia raisins have been at too high a figure for buyers to operate freely and as a result importations have been smaller than usual. There is also more difference in the quality of fruit sent out by reputable shippers. Some brands which formerly enjoyed a reputation for good quality show very indifferent quality this year, and as importers in some instances refused to pay a stand out price to shippers, who, as it turns out, have shipped stand out quality, there is in some quarters a little disappointment.

Malaga raisins are at a slightly higher level than last year and as the crop is really a short one, lower prices cannot be expected. A cable was received from Smyrna during the week to the effect that the market for Sultana raisins was very firm although prices continue unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

FOREIGN NUTS.

There is little change in this market since last report. Prices remain the same, with probably a more brisk demand. First shipment of Filberts are expected to arrive in Montreal in a few days. By the middle of November the rush for Christmas trade will begin. The walnut crop which was at first thought to have been all but destroyed in some sections, is turning out on the whole more satisfactorily than was expected both as to quality and quantity. Prices will not be more than about 1c higher than usual except in Grenobles, which are relatively shorter than others. First shipments will be made this month. Prices quoted are as follows:

DRIED FISH.

The market in dried fish shows a steady improvement, last week's sales being unusually gratifying. At the present time cod fish is a favorite. The dried fish trade may be expected to become more brisk as the Winter season advances. Our quotations are as follows:

Boneless fish, per lb		0 04½

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Trade in evaporated apples although having opened, cannot be said to have set in yet in any volume. A few orders are being filled for Northern Ontario ports and Western mining and lumbering camps, which are the largest consumers of evaporated apples. The local demand will not begin until next February or March. Quotations of 5½c to 6c remain unchanged from last week.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

The egg market shows an advance of only a half cent on the average. Of course some are selling for 20 and 21c, but 19½c strikes the limit with most dealers on the ordinary eggs received. Receipts are about as large as usual for this time of the year. Pickled stocks are of fair size.

HONEY

During the week under review there has been very little movement in honey. Trade conditions continue unchanged as well as prices. Our quotations are as follows :

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 08	0 08½
" sections, No 1, per doz	1 75	2 00
" " No. 2, "	....	1 50

BEANS.

Reports state that the crop has been damaged by recent heavy rains, owing to which there is a better inquiry with a firmer market. Mixed beans have been struck off the list and in their place No. 2 prime added. Prices quoted are as follows :

Beans, handpicked, per bush	1 60	1 65
" prime, No. 1	....	1 50
" prime, No. 2	....	1 40
" Lima, per lb	0 06½	0 07

SEEDS.

The movement of seeds has not been so good during the last week as usual. Farmers are paying too much attention to their root crop. A better supply, however, is expected in a few days. Prices are unchanged. Our quotations are as follows :

Alsike clover, per bush	4 65	6 25
Red Clover	6 75	7 25
Mammouth clover, per bush	5 50	6 25
Timothy	1 00	1 35

Green Fruits.

Up to date the market has been good although in comparison with other weeks of the season dull. The local Summer market closes to-morrow after a very successful season. Owing to the heavy frosts the tomato crop has been practically killed; frost also affected the grape crop, forcing the grower to cut his fruit earlier than were his intentions, thus overstocking the market and causing prices to decline. There is a fair demand for crab apples. Canadian chestnuts are on the market and are selling at $5 per bushel, and from $1 to $1.25 per peck; indications are for a good crop. The supply of Canadian plums is practically over as well as the season for Canadian cantaloupes. Better and larger supplies of Canadian apples are arriving in barrels and being offered at good prices.

Jamaica oranges are supplanting th market at present, though sales have been made for the delivery of Mexican and Northern California stock, expected the first part of November. Trade in lemons is quiet owing to the interval between seasons in this line of goods. Supplies of Verdelli's are about used up while the new stock is not expected until about the 25th of this month. Bananas are plentiful with a fair demand; during the week the price has declined slightly. There is a good supply of Cape Cod cranberries, accompanied by a firm market. The yield of Canadian cranberries has been good; owing to the cold weather the stock is light in color and is not selling as well as imported goods. Since the beginning of the season 1,000 bbls. have been sold on the local market. Supplies of new figs are arriving almost daily. Hellawee, Sairs and Fard dates—three kinds of new dates from Persia—are expected to arrive at the end of this month and will sell at from 5c to 5¼c, 4¼c to 4¾c, and 9c to 9½c recpectively. Reports state good crops, with prices a shade lower than in previous years.

Almeria grapes are beginning to arrive and are selling at from $5.50 to $6 p bbl. Tinted varieties are expected in few days. The supplies of Idaho plum still continue with sales ranging from $1 to $1.25 per case. Quotations are as follows :

Vegetables.

Very little can be said in regard to this line of goods. At present onions are very scarce; the outlook is for no packing in Ontario this season, and an advance in prices is anticipated. Some consignments of potatoes are arriving in such a poor condition that the market is uncertain and a decline in price not unlooked for. Green peppers are easier and are selling from 25 to 35c per basket instead of from 35c to 50c, as formerly quoted. Other prices on the list remain unchanged. Our quotations are as follows :

Fish and Oysters.

A heavy demand for fish is expected during the next two weeks, as the season for frozen goods sets in at the first of the month. At present there is a good demand for oysters which is no doubt due to the cold weather.

Since last quotations we have added to our list kippers, selling at from $1 to $1.25 per box of 80, and bloaters also selling at from $1 to $1.25 per box of 75. Last week's prices remain unchanged. There is a good supply in both these new lines. Our quotations are as follows :

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Reports state that the crop of rye is short this year and as a result prices have advanced from 66 and 67c to 69 and 70c per bushel. Owing to good supplies of red and white wheat the price has declined 3c per bushel during the week. Trade has been brisk in barley, resulting in an advance of from 1 to 2c per bushel. Trade is good in all lines with the exception of rye. Our quotations are as follows :

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

Dealers are pretty well sold up in the lines of hides, skins and wool. Owing to very little being offered in any one line prices are firm. There is a slight improvement in tallow, with the market firm at present. During the week shearlings have been struck off the market. Prices are unchanged. Our quotations are as follows :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Oct. 13, 1904.

Groceries.

NOW that the elections are in full swing business has resumed a comparatively normal condition. Collections are not as good as they might be in the country, but wholesalers report that plenty of orders are coming in and business generally is lively all over the province. Eggs are interesting inasmuch as they advanced one cent during the week and it is very difficult to get fresh eggs at any price. Interest in sugar has subsided considerably and the market is generally dull. A similar statement may be made regarding molasses which is quiet, still ruling at 28c. Considerable excitement has been noticed in pure lard and prices have advanced a quarter of a cent; compound lard has followed by an advance of one eighth. New crop canned corn and tomatoes are interesting, as the canners announce short crop in both lines. New prices are quoted in this issue. Pepper, cloves, and cinnamon have maintained their advance and are very firm. Fish of all kinds are coming in more plentifully and prices have eased considerably during the week. Malpecque oysters have decreased in price very noticeably and large quantities are now on the market. Coffee and tea are devoid of specialties, but the market is firm and considerable activity rules. An advance is expected in coffee within a few days, in fact it might take place any day. Teas are active with lower grades of Indian and Ceylons in good demand. A very moderate amount of business, however, has been transacted. Flour continues to hold its high standard and the condition of the local millers is practically the same a it has been for some weeks, namely, they are over-sold locally. Hence, prices are likely to remain high. Fruits and vegetables of all kinds are plentiful and active business is being carried on. In dried fruits an easy market is reported from the countries of production and considerable business is being done with western buyers. Plenty of California stock is coming in. Owing to the anticipated scarcity of Spanish onions an extra demand has set in for them and one western buyer has offered an importer $1 per crate for all he may have on his first vessel. Large quantities of hay are being exported to England and prices are considerably easier.

SUGAR.

A quiet market rules in sugar locally and although refined sugar declined 10c in New York, sugar in Montreal remains the same. The decline, it is said by the dealers, is not warranted by the raw sugar market. The undertone therefore to the local market for refined sugar remains strong. There has been no actual change in prices to note, and the indications are that no immediate change is in sight. Considerable activity is noted. The foreign market for raw beet sugar remains strong to the advance. It is learned that plenty of Java sugars are arriving at foreign ports and holders have their immediate requirements supplied. High authorities state that the growing crop of Germany promises to be nine per cent. smaller than last year, or about 1,775,000 tons, and that the growing beet crop of all Europe promises to be 13 per cent. smaller than last year, or 5,103,000 tons. This reduction, together with the increased consumption abroad, and the reduced stocks, would make a decided difference in the situation, and, if the estimates prove true, higher prices are bound to come. Knowing ones declare that the future course of the sugar market depends largely upon Europe, and it will be apparent from the fact just quoted that the statistical position is very strong abroad. It is a usual thing for refiners to have anywhere from 85,000 to 100,000 tons of Cuban sugar to draw on during the Fall months, but this year the entire crop has already been marketed and scarcely any sugar remains unsold on the island. In sympathy with the European market, Java prices have also had a tendency to ad-

Refiners are very positive that present prices will be maintained and they verified their belief by purchasing Java sugars to arrive in December, at figures equal to 4.23c duty paid, for 96 degrees test. New crop Cuban sugars will not be on hand before January or February, and some planters have announced that they would make contracts for delivery in this position on the parity of 4⅛c duty paid, basis 96 degrees. SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Dullness marks the molasses market, although considerable demand has been noted from day to day and a good distribution has taken place. The steady demand for all grades has made considerable inroads on the supply and heavy stocks which were on hand. Increased demand is expected, especially before the close of navigation, and dealers expect a general cleaning up before the new crop arrives. We quote :

COFFEE.

Renewed interest has set in for coffee, although large importers declare that the market is dull for the time of year. Rio, for instance, will have less than 2,500,000 bags this year, and one large roaster is said to have secured the bulk of the low grades. According to Mr. Frederick J. West, an expert on coffee, the balance of Rio coffee is held by three or four strong interests, who are believers in a small crop next year, and much higher prices in the near future. The early part of the Santos crop resulted in a few low grades, owing to unfavorable weather conditions. Late in August the arrivals at Santos were much improved in quality, low grades being in very small quantities. The same large roasting interest, quoted previously on the last of August, owned 95 per cent. of these low grades, and had contracts with responsible houses in Santos for future deliveries of low grades to be delivered in September, October and November. This authority states that more than one seller of such contracts to this interest could not deliver the goods and had to liquidate his contracts as best he could on August 30. Of the 1,600,000 odd bags of coffee in Rio and Santos, it is conservative to say that more than 600,000 bags are owned by two American roasting interests and the balance is held by some 250 commissaries, dealers and exporters. The bulk of distressed coffee in the countries of production has been moved and growers and dealers who are able to hold coffees for higher prices are doing so. Europe so far this year has taken very little coffee. In America generally demand from the interior points has been quite small and principally for low grade coffee, which indicates that general trade has decreased. There is every probability of prices going much higher in the early future. Locally the demand is steady, and the market firm. We quote :

SPICES.

The advance in pepper and other spices noted previously has been maintained and the demand generally is good. The scarcity of pepper stock on spot and due to arrive has occasioned a decided firmness. From the east it is learned that higher prices are being asked on pepper for shipment. Singapore black is ruling strong and was being held last week in large quantities at 13c ex store. In cloves decidedly bullish cables have been received from both London and Zanzibar, and the spot market has advanced to 16c per lb. on large lots. It is reported that this year's crop is smaller than was expected. As this is the second year of short crop, considerable difference in price is looked for. Nutmegs are also reported a short crop. The market is higher. Cassia has been consumed in large quantities this year, presumably owing to the fruit crop being so good.

Supplies are limited and stocks generally are reported small, so that higher prices may be looked for. We quote :

TEA.

Locally the tea market remains about the same. There has been a slight improvement in the demand and considerable business has been done in lower grade teas of all descriptions. Japans are receiving considerable attention, having advanced 1c in low grades. Better grades of all kinds of tea are reported firmer. An advance in medium grades is expected. Choice teas are not so plentiful. Some business has been reported in China greens and the market is firmer. India and Ceylon greens are very quiet and lower in price, apparently at home and abroad, offerings being neglected. Two blocks of fannings, siftings, nibs and dust offered on this market during past few days, being held at Yokohama for shipment, were readily picked up by the trade. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

Considerable interest has been noticed in canned goods by the announcement of new pack prices for corn and tomatoes. The canners announce that in corn they will be able to deliver only 75 per cent. of their contracts, and in tomatoes only 55 per cent. New prices for corn, which opened at $1.10 for two pound tins, and tomatoes at $1.15 for three pound tins, have been advanced to $1.20 and $1.25 respectively by the Quebec Provincial Grocers' Guild for western pack, and $1.22½ for Quebec pack. New crop peas have been fixed at 85 and 95c; 82½c for common; best pack running at $1.30 for French brands. One concern that packed 9,000 cases of tomatoes last year, only turned 3,822 cases this year, and is holding for $1.25 a doz. The cost of American tomatoes laid down here from Baltimore is $1.22 to $1.30. We quote :

The following is the new price list issued by the canners for 1904 pack vegeweek and this has a tendency to make the market slightly easier. The firm undertone still exists and fresh eggs are in first-class demand. Straight gathered stock was sold at 20c to 20½c, No. fresh at 19c to 20c, and selected at 23c per doz.

POTATOES.

The market is much easier with good demand. Sales took place of Early Rose at 54c per bag, another car at 56c, one at 59½c, and another at 66c. Silver Dollar stock has brought as high as 52c per bag. There is a fair inquiry from Ontario buyers for supplies in this market. Choice stock has sold in a jobbing way from 75c to 80c a bag.

BEANS.

The bean market is a little firmer and has stiffened considerably. The new crop is on the market and five cars were sold for November shipment at $1.40. Good primes are hard to get in car lots except at prices ranging around $1.40. From the west it is learned that old crop is pretty well sold out and that the new crop is hardly fit to send to market, owing to its not being dry enough to thresh. Large quantities are expected, however, for shipment in a couple of weeks time. The demand for export has occasioned the hardening of the market, trade with France being extensive. We quote :

Choice primes	1 30	1 35

There is little demand for honey and the market is dull. We quote :

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Flour market remains firm and the high prices have been steadily maintained. Receipts have not been so large locally and the complaint of the big millers is that they are oversold for home consumption and are unable to attend to the export trade. Considerable declines have been noticed in wheat in the west, but prices have kept up the flour. The continuation of inquiry from foreign sources for Manitoba Spring wheat grades is unusual, and some bids were received on low grades which were higher than millers have realized on spot. Local and country buyers have been active. Large numbers of car lot orders have been placed for both patents and strong bakers' at full prices. We quote :

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 6, 1904.

THE annual exhibition of the Royal Agricultural and Industrial Society, which is being held this week at New Westminster, is attaining such proportions that it is rapidly becoming what the Toronto fair is to Ontario, and the Winnipeg fair to Manitoba and the Territories. This year there are over 2,000 more entries at New Westminster, and in horses alone there are over 200, while last year there were only 86. One of the features of the show is the exhibits from the municipalities, eight being represented, and all kinds of grain, fruit and field produce are shown. Over the exhibit from Salmon Arm is the reminder: "In 1894 a wilderness, to-day a paradise." This would apply to nearly all of the districts represented.

The display of fruit would be impossible to surpass, and this year, owing to the warm weather, there is better coloring to the apples of the lower mainland. In the competition for the best collection of apples, five of a variety, there were nine entries, the prize being won by Middleton, of Vernon, while Mr. Thomas Earl, of Lytton, came but one point behind. Notwithstanding the bad year for plums and prunes, there are some excellent samples shown, and in blackberries, never have they appeared so good. It perhaps, is usual to say that a show is always better than the last, and on no occasion could this be said more conscientiously. One of the interesting displays is that of several boxes of strawberries, the second crop, which many of the growers are obtaining this year. They are as excellent in flavor and appearance as the first.

The whole exhibition indicates greater development in agricultural lines, which British Columbia requires so much at the present time. Every horse and stock shed is occupied, and the animals are of such a high grade as to call for favorable comment from the judges, one of whom is Dr. Black, of Winnipeg.

Local markets are unaffected by features, unless it be in eggs. They are a surprise, especially to the householder. The reliable fresh article is selling at retail this week for 50 cents per dozen, though there is some talk of them being more plentiful. The reason for the supply being short is hard to find, although it is very well known it is. The Fall has been very mild and fine, and it was expected that fresh eggs would be easy to obtain. What keeps the price stiff is the further fact, mentioned previously, that ranch eggs are of poor quality. Last Fall and Winter it was not an unusual thing for many people to buy these eggs in preference to the high-priced article, but this season half of them are so bad they cannot be used.

Cured meats show a firmer tendency, and an advance is considered not improbable. Creamery butter keeps firm. Flour is still very firm, and there has been an advance in all the other brands in sympathy with Manitobas. Retail milk dealers have advanced the price of milk for the Winter. Last week it sold fourteen quarts for a dollar, to-day it is eleven quarts.

In fruits, local dealers are arranging for the Japanese orange shipments, or tangerines, which are a welcome fruit on the Pacific coast in Winter time. Summer fruits are about over, and the second crop strawberries, which are on the market, are held at a fancy price. Most of them were shipped to the Territories. Watermelons are over for this season. It has been remarkable how many of these were brought to this market this year, the demand always having been very good.

What might be classed a feature importation was two carloads of lard brought from Prince Edward Island by R. W. Clarke, the commission merchant, who handles Nasco, the liquid soap. He placed the whole lot with one man, and with such a demand there should be an opportunity for parts of Canada not so far away.

Dawson prices are beginning to climb with the approach of Winter, and the usual heavy trade with roadhouses in the Fall.

The invasion of the western Canadian market by American firms is gradual but sure. At the New Westminster Exhibition, J. A. Folger & Co., San Francisco, have a large booth and are demonstrating their Golden Gate brand of coffees and such like, and this week Mr. George Beeh, representing the T. A. Snider Preserving Co., of Seattle, is in the city on an initial trip. This latter firm makes a specialty of catsup, and it is a lamentable fact that it is difficult to get a Canadian brand that is really nice. The "Blue Label" is the most sought after, and the Snider Company is making efforts to push its make.

Mr. L. W. Shatford, M.P.P., is interesting capital in the promotion of a scheme which should make good returns, and which should be a factor in the development of the interior of British Columbia. He has acquired an option on from 25,000 to 30,000 acres of land in the southern portion of the Okanagan Valley, 15,000 of which is well adapted for fruit raising. This is all in the dry belt, and with the wonderful influx of immigrants into that portion of the province, there is every probability that this large tract will be soon let to small holders, as is the intention of Mr. Shatford.

J. F. Pringle, for eight years connected with the Enderby Flour Mills, has accepted the position of wheat buyer and elevator manager for the Columbia Flouring Mills Co., with headquarters at Lethbridge, N.W.T.

George Galt, of G. F. & J. Galt, who was on a trip to the west a week or two ago, has announced that the firm will withdraw their Edmonton business and locate it at Calgary, where a thousand-pound tea mixer will be established.

George W. Dunlop, of this city, has disposed of his commission business to Steacey & Cavanagh. Mr. Dunlop accepts the position of manager of the B. C. Broom Factory.

A branch of the United Commercial Travelers is being established in Vancouver, and an enthusiastic meeting was held last Saturday. Mr. James Beveridge being appointed chairman, and Mr. R. Phelps, secretary. It is expected that a charter will be here shortly, and a grand organization meeting held in Christmas week, when the boys will all be home. Much interest is being taken in the order here.

Mr. Oscar Brown, one of the most successful fruit commission merchants in the city, left this week on a two months' tour. He will visit Toronto, Montreal and other places, before returning via St. Louis.

NEW GRAIN EXCHANGE FOR WEST

The new grain exchange, of which there have been rumors in Winnipeg from time to time, has at last been formed and will be called "The Western Grain Exchange." There is no intention on the part of these forming the new exchange to be in any way antagonistic to the present Winnipeg Grain and Produce Exchange; they merely wish an association to protect those dealers who are not members of the present exchange, and who do not feel justified in investing so large a sum of money as the seats on the Winnipeg exchange now demand. Officers elected are: President, W. Gibbins; Vice-President, D. N. McLean; Secretary-Treas., Orville Glenn; Arbitration Board, N. T. McMillan, C. C. Robinson, Jacob Friesen, T. J. Noble, M. E. Collin; Board of Appeals, J. K. McLennan, Frank Parker, J. Dyck, D. N. McMillan and W. Gibbins. The membership has already reached 50; the number is limited to 100, the first 75 seats to be sold at $50 and the remaining 25 at $100 each.

TRADE WITH SOUTH AFRICA.

Trade returns received at the Department of Trade and Commerce denote that Canadian trade with Cape Colony is growing. For the calendar year of 1902 the importations from Canada amounted to but $218,469. In 1903 they grew to $1,198,902. This increase was undoubtedly due to the Canadian Government's action in subsidizing a direct line of steamers. During the same period imports into the Cape from the United States increased by about $7,000,000. Imports from Germany also increased, while those from Great Britain diminished by about $3,000,000.

NEW CHOCOLATE INDUSTRY IN MONTREAL.

A new chocolate industry has been started in Montreal during the past week. Mr. T. J. Leary, "The Chocolate Man," sold out his business in Winnipeg and removed to Montreal, opening a factory at 85-87 Place D'Youville. Coming from Chicago, where he was engaged in the manufacture of chocolate creams, bon bons, etc., he started a factory in Winnipeg and established a large sale for his products during the year and a half of his stay in that city. Being desirous of entering the larger eastern market, he selected Montreal, and the most encouraging prospects are evident here. Mr. Leary's specialty is high-grade "Colonial" chocolate creams and bon bons, bitter sweet chocolate, etc.

EXPORTING MORE GOODS.

The September statement of the London, Eng., Board of Trade shows a decrease of $11,886,000 in imports and an increase of $13,064,500 in exports.

Imports from Canada for the month of September were as follows:

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Oct. 8, 1904.

THE Hon. Clifford Sifton, Minister of the Interior, has great expectations of the yield of the 1904 crop, and he cabled Lord Strathcona, Canada's High Commissioner in London, respecting the crop conditions in the following terms :

"I am now able to state definitely that under conditions of unusual difficulty in the Northwest a fair average crop of wheat of good quality has been reaped, and is now secure from substantial damage. The reports of injury by frost and rust were grossly exaggerated. The wheat of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories will aggregate from 55 to 60 million bushels. Quality is good and the price is ranging around $1 per bushel."

All markets continue bright, active and fairly firm.

Sugar.

The market is now quite firm and very active, quoting Montreal granulated in barrels at $5.30; in sacks $5.20, and yellows at $4.70. The market still quotes Wallaceburgh at $5.20 in barrels and $5.10 in sacks.

Evaporated and Dried Fruit.

The market still continues quite firm. The first shipment of Valencia raisins, Treynor brand, is now available, the market quoting the price at $2.10 per box. Evaporated apples will be in the market about the first week in November.

Canned Fruits.

The market at present is firm but very active, the market quoting strawberries at $3.25 per case, raspberries $3 per case of 2 dozen, and peaches (1904 crop) 2-lb. yellow $3.75 per case, and 3-lb. yellow $5.75 per case. Pears are now available, 2-lb. F. B. at $3.25 per case, and 3-lb. F. B. at $4.25 per case.

Canned Vegetables.

The market continues firm in all lines, still quoting canned beans at $1.80 to $1.90 per case, and canned peas at $1.90 per case. A short crop in corn is reported owing to the effect of an untimely frost which will make this line of canned goods rather scarce. We will follow up with the corn quotations about the 15th of October.

Beans.

The market still continues to stiffen, but white beans are as yet still quoted at $1.07 per bushel.

Rolled Oats.

The market is now holding rolled oats at the slight advance of last week, and a general firmness is now reported

ADULTERATION OF FOOD PRODUCTS

THE question of adulteration of food products has, during the past few months, received close attention at the hands of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, and in some instances fines have been levied on manufacturers whose goods have been found, on analysis, to have been adulterated. The Grocer, as the organ of all manner of food product manufacturers, has at all times given close attention to the matter of pure food, etc., and at various times instances have been given where gross violations of the Act have been punished. It is regrettable that the Act, while in intention good, does not produce the effect contemplated by its promoters. Some of the provisions, notably the impositions of fines, are practically without effect as a deterrent. As is known some of the parties who have been fined were only unfortunate grocers, while the manufacturers escaped.

The Manufacturing Grocers section of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, at its last meeting in Montreal in March, discussed the adulteration question freely and action was brought to bear upon the Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue, in the direction of a stricter enforcement of the Act where flagrant cases were found, and it is to the credit of the Minister and his department, that action is being generally taken to see that the adulteration of food products is stopped. The Manufacturing Grocers' section of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has repeatedly urged the Minister of Inland Revenue to enforce the Act in accordance with the strict letter of the law, and this evidences the desire of the manufacturers that they are ready at all times to co-operate with the department in providing Canadian people with pure food. The late report of the department showed that out of 74 samples of jams and jellies gathered by inspectors in various parts of the country, only four were found genuine by the Government analyst in a sense of the definition claimed by the department, that "jam is fruit, cane sugar and water." This shows a rather unsatisfactory condition of affairs, and though in many cases such innocuous articles as turnips and glucose were employed, harmful adulterants such as coal tar dyes and salicylic acid were discovered freely. Regarding the adulteration of peppers, cloves, ginger, cinnamon, allspice and mixed spices, out of 189 samples collected only 88 were pure, and it was found in the case of the latter class of goods that stone, husks, shells, sweepings, charcoal, hair, chips and dirt, were found by the analyst as component parts of the goods. Such a condition of affairs is apt to make one shudder and suspect almost anything except nature's own products.

Adulteration Owing to Demand for Cheap Food.

Mr. Milton L. Hersey, the chief analyst of the City of Montreal, in submitting his annual report to the aldermen, drew attention to the fact that much food that is dangerous to health is being consumed in the city. This statement is open to doubt; because an analyst, not being a business man, naturally looks only to the scientific construction of the goods placed before him for analysis. Mr. Hersey's examinations covered such articles as cream, maple syrup, maple sugar, candy, sugar, honey, essence of lemon, coffee, canned salmon, canned tomatoes, pickles, cake, bread and flour. In reference to these articles he reported that many of them were often harmlessly adulterated. The main object of such adulteration seems to have been the desire to cheapen the quality of food in a way to effect their taste and appearance as little as possible and yet enable the goods to be sold at practically the price of pure goods. It would seem that as a general rule the cheapening of foods by the use of harmless adulterants is not entirely for the financial benefit of the manufacturers, but is done to a great extent owing to the demand of the majority of the consumers for as cheap a line of goods as possible, provided they are wholesome. As specific instances of adulteration, Mr. Hersey mentioned olive oil as being adulterated with cotton seed oil; maple sugar replaced in whole or part by brown sugar; maple syrup adulterated with glucose cane sugar and water; pepper with stones and pulverized nut shells; jellies and jams adulterated with apple jelly and artificially colored. He reported that there was a considerable adulteration of maple syrup, the principal adulterants being glucose and ordinary sugar cane. Mr. Hersey stated that these adulterants (that is glucose and cane) only cheapen the syrup for the manufacturer, but did not lessen its nutritive value. Maple sugar, he further stated, was also frequently harmlessly adulterated, the principal adulterant on the Canadian market at the present time being ordinary brown sugar and white granulated sugar.

To go into the question freely and completely would be a matter involving much time and detailed labor. The feature that strikes The Grocer is how far it would be consistent to endorse the placing on the market of goods in consumption, and as the field is rather large it has been thought well to take the case of maple sugar and maple syrup, which article, it may be stated, is essentially a Canadian product and one that has come under the Inland Revenue Act. Maple syrup is sold through Canada and enters into consumption freely, it is also an article that has received the attention of the department, as only last month a fine was imposed upon a syrup manufacturer in Sutton, Que. The Grocer has interviewed a number of leading maple syrup manufacturers and dealers in the east, and the question of adulteration has been found, in the case of maple syrup manufacturers, to be one of great elasticity.

Syrups Not Adulterated.

Col. Fred Welker, president of the Imperial Syrup Co., was interviewed and went into the question closely with The Grocer representative. Col. Welker stated that he was aware of the action of the Department of Inland Revenue, and while not desiring in any way to be considered as not in favor of enforcement of the Act, he thought that the question of what constituted an adulterant was one that should receive careful consideration by the department. An adulterant is something that is deleterious or foreign to the natural elements of the article to be adulterated.

The addition of ground cocoanut shells to pure Singapore pepper can be considered nothing more or less than an adulteration, as there is no affinity whatever between cocoanut shells and pepper. The same thing may be said as regards the addition of terra alba to baking powders. In the manufacture of syrups the addition of glucose should not be considered an adulteration, a certain percentage is only added by the manufacturer of syrups to preserve the proper consistency and to keep the syrup free from granulating or congealing.

Glucose being the purest kind of corn reduced to a predigested state is not an adulterant, and there should be no objection to its employment. As far as the products of the Imperial Syrup Co. are concerned, the colonel stated the discovery of any harmful adulterants would bring the finder a reward of $1,000. Maple sugar, as is well known, is made by the Canadian farmers, and there is no doubt that the use of granulated sugar has been resorted to by the farmer to increase his profit, granulated sugar being about half the price of maple sugar. The question is, can the addition of pure granulated sugar to the product of the maple be considered an adulteration by the Inland Revenue Department? Strictly speaking, granulated sugar is not an adulterant and is as pure and healthful as the maple product itself. It appears, however, that the judge, in the case referred to at Sweetsburg in August, considered the addition of granulated sugar as adulterating the maple sugar.

This is a question that should receive careful consideration at the hands of the department, and The Grocer cannot help but take the view that the Act is not intended to cover such cases too closely. Of course it must be admitted that when a person enters a store and asks for pure maple sugar or maple syrup, and pays the price for same, he should receive what he calls and pays for. The remedy it seems would be in branding the packages as mixed, blended or compound syrup and sugar, as the case may be. Maple syrup that has been scientifically mixed with a percentage of pure granulated suger is no less maple syrup in its blended form, than it would be in its pure form, as the elements are practically and identically the same. It is of course a well known fact that there are many impositions of maple syrup on the market which have never been near a maple sugar bush or have none of the elements of pure maple sap. These, of course, it is absolutely necessary to have taken off the market.

It is felt that if a strict interpretation of the Act as regards the use of granulated sugar with maple is carried out, it will result in the closing up of several large factories now engaged, and honestly so, in the manufacture of healthful food products. The closing of such factories in Canada would not prevent the sale of the goods on this market, as undoubtedly they would be manufactured in the United States and be imported into Canada.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Bernard Gallagher, Sr., wholesale meat merchant, of Moncton, N.B., died on October 8.

Mr. W. Moody, Berlin, Ont (Moody's Royal Blue) is a visitor to the Montreal and Quebec trade this week.

Mr. A. M. Piper, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., Toronto, was a visitor to the Montreal trade during the past week.

Mr. Jason S. Creed, agent for Lipton's jams, jellies and pickles, Montreal, is making a canvass of the trade in the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, Montreal, is enjoying the sights of the St. Louis Exposition during the next two weeks. Mr. Nishimura's particular interests will no doubt be centred in the tea section and the exhibits of his native land.

Mr. S. W. Laird, from the Peterboro mills of the American Cereal Co., has been soliciting the Montreal trade during the past few weeks. Quaker oats is this trip accompanied by a fine line of new premiums which are of interest and value to the retail trade.

Mr. C. L. Farnworth, representing the F. F. Dalley Co., Limited, Hamilton, in Eastern Ontario and Quebec, was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer this week. "Two in One" still seems to be a popular line, judging by the report of Mr. Farnworth.

Mr. J. McConnell, of Harriston, Ont., is dead. Mr. McConnell was formerly engaged in the grocery business in Chesley. After removing to Harriston in 1896 he became interested in the hardware trade and after selling out that business took a steady interest in the grocery business carried on in Harriston by his son W. McConnell.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Leach, of London, Ont., were among the few who celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding during the golden month of September. For the last twenty years Mr. and Mrs. Leach have resided in London, where Mr. Leach has conducted a profitable grocery business. The Canadian Grocer extends heartiest congratulations.

Two Japanese gentlemen prominently connected with the Imperial Agricultural Department of Japan were visitors to Montreal this week, Dr. Yoshishigo Otsuka, director of the Kiusiu Imperial Agricultural Experiment Station, at Kumamoto, and Hitoshi Nakamura, chief of the Agricultural Production, Department of Agriculture. The distinguished visitors have been attending the St. Louis Exposition as members of the International Jury Agricultural Department, Dr. Otsuka being vice-chairman. A flying trip is being made by them through Canada, and while in Montreal they made their headquarters at Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura's, of the Central Japan Tea Traders' Association. Their eastern tour will take in Boston and New York, returning via St. Louis and San Francisco.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, are expecting a car of Jamaica oranges, a car of Valencia onions and a consignment of fancy package figs. These package figs are a new line and according to rumors they will prove a profitable line both to the merchant and the consumer.

W. B. Stringer & Co., Toronto, have secured the Canadian agency for the famous "Star" brand of Mexican oranges packed by E. Luketich & Co., Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico.

A car of Jamaica oranges arrived for White & Co., Toronto, this week. The stock came in prime condition, having been shipped in cool storage lately installed in ships plying between Jamaica and New York. Waste and heating of fruit while in the ship's hold were thus prevented.

Apitezo, the new cereal, for which the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, are agents, is selling even better than expected. Jobbers report that they have more orders than they can fill, but the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. expect that they will immediately have sufficient stock here to supply all demands.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, is offering special values this week in Madame Hout's coffee, Condor Japan teas, Ceylon green and black and Indian black teas.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by John C. Kirkwood, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Pleasing Advertisements.

IT is difficult to over-emphasize the importance of a pleasing-looking advertisement. Such an advertisement attracts and holds the attention and wins the good opinion of the reader. Even poor copy may be made good on being well set up, just as a good suit of clothes seems to make an ordinary individual more estimable in public opinion. On the other hand, good copy may be ruined by poor display and poor type selection. There are submitted with this article two or three specimens of advertisements worth studying. It will be noticed that they are the acme of simplicity, and, while being of small size, are none the less striking. Their style can be reproduced in practically every printing office in the country. It is well to note the effect of the "white space" in these examples. White space is like ample ground surrounding a dwelling; like a silence preceding an announcement. It is an excellent expedient to command attention, and, being white, it is the perfection of simplicity.

Advertisements set up after the manner of the accompanying illustrations, while being as simple as can well be imagined, are rare. It is usually a long time before a writer of advertising, even a specialist, learns to prefer this style and to instruct his printer accordingly. It serves to illustrate afresh the old but true saying that simplicity is highest art.

Lessons in Advertising.

In next week's issue of The Grocer there will be begun a series of instructive papers on advertising. There is a widespread desire on the part of merchants, clerks and others for a working knowledge on the construction and preparation generally of advertisements. Courses on this subject by mail are provided by a number of institutions in the United States and at least two in Canada. Good instruction, however, so provided, which costs from $25 up to $50, or even more, is rather too expensive to suit the majority of people. Then, too, a good many who have begun a course of instruction by mail have failed to complete the course owing to the irksomeness of having to "do lessons" for examinations.

The Canadian Grocer, appreciating these several aspects of the problem, has undertaken to provide a series of study papers, and it is hoped that this new feature will prove beneficial to its many thousands of readers. While it is not the intention to set problems, yet any reader of The Grocer who wishes to ask questions, to have difficulties solved, or special points made clearer, is welcome to write the editor of this department, who is also the instructor, and a special letter in reply will be sent him. These study papers will appear once a month.

CONDITIONS AT PRESENT IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Mr. C. S. Rubin, formerly of Montreal, but now of Port Elizabeth, writes as follows of conditions in South Africa :

"There can be no gainsaying the fact that the wave of depression which has got South Africa in its grip is causing a serious amount of destitution all over the country. In all parts of the subcontinent this is the case, but, perhaps, Cape Town and Johannesburg are feeling the pinch even more acutely than other parts of the country. Unfortunately people at home will still persist in believing that they have only to come to South Africa and their fortunes are made. They will not believe that this country is still overshadowed with heavy clouds of depression. They, therefore, continue to flock to South Africa, which they foolishly believe is like Palestine of old, a land flowing with milk and honey, and in the end these new comers help to swell the ranks of the unemployed. Cape Town is their port of disembarkation, but they invariably make they way to Johannesburg—the Golden City which draws them to it like a magnet. Some, however, get no further than Cape Town, and so those two places suffer the most from this influx of population."

Pack Apples for Export in Barrels.

CONSIDERABLE discussion has arisen among Canadian apple shippers as to the proper package for the export trade. The consensus of opinion is that barrels are preferable to boxes notwithstanding the claim made by certain parties in Great Britain that smaller packages are coming more and more into general favor and will ultimately take the place of the regulation barrel.

By way of showing the actual opinion held by English buyers on the subject J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent for Hull and Leeds, Eng., has submitted a number of reports, which go to show that a large proportion of the English trade favors the barrel:

HULL.

"Barrels should be adhered to, best style of package and most acceptable to English buyers." "Favor barrels as heretofore, very poor opinion of box apple trade." One large firm here thinks "there is a good chance for an enterprising firm to introduce packing in boxes with success and profit; two sizes of boxes, 56 pounds, and 112 pounds, for finest fruit."

DONCASTER.

"Prefer barrels to boxes, but think barrel containing 9 stone (126 pounds) much better than the package used by Canadian shippers; 28 pound box is a nice package aqd more profitable for salesmen to handle, but only when freshly packed. Fruit does not keep as well in boxes, and wastes more quickly."

HUDDERSFIELD.

"Barrels are best providing packers use discretion in packing fruit in condition not to arrive in England over-ripe. Last year had large quantity of boxes of apples from the Canadian and West Indian Fruit Company, and they arrived very much bruised."

BRADFORD.

The Bradford Wholesale Fruit Association, at a meeting called for the purpose of discussing this question, decided "that the present in uniform barrels are the best packages for our town."

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

"Present mode of packing Canadian apples in barrels cannot be improved upon providing the fruit is packed sound, tight and uniform in sample; barrels are more preferable to handle than boxes, not so liable to be thrown about in transit by carriers."

NOTTINGHAM.

"Do not consider packers of Canadian apples can do better than stick to the barrels. Canadian apples packed in barrels always give satisfaction to every one connected with the business here. From time to time the growers have used boxes by way of experiment but this has never, in our judgment, been any advantage to the growers but rather the reverse and we should be sorry to have Canadian growers depart from this well established package."

Concerning the Canadian Export Trade.

THE Dominion Fruit Inspector at Montreal writes with reference to export apples that with the exception of "snows" and a few similar varieties the pack is coming fairly clean and in much better condition than last year. A great improvement is noticeable in the barrels.

J. Brown, inspector of the Department of Agriculture at Glasgow, reports that in connection with a recent shipment of Canadian Bartlett pears to that port, a noticeable feature was the fact that the pears which were wrapped in paper were firmer and in much better condition than those which were bare. This tends to confirm the opinion expressed by W. A. MacKinnon in his bulletin on the export pear trade, issued last year, that every pear which is shipped to Great Britain should be wrapped separately in paper.

To Examine Special Fruit Cars.

The Railway Commission, Ottawa, is sending J Hardwell, traffic officer, accompanied by a representative of the Canadian Fruit Growers' Association, and possibly a representative of the Canadian railway companies, to examine the special cars now used for the transportation of fruit in Canada and the United States, with instructions to make a thorough examination of such cars, gathering all the evidence they can, and report at an early date what they believe to be the best car. In coming to a conclusion they will consider the suitability of the car for carrying freight in hot and in cold weather, its adaptability for transporting other freight when not required for fruit, and the cost of building a car which will best meet the requirements.

It is hoped that in this way the vexed question of providing suitable cars for the shipment of fruit may be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Fruit Growers Combine.

The Annapolis Valley Fruit Estates, Limited, has been formed in Halifax to engage in fruit culture on a large scale in the Cornwallis and Annapolis Valleys. In addition to apples, small fruits will be cultivated as well as potatoes and other vegetables. The company will also erect a canning and vinegar plant, and a barrel and box factory for the manufacture of fruit packages.

High Price for Canadian Apples.

A cable from Liverpool says that first arrivals of Nova Scotia apples for the present season have brought phenomenal prices, namely, 24 shillings a barrel for best grades. The first steamers brought 54,000 bushels; the second, 51,000, and, at the height of the season, weekly imports may range from 200,000 to 250,000 bushels. The increased popularity of these apples proves that they are taking precedence of English. In addition to the quality being exceptionally good, they are put up in barrels and can be depended upon. In consequence of the large home and foreign crops, Canadian and American apples must be sold cheaply on the other side if they are to compete with English fruit this season.

Fruit Notes.

A project is on foot to acquire the extensive Ellis ranch in the Similkameen district, B.C., and open it up for fruit growing. The tract consists of 35,000 acres, and is thought to be fully equal to the famous Okonogan, which produces the finest fruit in British Columbia.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Canadian Flour and the West Indies.

THE Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa has received replies from a couple of its agents in the West Indies as to the opportunities for increasing sales of Canadian flour, and the favorite method of packing. The agent for Antigua, Montserrat and Dominica, reports that the flour trade is now wholly with the United States, and coolly suggests, as the only means of introducing Canadian, that it be exported via New York "without the word Canada appearing." In these islands the duty on flour is about $1.70 per barrel. The agent in Jamaica, on the other hand, reports that Canadian flour is in equal favor with that from the United States, and says that the only reason a larger business is not done is that Canadian millers do not take any pains whatever to cultivate the market. The duty in Jamaica is $1.92 per barrel.

OPINIONS OF PROMINENT EXPORTERS.

Mr. F. H. £nson, one of the prominent officials of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Montreal, smiled when he was shown the report of the Government agent in the West Indies. He said, with all due respect to Mr. Bryson, who signed the report, he considered it more of a joke than anything else. His company sold at least 75,000 barrels of flour last year in the West Indies; just what kind of flour they shipped, and how they shipped it, was really nobody's business but their own. He himself had lived in the West Indies and had studied all the conditions existing there. The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. intended to capture that trade, and he knew that they could do it. Already their New York office and warehouse had doubled its output within the year, and an immense quantity of that flour went direct to the West Indies. To illustrate how the shipping is done from New York he showed biils for amazingly small amounts of flour; that is, in places like Demerara, Antigua, and in fact any port in the West Indies, flour was not intended to be kept, so these bills which he showed recorded shipments of as small a quantity as two bags of flour, and then they ranged somewhat as follows: 20 bags, 65 bags, 25 barrels, etc. No small miller could undertake to ship flour to the West Indies, as many complex conditions, which entail great expense, have to be studied and thoroughly understood. As far as the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. is concerned they were not very likely to tell their business secrets to the Department of Trade and Commerce, or anyone else.

Mr. R. Neilson, export manager of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., Montreal, who was also seen in this connection, said that his company were not bothering about the West India trade at all. He believed that the complaint regarding Canadian flour, which referred to the quality not being able to stand the climate, was absurd. It was an old American dodge, he believed, in which they never took any stock. The chief trouble with the West India trade was, as far as they were concerned, that they could not ship flour there except on consignment. In this manner the receiver of the flour did not buy the flour, he simply got it shipped to him and the shippers risked the whole amount of its value, often receiving an indifferent price for it, and then only two or three months after it was shipped. It was a trade they might go after later on.

Mr. C. B. Watts, secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association, while enthusiastic about the possibilities of Canadian flour in the West Indies, hesitated to express an opinion on the particular phase of the Canadian trade outlined by Mr. Bryson, Canadian commercial agent for Antigua, Montserrat and Dominica. There were so many sides to the export flour trade that it was difficult to state one's attitude in a few words. Speaking generally, however, he would say that instead of doing away with the identity of Canadian flour the best and only means of pushing it in the West Indian markets was on its merits as a Canadian product. The prejudice against Canadian flour in Antigua, Montserrat and Dominica, however, was hardly to be looked upon as serious, since the total consumption of flour there was only 25,120 packages of 196 pounds each, and it would hardly break any Canadian exporting firm if they were to have to remain out of this market, particularly in the "superfine" flour referred to by Mr. Bryson in his report. It was in such grades as patents and strong bakers that Canada's hope rested, and it was only a matter of time and evolution until this article would become a staple in the West Indian market.

M. McLaughlin, of Toronto, said he had not been directly interested in the West Indian flour trade. He remembered, however, that certain Canadian flour milling firms tried to exploit West Indian markets many years ago, when the art of packing was not on the scientific basis it is to-day. Green wood barrels were used and very little care exercised in the packages generally. As a result, by the time the flour passed the tropics it was damaged, either from souring or otherwise. Quite naturally a prejudice was aroused against Canadian flour among the West Indian trade.

Mr. McLaughlin thought that the Canadian commercial agent for Antigua, Montserrat and Dominica must have been indulging in some such morsel of ancient history when he made the statement that the best means of overcoming the existing prejudice against Canadian flour would be to export via New York without the word Canadian appearing. There was no doubt but that Canadian flour exporters were holding their own in the West Indian market and that even their New York shipments compared favorably with anything sent from across the line.

Festive Gathering.

On Monday of last week newspaper men from all parts of the United States and Canada to the number of over two hundred were entertained by C. W. Post, of the Postum Cereal Co., at Battle Creek, Mich.

It is only nine years since the manufacture of Postum products was begun, whereas at the present time there are fourteen different factories engaged in the manufacture of the same. For advertising Postum Cereal and Grape-nuts over a million dollars is expended annually, and it is to this that Mr. Post ascribes his great success.

Re-burnt Grain.

A few weeks ago The Grocer referred editorially to the fact that a mixture of burnt grain, unfit for milling had been shipped out of the G.T.R. elevator at Point Edward, purporting to have been shipped out of parcels of wheat inspected No. 3 Northern at Fort William.

Meanwhile the Winnipeg Grain Exchange have taken up the matter, recognizing the seriousness of such grain getting into export shipments carrying the Government certificate, and at their last meeting adopted the following resolution:

"That the Government of Canada be requested to require elevators receiving graded grain at or east of Fort William to be licensed and bonded and subject to such restrictions as are necessary to insure the different grades being kept separate and distinct and to prevent any further occurences of such a mixture, and as far as possible secure the shipment of the identical grain received on account of each shipper."

Grain Surveyors Appointed.

The appointments of the Toronto Grain Survey Board have been completed during the week. The members of the board will be Thomas Flynn, W. D. Matthews, Hedley Shaw, John Carrick, H. N. Baird, C. W. Band, J. D. Flavelle, J. C. McKeggie, J. S. Spink and W. E. Milner. The board, which was constituted by the grain inspection act, will hear appeals from the decision of the grain inspector for the district of Toronto, and from their finding there will be no appeal.

Largest in the Empire.

Winnipeg is the second largest wheat market on the American continent, and the largest in the British Empire. Minneapolis takes the lead on this side of the Atlantic. The following table is interesting as it shows the amount of grain inspected at American points last year:

	Bushels.
Winnipeg	51,833,000

Grain Survey Board Appointed.

The Department of Trade and Commerce has notified the Board of Trade that the following persons have been named as a grain survey board to act in the district in which is situated the port of Montreal: Thos. A. Crane, C. B. Esdaile, Alex. McFee, J. S. Norris, A. G. Thomson and E. S. Jacques.

The following were named as a Board of Grain Examiners, in the same district, to examine and test the ability and fitness of applicants for certificates and qualification to act as chief inspectors, inspectors or deputy inspectors of grain: James Carruthers, C. B. Esdaile, E. S. Jacques, H. D. Metcalfe and A. G. Thomson.

Lake of Woods Milling Co. Meets.

At the annual meeting of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., held October 5, there were present T. Fyshe, who presided, Robert Meighen, David Russell, James N. Greenshields, S. Carsley, W. Strachan, Robert Reford, James Robinson, of Millerton, N.B.; R. E. Greenshields, George Smithers, Hon. Robert Mackay, John Hamilton, and Mr. Blackader. Mr. Meighen, as the active head of the company, made a statement, in which he remarked that not a dollar of profit had been made by the company in wheat speculation, and not a bushel of wheat had been purchased for speculation. For the past fifteen years the policy of the company had been against speculation, the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. confining itself to purchasing what was necessary for the mills. At times it was found that certain lots of wheat purchased had not come up to requirements, and this was immediately resold. Mr. Meighen's remarks gave great satisfaction to the shareholders.

The annual statement ending August 31, 1904, was presented and found satisfactory. The meeting was then adjourned until October 26, at which time the new board of directors will be elected.

Cereal Notes.

The Lake of the Woods Milling Co. reduced the price of flour in Victoria, B.C., 5c per barrel on October 1, thus making the f.o.b. price of flour the same in Victoria as in Vancouver.

Henry C. Reed, of Sackville, N.B.; Fred W. Emmerson, of Moncton; Hon. H. R. Emmerson, James Friel and H. R. Emmerson, jr., of Dorchester, N.B., have been incorporated as the Elgin Milling Company, with a capital of $10,000.

Mr. A. Gyorgy, agricultural commissioner of the Hungarian Government at London, Eng., is in Canada on a tour of inspection. He is investigating and reporting upon new varieties of wheat which might be cultivated with advantage in Hungary, as well as the organization and control of co-operative agricultural companies.

Dear Sir,--

We've just gone to press with a second edition of the new "Cow-brand Recipe Book" and shall be pleased to send you as many more copies as you can use to advantage.

At the rate business is growing, we judge we must be doing our part well. Our output this year is away beyond anything in the past, which is another way of spelling "satisfaction."

The best is none too good for the trade we're after. The more we do, the more we want to do. Kindly advise us if anything is wanted.

Respectfully,

JOHN DWIGHT & CO.

ONE of the principal objects of the canners' amalgamation was to reduce the cost of production to the lowest possible point, and at the same time improve the quality to the highest standard.

Sugar, Labels, Cases, Solder and Labor are considerably higher this season than in 1903. Notwithstanding this, our opening prices, so far as made, are lower than last season.

New Peas, Beans, Strawberries, Raspberries and Cherries are now ready for shipment. We are confident that quality will please, and think the present a favorable time to place your orders, and await your favors.

Story of a Cuban Tobacco Seed.

THE following sketch on the evolution of a Cuban tobacco seed has been written by Dr. Leonard Sisinau for the Western Tobacco Journal :

I don't really know how it came about, but this little seed, almost as small as the proverbial mustard seed, found itself struggling with a lot of other little seeds, millions and millions of them, falling, rolling, swinging together in a sack tied by a stout rope of majagua, which was swung over the rafter of a small Cuban farm house among the hills of Pinar del Rio. Strung on the stout rope was a piece of yagua (a stripping of palm) to protect the little seeds from their mortal enemies, the rats.

The sack had been suspended many weeks until it seemed as if the little seed had been forgotten and its germ of life would not be utilized, and its ambition to be a strong, sturdy plant, like its sire, frustrated, but such was not to be the case.

Our little hero seed, after much struggling and pushing, finally made its way to the top and rolled itself over near one of the largest pores of the sack, where it commanded a view of everything that took place in the house. Several smaller and envious seeds which rolled over too near the hole fell through onto the ground, where they were ignominiously gobbled up by the hungry little chickens which were hatched in an old box in the corner two weeks previously to the beginning of this story. Profiting by the lesson taught in the fate of its late companions our little seed esconced itself in a safe place, where any attempt at interference by the others was impossible, as they would also fall through the little hole on to the ground, there to be devoured by their feathered enemies, whose appetite never seemed to be satiated.

One evening the family who lived in the house were sitting around the room holding an animated discussion. Duenna Josefa, the mother, with Maria and Nieve, the two daughters, were seated at the table picking the stems from the tobacco leaves which Don Manuel, the father, produced from a tercio (bale), kept near the sack among the rafters. The women, after carefully sorting, rolled the leaves into rough cigars, which were promptly consumed by the men, Don Manuel, his son Juan, and Felipe his son-in-law, the husband of Maria. The topic of their conversation was where should the seed beds (semilleros), be made that year.

Our little seed could not tell the decision arrived at, but when, next morning, Juan and Felipe were busy putting edges on the axes and machetes, and Don Manuel, in sorting over sacks and mending them with strings of majagua, and significant glances and guesses were made by the family as to the weight of the sack in the rafters, our little seed knew that its fate was soon to be decided, when shortly afterwards it and all its companions were taken down in the sack and spread on the floor of the room, carefully sorted over, resacked and borne on the broad shoulders of Felipe to a cleared space on the steep side of the thickly wooded hill that shelters the house from the north winds. Our little seed was pitched headlong into a neatly made bed, in a very soft place in the black loam. However, others of its companions rolled off and were crushed under foot by the sowers ; more fell in groups in holes and fared very much as they did in the sack.

At first our little seed felt very lonely at being separated from its companions, and was somewhat frightened when the earth was spread and tamped over it—it thought that its end had come, and that its ambitions were to be unrealized, but these fears were soon dissipated by the new life that seemed infused into it by the warm, rich earth. A change seemed to be occurring in its vitals. They seemed to expand, to burst, to be drawn upward by some unseen force to the air, until at last it saw the light of day, and felt the warmth of the sun's rays.

How proud and happy then was our little seed at its evolution, and as every day it raised its proud little head higher and higher the more vain did it become. One day it received a shock by seeing, a little to one side, a lot of other plants rudely struggling one against the other for possession of the little space that could not support them all. One morning these disturbances were brought to an end by the hand of Felipe, who wrenched nearly all of them from the loam. Our little seed was among the survivors. Don Felipe removed a stone that sorely tried the patience of our little hero, and tucked the earth well around it and its little com-

Singing the Same Song.

You will have noticed how persistently we have solicited new accounts for our cigars. We have been successful in persuading some scores of grocers throughout Canada to open up a cigar department in addition to their tobacco department. There are a host of other grocers, however, who do not yet see eye to eye with us in this matter. It is to them, mainly, that we have been singing our song.

Now think upon it.

panions. Straight and strong it grew in spite of the hard winds and heavy showers. Many of its friends were swept away by the little rivulets as they coursed down the hill side. But Felipe, who watched over the welfare of this particular bed, seemed to single it out for special attention, until one day. horrors, it was ruthlessly pulled up, roots and all, with a great many of its fellows, tied together in a bundle and taken down to the house and covered with a wet sack. What new mortification! The poor little plant felt very bad, and its leaves became limp and turned a trifle yellow, and would have died had it not been taken out that very day with a good many more of its companions, and placed tenderly in a row in the revivifying earth. At first it seemed as if it would never have the strength or courage to raise its head any more, and the sun seemed to scorch as never before, and the earth was hard and cold. and far different to the rich loam on the hill side.

The next day Don Manuel came along carrying a dirty looking sack and sprinkled some of its contents around our little plant and more of its neighbors. Then it felt infused with new life, and that same afternoon they were blessed with a refreshing shower (aquacero), which made it feel grateful, happy and much stronger. Straighter, stronger than ever now it grew, proudly it opened itself in the morning to the sun's rays, which made the dew drops glisten like diamonds upon its leaves, and at even time it folded itself together and bent its head, as if to receive the benediction of the dying day.

There were several caterpillars and other destroying insects which tried to eat holes in its beautiful silky leaves, but the minute inspection that each plant was subjected to by different members of the family every second or third day saved it from thisdisgrace. When the showers were lacking the cool earth was well hoed around its stem and roots, and the little budding top leaves nipped off to make the under leaves larger, finer and stronger. Life for our little plant continued in this strain from Christmas to the end of March. The time was now come for the plant to enter in upon the life for which it was destined. Its ripened leaves were stripped from the plant and our hero began its new life.

As the leaf of our little plant was of the first (primera) class of wrapper, having no holes and with very fine veins and not coarsely marked, it was hung on a pole in a conspicuous place in the tobacco barn, so that when the buyers came around on a tour of inspection, during the curing of the leaf, it could make a good impression. Here it was transformed from the beautiful green of the fields to a rich, golden brown, which is so much in demand, and it became so crisp it could not bear handling until the rains fell, and the humidity of the atmosphere made it soft and flexible.

At the sorting (escojida) the leaves of our plant were counted among the best and placed in a bale (tercio) with many others, marked No. 1 (primera), and shipped to Havana, unpacked and repacked at the warehouse (for this was no common bale), and then it was hauled in one of those jolting two-wheeled Spanish carts called carretones to a large place, which had a big sign in front, " Fabrica de Tabaco."

There it was carefully unpacked in a large room filled with people of all colors, sitting at small desk-like tables making cigars. It was dampened and taken to a man at the head of the room who with two more men seemed to occupy a place apart from the rest. Then the leaves were left in his charge. He took them up and examined them carefully with his sensitive fingers. Over his face came a pleased smile, in approval and recognition of the superiority of the leaves of our plant, After being deftly smoothed out and cut they were wrapped around some filler of slightly inferior quality, but still high-class tobacco, which had the odor of that grown on the lowlands, and which, too, might have been wrapper but for the caterpillars which had eaten holes in their leaves, thus causing them to be classed as filler. All were from the Vuelta Abajo. Our plant has now evolved into ten aristocratic-looking cigars, and were placed in one little box, beautifully adorned, each with a golden girdle, sealed up and sent away to a foreign land.

* * * * * * * *

When these cigars were opened up to the light it was in a beautifnl salon of a fashionable club. These ten were handed to ten grave looking well dressed gentlemen. Their end in life was then accomplished. Their smoky souls mingled with the atmosphere, and their remains were deposited in the ash tray.

Value of Male and Female Labor.

THE girl cigar-maker in the East End, of London, Eng., who has been the means of causing a strike that has thrown 650 men and women out of employment, has, at the same time, brought into prominence the much-debated question of the relative value of men's and women's work. The cause of the strike was a simple affair, but it opens up a big question. The facts of the case were briefly these. The girl made a bad cigar, which was not only returned to her to remake, but the price of it was deducted from her wages, as is customary in the trade. On the other hand, male hands are not fined in this manner, and it is there the grievance is. What the girls demand is to be placed on the same terms as the men. It seems pretty obvious from official reports that women's labor cannot compete with men's. Granted that the girls' work is inferior to the men's, then it is only right that, whilst the man receives 4s. 3d. for 100 cigars, the girls should get only 3s. 6d. It is also proved that the women fail to get through the same quantity of work in the day, and their earnings in proportion are less. In this case the restriction imposed upon them of deducting from their wage is hard, for besides losing time that is precious to them, when they have to remake a cigar, they are also expected to relinquish part of their week's wages. As this rule does not apply to men, I think the women are quite right in desiring to be placed on the same footing in this regard only.

Tobacco Combine.

Meetings of the American, the Consolidated, and the Continental Tobacco Companies have been held to take action on the agreement for the consolidation of the three companies which was adopted by the derectors of the Consolidated Tobacco Co., on Sept 9. 1904.

The plan submitted proposes a consolidation of the three concerns with a total bond and stock liability of about $250,000,000, something like $110,000,000 less than the aggregate of that of the three companies at present. The merger plan has been postponed until Oct 17, in order to await the outcome of a suit against the combination.

Hints to Users of Tobacco.

Don't carry one or several cigars in the left or right upper waistcoat pocket. The body is a rare absorbent, and, especially in summer, with wide open pores, if tobacco is in close contact, there is likely to be an absorption of its principles which will result in vertigo, faintness and perhaps worse.

Enjoying the best of health, a certain smoker could not account for some very peculiar sensations at times which gave him the utmost alarm. Even in bed he would experience something approaching a sinking spell. He traced the cause to his carrying cigars in his waistcoat pocket.

There is an old standing tradition that cigars with spots on them are better than others. A smart American grower has invented a machine for sprinkling growing tobacco with a solution of potash to produce these spots. It need hardly be said that the whole idea is an absolute delusion. Tobacco for cigarette making is sprinkled with water before use. A London tobacco manufacturer has recently made the old discovery that the water from a well-known petrifying spring used for this purpcse gives the resulting cigarettes a most agreeable flavor, and cigarettes so manufactured will soon be on the market.

Tobacco Notes.

In England there are about 30,000 operatives engaged in the tobacco manufacturing trade, about one-fourth of whom are in London.

It is announced that the sales of Tuckett's Marguerite cigais for the month of September, 1904, reached the enormous total of 1,724,910.

The latest addition to the industries of Fort William, Ont., is the Fort William Cigar Co., which already is turning out an average of 1,500 cigars per day.

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

A marked improvement has taken place in the freights and charters for the week. The demand for ocean grain room has increased especially from western shippers. Considerable business has been done for October and November shipment; in fact scarcely any room is left for these two months. The impression is that it would be impossible to secure one hundred loads for the balance of the season, as a result a decided firmness has set in and agents are inclined to ask higher rates, which in some instances have been paid. Although the rates quoted are the ones in force some variations were made early in the week as a round lot of London room on spot was let at 1¾d. and at the same time agents were willing to take 3d. to Avonmouth. Agents are now asking 1s. to 1s. 3d. for Glasgow, but relets have been done at 9d. Flour space has been taken readily at steady rates.

SELF-HEATING CANS.

A novelty is being put on the Canadian market by the Self-Heating Can Company, of Norridgewock, Me., in the shape of a can which will itself heat the contents when so desired for use. This is done by having an inner can, which contains the fruit of vegetables which is enclosed in a large one. The intervening space is filled with unslacked lime and water in such shape that the two are kept apart until required. Then a blow by a punch attached to the can opens a passage for the water to come in contact with the lime and in about fifteen minutes sufficient heat is generated to prepare the contents for the table.

Mr. F. S. Jewett, treasurer of the company, is introducing it in Canada and has every expectation of its soon holding a strong position on the market. He is having his cans made at the Acme Can Works, Maisonneuve, and has nothing but praise for the businesslike and well-finished manner in which they fill their contracts with him.

TEA ROSE DRIPS

The Late

Philip D. Armour

said:

"There is nothing else on earth so annoying as procrastination in decisions."

And P. D. knew what he was talking about. Don't procrastinate — stock up with a good assortment of TEA ROSE DRIPS. It sells well.

How many of you who read the following paragraph will not perceive why Ceylon Teas are much more to be desired than teas grown and prepared by people who know not the beneficent influence of British management?

> The laboring force of a Ceylon Tea Estate consists generally of Tamil coolies. They are housed and medically attended at the cost of the Estate and their well being is carefully attended to.

You see that, quite apart from natural advantages, Teas grown in the island of Ceylon have a claim on the people of Anglo-Saxon instincts that no other teas, produced under inferior conditions, can possibly have.

None so Blind As Those Who Won't See.

THE CANADIAN GROCER can prove of valuable assistance to the selling end of any business which seeks trade among the grocery and general storekeepers of Canada.

We advance many plain, indisputable arguments to this effect.

And still there are some folks who can't see it.

Some who can't see how it's going to pay them.

And won't even invest a few dollars to find out.

Very few folks like this, but we would like to convince even them.

If we only could, we'd get a good deal of satisfaction out of it—and we know they would, too.

Don't you think they're blind to their own interests?

Here's a paper that finds a welcome in every worth-while grocery store from Halifax to Vancouver once every week—so can't you see that an announcement of any interest must surely command some attention?

The advertising columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER provide about the best way we know of keeping in close touch with all the grocers of Canada all the time.

You can see value in a paper like this—

"Don't pay freight on water."

Merchants of Canada, has it ever struck you how much money you pay out for freight on water that you buy in your Vinegar?

German Concentrated Grape Wine Vinegar is imported direct from the celebrated Rhine Wine District of Germany. Recommended by the highest medical authorities of Europe. Requires merely the addition of pure water—ready in two minutes.

1—This is an absolutely pure product of Grapes, made in the famous Rhine Wine district of Germany.

2—It contains no Alcohol, consequently will not form the very objectionable vinegar eels, or "mother."

3—Being put up in concentrated form, no freight is required to be paid on water and heavy barrels.

4—It will not freeze, consequently can be shipped at all times, and dealers need not stock in the fall for winter's trade, as is now done with ordinary Vinegars.

5—When diluted according to directions it is cheaper than other Vinegars.

6—For pickling purposes it is unequalled as it makes the pickles firm, and imparts a delicious flavor.

The foregoing are a few of the leading advantages of using Grape Wine Vinegar.

A trial will be a revelation to you.

Put up in Demijohns of 4 1 6 Imperial Gallons and 2 1-12 Imperial Gallons.

This is absolutely as fine a Tobasco Pepper Sauce as can be manufactured.

TWO DEALS ON BORAX AND BI-CARB. SODA.

We offer you the following special deals which are good for a limited time only:

PREMIER BORAX—Guaranteed absolutely pure, no better packed at any price.

1 lb. packages 24 lbs. in case, per lb. .10½
½ lb. " 24 lbs. in case, per lb. .11
¼ lb. " 24 lbs. in case, per lb. .11½

With each 5 cases we will give you one case of 24 1-lb. packages free. This is practically a discount of 20 per cent., which makes a low price for pure borax. If you have been buying borax at a less price than this, we suggest that you test same for purity. A very simple test is to drop a few drops of ordinary strong vinegar on the borax—if it effervesces it is not pure, but contains bi-carb. soda. We guarantee Premier absolutely pure, nothing better obtainable.

We also offer PREMIER BRAND BI-CARB. SODA, absolutely pure, high test, equal to any. Packed as follows:

1 lb. packages, 36 or 60 lb. boxes, .05 per lb.
½ lb. " 36 or 60 lb. boxes, .05 1-5
¼ lb. " 36 or 60 lb. boxes. .05 4-5 and one box free with each 5 boxes.

Both of the above are very attractive packages, packed at our own factory, so that we can safely guarantee every ounce of it to be the very best purest and highest test.

CANADA AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

BY OUR OWN REPRESENTATIVE.

CANADA, as she stands before the world at St. Louis, shows a profusion of natural wealth that crowns her as a queen among the nations of the earth. Displayed in all their native splendor and limitless extent are the abundant fruit of her soil, the wealth of her mines, the varied productions of her forests and the splendid resources of her waters.

Among the nations of the earth gathered at St. Louis, Canada appeared as the young and virgin child of the New World. The older nations brought art and invention and manufactured effects into service to augment their charms, but Canada needed none of these things. With her natural charms, she won to her side all who came within range.

The object of all the exhibits of Canadian produce was to point out the opportunities in Canada for the profitable investment of money to develop her resources. Judged by results this object was admirably carried out.

The Canadian Building.

The heart of Canada at St. Louis is the "Canadian Building"; it is a centre for all the exhibits, and to that building they all lead up. In the Agricultural Hall visitors see the products of the Canadian soil. They obtain literature descriptive of Canada as an agricultural land, which cordially invites them to visit the Canadian Building. In the Mines and Metallurgy Building can be had literature descriptive of Canada's mineral wealth, which also invites them to visit the Canadian Building for further information. The same is the case in the Forestry, Fish and Game and the Horticultural buildings.

Upon entering the Canadian Building a person is at once attracted by the sign "Free Water." A glass of good water is welcome at all times to tired and thirsty exhibition visitors. Thus the person is at once attracted to that part of the building.

Turning from the water stand the attention of the person is held by a set of eight paintings illustrating the progress of a successful settler in the Canadian Northwest. The first painting pictures the settler starting to break the prairie across an old buffalo trail. The second pictures the settler and his belongings after two and one-half years, showing a modest house, a small stable, a straw stack and some rows of newly planted fruit and shade trees. The third painting pictures an improved house and stable, and adds a barn to the scene; many cows are grazing instead of the solitary one of the second painting; the trees have also progressed; this is after five and one-half years. The fourth painting represents the result of seven and one-half years of life on the prairie; there is now a handsome house, surrounded by trees; the barn is more pretentious than two years before, and the stables are improved. The fifth painting represents what can be accomplished in ten years. In the foreground is an immense field of bending wheat, which is being cut with self-binders, and in the distance is pictured the house and barns nestling among the trees. The sixth painting pictures one of the peace-keepers of the Canadian Northwest, a mounted policeman, asking the settler to sign his patrol sheet, which he has to hand in on his return to his post. If the settler has any complaints to make they are promptly investigated. There are 500 of these mounted police in the Canadian Northwest, and every section of the country is regularly patrolled by them. They are in a position to give information and advice to new-comers unacquainted with the laws and customs of Canada.

Sheep-raising is pictured in the seventh painting. No shelter is provided, and the stock is out all the year round. The eighth painting pictures horse-breeding in the West, heavy stock being produced suitable for ploughing.

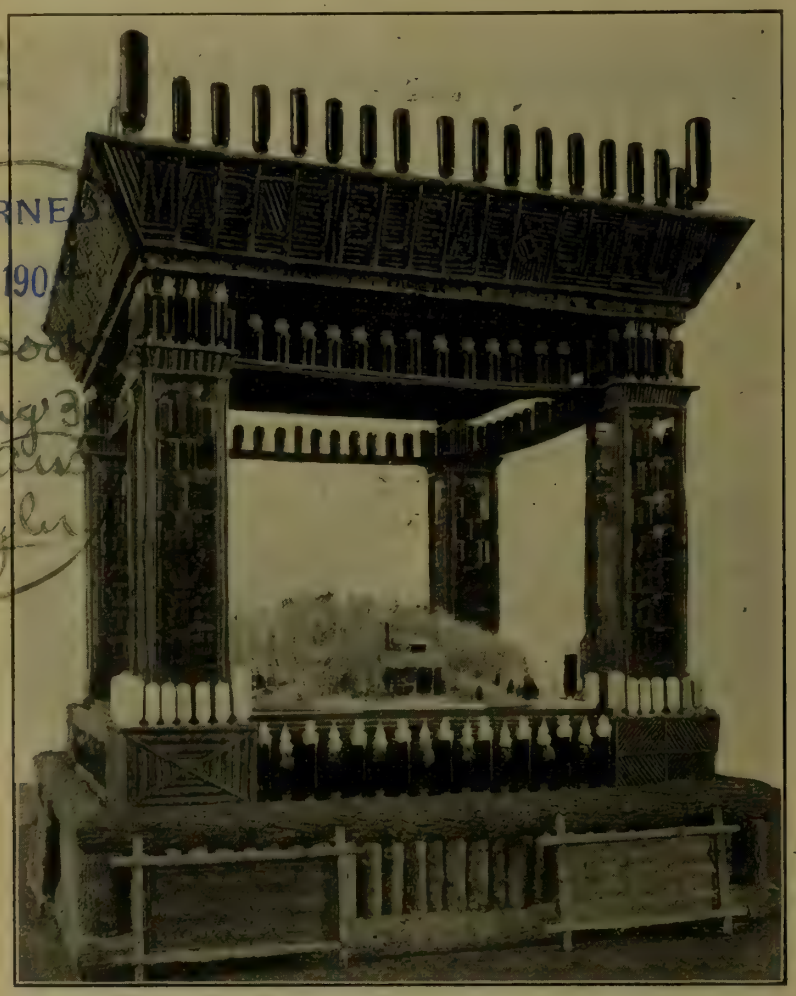
The visitor follows with much interest the settler through ten years of his life, and, as he turns from the last painting, his eye lights on a door marked "Information Bureau." Here is where he can find all about free farms in Canada and where and how to start life as the settler of the paintings has done. He goes in, and perhaps Canada adds one more name to her settler's list.

To the Canadian at St. Louis the Canadian Building is as a home. There he meets Canadian friends and acquaintances, and from the long table in the reception room he can pick up his beloved daily and peruse the happenings since his departure from his native city. In the building are neatly furnished sitting rooms, in one of which is a piano. On it one can relieve his pent-up patriotism by rolling forth the "Maple Leaf Forever" or other national airs. There is also a picture gallery of Canadian scenery, in which many a visitor has picked out familiar spots. The railing around the picture gallery is attractively decorated with symbols of the chase as carried on in Canada.

The accompanying illustration shows the style of architecture used in Canada's building.

Canada in Agricultural Hall.

Canada's claim to being one of the first wheat-producing countries in the world is well supported by her exhibit in the Agricultural Hall. The feature of the exhibit in that building is the immense and beautiful booth or reception room built up of Canadian grains and grasses. The booth is octahedron in shape, four of the sides being doorways draped with different grains. A shelf is let into the other four sides, on which are displayed in jars different Canadian grains. On each of the sides and above the doors and shelves is a painting picturing different breeds of cattle pastured in Canada. The inside of the booth is decorated beautifully with grains. The accompanying illustration gives some idea of the appearance of this booth, but it by no means does the original justice.



Canadian Maple Products at St. Louis Exposition.

The maple sugar booth is also a thing of great beauty as well as interest. As may be seen from the illustration the booth is built up of maple wood decorated with sugar and syrup. Inside the booth is a model maple forest showing the old and the new ways of making maple sugar and syrup. Valuable bits of information regarding the statistics of the maple syrup and sugar production are to be obtained from the exhibit. This booth is attractive in the extreme and calls forth much admiration.

Other features of the exhibit were two display stands of Canada's grain products, a very handsome display of honey, both in the comb and extracted; a display stand of preserved products of Canada's agricultural districts; four displays of goods manufactured from Canada's grains, and also of preserved dairy products; two display stands of Canadian made liquors; show cases of tobacco, leaf and plug, produced in Canada; and a stand of vegetables.

Scattered throughout the space are very handsome signs bearing inscriptions as:

"Visitors to the Exhibition are cordially invited to visit the Canadian Building, where a staff of efficient officers are in attendance to look after the comfort of all guests and to give information regarding Canada";

"During the year ending June 30, 1903, 49,408 declared settlers moved from the United States and settled on the fertile prairie of Western Canada";

"The wheat belt of Canada is almost 1,800 miles long by 400 miles wide, yet only a very small portion of this tract is under cultivation. It is predicted that within 10 or 15 years Canada will produce from 800 millions to one billion bushels of wheat";

"In the year 1902 40,000 farmers in Western Canada produced $40,000,000 worth of farm produce."

Agriculture is at the present time the first industry of importance in Canada. About 46 per cent. of the population make their living directly from the products of the soil. There is great progress being manifested in this industry. In ten years the increase of land under crop has been 4,000,000 acres. At the same time the methods of cultivating and maintaining the fertility of the land have been greatly improved. The value of Canada's exports of agricultural products has also increased very considerably during the last ten years. In 1893 the value of her exports was $29,250,000, while in 1903 it was $44,000,000. Great progress has also been made in stock raising and dairying. Since 1893 the value of the exports of animals and their products has increased by $37,200,000, over 50 per cent. increase. The value of cheese exported has increased sice 1893 from $13,500,000 to $24,750,000; and the value of butter exported has since 1893 increased from $1,297,000 to $6,955,000.

Agricultural pursuits in Canada are promoted by both the Dominion and Provincial Governments. In Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia there are special agricultural colleges for the teaching of farming on a scientific basis. There are also dairy schools in different parts of Canada where practical lessons in up-to-date dairying may be had. The Dominion Government has also established experimental farms in different places in the country where experiments are conducted to gain information as to the best methods of preparing the ground for crop and of maintaining its fertility, the most useful crops to grow, and how the various crops can be disposed of most profitably.

Agriculture in Canada has made great progress and will continue to do so. The area of land under cultivation is quite small in comparison to the immense area of good soil still unoccupied. Therefore Canada has still plenty of room for development along this line.

In the Mines Building.

Of the countries or states Canada has the largest space in the Mines and Metallurgy Hall, and unlike that of some others, this space is well utilized. The exhibit brings forth words of admiration from all visitors. The feature of the exhibit and the most handsome thing in the building is the immense vault, inside of which and behind iron bars and glass is shown a large quantity of Klondike gold, the largest exhibit of gold in the building. This vault is built up of minerals, including gold quartz and limonite from Nova Scotia, alabaster from New Brunswick, copper ore, purple and yellow, from Quebec, apatite from Quebec, jasper conglomerate and sodolite from Ontario, and gold and copper ore from British Columbia. The accompanying illustration gives an idea of the beautiful appearance presented by this vault, although no idea can be gained of the exquisite color effect given by the various ores. "Canada" stands out from the white alabaster background in copper ore.

Other special attractions of the exhibit are a large case of mica from Ontario and Quebec, a pyramid of graphite from Renfrew County, Ont.; an exhibit of corundum in its natural form, in its ground forms and in the manufactured form of grinding wheels; a pyramid of cobalt, nickel and silver ores from Ontario; an exhibit of Canadian building stones, including granite from Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, sandstone from Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, syenite from Frontenac County, Ont., and from Quebec; limestone from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec; a small pyramid of nickel and copper ore from Sudbury District, Ont., and also a large pyramid of nickel ore from the same district; a pile of metallic nickel and copper ingots made from Sudbury ores; a series of coal pyramids representing coal from British Columbia, from the Northwest Territories, from Nova Scotia and from New Brunswick; a large case of asbestos; a pyramid of phosphate of lime from Quebec; a large pyramid of iron ores from Nova Scotia; a large rock of silver ore from Kootenay, B.C.; and a pyramid of gold quartz. There were also many handsome little showcases displaying minerals of all kinds found in Canada, including silver lead ores, mica, gold milling ores, copper ores, gold copper ores, gold, silver and copper ores, gold smelting ores, native copper, manganese ores, iron ores, antimony ores and gold quartz.

Canadian Exhibit in the Mines Building, St. Louis Exposition.

The best exhibit of natural and manufactured mineral oils is also to be found in Canada's space.

Such interesting and in some cases surprising bits of information as the following were displayed in a similar way to that employed in the Agricultural Hall:

"Canada produces over 85 per cent. of the world's total production of corundum. The mines are in the Province of Ontario";

"Canada supplies over 90 per cent. of the world's total production of asbestos";

"Canada produces more than half the world's supply of nickel. The mines are in the Sudbury District, Province of Ontario";

"Canada is the largest producer of mica for electrical purposes in the world";

"The mineral production of Canada for 1903 was $63,226,510, an increase in ten years of over $43,000,000";

The mining industry in Canada is merely in its infancy. There are unlimited resources for this industry yet untouched and even unexplored. However, rapid progress is now being made owing to the opening up of mining districts by the building of railways, and within a few years, when all the railways that are now projected have been built, mining will be an industry of first importance in Canada. Since 1886 the value of minerals produced in Canada has increased from $2.23 per head to $11.29 per head.

Canada's Forestry.

Canada has two forestry exhibits at the fair, one in the Forestry, Fish and Game Building and the other in a pretty little building near the Canadian Building. The former is a general forestry exhibit, including fish and game, while the latter consists chiefly of pulp wood. The exhibit in the Forestry, Fish and Game Building is attractive in the extreme, it being without doubt the prettiest thing in the building. The exhibit consists of a double rustic work arch. This rustic work is built up with over 3,000 varieties of wood, all grown in Canada, although some on experimental farms only.

There are also exhibited polished woods, including elm, oak, maple, birch, white pine, butternut, ash, bird's-eye maple, sycamore, cherry, spruce, cedar, and pine.

Canada's game is represented by stuffed animals and birds in cases beneath the rustic arch. The varieties of birds include: The owl, grouse, blue jay, American avocet, godwit, phalarope, American bittern, prairie hen, hawk, ptarmigan, ducks of all kinds, naturalized English pheasant, and spoonbill. Among the animals were: The black bear, musk-ox, wolverine, timber wolf, beaver, squirrels, jack rabbits, brown bear, weasel, otter, grizzly bear, fox, hare, polar bear, lynx, porcupine, muskrat, badger, marten, and Virginian deer.

Exhibit of Canadian Wines and Canned Goods at St. Louis Exposition.

Canada's fisheries are also fittingly represented by stuffed fish of different kinds.

Canada's exhibit of live beaver in the Forestry, Fish and Game Building attracted considerable attention, and evoked much favorable criticism. A living exhibit always appeals strongly to the people.

In the Forestry Building, as in the other buildings, those concise statements met the eye everywhere. Examples of them are:

"The dimensions of our great forests are so vast that they seem almost incredible; it is estimated that we have no less than 2,590,000 square miles of forest and woodland."

"In the Province of Quebec alone the standing timber, exclusive of pulp and undersized trees, is 60,000,000,000 feet of lumber."

The space Canada was able to secure in the Forestry, Fish and Game Building is inadequate for the exhibiting of her forest wealth as it deserves, and a separate building was built near the Canadian Building where pulp woods and others are shown. As you enter the building you are confronted with logs of different Canadian trees. Among them are some mighty ones, chief of which is the Douglas fir, native of British Columbia. The central feature of the exhibit is the pyramid of pulp woods, the best of which are spruce, balsam, poplar and pine, in the order named. There is also exhibited slabs of polished wood and piles of tan-bark.

When the first settlers came to Canada the country for the most part was one vast forest, and thus lumbering has always been and is a very important industry. The products of the forest have been among Canada's chief exports. At first the raw material was exported exclusively, but as the country expanded manufacturing industries sprung up, and manufactured products began to take the place of the raw material.

The manufacture of wood products in Canada and the exporting of the manufactured product instead of the raw material, is encouraged by legislation. In Ontario the export of pine, spruce and other soft woods in the log, when derived from lands leased from the Province, is prohibited; and in Quebec $1.50 per cord on stumpage dues is allowed on wood from which pulp is manufactured in the Province.

Laws have been made having for their object the preservation of the forests, and although very little re-foresting of denuded areas has been done so far, preliminary investigations are being made with that object in view.

In the Horticultural Building.

Canada's fruit exhibit in the Horticultural Building is very attractive, the devices for the fruit display being very good indeed. Next to California, Canada probably has the best exhibit in the building. The photographs that have been taken fail to do the exhibit justice.

Of course the unrivaled Canadian apple figured most prominently, although pears, peaches, grapes, plums and other small fruits are not neglected.

Canada's fruit trade, both foreign and domestic, has developed during the last 50 years. Before that time there were practically no fruit exports. Now Canada's fruit exports to the Old Country are immense, and are steadily increasing. This trade is getting great help from the fruit growers' associations, experimental stations, agricultural colleges and fruit inspectors. The grower is becoming more expert in the growing, the handling, the packing and the shipping of fruit, and thus fewer complaints are now being heard from the consumer than formerly.

Something to be Proud of.

No Canadian having seen Canada at the World's Fair need be at all ashamed of his country as there represented. The nature and appearance of the exhibits are indicative of the foundation on which a great country is being built up, and also of the enlightenment and progressiveness of the people that are building up the nation. A touch of refinement is given to Canada at St. Louis by her contribution to the Fine Arts Building. The presence of those paintings indicate that in the hurry and bustle of development and expansion the finer arts of life are not being neglected.

There is still another side of Canada at St. Louis, namely, the military side. The Canadian militia was represented at the World's Fair for a week by the Essex Fusiliers, under the command of Colonel Bartlett. The red coats made no slight impression in St. Louis, and while there became very popular among all with whom they came in contact.

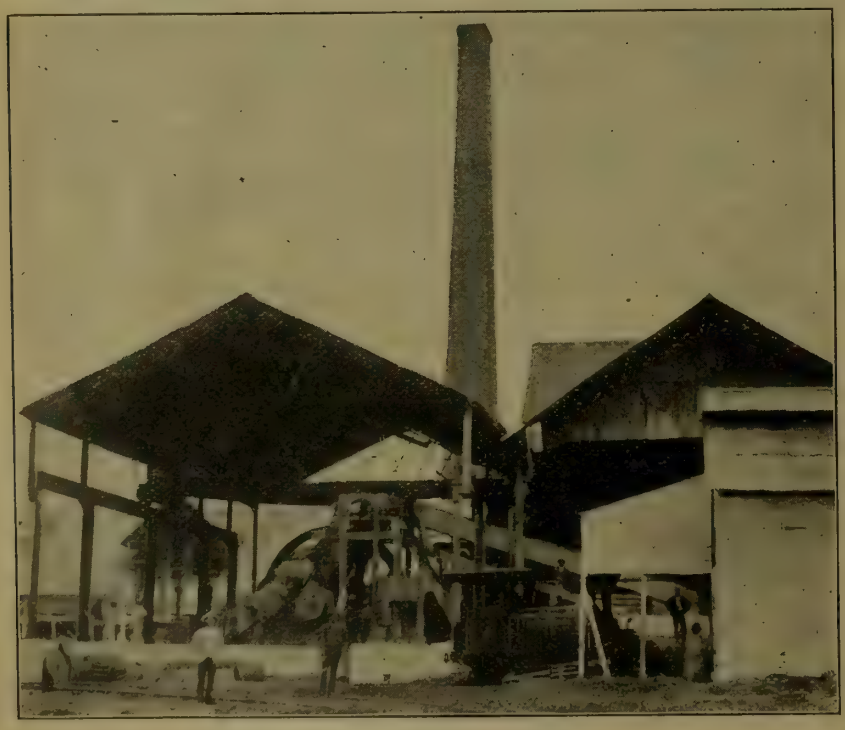
THE SUGAR CANE OF THE WEST INDIES

Written Specially for THE CANADIAN GROCER by J. Russell Murray, British Commissioner to the West Indies.

THE wheat fields of the prairie lands of the great Northwest are always associated with the name of Canada; and, in like manner, the sugar cane is ever associated with the West India Islands. Thirty or forty years ago the West Indian sugar planter was a synonym of wealth and affluence. But, alas, these days are gone. The sugar beet cultivation of Europe was nursed and cared for, and, finally, with the assistance of science and the parental care of the respective governments, who stimulated its extension by ever-increasing bounties, the industry assumed enormous proportions. The bounty system enabled European beet sugar to be sold much below the cost of production, and, hence, the sugar cane planter of the West Indies began to see days of trouble, ever increasing, over a period of a quarter of a century. These days of loss and depression seem to have gone by, however, and a new era is now dawning upon these long sorely tried islands. The bounties have been abolished, the price of sugar to the continental consumer has been greatly reduced, and the consumption having largely increased, cane sugar can now compete on fair terms with its contemporary.



Near View of Sugar Mill, Trinidad.

To give some idea of a sugar cane plantation, the reader must dis-associate his mind with all northern classes of farming. In the first instance, the land is heavily drained with open drains 12 to 18 inches wide, making the fields into a series of beds or banks 20 feet in width. In the best plantations the land is ploughed or forked by hand labor, and thus prepared for planting. In many cases holes 24 inches square and about 9 inches in depth, are made about 4 feet apart, into which the plants are put. But the plants, whence come they? These are what are known as "Cane Plants,"—merely the tops of the canes at the points where the leaves branch out, and are obtained in quantities when reaping is in progress. In due time these "Cane Plants," 12 inches long, are carted to adjoining fields to be planted by the hoe or small crowbar.

The planting is done during the months of March, April and May; the cane is ready for reaping the end of the following crop season, that is, when the canes are from 12 to 14 months old. As soon as they have been reaped the ground is ploughed or forked, the roots of the cane springing up again and being called "first ratoons." These are reaped again the following season and, where the land is good and fertile, the roots or "stools," are re-cultivated for a third year, after which the land is entirely re-ploughed and freshly planted.

Cutting Sugar-Cane, Trinidad.

The growth of the sugar cane is not unlike Indian corn in the early stages. In about six to eight months it shows the fully developed cane, which throws out its "arrow," transforming the whole appearance of the field from green to silvery grey.

The beginning of crop gathering is always looked forward to with the greatest pleasure by the laborers. It means to them ample and continuous work with fair remuneration. To the staff of the plantation it involves immense labor and long hours, as many of the larger factories stop daily but for a short time about midnight. Few people in northern countries realize the immense strain on the staff, from overseer to manager, during the ten or twelve weeks that the grinding continues.

The cutting of the canes is done by hand, the cutlass being the instrument used. In all the larger estates the cut canes are conveyed to the factory by private railways intersecting the plantation. Arriving at the mill, they are unloaded alongside the travelling carrier, which slowly feeds the great revolving crushing rollers, the first operation at the mill house. The cane juice then running down through strainers is pumped up to the various clarifiers and subsiders, and when purified, again flows on to the open coppers or vacuum pan, where the boiling is carried out until the crystal is formed and the pan emptied into coolers, from whence it is carried to the centrifugals. Here, in this rapidly revolving machine, making 1,600 to 2,000 revolutions a minute, the sugar is freed from the syrup and made ready for bagging. It is in this machine also that the crystals are washed, to make white crystalized sugar. Sugars dried in the centrifugal are always thoroughly dry as compared with the hhd. drained sugars, such as Muscovadoes.

These first sugars from the vacuum pan are called "Centrifugals," or "Crystals," the syrup from which, being reboiled later on, makes what is called syrup or molasses sugars, many of which are admirable grocery sugars. Again molasses is obtained in the drying of these, and after a lapse of time, is once more boiled to make a third sugar, the molasses from this being used for rum making or stock feeding. Muscovado sugar is boiled in the open pan, and when it reaches the crystalizing state it is ladled out into the coolers, and afterwards filled into hogsheads to drain. It is the molasses from these sugars that is so highly prized for grocery purposes.

The yield of sugar is a very important item to the planter, and elaborate tests are made by the chemist of the estate to watch this factor so as to enable the manager to direct effectively the cultivation under his care. An acre of canes of first-year growth will yield 30 to 35 tons, which in turn should yield about 2 to 2¼ tons of sugar. Usually one gallon of juice will yield about one pound of sugar and an acre about 5,500 gallons of cane juice. Each succeeding year, however, that is, the second and third, there is a diminution of quantity.

By the end of May all reaping should be over, as the rains begin to set in it becomes difficult then to cart cut canes from the fields, besides, the labor is required for cultivating, in order to give the new crop a good start. By April, May and June in the West Indies at least, the sugar fast finds its way north by every outgoing steamer or sailing ship; the latter, however, is a rarity now; the old order has changed, and the West India merchantman, the pride of the sailor, has become almost a matter of history. The regular liner and the "tramp" steamer are now utilized to convey to the north the product of one of the finest products of the tropics.

HOW THEY GROW.

Wrapping papers do not suggest a very inviting or entertaining subject of conversation to most people, yet there are some men who would rather talk wrapping papers than eat. These men make their living out of wrapping paper: they either make or sell it.

Douglas & Ratcliffe, of Toronto, belong to the less numerous class mentioned above. They used to be with the old Taylor Bros. firm, and did nothing but eat, sleep and talk paper.

It was only natural that they should go into business for themselves, which happened five and a half years ago. They have prospered in this period. From a modest beginning they have developed into one of the leading concerns in the Canadian trade. Their warehouse on the corner of Colborne and Market streets, Toronto, is a hive of industry, and everything is in ship shape order. The firm prides itself on its excellent service to the buying trade, one of their hobbies being quick deliveries. In the city this is a question of the first importance. Two-horse drays have been dropped and a double number of single-horse drays substituted. The 'phone service has been increased and express carriers brought into requisition, all with the one object of serving a customer with a maximum of speed. Such progressiveness can have only one reward—namely, increased business.

Douglas & Ratcliff make frequent journeys to New York and Chicago to absorb ideas, get inspiration and bring back with them the newest and best things they come across. In this way they have introduced several lines to the Canadian trade that have met with great success.

Goodall Bros., grocers, Ottawa, have removed to 305 Wellington street.

CROCKERY DEPARTMENT

New Ideas for the Holiday Season.

THE GROCER has completed its annual Fall tour of Canadian wholesale china, crockery and glassware houses and has pleasure in offering its readers a few seasonable suggestions in the way of novelties being offered for the holiday and Winter trade.

LAMPS.

The newest feature in lamps is a very large hall hanging lamp, in brass with ruby and crystal globe, to retail at $2 and $2.25. Another attractive novelty, which will appeal particularly to the grocer and small general merchant, is an assortment of small glass lamps in packages containing half a dozen different decorations. Heretofore it has been practically out of the question for the smaller merchant to carry any assortment of cheap lines; the new package, in which no two lamps are alike, will undoubtedly fill a long-felt want.

JARDINIERES.

There have been no radical changes in the style of jardiniere most popular this season. Floral and conventional designs are in equal demand, while among the newest goods shown are dark colored and lightly tinted effects. The rich blue with stippled gold decorations is still a favorite; a number of recent importations, however, have heavy floral outlines in matted effects covered with a corresponding miniature floral design.

Dark effects in two or three contrasting colors with embossed conventional designs are also shown. One of the most attractive of recent designs from the English potteries is tinted shading from dark green at the bottom and top to a pale tint in the centre. Extending diagonally all round the jardiniere is a heavy embossed design in mauve tulips and green leaves. A few Oriental designs are seen, these, however, appeal only to the fancy trade, and their popularity is rapidly waning.

GLASSWARE.

What promises to be one of the most attractive lines of glassware this season is a package assortment of etched goods in handsome shapes, such as trays, bon-bon dishes, etc., with artistically painted designs and gilt decorations. These will retail at 10, 25 and 35c respectively, and are sold in assortments to suit the smallest dealer.

CHINA.

The assorted packages of fancy decorated china, in rich colors and floral and Watteau patterns, mentioned in the last special number of The Grocer, have taken a firm hold on the trade, and are proving one of the most attractive lines on the market. Another ready seller is a stock pattern in plain white with fancy decorated gold bands. It need not be mentioned that all the old stock patterns are shown, and that a big proportion of the season's sales are in these lines, which require no other recommendation than the name. In fancy cups and saucers there are a large number of new designs, not only in English, but German china, which will undoubtedly be largely stocked by the retail grocer and general merchant for the holiday trade.

China and Glassware Trade in Canada.

THE following figures represent the importations of china, crockery and glassware into Canada for the last five years. The revised figures for 1904 are not yet available. They are estimated in part, however, as follows: Earthenware, china and graniteware, $1,611,356, of which $961,806 came from Great Britain, $235,857 from the United States and $413,693 from other countries. Returns for glassware to date have not been made separately, but these will bring up the total to considerably over the $2,000,000 mark.

In connection with the Canadian trade in earthenware, crockery and graniteware it may interest readers of The Canadian Grocer to know in what direction the import trade is tending. Great Britain in 1899 and 1903 sent us goods to the value of $575,970 and $785,270. The United States came second with exports to Canada totalling $136,254 and $258,665 respectively; Germany had third place, her exports to this country totalling $98,504 and $225,067 in these two years. The recent tariff revisions have already shown a tendency to curtail the volume of German importations in crockery, china, etc., the bulk of which will now be directed to Great Britain. After Germany in order comes France with $37,999 and $62,025, Japan with $21,114 and $32,788 and Austria-Hungary with $27,617 and $17,808. A considerable import trade in china, etc., is also carried on with Belgium, China, Holland and Italy.

The manufacture of pottery, etc., in Canada within the last few years has become an increasingly important item, and it goes without saying that a very considerable proportion of the requirements of the home market at the present time is being met by domestic manufacturers.

Scotch Motto Ware.

ONE of the most striking and attractive lines of fancy pottery ever shown in the Canadian market is on view at Barnard & Holland Co.'s, Montreal. Their show window, in which are displayed specimens of this ware, has attracted great attention. We refer to their Scotch Motto ware (which, by the way, is made in England). There is a vast difference between the quality of these goods and some lines of motto ware that have been seen; a piece of it is sufficiently artistic to please the connoisseur of pottery ware, and, at the same time, not too expensive for moderate-sized pockets. The articles in the assortment shown by Barnard & Holland can be retailed at from 30c up to the highest-priced piece paying a good profit at $1.25. The puzzle jug will create great amusement. The mottos are too numerous to mention, but "Help yersel tae the sugar" on a sugar bowl, and "Be canny wi' the cream" on a cream jug, are very suggestive and appropriate.

For High-Class Trade.

NEVER a season passes but brings a large number of fresh productions from the china and pottery manufactory.

Among the most attractive importations from the English potteries for the 1904 Fall and Winter trade are several rich designs in Crown Derby pattern which will appeal unquestionably to the connoisseur of fine china. A series of fancy plates and vases copied from the "Royal Vienna" styles are distinctively rich and beautiful. Almost any china and crockery dealer or general merchant having a select town trade should carry some of this new "Royal Vienna" goods. The original patterns cost as high as $25; the new lines, which are faithful reproductions of the originals, retail as low as $1 to $3.50.

In smallwares the call is for grotesque bisque ornaments, which are shown in an almost infinite variety of styles. These are dainty and small in size, and particularly suitable for euchre prizes, etc. Small bronze ornaments will be as much, if not more, in demand than last season; the styles are for the most part copied from "art nouveau" patterns, small figures in the shape of ash and match trays and calling card receptacles being especially in evidence. Bronzes are no longer beyond the reach of the ordinary purse, as a walk through a modern china and fancy goods warehouse will show.

A line of fancy glassware that promises to be popular is a reproduction of the celebrated "Tiffany" pattern in attractive shapes with iridescent finish. In cut glass the newest wrinkle is olive and bon-bon trays in flat shapes mounted on stems from four to six inches high. These retail at from $4 to $6.

The Copp lamp in rich colors is still a favorite. It is not so new, however, as the lamp with brushed brass fount and fixtures and dull white globe in antique and colonial style. A big assortment of night lamps with satin etched finish or Copp colors is also shown. In an expensive lamp the conventional Dutch lamp of brass and dull white metal in conventional designs with square shade of open work metal to show through a translucent glass shade of Dutch blue and mauve color is the most beautiful pattern shown for some time.

Technical Schools for Ceramic Industries

THE following data in regard to technical instruction in the manufacture of pottery in Germany is taken from a recent Government report by the British Consul at Stuttgart.

The special technical schools for the ceramic industries in Germany are four in number, namely those situated at Hohr, Bunzlau, Lauban, and at Landshut. All four schools are situated in the midst of the industries they are intended to promote, their aim being to afford a thorough combined theoretical and practical workshop instruction, and to train young persons for future positions as owners, managers, foremen, painters and modellers in the various branches of the ceramic industries.

Pupils are instructed not only in the chemical, technical and physical changes which take place during the process of manufacture, but also in all preparatory manual and artistic work.

Besides the general training in ceramic manufacturing work, the instruction is so arranged that pupils may devote themselves to the special study of any particular branch, such as painting, modelling or chemistry. Both day and evening instruction is given, the former, however, being more important, and comprising the principal work of the school. The full course of instruction lasts two years, but a further course has been arranged for those pupils who wish to continue their studies.

The teaching staff consists of seven masters, including a sculptor, painter, chemist, two elementary schoolmasters, and two foremen of the pottery trades. This staff of seven persons deals with a total attendance (for 1903) of 74 pupils —22 in the day and 52 in the evening school. Pupils for the day school must be at least fourteen years old, and have completed the course at the elementary schools. A period of previous practical work of at least one year is considered to be desirable, but is not insisted upon. For the evening school the age limit is reduced to twelve for such boys who show aptitude for the pottery trades, and who attend the evening school as a preparation for entrance to the day school.

The fees amount to £1 per annum for pupils from the district, to £1 10s for other Germans, up to £7 10s for foreigners. The evening schools cost only

For the Holiday Trade.

The trade will have a wide range of choice in chinaware for the Christmas trade this season despite the 10 per cent. surtax, and dealers say that the lines they are showing this year surpass anything heretofore put on the market. Taylor & Mulveney, of Hamilton, are particularly proud of the stock they are showing this season in German, Austrian and French wares with schemes of decoration ranging from plain to elaborate. A specialty offered is in china salad bowls, to sell from 50c to $1 each, also cocoa pots, lemonade tankards, hot water jugs and tea, sugar and cream sets. Some original shapes are shown in these lines, and a number of fine French china sets of three pieces can be bought at $4 per dozen to sell at 50c the set. Austrian glass, lemonade sets and fancy vases are also a noticeable line in these warerooms. In finer lines cut glass ware, Limoges china, dinner sets and Royal Vienna make a most attractive showing. The firm's travelers are now on the road, and a card to the head office at H amilton will insure a call with a large range of samples.

Automatic Sealer.

One of the most acceptable of recent offerings to the trade in staple lines is the "Schram" automatic sealer, which marks a high-water mark in the science of fruit preserving.

The Schram jar cap of aluminum and high-grade rubber is placed on top of the jar and with slight pressure forced to proper position after having been moistened. To unseal, slip the heel of a table knife under the cap and raise the wrist. The peculiar construction of both jar and cap ensures a perfect fit. There is a small perforation in the side of the cap to permit the escape of as much air as possible when the cap is being applied; once the top is pressed in place, however, this hole is tightly closed by the rubber, which is forced into it by a glass flange on top of the jar, and any leakage rendered impossible. Another valuable feature is the fact that there are no glass caps to get chipped, lost or broken; no loose rubber rings, and no screw caps to get loose.

This novelty has only been on the market a short time, but large sales are already reported.

Christmas Goods and Novelties

IT is in the realm of fancy goods including toys, games, etc., that more new things are produced each year than in any other line. The children soon tire of a toy or a game, and a new doll is a delight however many more there may be around. The knick-knacks of the fancy goods department form the chief resort of the holiday buyer. Presents can be purchased here by everyone for everyone and at almost any limit of price, and no matter what it is it is always acceptable.

That is why it pays to have an attractive department for the handling of these goods. A good corner of the store which is distinctly separate from the other departments will be found to pay and too much attention cannot be devoted to the arrangement of it. It is not so important that this line should have the benefit of daylight, as fancy goods are, in the majority of cases, improved by artificial light. A bank of shelves up the wall will hold any amount of goods in little space and display them to advantage. If artificial lighting is used, a background of dark cloth is advisable. For toys there should be an unoccupied table for the display of the workings of mechanical toys, as these make up 90 per cent. of the toy stock. Hunting around for a clear space or using the floor loses many a sale. Dolls can be set up on shelves, laid in glass show cases or enclosed in upright glass wall cases, the latter two keeping the dust off the delicate finery of the model doll.

IN TOYLAND.

The mechanical toy occupies the centre and all sides of the field. Other lines are merely auxiliaries to this, and for this season a wonderful development has taken place in the ideas included in cheap and dear toys that twist and turn, swim, jump, climb, tumble, and do everything else we see in life. Musical toys are strong features and will amuse the smallest youngster. Some of the cuts show a few of the newest offerings. Masks include negroes, Chinamen, animal faces, clowns, and all the other weird effects. Among the useful toys is a typewriter that can be bought for a few cents and produces very creditable work.

And combined with all these novel ideas and interesting manoeuvres of the mechanical toy is a cheapness that makes one wonder how it can be done. No one is too poor to be able to afford a toy for the boy that will keep him in ecstacies for a long time. For five cents he can hve performing animals, jumping figures, etc., and for a quarter of a dollar the most complicated motions are at one's command.

GAMES.

For old and young games are essential for the Yuletide. The season is one of festivity and joy, and while toys are not supposed to amuse grownups, they are not loath to indulge in the holiday games. Last year such games as Pit and Flinch captured the public, and were sold in such quantities as to make the supply inadequate for the demand. These games are still shown and are freely selling.

Group of 5c. toys and game of Trix shown by Nerlich & Co.

But the two new games that beat them both in interest are Sherlock Holmes and Trix. The former is an adaptation of the terms that would be connected with a detective's career, such as burglar, robber, thief, run, clue, etc., and the object is to collect as many of the first three named as possible. From three to eight can play, and an ever-present attention is required to succeed. It is a jolly, interesting game that demands rapidity of thought. As such it is a typical Christmas game, and one of which one will not quickly tire in spite of the tension existing from beginning to end.

Trix is a more complicated application of the best points of a number of other games. Some ten distinct games can Fancy Goods in the Grocery.

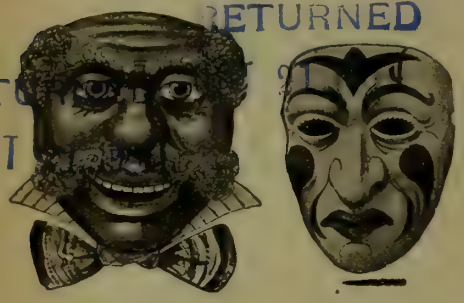
THIS is the season of the year when the grocer and general merchant lays his plans for the Christmas or holiday trade. Even the most primitive merchant living in the far off settlements on the outskirts of civilization requires a few extra lines, from which his scattered customers can choose a Christmas gift or two for their friends or children. To him is given a monopoly of the fancy goods trade, and, within certain limits, it is a line which may be made extremely profitable. The clear gain on toys, games, etc., shows a good margin, and, what is more, such goods do not depreciate in value like many other lines.



Hallowe'en masks shown by Nerlich & Co.

Mask.

The best feature about them is, however, that they are sure and certain trade bringers. The Christmas display of toys and games is a veritable Mecca for the youthful generation. Christmas is the season when the fond parent is inclined to indulge her wistful child even to the limit of extravagance. Once the youngster's mind is centred on a certain toy it is as good as sold under ordinary circumstances. But it is not only Santa Claus befriends the grocer and general merchant at this time. The mother who comes to look at a toy will, in nine times out of ten, think of some other staple article she requires, and buy it on the spot, even if it doesn't happen to be her regular tradesman. On the other hand, a regular customer while doing her regular shopping may easily be inveigled into buying a knick-knack or two. Thus the regular mercantile and grocery trades become rejuvenated—a practical necessity nowadays. In order to keep old customers and attract new ones a merchant must be resourceful enough to introduce fresh ideas from time to time. The most effective advertisement for a grocery or general store now that competition has become keen is to have a line of goods which cannot be duplicated elsewhere. An up-to-date assortment of toys, etc., is a line which will not only be profitable in itself, but help materially in increasing the volume of regular trade.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

A Bread and Pastry Department.

SOME grocers have not awakened to the fact that an ever increasing number of homes are depending upon them to supply bread, biscuits, pastry, preserved fruits and other products of the kitchen. The day when these things were strictly "homemade" has passed away with a changed civilization and with changed conditions of living. Young wives not too well instructed in the mysteries of baking and cooking, find it very convenient to have their bread and pastry supplied by their grocer, and the difficulty in obtaining domestic help has made others dependent upon outside sources of supply. Of course this new order of things relates especially to the large manufacturing towns and the cities. At the same time even the country people are finding it convenient to get their bread from the baker, and are also free buyers of sweet and fancy biscuits.

A trade in bread, biscuits, pastry and preserved fruits is not difficult to establish, and is profitable. The increasing dependency of housekeepers on "ready-made" articles makes the installation of such a department safe. It goes without saying, however, that everything sold should be the very best possible procurable. Articles of food come in for more criticism than do most other things, and on this account should be thoroughly satisfactory. A good name is acquired through handling a good quality of merchandise and a good profit likewise.

Foreign Confectionery and Biscuit Trade of Canada.

THE following figures concerning the amount of biscuits, sugar-candy, confectionery, sweetened gums and candied peels, glucose, or grape sugar and saccharine, including maple sugar and maple syrup, have been taken from the Blue Book of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

In 1899 the total importation of such goods into Canada was $171,208. In 1900 the figures were $243,170, in 1901 $320,956, in 1902 $275,626, in 1903 $244,445, and in 1904 $266,030. Roughly speaking, these figures indicate that importations of confectionery into Canada during the last five years have remained practically at the same level. On the other hand the consumption of candy and fancy confectionery in Canada has increased enormously during the same period, leaving the conclusion inevitable that the home consumptive market is being more and more supplied by domestic manufacturers. In 1903 the importations of confectionery were distributed as follows: Great Britain, $108,135; United States, $122,875; China, $1,242; France, $7,774; Germany, $1,555; Holland, $192; Italy, $1,128; Switzerland, $117; Turkey, $236; other countries, $1,191. In 1904 the relative proportion is not materially changed, Great Britain sending $125,124, United States $124,076, and other countries (not yet specified) $16,830.

The past year has witnessed a healthy increase in the domestic consumption of high-class confectionery made in Canada. The industries which make these goods are comparatively young in years. They have, however, succeeded in introducing their goods to the Canadian tourist and travelling trade, which is surprised to find that the newly discovered article does not suffer in comparison with any foreign goods on the market. One of the most recent developments in confectionery circles is the manufacture of Canadian milk chocolate. As a whole, 1904 has been a satisfactory year for Canadian confectioners. Trade conditions in Ontario and Quebec have not been as satisfactory as could be desired, largely because manufacturing confectioners have become used to doing things on a large scale and have been inclined to expect an increase in this department of trade proportionate to that of the last two or three years, whereas the population of the above-mentioned provinces has not shown any extraordinary increases. The West, however, has more than sufficed to leaven the lump, and Canadian goods are getting a larger share of this rapidly growing trade.

In biscuits and fancy breadstuffs the importations of the last five years have hardly kept pace with the rapidly increasing population of Canada, those of 1899 being estimated at $648,023 and those of 1904 at $987,621, an increase of $339,598. The principal contributors in order are the United States, Great Britain, Belgium, Japan, China, India, France and Italy. The export trade can hardly be said to be well under way yet, but wherever foreign markets have been exploited Canadian manufacturers have succeeded beyond their most sanguine expectations. There is no end to the variety of biscuits manufactured in Canada at the present time; in fact, it may be truthfully said that Canadian manufacturers can duplicate as to quality any kind of biscuit to be had in any market. The question of price will be solved within the next very few years, when an increase in the population of Canada reduces the price of labor, and scientific methods are introduced more generally in the biscuit manufactories of the country. As Canada is to be the home of breadstuffs par excellence for the next hundred years, there seems to be no logical reason why Canadian manufacturers should not be successful bidders for a fair share of the world's markets. At present there are a goodly number of biscuit factories in Canada which challenge comparison with any similar institutions in the old world both as to equipment and quality of output.

For the Holiday Trade.

RETURNED OCT 27 1904

HOW the housewife of fifty years ago would gape with astonishment were she to see the transformation that has been wrought in the realm of Christmas decorations, banquet souvenirs, etc. In no line perhaps has the change been more marked than in bonbons, or crackers. In the old days these were very ordinary looking articles, today there is no end to the variety and elaborateness of fancy crackers, ranging as they do from cheap colored gelatine and embossed picture decorations to the most gorgeous reproductions of flowers and fruits in silk, gauze and tissue paper. One of the newest samples shown is in red gelatine trimmed with bunches of holly and green leaves. Another attractive style is in Scotch tartan. Many of the flower designs are exceedingly beautiful; one in particular, a spray of sweet peas in mauve tints. With the more elaborate crackers the souvenirs are sometimes quite pretentious. Instead of paper caps are substituted musical instruments and grotesque Japanese toys. For the benefit of the uninitiated it may be said that the crackers used in decorating our holiday dinner tables are imported from England, Germany and France, the finest goods being of French manufacture, while the cheaper lines come from Germany.

One of the features of this season's fancy goods trade is the decorated box or receptacle for holding fancy confectionery. One idea has been successfully wrought out in a red sleigh loaded with holly branches. Miniature leather suitcases, trunks, dressing tables, safes, telephones, jewel-cases, banjos and guitars, continue in favor, while a number of fancy wicker boxes, silk and plush lined, with ribbon bow or floral decoration, are among the best sellers of the season. A number of handpainted and embossed paper boxes are also shown.

Among distinct novelties are pie covers and divers other receptacles in decorated colored crepe paper for use at banquets. Japanese garlands in variegated papers will be in demand for adorning Christmas trees, ball rooms, etc. Christmas stockings in all sizes made of brilliant colored net, and filled with a potpourri of Japanese, German and Russian toys, candy packages, etc., are just the thing for the holiday trade. Even cups and saucers and grotesque ornaments are utilized as receptacles for confectionery. One of the best sellers of the season has been a style of Japanese lacquered box for containing an assortment of fancy candy.

High-priced.

It would astonish a good many people could they but see the sample room of A. J. Stewart, Toronto, makers of "Stewart's Fine Chocolates." There one finds displayed some fancy packages so elaborate and manifestly costly that one has difficulty in believing that a market exists for them in Canada. There are hand-painted plush glove boxes, plush covered and richly decorated work boxes, silk covered, metal trimmed handkerchief boxes, and so on. All these enclose Stewart's fine chocolates, and are bought by young lovers, affectionate husbands and others who wish to express their regard in some unmistakable and pleasing fashion. These boxes retail at $3, $3.50, $4 and $5. It might be thought that such high-priced confectionery packages would not sell. The reply is that Stewart's cabled this week to Paris, France, increasing their first order fourfold for a fresh supply of these elaborate boxes. Other choice packages are in embossed goods and genuine burnt leather, in richly decorated paper.

MEXICO: A MARKET FOR CANADIAN PRODUCTS

FOR some time past The Canadian Grocer has been watching with deep interest the rapid development of the Mexican Republic in the hope that the business interests of Canada and Mexico might soon seize the opportunity of establishing closer international trade relations to the benefit of all parties concerned.

Since the beginning of 1904 the turn in the tide has been rapid: the formation among Canadian business men residing in the Republic of a Canadian commercial club has already been chronicled in The Grocer. The latest move is the sending of a delegation to Canada to look into the trade situation here, appoint purchasing agents for Mexican firms and make final arrangements with the Canadian Government for the establishment of a direct steamship line between St. John, Halifax, and Vera Cruz.

The Grocer was accorded the privilege of an interview with Mr. James H. McLeod, president of the Canadian Commercial Club in Mexico, who is in Canada sizing up the trade situation. Mr. McLeod is as enthusiastic over Mexico as he is over Canada, and says the direct steamship line is practically an assured fact within the next few months. In all probability a ship a month each way will be all that is warranted at present; as soon however, as there is sufficient traffic extra boats will be put on the route.

What Mexico Will Take From Canada.

There are immense possibilities in trade between the two countries. Mexico will take from Canada coal, pig iron, lumber, furniture (especially bent chairs), agricultural implements, wagons (which could be shipped in large quantities), all kinds of machinery, fruit products, ham and bacon, canned goods, salt fish, and general merchandise; all of these articles will find a ready sale there as soon as trade is worked up. In Canadian canned goods the best prospects are for corn and tomatoes, both of which are to be seen occasionally in Mexico, although the market cannot be said to have been systematically exploited. The duty on canned vegetables entering the Republic is 15 cents a kiel, by no means an insurmountable obstacle. The duty on canned fruits, unfortunately, is prohibitive, being 75 cents a kiel. Canadian cereals (cheap flour) will be largely used in Mexico. The principal argument in their favor is the fact that they are superior in quality to the products imported from the United States, particularly oatmeal.

In coal, coke and lumber United States competition need not be feared in the least, while in other commodities the all-water route will give Canadian shippers a big advantage over shippers by rail.

Goods that could be shipped with profit on a smaller scale are dynamite (until the Mexican dynamite concession is organized), nails, shoes (special makes for wealthier classes), cottons, clothing (cheap), chemicals (such as cyanide of potassium) and coarse paper of all kinds.

Although official statistics regarding Mexican imports for the year 1903 are not available at the moment, we find that most of the above-named articles were imported largely from the United States, as follows: Iron and steel and manufactures of (including machinery), $7,000,000; machinery and parts, $7,000,000; coal, $2,600,000; lumber and timber, $2,600,000; breadstuffs, $1,170,000; carriages and parts, $1,100,000; vegetable oils, $1,100,000, and manufactures of lumber, $1,000,000. Canadian exports to Mexico in the last fiscal year amounted to only $137,034 in all articles, and included: cordage, rope and twine, $5,821; cotton and manufactures of, $16,887; gunpowder and other explosives, $400; machinery, $3,440; sewing machines, $9,761; all metals and minerals, $33,221; ships, $11,400; spirits and wines, $16,814; wood and manufactures of, $29,075. These figures although not significant in themselves are gratifying in the extreme when it is remembered that they are purely the result of accident, as Canada has never seriously directed her attention to Mexico as an export market.

What Canada Will Take From Mexico.

Mexico in turn will send us raw sugar, coffee, mahogany, dye-woods, fruit and hides and hemp. There should also be a good trade from Canada in cheese, butter and fish. At the present time the district of Tehuantepec imports large quantities of these latter named articles from the United States and Norway, and there seems to be no reason why Canada should not capture a lion's share of the trade

In order to give one an idea of the magnitude of the cane sugar industry in Mexico it may be stated that the Arbuckle refinery of New York employs two resident buyers in Mexico continuously. The culture of sugar cane has grown to such proportions within the last few years that growers are now finding it necessary to get an outlet for surplus production. Refined sugar is selling in Mexico to-day at the abnormally low figure of 3c per pound. Mexico also produces a large number of hides and goat skins. A profitable market for these might be established in Canada, where, in 1903, importations totalled $5,662,528, the bulk coming from the United States, Argentina and France.

Trade Conditions in Mexico.

Formerly English trade occupied a premier position in Mexico. In later years, however, the Germans have secured a strong foothold because they make a greater study of the commercial interests of the country. While Britishers hold aloof from the Mexicans, the Germans intermarry with them, and take a special interest in Mexican affairs, in this way becoming conversant with the needs of the people. While the British are always in the lead in the matter of style and fashion, they do not hold their own in commercial matters. The Germans invariably pay the closest attention to the whims as well as the requirements of the Mexican people. Any outlandish thing that the Mexican may think he requires the German will manufacture for him, while the Englishman is disputing with the Mexican as to whether the article asked for is the thing he should have. And notwithstanding the German's ability to make the article the Mexican or Spanish-American desires, the British article generally comes out ahead and brings a higher price.

The hardware and machinery trade of Mexico is largely in the hands of the Germans and Americans, large importations of agricultural implements, machinery (including sugar machinery) and electrical supplies coming from the neighboring republic every year.

The Spanish element controls a big share of the grocery trade, although foreigners are fairly well represented, and Mr. McLeod himself enjoys the distinction, and has for some years, of having the largest wholesale and retail grocery and wine business in Mexico.

CHANGING FROM A CREDIT TO A CASH SYSTEM.

A Symposium of Opinions.

Experience of a Cash Firm.

By the Ritchie Co., Limited, Belleville.

SIX years ago, when we decided to adopt the cash system, we first of all made up our minds to carry it out according to the rules laid down, and that it would not be a case of a big flourish and then a gradual return to the old credit system. We determined to stand or fall by it. Through the daily papers and by circulars we wrote up the advantages of the cash system to our customers, as well as to ourselves, and announced that on a certain day we would adopt it in our business.

To a certain number of our largest and perfectly safe customers we granted the privilege of running monthly accounts, these to be paid within one week after being rendered. Goods sent out on approbation, or as a matter of convenience, were to be paid for or returned within one week. These terms were clearly stated on all our bills.

We have adhered to the system for the past six years along these lines, and consider that it has been a great success. Our business has greatly increased in that time. We have practically lost nothing through bad debts. The present tendency with our monthly customers is to pay cash in preference to having the goods charged, our increase in business being in cash sales almost invariably.

We cheerfully recommend the cash system to any merchant who will pledge himself to politely but firmly carry it out.

Cash or Credit?

By Cr dit.

IN discussing the best method of changing a credit business to a cash business in a town of 4,000 population, I would say that it depends largely on existing conditions, about which I might make a few suggestions.

If the person desiring the change has at present the leading business in his town, he should be very careful about making such a change. If he is doing the better class of trade, and a good medium and ordinary trade as well, a change from credit to cash will make such a difference in a very short time that he may lose the best part of his business and put some of his struggling competitors in a position to make him very uncomfortable. In my opinion, you cannot do a strictly cash business and do the better class of trade, because the better class trade are entitled to credit, and can be very easily insulted by a refusal. In my experience, I find that there is nothing that pleases a woman's vanity more than to allow some other woman to hear her ordering goods, and asking the person waiting on her to charge them. Now, if you don't charge them, and if they are entitled to credit, some of your competitors will be only too glad to do it, and it will be a matter of consequence that your old customers will meet in your competitor's store and will be heard to remark, "Oh, you are here, too, are you ? Isn't it such a nuisance paying cash for everything at ——'s ? I can't be bothered with it. I find the goods in this store just as nice, anyhow, and cheaper, if anything, too." Remarks like these are what you will be certain to hear, and your old customers' meeting causes quite an impression one on another. You will find that your credit trade has forsaken you after a while, and your customers apparently are getting just as well suited as they did with you. And you will lose not only your credit trade, but many of your best cash customers, who find that your competitor has lovely goods, since many of their friends are getting their supplies there.

Now, if the credit man will take the trouble to investigate, I think he will find that the undesirable part of his credit business is only a very small percentage of his business. He is certainly going to lose that anyway. He wants to lose it. If he has been living in the town for some time he ought to know very nearly who is entitled to credit. To those who are not he can make up his mind to refuse credit when they ask for it, and settle that part of it once for all. It will be a very much simpler method than disarranging his whole business.

As for doing a successful strictly cash business in a town of 4,000 population, I don't think it possible ; that is, a business of any size. You haven't got enough people to work on. In my experience I have seen many strictly cash businesses started, and have yet to see the successful one. They all start off with a rush, but in a very short time it is all over, and they are all looking for their good, reliable trade, that has left them and gone elsewhere.

Strong Argument for Cash.

By H. E. Harvey, Vancouver.

THIS is a city of about 35,000, and perhaps by doing a cash business in a country town it would make a difference, but I should judge that if business can be done for cash only in a city the same would apply in a smaller town.

For an illustration of the difference between doing business on cash and on credit, I might mention that it has come to my personal knowledge that some people have got goods to the amount of $5 or $10 (which is not considered a very large amount) and that either by being in straitened circumstances, or by their own doings, the bill has run for some one, two, three or four years, and that during all that time they have not visited the store in question, either to purchase goods or pay anything on the account. It can be readily seen that you have lost hundreds of dollars during those years by just advancing goods to that amount. Of course you can resort to means of forcing them to pay (providing they are in a position to pay) the bill, but even then the trouble and bother of getting that five or ten dollars, and the loss of the customer (which has happened) make it a wise precaution to let nothing go out unless the money comes in. There are any number of stores in a city of 35,000 in the same class of business, any one of which can supply all the person or persons want, if they desire not to visit the store where they owe a small account. Furthermore, the question of whether they have, or have not, had a certain piece or amount of goods, is avoided in the cash system, as the bill is made out in the customer's presence, and if any mistake of any kind occurs it can be easily straightened out then and there among customer, clerk and employer.

It might be said that there is more ready money in a city than there would be in a small town, but if there are more people with ready money there are also more people looking for credit, and as the old saying goes, it's as broad as it's long.

Conditions Alter Cases.

By A. B. C.

IN converting a credit business into a cash one, there are so many varied circumstances affecting business conduct in different localities to be considered, that it is difficult to advise. What would be quite practical in one instance might be entirely the reverse in another. If a town has factories that pay out weekly wages, it should be comparatively easy to give a reasonable notice to customers, and drop the credit at the same time making a clear cut in prices to demonstrate to them the advantages of paying cash.

If I desired to convert my business to cash only, I would offer special inducements to my customers (which I do, anyway) to pay cash, such as coupons and tickets for premiums, or trading stamps, given only for cash across the counter, and hold on to my credit business until I had felt the pulse of my trade. Then, if satisfied of the advantage to be gained, I would call in all coupons, etc., and start the net cash system, with strong advertising and cutting of prices. Personally, I have no desire to cut out my credit business. Many of my good customers simply could not pay cash as they go. Credit is all right if not abused.

After all, it is brains that build a business, credit or cash, or combined. It is brains that built The Canadian Grocer and Dry Goods Review, and made them such an essential to the merchants of this fair Dominion, and "without brains ye can do nothing."

A Trilogy of Circulars.

By O. N. E.

THE changing from a credit system to one of cash requires careful and persistent advertising; care should be taken in having all your customers and as many more know and understand what your purpose is; why, and from when you open up as it were, your new business. Of course, there are among the clientele of every establishment, in towns especially, certain customers who always prefer to settle accounts monthly; these, if desirable customers, should be made exceptions and approached by letter with the proposition of rendering monthly accounts, as formerly. In a town of four thousand there should not be more than a dozen such accounts, which would require such a method to retain their patronage.

Have a printed circular in which you set forth your reasons (for such a change requires explanation), and the benefits to the customers in adopting the cash system, and at the same time announce that certain well-known articles and goods are to be had at certain prices, only a slight reduction being necessary. This should be just long enough to give an impression of strength to your argument. State why it should benefit the customers, reason how the saving of a loss through unpaid accounts, interest on money, extra cost of books, bookkeeping, etc., would be effected, enabling you to sell on a closer margin; and on the other hand, explain how many advantages you have in effecting the buying for spot cash in increasing your prestige and good connections through the use of ready money.

Advertise freely. Follow up your first circular in thirty days with another of bold and fearless reasoning, and back all your arguments with a list of special values, which should have the effect of not only renewing the interest of regular customers, but of attracting many others, impressed with the force of argument in the two circulars.

A very good plan would be to mail a third circular, written in more cogent terms, on the success of your venture, and the signified approval of so many friends of the store. This also should be accompanied with an itemized list of specials, and sent to every household in the community by post.

Necessary Steps Detailed.

By Grenville

THERE are several methods to be employed in changing from credit to cash. One would be to sacrifice all old stock; clear out the same at a great reduction in price; purchase a new stock; secure new premises, and commence business under new auspices.

Start business under a new name; advertise that on such a date you would open up a fresh, new stock at No. ——— street, that you have purchased a very large stock of well selected goods at much below wholesale price, for cash, and that, having bought this stock at such reasonable prices, you would be able to give great bargains for cash to your patrons, thereby saving them large amounts on their investments.

Send an invitation to the public generally to visit your store and see the advantage of dealing at your establishment. Have placards placed in prominent parts of the store, with the following signs, "Goods Sold for Cash Only," "No Credit Given," "Terms Cash," etc.

My opinion is that the proper way to do a cash business is to move to a new town, rent a store in central locality, open out with bright new stock, and sell goods on a cash basis. The difficulty with a merchant remaining in his own town is that his association with the people is so personal, and his credit following is so great that it is almost impossible to break away from the credit system. He is sure to offend his old friends, and have them use their influence to injure his cash business. If I were to start a cash business, I would do it in a new town, with new people, and once you have your cash business established the people will not ask for credit, as they know you require cash, and your business will show good profit at the end of each year.

Do Exactly as You Say.

By T. A. Forman, Woodstock.

IN reply to the question, "What in your opinion, is the best method of converting a credit business to a cash one in a town of about 4,000 population?" I would say: (1) For one month previous to the date of change, advertise, through your usual mediums, that the change will be made on that date, on and after which no goods will be sold except for cash; (2) Then make your change just as promptly; (3) Stand by your decision.

The above rules, faithfully carried out, are all that are necessary "to make the change," and they are all based upon one principle—keeping faith with the public—or, in other words, faithfully performing what you advertise. This is where the majority fail—they do not do as they say and advertise. Unless a man is prepared to carry out his promises he had better far not make them; but once made, stand by them.

After the change is made, the merchant should do all in his power to convince the public that it pays to pay cash and to pay it in his store. A certain margin of profit is necessary; let him decide on what it is, and add it to his cost, and lower, rather than increase it, if increased business will warrant it. The element of speculation involved in credit being eliminated, changed methods are allowable and imperative. It is one thing to change to a cash business. It is another to keep the cash business going.

Shorter Suggestions.

"Retailer" writes: "I would suggest the following: That a discount of ten per cent. for cash be given, as the best method of showing people the advantage to pay cash. To turn at once from credit to cash in a town of 4,000 population would be a difficult thing, and a big 'wrench' to a business when competition is so keen."

basis, first there must be sufficient capital to enable you to buy for spot cash, thus getting the advantage of all discounts and interest for prepayment; second, the change must be well advertised, pointing out the fact that prices under the new system will be ten per cent. less than under the old, because the cash customer does not have to contribute toward the bad debt account; third, having made the rule that you will not sell on credit, stick to it through thick and thin; it will be hard at first, but you are sure to come out on top in the end."

"Head Salesman": "It would be a good plan to change the name of the business, to make it appear that it was controlled by a silent partner. In this way, it would not be so hard to refuse old credit customers. At the same time, you could advertise that you were selling ten per cent. cheaper than when you were doing a credit business. The right way to make your credit customers believe this would be to show them staple goods that they know the price of, reduced ten per cent."

"204" says: "My opinion is that a person wishing to change from a credit to a cash business must first make up his mind to do less business, and business of a cheaper character; that is, in a town of 4,000. Of course, in a larger place, with a floating population, it would be different. To change, he would want to advertise the change some time before making it, giving his reason for so doing, which would be to save expense, and consequently sell cheaper."

James Vair, Barrie: "I would suggest sending to all customers who have accounts their statement and a circular thus: 'After due consideration, we have decided to change our mode of doing business from credit to cash, and trust that you will continue to deal with us under the new system. We offer all our goods at very close prices, and will endeavor to meet the approval of our valued customers by a more up-to-date method of doing business. This change is inaugurated to-day. Thanking you in anticipation for a continuance of your valued patronage.'"

William Macklin, Stratford: "In my opinion, the best way to turn a credit to a cash business would be to commence with the best customers. Many men try the other end, and in consequence don't know where to draw the line. The result is a failure."

TRADE AND COMMERCE IN THE MAGAZINES.

Newfoundland Cod Fishing.

(Booklovers.)

THE fishing is done with dories and trawls. The dories are flat-bottomed, sloping-sided boats, which fit into one another in the ship's waist, economizing space thereby. Each dory takes two men, and the whole crew, except the captain and the cook, go off in them every suitable day, and set trawls in the water outwards from the ship, like spokes from the hubs of a wheel. Trawls are long lines, each with three thousand hooks attached at intervals of a yard, every hook baited with some smaller fish, either herring, capelin, or squid, that the cod affects. The trawls are anchored at each end, baited in the day, left lying over night, and are stripped of their accumulation of fish next morning, being baited again when "overhauled." The fish are taken to the vessel in the dories, eviscerated, washed, and salted. This routine continues until the bait is exhausted, and then the vessel returns home, lands the fish, takes more bait and salt, and goes out again. At St. Pierre her catch is taken in hand by the graviers and women, who submerge it in crates until the salt has been washed off. Then they scrub each fish with a hard, coarse brush, and pile them in heaps to drain. This done, they are next spread on the beaches to dry in the sunlight and air. The beaches consist of several acres of flat ground, covered with basalt stones worn round by the motions of the sea for ages. These stony fields surround St. Pierre, and thousands of cod are displayed there on a fine day. Every evening, or if the fog or rain threatens, the fish are gathered up again and are covered with tarpaulin. The process is repeated until the fish are quite dry and hard. Dry fish are piled in round stacks; and the rest in oblong ones. When a sufficient quantity to load a vessel is obtained, it is packed into her hold and shipped to market. The extent of the cod fishing of Miquelon and St. Pierre may be indicated by the record of the catch of those islands in 1902, which was 72,500,000 lbs. While much of the annual product is exported to other countries, France naturally gets the larger part. In fact, St. Pierre furnishes three-fourths of all the codfish used in France.

Modern Business Vampires.

(By Geo W. Alger, in The Atlantic.)

WHEN shall we begin to consider the real importance of dealing vigorously through the criminal courts with the modern business vampire? By what process of reasoning can we make a moral distinction between the larceny of the despised green-goods or gold-brick swindler and the equally real larceny accomplished, for example, by the rich and quasi-respectable promoters of the American Ship Building Co., that bubble of fraud concerning which the public press has had so much to say recently. The trustee who hazards the funds of his trust estate in Wall street gambling, and loses, speedily learns to his sorrow that his offense is embezzlement, and his punishment severe. How do we distinguish between the conduct which places him behind the bars of a prison and that, for example, of the president and directors of the Trust Co. so closely associated with the ship building swindle, upon which the financial report of the New York State Bank Examiner has recently been made public? The report shows that these directors made illegal and practically unsecured loans of enormous amounts and permitted their president to use his official position and the money of the stockholders and depositors to gamble in floating a so-called trust of the most flagrantly fraudulent character. Illegal loans to this president were made to ten times the amount which was authorized by the banking law, and the Trust Co. preserved its solvency only by cutting its capital in half. "Its losses wiped out its entire surplus and necessitated the sacrifice by stockholders of over one-half their holdings. Over a million dollars was charged to profit and loss."

Progress of Canadian Trade.

(Review of Reviews.)

WITHIN the past five years, Canada's total trade has increased by 65 per cent.; that of the United States, 33 per cent.; that of Britain, 19 per cent. Canada's foreign trade is $83 per capita; that of the United States, only $35. Her revenue is $12.49 per capita, and her expenditure $7.04. The public debt of Canada is but $66 per capita, while that of her sister commonwealth—Australia—is $230 Canada's over-sea trade last year was $451,000,000,—more than double that of Japan; almost equal to Russia's. Her merchant shipping tonnage exceeds Japan's; her railway mileage is half that of Russia.

Every section of Canada has shared in this wonderful betterment. The fisheries of the maritime provinces have steadily grown in volume and value through the stimulus of an annual distribution, in bounties, among the fishermen of $160,000,—the interest on $4,500,000 obtained under the Halifax award of 1897 for allowing the United States fishermen free entry to Canadian waters for a term of years. The forest wealth of the Laurentian valleys has been yielding most generous returns owing to the rapid depletion of the American woodlands increasing the price of this commodity.

THE MAN BEHIND THE STORE.

By Edwin Rose.

MR. TIMOTHY EATON.

WE hear a good deal these days about self-made men, and a good deal more about "Captains of Industry," but few in Canada are better known than Timothy Eaton, and fewer still can boast of as many real enemies. The story of his early life reads like a full-fledged romance, beginning with his apprenticeship to a small general store in Ireland; his determination to run away, coming to Canada when a mere youth, starting in here at the bottom rung of the ladder, and doing almost any work that presented itself. He had no money to begin with, very little education, and apparently no more business ability than the average young man in his teens. He inherited a tremendous amount of force, indomitable will-power, and a constitution that could stand any amount of hard knocks. He landed in Toronto as thousands and tens of thousands have landed since—looking for something to do, nor was he by any means competent, either as regards dry goods or anything else.

Mr. Eaton's first attempt at storekeeping was in St. Mary's, and was crude enough in its way to be almost absurd. He had no credit, very little money, and no friends. What he bought he had to pay for, and what work there was to do he had mostly to do himself. His experience was rough and discouraging compared with conditions nowadays, and meant practically pulling himself up by his own boot-straps. He used to drive from St. Mary's to London for goods, a distance of over twenty miles. It meant such absolute economy as regards expense as would soon have discouraged a less determined man, and such working and waiting as seem always necessary to form the groundwork of any permanent success.

Nobody sold for cash in those days, but he had to. He had neither money nor credit enough to do anything else. The difficulty of cash selling in a small town induced him to move back to Toronto, where money was likely to be had. His earlier experience had taught him the people were inclined to be thrifty, and his impression of the city was that it was bound to grow. The first store was located on Front street—a curious location for a retail business. Mr. Eaton got the backing of a big wholesale concern, to the extent of practically getting goods on consignment. It gave him a chance to make something of a showing. In reality, it gave him the start for his present enormous business, and one would naturally expect a feeling of loyalty to the firm that made his early success possible. In matters of sentiment, however, Mr. Eaton is essentially lacking. The one all-absorbing, all-powerful ambition of the man was to be master, and once he got into a position to do it, the wholesale interests came in for some pretty hard raps. Perhaps, after all, we are all alike in wanting to be independent, but that does not excuse the almost ingratitude of the man, and the readiness with which he forgot past courtesies.

His move to the corner of Yonge and

Mr. Timothy Eaton.

Queen streets brought him into some prominence. It had been a long, hard fight, with many a discouragement, and the tenacity with which he held things together showed the calibre of the man. Toronto was developing into quite a city, and it gave him a chance to show what he could do. Nobody closed early those days, but he did. Nobody marked the price on everything and stuck to it, and competition was not sharp enough to keep the almanac in mind. Things were in very much of a rut, and the very indifference with which the old stores greeted the newcomer was in reality their undoing.

Mr Eaton was on the right track, and the conditions he had to contend with kept him wide awake. His energy doubled and trebled with the first glimmering of success. Salespeople and helpers caught the inspiration of bigger things, and the move to 190 Yonge street was soon made necessary by the growth of trade. Selling strictly for cash gave him a distinct advantage, and to this one feature, more than anything else, must be attributed the steady stride ahead. While the older stores were wrestling with regular goods at regular prices, and carrying stocks, regardless of the seasons, Mr. Eaton was ready with a constant succession of bargains, bought cheap to sell for cash.

All went well until it came to adding new departments and developing along different lines to anything Toronto had been accustomed. It had to come—we all know that now, but the cry of "live and let live" precipitated a hard fight all over town, and aroused the bitterest hatred of single line dealers. Almost any other man could have managed things differently, but Mr. Eaton would rather fight than eat. His idea was to keep up the excitement and get people to wondering what it was all about. Pages of newspaper space could not have been more effective in attracting attention, and the building was soon too small for the crowds that came. This very indifference to public opinion has been characteristic of the man from the very first, so long as he was able to sell cheaper—no matter at what expense of neighborly obligation.

The more recent years have been one continuous stretch of good fortune, and in many ways Mr. Eaton is deserving of credit, but his motto has always been the motto of Donnybrook Fair: "Whenever you see a head, hit it." Nothing is ever allowed to interfere with his ever-enlarging ambition—men and businesses continually being sidetracked to make room for development. To what extent this can still be carried remains to be seen. Mr. Eaton is by no means a young man, and so far as one can judge, no one has yet appeared with anything like his genius for organization. One after another have been given the reins of management, only to find themselves eventually dropped, for no other reason than lack of genuine ability. The persistent growth of the business carried some of them to heights they never dreamed of, and it isn't to be wondered at that heads got turned and egotism became rampant, with comparatively little to fall back upon when the end came. no matter how much we may criticise Mr. Eaton's tactics, he is a shrewd manipulator of men, with ability to swing them any and every way he pleases. Some few, who consider themselves the power behind the throne, are there for no other purpose than to veil and cloak the hand that holds the whip, and one has only to study the developments of the last year or two to see how easily and quickly the best of them are "thrown." To anyone who thoroughly understands the ins and outs of the game, it is more fun than a circus, and if there are to be any bouquets at all, we must admit that Mr. Eaton is a past-master in the art of using men, with absolutely no heart or the first glimpse of sentiment when once he through with them.

The phenomenal success of the business has been nothing short of a miracle, but no one presumes for one moment that it is invulnerable. Merchants in city and country have wakened up to a realization of their own possibilities. Even in the realm of mail orders, others are beginning to share the honors, and the task of constantly discounting the past is nothing like as easy as it was. No sensible person could expect anything different. The nip and tuck of trade is intended to keep things thoroughly wide awake, and the great law of average sooner or later affects businesses as well as individuals. There is no question but that things sadly needed waking up at the beginning, but it does not follow that all the energy and all the enterprise is cooped up with any one concern. The ability to "do things different" is sufficiently general nowadays to keep one guessing, and competition is growing keener every year.

Thanks to someone, Toronto stores are now among the best on the continent. Thanks to himself, Mr. Eaton is now a rich man, although by no means free from responsibility. The business needs him more now than it ever did, and to all appearances this is likely to continue. The enthusiasm of growth has developed into a mania for expansion, with apparently no stoppingplace. Trouble with the Printers' Union led to the installation of his own printing and electrotyping plant. Trouble with some of the newspapers led to the suggestion that he would either stop advertising altogether, or else would control his own mediums. The readiness with which he has always precipitated a fight is indicative of the overpowering ambition to be master. No one else would dare be as bold to a degree of recklessness, and so long as Mr. Eaton keeps on deck, surprises are apt to follow each other in quick succession.

PRESERVATIVES IN FOOD.

THE following interesting information on the use of preservatives in food in relation to public health is taken from an address delivered recently by Mr. J. Hendrick, B. Sc., Aberdeen, before the Incorporated Sanitary Associations of Scotland :

All animal foods and many vegetable ones must either be eaten fresh or treated in some special way to preserve the food from decay. Man, therefore, and especially the flesh-eating races, early found the necessity of devising means of preserving putrescible foods, and from early times such foods have been preserved by drying and smoking, and by the use of salt, sugar, spirits, vinegar, oils, etc. These older methods are what have been called natural methods of preservation, because the preservatives used are all natural constituents of food. Salt, which is itself a necessary reagent, playing an important part in animal digestion, is still used in pickling and preserving foods. So also fruits are still preserved in sugar or syrup, pickles in vinegar, and it is not only in the Botanical Museum that spirits are used to preserve fruits and other vegetable products.

That food could be preserved by freezing or cooling with ice has also long been known, especially among northern peoples. Certain ancient peoples, such as the Egyptians, who preserved their dead, had even a considerable knowledge of the effect of chemical preservatives, but they left it to moderns to apply such methods of embalming to the food of the people. It is only in comparatively recent times, only since the epoch-making work of the great chemist, Pasteur, that the real nature of fermentation, decay and all such processes has been clearly understood.

But within this short period the movement has been very rapid, and great developments have taken place. Most of the organisms which cause decay in food cannot flourish in strong brine, in strong alcohol, or in vinegar. Hence the use of the substances in ancient methods of preservation. All organisms require moisture; therefore, if food is dried it will keep. Such highly putrescible substances as fish and flesh have, therefore, been preserved from early times by drying and salting. The growth of all organisms is checked by cold.

The following substances are the artificial or chemical preservatives which have been chiefly used for foods : (1) Boric or boracic acid and its compounds; (2) salicylic acid; (3) formalin or formaldehydes; (4) sulphurous acid and sulphites; (5) fluorides, and (6) benzoic acid and benzoates. Of these substances fluorides and benzoic acid and benzoates are used only to a very small extent. The other four are all largely used. Though these substances are all of comparatively recent introduction, statistics show that they are now used to an enormous extent. During a recent inquiry made by a departmental committee into the use of preservatives and coloring matters in foods, 4,251 samples of thirty-five different kinds of foods and drinks, representing both home produce and imported goods, and derived from all parts of the country, were tested for preservatives in the Government laboratory, and 39 per cent., or 1,659 samples, were found to contain one or more of the four classes of preservatives mentioned above.

Of the preservatives in common use for foodstuffs formalin is the most powerful, and the one whose case presents the least difficulty. Formalin is as a preservative comparable in power to carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate and other powerful antiseptics which poison higher as well as lower organisms. Formalin is undoubtedly a powerful poison if taken in any quantity by man and the higher animals. As a preservative it has been used chiefly in milk and dairy products.

Borax and boric acid, either by themselves or in admixture with one another and with other substances, are by far the most largely used of all food preservatives. They are sold to a large extent under fancy names and at fancy prices, accompanied by glowing testimonials from Lady X., Dr. Y., and the Rev. Z. Many persons use them without having any suspicion of what it is they are using. They are odorless and almost tasteless substances, and they are certainly not poisonous in the sense that mercury or lead compounds are poisonous. Most persons can take considerable doses of borax or boric acid daily for a considerable period without suffering any noticeable inconvenience.

With regard to boric acid the conclusions of experts are not very definite. They have apparently been unable to agree that it is actually harmful in small quantities and have taken a sort of middle course in recommending that it be entirely prohibited in milk and be permitted in butter and cream in quantities not to exceed certain stated limits.

After the borax preservatives, salicylic acid is the next most largely used preservative. It is chiefly used in jams, fruit syrups, beers, wines, cordials, and temperance drinks. As in the case of boric acid, very discordant views are held by experts as to its effects upon health. Like boric acid, it is a mild antiseptic, and it certainly has no severe action on the human organism in moderate doses.

A Good Repeater

A prominent grocer, when recently asked what kind of goods he liked to sell best, replied:—

"Give me a good repeater like Royal Baking Powder; an established article of undisputed merit which housekeepers repeatedly buy and are always satisfied with."

NEW baking powders and new foods, like new fads, come and go but Royal goes on forever. Grocers are always sure of a steady sale of Royal Baking Powder, which never fails to please their customers, and in the end yields to them a larger profit than cheaper and inferior brands.

PROGRESSIVE RETAILING

MAIL ORDERS IN COUNTRY STORES.

THE evolution of the departmental idea has worked a great change in country storekeeping. In fact it has changed the whole method and manner of country retailing, and the end of the changes is not yet, for other forces are at work even now which, when their work is completed, will go far towards altering the conditions of life in the rural districts. That some of them will bear hard on the small village stores is more than probable, but they will greatly benefit the towns where a fair-sized store is located. The electric railways that are building, and are projected, are one of the most important of these changes, as they will make trips to the larger towns easy, and will be utilized in the near future to lower the cost of the distribution of goods from them.

Bring Country and City Closer.

The improvements that have been made, and that are sure to come, are bringing the farmer and his family into closer touch with city life by supplying a large amount of advertising matter, and as well giving him the city daily papers, etc., and the weekly and monthly magazines. Though much of this advertising matter comes from the metropolitan stores, which so keenly compete with the local retailer, and though it undoubtedly robs him of a great deal of the trade he claims as his own, it is in a certain way of benefit to him, as the closer the farmer and the resident of small towns can be brought in touch with the outside world, and the more interested he becomes in its customs and habits, the more thought he bestows on the appearance and surroundings of himself and his family. This increased pride calls for better clothes and more of them, and for better and richer furnishings for his home. Even though he does send away for some of these increased wants, the country merchant who lays himself out to gather in some of this trade finds that he has a permanent demand for not only a better and more profitable class of goods, but for more of them.

Educating the Trade.

Though it looks as if all these changes would favor the city mail order business, and it is certain that at present this business is hurting the country trade, particularly in the smaller stores, yet it is becoming more and more apparent that the country merchant is determined to have his proper share, and now that he is waking up he is going after the mail order man in a thorough and systematic manner, and he is doing it in the right way, too. He is educating his trade; he is perfecting his store system, and stopping the leaks, by improved and more scientific methods of running his business. He is copying his big competitors and learning their methods, and in many other ways he is working to gain the trade that rightfully belongs to him. Then, too, he is buying more carefully, and assorting his stock better.

Adopting Departmental Ideas.

Whenever conditions make it possible, the retailer outside of the large cities is adopting the departmental idea to a greater or less extent, and so far have many of them progressed in this direction that the next move must be to fight the mail order department with its own weapons, by getting out a catalogue and establishing a mail order department of their own. This, indeed, is only part of a development that is bound to come, and is in the natural order of things the logical move of the big local store. There is no reason under the sun why a mail order department should not be conducted by the big local store, with perfect and complete success. The fact that these stores must draw the greater part of their trade from the farming community in the surrounding district, will lead them to use the means that the metropolitan stores have so successfully made use of.

The fact that they have already copied so many of their trading methods will make it all the easier to install this one; indeed, the country merchant made this departure possible when he put his business on a cash basis, and this is a method of trading that he was forced to adopt in defence, just as he will the mail order, since he found he could not compete with his large rivals on any other terms. Wherever the departmental idea has been introduced, the credit system has had to give way, and this has become so general that the cash or credit contention is not so interesting at the present time. It is an issue that is pretty well settled, as the majority of stores of any pretentions are run on a strictly cash basis, or in some centres where there are large corporate interests, who pay monthly, or what is reckoned as its equivalent — thirty days' accommodation accounts.

Value of Catalogues.

From an advertising point of view, a good catalogue forms a splendid means of placing, not for a second or two, but for six months, the name of the firm that sends it out, before the purchasing public. The list of departments, and the goods carried in them, can be placed before prospective customers in an unrivalled manner by the cuts, descriptions and price lists in a catalogue, and the best of it is, is that a catalogue is always kept for reference, and to order by for the time it covers. Then, too, merchants often claim that their goods are quite as cheap as those of the city stores, but are not able to drive their arguments home because there is no means of instituting a comparison. They will find this done by a catalogue. This is a comparison that the country retailer must and should be able to meet, as retailing expenses should not be so high in the smaller centres, and this ought to offset the fact that the metropolitan stores can buy at more advantageous prices, because their outlet is so great that they can buy in great quantities. If the local merchant's catalogue price and the city merchant's price is the same for an article, local prejudices will operate in nine cases out of ten in favor of the local store, and it is to it that the order will go.

The Salesman and His Ideas.

A salesman in one sense may be regarded as a "clearing house" of commercial ideas. He is brought into daily contact with men of business ; he absorbs an idea here, and giving it off there, receives in return another thought.

A merchant, who through an obstinate adherence to the belief that he knows it all, refuses to grant a salesman every possible courtesy, who does not give him an opportunity to give out ideas, is neglecting the greatest possible source from which to draw thought, on which he may base right opinions for advancement.

PRESENT DAY JOBBING

By James H. Ritter

AS commonly practiced, the process of distribution is threefold, comprising the activities of the manufacturer, jobber, and retailer. The manufacturer makes the goods from raw material and sells them in large quantities to the jobber, who in turn distributes in smaller lots, and oftentimes on easier terms, to the retailer. There are exceptions to this, but as rule the manufacturer does not reach the retailer, much less the consumer, directly, and cannot do so to advantage. The jobber is an intermediary who assembles various lines of goods, carries a large and assorted stock, and by means of traveling salesmen and other agencies, sells these goods to the retailer in small assorted lots, while the retailer supplies the consumer.

The jobber stands in a very important position to the manufacturer, in that he purchases goods in large quantities. For many things, the demand is seasonable and must be supplied in quantities at one time. Economical manufacture demands a regular, even output, and most manufacturers lack both the capital and the facilities for storing their output against a heavy and brief demand coming at long intervals. The jobbers unite in taking this output off the manufacturer's hands, storing and paying for it, so that the manufacturer is provided with current funds instead of being forced to borrow large sums against the ultimate sale of an accumulating stock. In but very few lines is it practical for the manufacturer to reach the retailer or the consumer direct. The jobber keeps a varied stock, which is constantly growing more and more diversified and complex, and justifies his existence by selling these goods in assorted lots on a small margin of profit to the retailer, on terms which are favorable to the small dealer, and oftentimes carries him through dull seasons, and aids in the development of his business.

The jobber distributes these great stocks of goods by means of extensive stores and warehouses, a large corps of traveling salesmen, and an office force well equipped with buyers, bookkeepers and correspondents.

The Jobber—A Modern Product.

The jobber, as he is known to-day, is a modern product, having existed only since the introduction of the factory system. When goods were almost entirely made by hand, the artisan was usually his own retailer, and not only did the manufacturing but sold his wares directly to the consumer. A large proportion of all the articles made two hundred years ago were made to order only. Of course there were exceptions, as in the case of imported goods. The old caravan routes crossing Asia and Europe are a proof of this fact, but the total sales made in this way were trifling compared with the dimensions of trade to-day. The local artisan knew his customer, but with the advent of the manufacturer, production became so great that manufacturers soon lost sight of the consumer. They now made the goods in quantities and sought some one to distribute them. This distributer was found in the jobber.

There can be little doubt that an ambition to do a larger business is oftentimes the prime motive in the development of a retailer into a jobber, and the retailer engaged in this struggle is too apt to rely upon his retail business for his profit, and to consider his jobbing business as simply so much gain. This is a mistaken view. It often causes much harder work with little or no result, and the small dealer making this venture is very apt to become financially embarrassed in an attempt to carry his smaller customers, while the necessity for buying in large lots, in order to rank as a jobber, and to obtain lower prices from the manufacturer, constantly induces him to over-buy.

Importance of Travelers.

The main reliance of the jobber in placing his goods upon the shelves of the retailer is upon traveling salesmen, who take samples of the wares with them and go all over the land, into the smallest hamlet, describing the goods, their origin, their peculiar qualities for sale and for use, and aiding the shopkeeper in estimating the quantity which he will be able to use during the season. The retail trade of this country owes a vast debt to the traveling salesmen, for the knowledge given regarding the goods which they handle, the explanation of business customs and training received in business methods and ideas. The traveling salesman is the local representative of the jobber, and if the jobber prides himself, as many do, upon business-like habits, and practical and correct methods, salesmen cannot fail to impart some of these ideas to the dealer. The retailer is constantly growing more intelligent, partly because of his pertinent inquiries from traveling salesmen about the credit and the amount of fire insurance he carries. Such questions bring home to the retailer the necessity of adopting correct business habits.

It may be asked: "Is not the jobber a costly distributing agency?" and it must be conceded that this service is not obtained without expense, but the jobber works on a close margin and the net returns to him are meagre compared with those of the manufacturer and retailer, who both enjoy far greater percentages of profits, while the annual increase in wealth and growth of manufacturers far exceeds that of jobbers. Owing to the severity of competition jobbers are compelled to cut their expenses down to the lowest possible figure, and it is hard to see how goods could reach the retailer in any other way. Under the jobbing system the manufacturer is relieved of the responsibility and immense and often prohibitive cost of introducing and distributing his goods in small amounts. In this age of specialization the jobber is a specialist in marketing goods and makes it his lifelong study to do this economically and to the best advantage.

Functions of the Jobber.

Is the relation of jobber to manufacturer and retailer to continue? In order to consider his position more intelligently let us look more closely into the jobber's functions.

1. As a rule, a manufacturer makes a single line of goods and, by reason of his concentration, is able to manufacture cheaply and to the best advantage, but the cost of selling these single lines to the retailer would be so great as to make such a course prohibitive. Some interesting analyses have been made showing the number of various manufactures included in a single bill purchased from a jobber. One frequently sees such charges amounting perhaps to 200 lbs. in weight and $25 in value and yet representing fifteen or twenty manufacturers, clearly showing the enormous cost which would be incurred if the fifteen or twenty manufacturers attempted to sell their goods directly to the retailer, while the freight and express charges on small quantities would alone make such direct dealing impossible.

2. While one or two manufacturers have attempted to make a general line comprising most of the articles needed in one jobbing line, there is no manufacturer to-day who can make a sufficiently varied output to supply all a jobber's needs, and, as we know, the tendency of modern manufacturing is more and more towards the manufacture of a single line of goods—in some cases of a single quality.

3. Frequently, manufacturers do not have sufficient capital to enable them to dispose of their goods in small lots to the retailer. They must have funds, and, by selling in large lats to the jobber, who usually takes the goods in advance of the season and discounts his purchases, they are able to do business on a smaller amount of capital.

4. The business qualities which go to make up the manufacturer and the jobber are oftentimes very different. There are frequent cases where manufacturers are capable makers of goods but not successful in marketing them.

5. The jobber insures the manufacturer a more certain market. We have known large manufacturers, who have had on their books only fifteen or twenty customers, all of whom were large jobbers, while these same jobbers probably had in many cases three or four thousand retail accounts on their individual ledgers. The manufacturer, therefore, practically knows where he can dispose of his output, and is enabled to do business with greater certainty. In view of all these conditions, it may well be claimed that the jobber is a most useful and economical factor in distribution. It is not fair to part from this subject without mentioning a development of the last few years, which necessitates viewing jobbing from another standpoint. This is the growth of the so-called catalogue houses. These may be divided into two classes :

a. Catalogue jobbers who, like the jobbers, sell to the retailer only.

b. Catalogue retailers who ignore the retailer, and sell directly to the consumer.

Both use the same general methods in trying to buy directly from manufacturers and in sending out large net price catalogues in which they endeavor to outbid all others in making low and attractive prices. This business has had a remarkable expansion, particularly in the West, but side by side, has gone the development and increase of the jobbing business. This raises the question of the efficiency of the catalogue as compared with the traveling salesman. There is no doubt that the usual preference of the retailer would be to buy goods from the traveling salesman. Catalogue or no catalogue, moreover, the salesman on the spot will get the order if he meets the price. The jobber has a great advantage through his salesmen over a firm selling by catalogue. He is kept more constantly apprised of local conditions, and so in much closer association with his customers.

Modern Methods Adopted.

Jobbers have always shown themselves ready to adopt new methods and customs. Only lately automobiles have been called in their service. Traveling salesmen may now be found going through the country in automobiles, independent of railroads, time-tables and annoying waits at railway stations. It is safe to say the jobbers will not allow themselves to be set aside, and, including in their class many of the keenest minds in business, they will not be slow to adopt promptly such methods as may be needed to maintain their position. Traveling salesmen were unknown some forty years ago. If the retailer prefers to buy by mail from catalogues, jobbers will no doubt be as ready to dispense with traveling salesmen as they were to take them on forty years ago.

While the catalogue retailer is not specifically included in our discussion his effect on trade relations warrants a few words. The catalogue retailer is an even later evolution than the catalogue jobber. Several large houses now aim to ignore the local retailer entirely, and sell directly to the consumer. The methods of these houses may fairly be regarded as questionable. The local retailer is naturally more or less prominently identified with local interests, and the merchants of any country town are the pushing and progressive men of the place. They pay local taxes, thereby helping to support the town and county in which they live. They carry their customers, particularly in farming and smaller urban communities, for long periods. In times of crop failure, or even in good years between crops, the local retailer is oftentimes the main dependence of the farmer, who, without the credit given him by the retailer, would be unable to get the necessaries of life. The retailer falls back upon the jobber for similar support in credit, but the benefits conferred by the local retailer in this way are hardly sufficiently appreciated. Too often, the temptation of an apparently low price will cause a consumer living in the country or some small town to send his cash to a catalogue retailer in some large city, while the same day he may go to his local retailer and ask three to six months' credit on something that he is buying from him. One such house, for example, issues a catalogue saying in large type to the consumer : "This gives you the price your dealer pays for the goods he buys and will prevent him from overcharging you on any goods you buy from him." This is simply a dog-in-the-manger business, entirely ignoring the principle of "live and let live." The moral propriety of such a policy is certainly doubtful.

Disadvantages of Mail Orders.

Apart, however, from the ethics of the case, there are many disadvantages of dealing altogether by mail, as the average consumer wishes to see and handle goods before he buys them. This feeling is so strong that it seems to insure the permanency of the local dealer, and yet if he is to remain, the consumer must realize that he owes a duty to his retailer, and that it is not fair or right to send his money to a catalogue house at a distance, while he compels his local retailer to wait for his money until he sells his cherries in the Spring or his corn in the Fall. If the local dealer is to remain, how can his wants be supplied except by the jobber ?

Jobbing ethics, on the whole, are most creditable. All first-class jobbers to-day act on the principle that they are in business to stay. Many can boast a history of from fifty to one hundred years, and no jobber can expect a continued existence unless he practices honorable methods, thereby winning and retaining the respect and confidence of the trade. The inducements the jobber has to offer to-day are those of location, size and variety of stock, prompt shipment, courteous attention, fair treatment and low prices, and much attention is paid by all progressive houses to the improvement of these advantages.

As for the traveling salesman himself, it may be said there has been a decided development in his character and habits. The old-style traveler, who was always associated with late hours and whose disposition was to treat his customers to liquor, is largely passing away. A certain mayor of Philadelphia in an attempt to abolish music gardens gained notoriety by his remark, "Beer and music won't mix." The general consensus of opinion in the jobbing trade is that liquor and business will not mix, and the successful salesman of to-day must not only be a man of reliable judgment, bright and enterprising, but he must also have clean habits and a good character.

Jobbers' Associations.

Recent years have shown in some lines of business the tendency of jobbers to come together in jobbing associations, and this is in line with the general trend of industrial affairs. These jobbing associations, as a rule, do not partake of the nature of a trust, and are a menace neither to the retailer nor to the consumer. An evil factor in competition has been personal feeling, and jobbers, frequently in the same city, have oftentimes sacrificed profits simply because, not coming in contact with fellow-jobbers, they have taken for granted that their competitors were not worthy of acquaintance, and simply fit subjects for commercial war. Jobbing associations have done much to remove this personal feeling. The mere fact that the members meet occasionally, and perhaps once or twice a year sit down together to dinner, goes far toward breaking up this feeling of personal animosity which is far too costly to be carried into modern business. It is rarely that such associations attempt to regulate prices, but by free interchange of information, they prevent the spread of unfounded reports, and working together are able to take up such matters as freight charges, postal and express rates, and trade abuses; while some associations have deliberately pursued a policy of educating their own weaker members into proper business habits.

These associations also stand in important relation to the manufacturers, and have frequently been able to induce them to adopt better methods in the disposal of their goods. The associations have taken the view that jobbers are the natural outlet for the manufacturer, who should regard the jobber as his selling agent, and not his enemy, and that their interests are joint and often identical. Manufacturers have in many cases readily responded to this liberal idea, and an element of harmony has thus been brought into their relations. In all such matters, jobbing associations have been highly useful, while in these days of mammoth corporations and trusts, they have often been able to command a hearing where the individual jobber would have been ignored.

Such, then, is a brief account of the jobber as he appears to-day. He is the outgrowth of modern business conditions, and well equipped to distribute cheaply and to the best advantage the vast volume of goods daily outpoured by manufacturers who find it impracticable to market their goods directly. There seems to be no other channel through which the retailers can be so economically and advantageously supplied with a sufficient assortment of goods in all their variety of sizes and styles. No other agency offers to carry the retailer financially through dull seasons and times of stress, and without the jobber, manufacturers would often find it impossible to obtain proper representation to the retailers. The jobber has won his position by hard, intelligent work and economical service, and is apparently an indispensable agent in the distribution of goods.

GOSSIP FROM TRADE PAPERS.

THAT the grocery trade press is performing an important mission in the interest of trade generally is emphasized by the accompanying timely utterances on the subject.

CALL A HALT.

For years the continued unselfish work of the grocery trade press has been illustrated through its strong advocacy of the formation and strengthening of grocery trade organizations. Through its reading columns and by personal solicitation, it has urged manufacturers to contribute financially to this association work, knowing full well that every dollar thus contributed has affected its advertising income; for invariably these sums were charged to advertising account and not te profit and loss, where they belonged.

The results of the past few years have shown conclusively that after the formation of an organization has been consummated it should be maintained through the dues and contributions of its own members, and this drawing upon the advertising funds of the jobber and manufacturer stopped. Retailers should fully know and appreciate that every dollar obtained by them through this aggressive mendicancy is taken from the legitimate source of income of trade publications, thus wronging their best friend and advocate.

An association, no matter iu what line of trade, that cannot be supported by its own members after its organization, is barren of self-respect and should be disbanded, as it is a sham and not the helpful force instituted for the benefit of its members. "Can honest, intelligent, capable action be expected from any trade association supported by outside donations, with any more reason than you could look for it from among dependent inmates of a bounty-fed county poorhouse?"

If our association is to become a power for good for the grocery trade its support must come from the men who are going to be benefited. A man values most what he pays for; anything he may have given is valued at next to nothing. We agree with a well-known grocer when he said: "I am afraid that no association can be of much good when it has to rely upon manufacturers for support."

It is high time the retail grocer awakened to the sense of his obligations and supported the association movement as it should be supported, for it is when he shows himself willing to try and work out his own salvation, instead of being content to remain silent and look on, that any association will become a power for good, and only then.—Retail Grocers Advocate.

THE TRADE PAPER A NECESSITY.

Few level-headed business men to-day believe they could carry on their enterprise to the best advantage without the aid of the trade press. In whatever line of business effort he may be engaged the man is apt to be regarded as woefully behind the times if he ignores this potent agent for facilitating trade and industry. In the first place there is no exaggeration in the claim that the modern trade journal provides the most effective as well as the cheapest means of bringing the manufacturer or merchant into correspondence with those to whom he would sell his goods. The experience of almost every successful manufacturer backs up this assertion. As a vehicle for the introduction of new goods the columns of the trade paper are unsurpassed. Consular representatives have borne frequent and emphatic testimony to the efficiency of the trade journal as a missionary in stimulating the demand for domestic products in foreign countries. "The trade papers on file in foreign consulates, chambers of commerce and other commercial institutions in Europe are unquestionably furthering the interests of our export trade," says the American commercial agent at Eibenstock, Germany, "and while the advertisements contained in these may not always produce business at the outset, they lead to inquiries which, if promptly and carefully answered, very frequently lead to trade openings abroad." The up-to-date business man uses his trade journal in the most resultful way. He gets points from it which he could secure in no other way, and he utilizes the information thus gained to the advantage of his own particular business. The more he is concerned with his trade paper, and the further he enters into the reading, as well as into the advertising section, the freer the outlook he obtains over conditions in his special line, as well as the general business conditions of the country. Where the trade journal does not confine its functions to the commercial side of the trade to the interests of which it is devoted, but provides technical instruction and practical information bearing upon such trade, its value to its readers is still further enhanced, and when its columns are thrown open for the exchange of ideas and experiences between men interested in the same things, it becomes a medium for uniting the members of a particular trade in fully as close relations as does the trade association.—The Metal Worker.

Why HEINZ 57

PAY BIG PROFITS

Suppose two articles cost you 16 cents and you sell each for 20.

Do you figure you make the same profit on each ? Not necessarily.

You may make 25 per cent. on each but one will pay maybe 300 per cent. a year, on account of frequent turn over ; the other, perhaps, only 75 per cent.

IT'S THE TURNOVER THAT COUNTS

Brands of intrinsic merit well advertised sell with the least expense and trouble to the dealer and they pay good profits because they keep your sixpence nimble. The sooner you get your order in for the 57 Varieties the sooner the turnover begins.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Treatment of the Window Dresser.

A GROCERY store seldom finds it expedient to engage a professional window dresser, as is commonly done in the larger dry goods and departmental stores, but every merchant should select a clerk, whose duty it is to attend to and dress the windows. Even if there are many clerks who could fill the position, their talents should be placed at the disposal of one, who is at liberty to use or refuse them as he sees fit.

Choose the clerk whose artistic taste and ingenuity can be depended upon; place the window entirely in his charge, and give him the responsibility that will put him upon his mettle. Where one clerk is held responsible, he will see that the glass is bright, the display neat and clean, and will keep ever before his mind the next arrangement. It takes much time to plan a widow, and there should be one man who has little else to think about.

Once the window dresser is selected. and the few rules which you may have decided to follow, explained, give him entire charge. If he is worth keeping he will not be above suggestions from any source; but do not, except in extreme cases, attempt to coerce him. No window dresser can get the effect he is after, when forced to adopt the detailed plans of another. He will feel interest enough in his work to do his best, and his experience will soon place his ideas above the plane of many of those emanating from an inexperienced man.

A few of the points to be insisted upon at the first are: (1) windows should not be used as bill boards, (2) display and glass should be kept clean, (3) goods should be injured as little as possible, (4) prices should be honest, (5) nothing should be displayed that is not in stock and (6) changes should be made at certain intervals.

Do not restrict the window dresser too much in the matter of expense of designs. A $5 window may sell $100 in goods. Do not get in a rage if some little injury is done the goods; it costs money to advertise. It might be found advisable to set apart a certain sum each year or quarter for display purposes, only allow your dresser to use it in his own time and way.

And don't forget to praise him if his work is good, and to give him credit for an admired display.

Let him confine himself to the window when in the act of arranging a display, and do not call him away to wait on a customer, or for any other reason. A disturbed window dresser does not give his best attention to a customer, and his plans are apt to miscarry. Treat him as an important part of the business, and his ideas will expand, his displays improve and the business prosper and increase.

Holiday Displays.

FOR the Thanksgiving and Christmas season special displays have come to be a necessity. For the latter the various goods peculiar to the season admit of a great variety of arrangements and effects that are sure to attract attention. In addition, picture windows may be devised which while effective are simply constructed and what will be expected by the season's shoppers.

Live animals of any kind can never be passed by. For Thanksgiving a few turkeys can be kept in the window, one merchant who adopted this plan, offering them as prizes for a competition he was carrying on. A dressed turkey or a table well set with Thanksgiving dinner delicacies will also pay at this season. By the same means breakfast foods can be displayed. In one window a man and woman were seated at a table eating a good breakfast.

Mechanical toys will ever be an act action and while not as a rule advertising the goods, they can be made to do so, with a little thought. For instance a milking scene in which the cow's head moves backward and forward, a boat moving around in a tub of water at the edges of which are small boxes of tea to represent the import side of it; many others can be thought out by any skillful window dresser.

Packages of tea, raisins, starch, etc., and canned goods can be built up to represent local buildings. These displays can be made once a month and should be fairly true models of the buildings to be represented. Around these lay out grounds true to life, by the use of sod and gravel. An iron fence can be made by driving wire nails through two long pieces of wood, the points of the nails appearing a half inch or more through the upper piece. By making this up in short lengths any shape can be given the fence and it can be used often. Figures of men can be placed around to lend life to the design.

A window dresser built a fire place in the corner of the window, out of tea packages. The opening was a box set up on end and the brick work and tile surrounding a fireplace was made of the packages piled one on another and coming just to the edge of the box. At the proper height a board projecting a few inches was the mantel, and above this some fancy arrangement of the packages completed the structure, which can be strengthened by cards or laths. In front of the fireplace was a mat, and a table was set out with a tea pot and cups. An easy chair and a rocker were placed carelessly near the table. Fire irons and light ornaments on the mantel carried out the idea. Cigar and cigarette boxes and packages also permit of varied styles of stocking.

In one window a grocery interior was represented. A counter was built up of canned goods on the top of which a board was placed. On this was a cut cheese, weigh scales, wrapping paper, a small showcase and other things usually found on a counter. The wall and background were filled up with temporary shelves on which were canned and bottled goods neatly arranged. Several other little things helped to make the window a good copy of an interior.

An inexpensive fountain can be made by placing on the floor above a barrel of water, from which runs a small rubber pipe to the floor of the window and up through a common tub. When the water is turned on upstairs quite a pressure is noticed in the water sent up from the pipe. The tub catches it all as it falls. If the water is colored, prettier night effects are obtained. Around the tub can be built up a bank covered with sod and flowers, and down one side can be run a tiny rivulet from the tub, into a barrel or tub below the window.

Colors of lines carried can be made use of in various ways. A butterfly with its beautiful spots and lines of color can be made of coffee, tea and different shades of sugar. The surrounding floor can be covered with white sugar to bring out the colors more distinctly. Other designs, such as flowers can be worked out in the same way, and even pictures of people are possible.

A landscape can be built up to represent rocks, water, hills, etc. The rocks can be made of rock salt, the water be in a large tin or be made of glass over pebbles, the hills built up of salt with spots of dark color for shrubbery. A bridge and house can be made of packages and live fish or frogs can be placed in the water.

A special brand of tea will receive an excellent and striking advertisement from a window decorated entirely in Chinese toys, umbrellas, lanterns, fans, and curiosities. In the arrangement must be the tea advertised.

The Illustrations.

The window arranged for John Robertson & Son, Montreal, was entirely devoted to Red Heart Tonic Wine in the display of which The Grocer has shown several attractive pictures. The most striking feature of this window is the ornamental hangings from the ceiling. These are of paper in conical and heart shapes. On the different hearts are the letters to make the words "Red Heart Tonic Wine." A few bottles also are suspended by strings. The display proper consists of careless appearing arrangements of bottles of the wine, the central feature in each detail being a picture or advertising card. The fencing girl has been made good use of on account of the red heart she wears on her waits. Ribbons are run from the suspended bottles to these hearts and other prominent points. The general scheme can be followed in the display of any line.

In the window of Wm. Marshall's store at Sault Ste. Marie is an arrangement which partakes much of the nature of an English display—high and solid. This window captured the first prize offered in that town by the July 1 celebration committee. The large glass is 10 by 12 feet. The back is open and extends to the store floor, the platform being built up to suit the display in each case. A well devised scheme was the selection of goods in red, white and blue colors, combined with flags and a picture of the King and Queen. In the front on the floor was gathered cheesecloth on which were thrown flowers and leaves. Back of this the goods went up in different divisions and included, teas of various kinds, sardines, salmon, canned vegetables, beef and soup, baking powder and bottles of pickles, catsup, etc. The arrangement is well worthy of study as it is one of the best examples of English window dressing that have come to hand.

LESSONS IN ADVERTISING.

IN the series of lessons on advertising herewith begun the aim will be to make each paper practical. The course will not pretend to cover the subject of advertising in any elaborate or exhaustive fashion. There are aspects of advertising which, while they may be interesting, have little or no value to the merchant who is concerned with the advertising problem only as it relates to his own business. The series of instruction papers will deal (1) with the physical features, so to speak, of the advertisements—the things which appeal to the eye—type, white space, rules and borders, illustrations; (2) with the text or reading matter, its style, sentences, words, phrases, divisions, display; (3) with the argument, or persuasive character of the advertisement; and (4) with certain imperative features which should characterize all advertising in order to make it effective.

I.—The Appeal to the Eye.

An advertisement to be read must first be seen. One has but to pick up the average newspaper to find that a majority of the advertisements provoke no interest. The eye falls upon them but there is nothing in them to arrest the attention, and they are passed over unread. This is true of advertisements using big space and of advertisements using very small space. On the other hand there are some advertisements that hold the eye, command the attention, interest the reader, and convey clearly and effectively the advertiser's message. If the reader were to define what it was that in the first place held the eye and led on to an interested perusal of the whole advertisement, it would be found that there was something pleasing about the appearance of the advertisement and also something in the way things were said. It may have been a harmonious effect of the whole, or the headline, or the illustration, but whatever it was, the advertisement "stood out" beyond the others, and as a consequence received the attention desired by the advertiser. It is to assist the advertiser to secure for his advertisement this outstanding effect that this first study paper will concern itself with.

First of all there must be a quiet orderliness in the advertisement—in its display. A very common tendency is to over-emphasis or to peculiar arrangement. An easily read advertisement is infinitely better than one that exercises the eye over much, and that makes undue demands upon the reader's attention. A study of the advertisements of the big stores or in the Ladies' Home Journal, Delineator, or any of the leading magazines will illustrate the point here made. It is gratifying to see the marked improvement in this regard in the advertisements of many Canadian merchants; yet there are some who yield to a desire to underscore almost every word they write. Possibly some of the credit for the better appearance of advertisements is due to those who set up the copy. Printers are earnest students of the artistic side of their craft, and an immense amount of excellent work is being done by the printers' trade journals in the line of instruction in the art-side of printing.

Many sizes of type, many varieties in the style of type, and tricky or difficult arrangements of type are an abomination. It is almost impossible to lay down hard and fast rules in this matter of what styles and sizes of type to use, but it is not hard for the man who wishes to turn out a good advertisement to choose type, both in the size and style of face, that will ensure a good effect.

It may seem a little soon to introduce this question of type, yet in dealing with the division of our subject which treats of those things that appeal to the eye type faces or styles, and type sizes are of the first consideration to the man who wants to secure the very best results.

It may be said at this point that there are several hundred varieties in type faces, but the advertiser needs to know of only a very few of these, and the average printing office is supplied with only a very few varieties and sizes of type. The styles and varieties of type illustrated are common enough, yet it is quite possible that many a newspaper office throughout the country lacks some one or other, perhaps several of them.

That plain type is desirable and effective for advertising is shown by the fact that it is used largely by advertisers whose expenditures are among the thousands of dollars. Among the styles of type which can be used effectively are old-style Roman, light-faced Gothics and Latin Antique. Not only are these types well adapted to advertising pages, but also to the very highest grade of artistic work. It is interesting to note that almost all frequent advertisers in the dailies are identified with some special face of type.

A—Type

Some of the common and popular type faces are known as De Vinne, Jensen, Post, Roycroft, Old Style, Gothic, Ionic, Antique, Italic, Pica, Nonpareil, Agate. Some are most useful for "display," others are "body" type. Herewith are provided specimens of the type faces named :

Borealis, and, finally, the Man in the Moon. The Wanamaker Christmas Show for children this year is called "The Man in the Moon." It is a story told in pictures

Example of Agate Series.

The foregoing are useful as examples. It is not necessary to study them in an effort to memorize the styles with their names. Their quick recognition will come with their use. It will suffice in the meantime to note the different styles and to consider their different effects, and to contrast them. It will be found expedient to clip this exhibit of type faces and to paste same on a card or in a book for reference later on.

There is another aspect of this question that must be dealt with, namely, the designation of type sizes. The old method of type measurement was by a distinctive name. Thus type sizes were known for example as :

An advertising man is a born optimist.

Pica.

It his business to see the possibilities of things.

Long Primer.

An advertising man is a born optimist. It is his business to see the possi-

Nonpareil.

An advertising man is a born optimist. It is his business to see the possibilities of Agate.

The modern system of designating the size of type faces is called the Point System. Thus type is said to be 8 point, 10 point, 12 point, 18 point, 36 point, 48 point, 72 point, and so on.

There are in theory 72 points in an inch of space. Thus a 36 point type would measure one-half inch in depth, a 24 point face one-third of an inch, a 12 point face one-sixth of an inch, or, to state it differently, there are six lines of 12 point type to the inch, four lines of 18 point type, two lines of 36 point type.

An appreciation of the point system of type measurement is desirable in that it enables the constructor of advertisements to indicate to the printer in a definite, intelligible way just what size of type to use. For example, a certain display line would look well, so the writer determines on a 36 point. So he indicates on his copy that he wishes a type measuring one-half inch high. Or it may be that a 24 point or an 18 point or a 36 point size is wanted, meaning thereby a face measuring one-third, one-quarter or one-half an inch in depth.

To illustrate there are here given examples of differing type faces and sizes with the names and sizes in points indicated below :

THE CHAMPAGNE INDUSTRY IN FRANCE

By A. Hall in Booklovers Magazine.

THE famous city of Rheims is associated in our minds so closely with its wonderful old cathedral—which stands for all time as the apotheosis of Gothic architecture—and with the romantic career of Joan of Arc, to say nothing of the famous Jackdaw, that few people remember that this wonderful old city is the centre of the champagne trade, and the home of most celebrated champagne firms in the world. The city directory of Rheims gives the names of ninety establishments for the making of champagne. Over twenty firms are employed in furnishing the corks alone, while almost as many more are engaged in the machinery used in the industry.

The municipalities of Rheims and Epernay are in the department of the Marne, about two hours by rail southwest of Paris. The entire department covers over forty thousand acres of land, the municipality of Rheims being about sixteen thousand, seven hundred and fifty acres in extent. This department lies in the old Province of Champagne. The soil is of a chalky formation that retains the sun's heat and prevents heavy dews, thus giving the grape a fine chance to mature. The rolling hill country provides a good natural drainage, and there is about the same yield year after year without any necessity for enriching or renewing the soil. The vines are grown on small poles two and a half to three feet in height, and are cut back every second or third year, so that the vineyards present a curiously juvenile appearance, very unlike ours. There has been comparatively little damage done by the much-dreaded phylloxera. In June, for miles around, one gets the fragrant odor of the young grape-blossoms; and in October, in the vintage season, the beautiful masses of small purple and white grapes, heaped in profusion everywhere, are a picturesque sight as well as a delicious feast.

Wine Caves.

The wine is stored in immense caves both in Rheims and at Epernay, sixteen miles distant, in the heart of the vineyard district. Some of the caves extend for miles under the city, and parts of Rheims are literally honeycombed with them. Often they are three stories deep under the street level, so as to vary the temperature. One descends to them by a splendid flight of one hundred and sixteen steps, cut out of the chalk soil. This staircase is over sixty feet in depth, and is lighted by electricity. The caves are more than ten miles long and are constantly being added to. There are about two hundred large rooms in them, some of the corridors to which are over a quarter of a mile in length. These are named after cities and distinguished statesmen, and one strolls along avenues bearing such names as Carnot, Thiers, and Washington, or London, Paris, Edinburgh, and New York.

It is not unusual to have as much as five hundred and twenty-eight thousand gallons of champagne, or thirteen to fourteen million bottles, stored in these cellars at one time. Instead of the dust-covered bottles and cobwebs and spiders we are apt to associate with wine-cellars, everywhere it is spotlessly clean and fresh as a New England housekeeper would wish her kitchen to be. Even the fine arts are not neglected in these wonderful, cool depths. In several rooms fine bas-reliefs are sculptured in the chalk. "La Fete de Bacchus," "Un souper au dix-huitieme siecle," and "Silenus," for example, are by well-known sculptors. The workmen are all well paid; each receives besides a bottle of red wine in the morning and another in the afternoon, to keep the blood warm while working beneath the earth, where they are busy most of the day.

Manufacture of Champagne.

Before the modern cork was discovered, champagne may be said not to have existed. Without it no sparkling wine could really be brought to perfection, requiring as it does the peculiar process of fermentation after being bottled.

The larger firms use only the juice from the first pressing of the grape for champagne, leaving the second and third pressings for inferior wine, or, as it is called, vin de suite. The juice is taken in barrels to the cellars and poured into larger vats, one of the vats holding as much as eight hundred gallons. The wine remains in these vats from October to January, when the mixing takes place. This is somewhat of a state secret in each establishment, as each wine-master has his own method for producing from wine of different vintages the flavors for which his particular brands are famous. This mixture is called the cuvee, and it stands again until April or June, when the great operation of filling the bottles takes place.

This mise en bouteilles, or tirage, is a great sight. The rapidity with which it is accomplished by the many workmen is marvelous. There are thousands of bottles which first of all must be tested, and then well cleaned. This latter process is done by machines. Then long pipes are extended to the bottles from the mighty vats that hold the cuvee, and as the bottles are filled, corked, and wired they are lowered in baskets, by a system of endless chains, to the caves below, where they are stacked in precise order in a very compact and solid mass, yet so that each separate one may be taken out without disturbing the others. These bottles are now left from one to two years, when they are put in small racks, necks downward, and for two or three months each bottle is given daily a gentle little shake by an experienced workman. In this way the sediment is brought gradually to the cork, and the wine becomes perfectly clear. One man can shake about thirty thousand bottles in a day. It seems a hopeless task, yet it is all accomplished with great system and ease. In some of the caves the men are allowed to use both hands in shaking bottles; but it is usual for the workman to use one hand only, and the result is supposed to be better.

Then comes the degorgement, or removal of the sediment. By some firms an ingenious system of freezing the neck of the bottle is used to accomplish this, and the sediment is taken out in a solid frozen mass. By many others, when the bottles are opened, a most skillful manner of pressing the thumb over the open mouth, letting the sediment out and losing very little of the

TWO DAYS AFTER FIRE.

To the Trade:

We now occupy factory building as shown above, which is located corner of KING, DUNCAN and PEARL STS. For ten days have been busy moving from the temporary buildings we have occupied since the fire of April 19th.

With improved facilities will soon be in a position to fill all orders promptly. In the meantime, until all back orders are filled, hope the Trade will overlook any delay that may occur.

SINCE THE FIRE have made every effort to fill orders as promptly as circumstances would permit, and although working under great disadvantages in temporary premises, and having to provide ourselves with an entirely new supply of Electros, Labels, Cans, in fact, material of all kinds, including the innumerable articles necessary in a manufacturing business like ours, yet HAVE ACTUALLY SHIPPED in May, June, July, August and September, 1904, MORE GOODS than we did during the same period in 1903. In fact, each month has shown an increase over corresponding month of last year.

To do this our entire plant was worked to its utmost capacity, but was unequal to supply the enormous and rapidly increasing demand for "GILLETT'S GOODS." This difficulty, however, will now soon be overcome.

wine, is the usual method. This requires very great care, as no deposit must be left and as little wine as possible lost. The men who perform this work receive three or four dollars per day.

Sweetening and Packing.

Last of all come the sweetening, recorking, labeling, and packing. The wine, having lost most of its sugar in this process of fermentation, now receives a small quantity of liqueur, which is pure sugar mixed either with brandy or with the wine itself. Each firm, at this stage of the process, keeps its methods a secret. The quantity of sugar or sweetening is varied for different countries. English taste requires the least sugar—or in some cases preferring it wholly without sugar, or champagne brut nature. The United States comes next in quantity of sweetness preferred, and France third. The more northern countries, such as Russia and Sweden, prefer a much sweeter wine, although the taste each year for less sweetening is growing more universal.

The work of measuring out the sweet liqueur is done by small boys. The corking and wiring are mostly done by women, who receive about 50 cents a day and their portion of red wine. The corks are put in by machines made in Rheims and Epernay. The machine has two motions, the first compresses the cork; the second pushes it into the bottle. These corks cost as much as four cents a piece, and are of fine quality. A small wire basket is turned by machines and pressed over the cork, and then comes the label and gold-foil.

Now the bottles are placed in straw, or paillons; which are made in Rheims, and the packing-cases stand ready to receive them. It is a curious sight to see the men fill these cases to overflowing with such a fragile mass, and then press down the cover as a woman would press down an overloaded trunk of gowns One is quite sure they will all break to pieces until assured that it never happens, owing to the elasticity of the straw packing.

Output of Champagne.

In spite of the high duty on champagne—the United States paying seventy cents per bottle, Germany forty, and Russia even eighty or ninety—the demand grows all the time. As early as 1863 over nine million bottles were exported, France consuming nearly three million bottles more. In 1885 the amount consumed by France and other countries was about eighteen million bottles, and in 1899 the exportation had increased to over nineteen millions of bottles, France taking besides over eight millions, making a total of twenty-seven million bottles of wine for that year. Besides this great output there were in 1899, in the cellars of Rheims, over a hundred and six million bottles in reserve. France receives a yearly revenue of nearly twenty-five millions of dollars from the sale of champagne.

Notwithstanding the fact that the methods of making champagne have been at one time or another publicly demonstrated—notably at the Paris Exposition, where workmen were sent for that purpose, using models from the Museum of Rheims—the world at large has had but a vague conception of the vastness of the champagne enterprise, and even less of its history, and of the many minds and many years that have been required to bring it to its present perfection. And so this story is told of the making of that sparkling fluid which issues forth at last from those dark caves of old Champagne.

THE GROCERY BUSINESS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

NOW that South African trade has become adjusted in a great measure after the long and bloody war, a general impetus has been given to the grocery business throughout the Colony, which has never been so flourishing as at the present time.

Indeed, in many "up-country" districts and localities removed from the big distributing centres of Cape Town, Johannesburg, Pretoria, Kimberley, Bloemfontein, etc., shopkeepers often experience considerable difficulty in maintaining sufficient stock to meet the requirements of their customers.

Taking it all around, the grocery business in South Africa is almost exclusively in the hands of Englishmen and Americans. There are a few Dutch and German houses—established principally in the Transvaal — but even their combined trade is a small one. The Boer farmers, as well as the native community generally, are far more ready to deal with a British or American firm than with one conducted by members of any other race. They know by experience that they can trust their goods and rely on receiving their money's worth.

Cape Town, as the capital of British South Africa, is naturally the centre of the grocery business for the whole of the country. Every freight ship arriving in the port brings a consignment of goods from all parts of the world. After being examined and classified by the Custom House Department, these are then forwarded by train or ox wagon, as the case may be, to different stores perhaps thousands of miles away. Some, for example, go to Rhodesia and Matabeleland, some to Natal and the Transvaal, and some to the Orange River Colony. When, however, there is no particular hurry, the Cape Town agents of firms on the coast line usually dispatch goods by cargo vessels.

The greater part of a grocer's stock in South Africa is imported, as there are very few manufactories worthy of notice in the whole country. Jam, however (of which commodity a vast quantity is consumed), happens to be obtainable locally. It is made at a place rejoicing in the weird name of Stellenbosch. This is a village a few miles from Cape Town on the road to Wynberg. The fruit used for the purpose comes principally from Constantia district, a tract of fertile land to the west of Table Mountain, and consists for the most part of plums and apricots. Grapes, apples and melons, however, are used to a great extent as well, and they are often mixed together, for the Africander likes to think that he is getting full value for his money. Another point in connection with Cape jams is that they are always canned or put up in hermetically sealed tins varying from 4 ounces to several pounds in capacity. This is done with a view to preserving their contents from the fierce heat, which otherwise would ruin them in next to no time.

Owing to climatic conditions South Africa is largely a land of tinned provisions. Indeed, almost everything edible, from biscuits to bacon, or sugar to sausages, comes out of a tin. By the way, however, the manner in which these are gotten up is an important factor in making them readily salable, especially among the country farmers. The average Boer purchases groceries as young women purchase cigars —those with the prettiest pictures on the boxes appeal to him most. To an even greater extent this is also the case with the native population on the Veldt. By many Kaffirs, indeed, a jam tin embellished with a highly colored wrapper is regarded as a "charm" and treasured accordingly. The lids, too, are often displayed about their dusky persons as ornaments. On this account far-seeing and wide-awake makers always have their goods cased attractively. Old-fashioned and conservative firms who neglect to trouble about this and think that "anything will do for a colonial" find their business diminishing. Yet they have only themselves to thank for it.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

CREDIT INSURANCE.

INSURANCE against loss by fire and insurance against the risk of death are familiar phenomena in modern business. There is, however, a new phase of the insurance question, just beginning to occupy the attention of the public. This is no less than the protection of merchants against the loss which occurs through the granting of credit. The basic principle of this credit insurance is that the accounts entered upon the books of a business firm or corporation are as essentially "property" as the buildings or stock of that business, and for the same reason ought to be insurable. As the buildings or stock may be damaged or destroyed, so may these debts depreciate or altogether disappear, through the misfortune, incompetence, fraud or death of the debtor. Insurance of credits, although not yet transacted on so extensive a scale as other forms of insurance, has nevertheless long passed the experimental stage, and abundantly proven its safe and profitable character when judiciously conducted.

It must not be understood that credit insurance, as practised, covers the whole loss of a firm or corporation. It does not cover all bad debts, but simply the loss by bad debts, which is in excess of the ascertained normal loss. In the case of a merchant, whose total sales amount to $500,000 a year, assume his average of loss by bad debts to have been one-half of one per cent., for six years past, that is $2,500 per annum. This constitutes his normal or "own" loss and is not covered by his credit insurance. If his total loss for the year insured does not exceed $2,500 he has no claim under his policy. But if his losses amount to $4,000, he, himself bears the first $2,500 and the company bears the balance or $1,500.

The similarity in principle between credit indemnity and fire insurance is manifest. Both are the provision made by prudent men against the unexpected. Credit insurance, properly understood, is no incitement to undue extension of sales, but a safeguard against abnormal loss through causes which cannot possibly be foreseen. It in effect gives an absolutely responsible endorser and strengthens the position of the insurer with his banker, who is assured that disaster cannot befall him through loss by bad debts.

A company, known as the Canadian Credit Indemnity Co., Limited, has just been formed, to undertake the insurance of credits in Canada. Its board of directors includes such men as John W. Langmuir, John F. Ellis, Peleg Howland and W. K. McNaught, of Toronto. The authorized capital of the company is one million dollars in 10,000 shares of $100 each.

FIRM INSURANCE.

A FEATURE of life insurance that is being rapidly developed in Canada is the department of firm insurance in which one or all the members of a firm carry insurance on their lives for the benefit of the firm. Firm insurance is done in two ways. The older method is the writing of what are known as "joint life" policies. The firm in this case carries one life policy, and in the case of the death of one of the partners the insurance money is paid into the firm, and thus there is compensation to the surviving partners for the loss of their colleague. The disadvantage that this form of firm insurance labors under is the fact that in case of dissolution of partnership there is no way of satisfactorily arranging the policy. The only thing that can be done is to surrender the policy, and this means a considerable loss of cash to the policyholders.

As a result of this disadvantage the joint life system is being replaced by another system, under which each partner carries an individual policy, the firm in each policy being named as the beneficiary. Then, if there is a dissolution of partnership, the different policies can be adjusted in any way the holders desire, and anyone else's name may be substituted as beneficiary for that of the firm.

The joint life system is still in use in cases where there is practically no danger of dissolution of partnership, as, for instance, when the members of one family are the partners.

Often this variety of insurance takes the form of a single policy on the life of but one man connected with a business. This is generally the active manager. In the case of a company, with a number of silent partners or shareholders, it would obviously be a heavy loss to them to lose a successful manager. They accordingly insure his life. A case was recorded recently of the advertising man of a company being the one on whom a large policy was placed. The success of the business was considered to be due to him and the company decided to put $50,000 on his life.

THE OFFICE END

DEVOTED TO THE OFFICE STAFFS OF BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

TO THE OFFICE EMPLOYE.

From the Business World.

"IF you work for another, your own best interests are served by trying to put yourself in the place of the man who employs you—not too literally, of course. To achieve any great success for yourself you must do something for him. Get into a position that permits you to have his viewpoint. See things with his eyes. Think of them as he does. Let the day's affairs come before your eyes as they come before his. Reach out ahead for new things, and handle those at your side now, from a policy which you see is the policy of the house; with the same purpose and end as that which animates its head.

"It won't matter a bit how smart you are, how gifted, how able, how strong—unless your gifts and strength and abilities are exerted in harmony with the efforts which your concern, as a whole, exert.

"You are 'in the same boat' as the firm for whom you work. If you would help them (and thus only can you help yourself!) you must pull on your oar so as to fall into stroke with the others sitting near you. Otherwise what? Well, otherwise your strength will either be wasted or it will serve to stop the boat's headway. Remember you are not sculling, but rowing; and yours is but one of many oars. The old song says: 'A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together.' The long, strong pull were better omitted unless the rowers pull all together.

"Occasionally there is a little business started where one man is the whole thing. He can stand in the stern of his diminutive craft and scull his boat where he will. Progress means his strength, his judgment, his knowledge of the way. But as business grows and increases, this method must be exchanged for one yielding greater power of propulsion.

"Now he calls in others. Now his progress depends on unity of action on the part of all those who are working together for his good. If you are in his boat keep your eye on the same light he does; adopt the same rhythm of stroke, pull at the same time, in the same way, and for all you're worth. Work hard and faithfully for him. Forget yourself and struggle toward his harbor by harmonious means. If you get him there, you must, yourself, get there."

THE DRAFT SYSTEM.

H.R.W.

A SHORT time ago an article appeared on this page by "A. B. C." on the inconvenience to the retailer of settling accounts by draft. Mr. "A. B. C." states that if the retailer failed to meet an acceptance through miscarriage of the mails, the draft would be protested, thus proving expensive and also injurious to his credit. It might be said in answer to this that the majority of houses doing business with drafts have the "no protest" slip attached to draft, and a draft is rarely protested unless specially instructed or to hold an endorser. Mr. "A. B. C." also states that the retailer cannot always call in his money just as he wants it. This is also true of the wholesale merchant, in fact, he is very often requested to grant extensions on lines for which he has paid spot cash, and although working on a larger capital finds it difficult to finance a large business at certain seasons of the year. Banks in Canada are opening up branches all through the country to such an extent that there are few towns which cannot be reached by draft.

If the retailer will look reasonably on this draft system, he will without doubt agree that the wholesaler could not conduct his business successfully unless some such method were adopted. We will say for example, that the wholesale house has some eight or ten thousand accounts on the books, of these about six thousand being out of town accounts. If no practical, systematic method of collection were adopted, it would be impossible to look after such a large number of accounts. No wholesale merchant prefers to make drafts and pay exchange, provided remittance is received for the account either by postoffice order or express order, but the difficulty is that the retailer does not remit within the time in which cash discount may be allowed, but sometimes thirty days after, and still deducts cash discount, and the wholesaler is obliged to give special attention to the individual account, necessitating thereby a very large and expensive office staff.

A HELP IN DICTATION.

From "The Book-keeper."

A THOUSAND and one ways to save time are overlooked by many a busy man simply because the time saved seems to be so inconsiderable that it is scarcely worth notice.

The modern business man usually spends a considerable portion of his time in dictating letters, often dictating from 75 to 100 in a single day's work. This dictation is a very important part of his work as a rule, and even with the best and most expert stenographers it takes much time which he would be glad to spend otherwise. Of course it goes without saying that it is not only wise but economical to provide for expert stenographic assistance, for it will easily be seen that it is poor economy to use five dollars' worth of your own time in dictating a batch of letters when you could, by paying a trifle more to the stenographer, have one who would use only two dollars' worth of your time instead of five.

In dictating one hundred letters you must of necessity dictate one hundred addresses as well. Now, to write one hundred separate addresses will take your stenographer a full hour or more, and this hour is wasted for you as well as for her, as you must wait while she writes the address. This two hours' time is well worth saving of course, and here is presented a method of effecting its saving.

A letter is usually dictated from an original letter or from a memorandum bearing the name and address of the party written to, and it follows that, if it were possible to hand the memorandum to the stenographer merely saying write him thus-and-so, all the labor of writing the name and address would be saved, but in most cases this is not possible. It is possible, however, to put an identifying mark on the letter or memorandum and let the stenographer use this identifying mark in her notes, instead of writing the name and address in each instance.

The most convenient identification is a number, and it is a simple method to commence each day's dictation with number one, placing the number on the letter or memorandum and calling it to the stenographer instead of the name of the party addressed.

The use of a numbering machine which will print numbers in consecutive order makes the use of this plan still easier for it relieves the dictator from the necessity of remembering what was the last number used.

This plan has been used by the writer for a long time and in taking care of from 150 to 175 letters a day, he finds that it works very satisfactorily and causes no mistakes.

THE STATEMENT CHEQUE.

H.R.W.

A FORM of cheque being adopted very largely now by business houses is that with the statement form either at the left of the cheque proper or on the reverse side. The advantages are obvious. The regular endorsement is sufficient receipt; full particulars of the settlement appear on the statement form, and where no statement is received from the parties from whom goods were purchased, as is so often the case, it is a very convenient form of remittance. The advantage of having the statement form at the left, on the face of the cheque, is that the amount is before the person drafting the cheque and is less likely to be transposed than if it were carried from the statement on the reverse side. The only extra work involved in preparing this form is the insertion of the amount from statement received from the creditor, the vouchers when received from the bank being uniform. These forms should be numbered consecutively before being sent out, entered direct in the bank book or in the bank column in cash book, doing away entirely with cheque stubs, which require to be entered again, and when returned by the bank at the end of the month sorted and filed numerically, after being attached to any corresponding vouchers, such as statements, vouchers for unpersonal accounts, freight bills, etc., which have already been given the same voucher number as the cheque.

It is hardly necessary to say that no other form should be sent out with these cheques, such as a notice that cheque for a specified amount for an account to a certain date is enclosed, as this form gives full particulars of the account being settled.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Cigars for Christmas.

IN getting ready for the holiday season the grocer should not forget his tobacco department. A box of cigars, a handsome pipe or a tobacco jar are very appropriate gifts for the Christmas season and the prominent display of these articles accompanied with suggestions either printed or verbal will swell the receipts from this department to no small extent.

The box of cigars the wife presents to her husband for Christmas has long been a joke, but wives still continue to bestow these marks of affection and the wide-awake retailer will profit thereby.

Many cigar men get out small boxes, handsomely decorated on purpose for gifts, and in stocking up for Christmas these should not be forgotten. The importance of display has many times been emphasized in these columns, but will yet bear repetition. A small show case in which to place the cigars and pipes will pay for itself in added sales in a very short time. It has the double advantage of attracting the chance customer and of keeping the cigars in good condition.

An important thing to remember when considering the cigar question is the fact that practically no extra help is needed. It takes but a moment to sell a quarter's worth of cigars or even a box. The ordinary help can attend to this department and the extra revenue is net.

If some of our readers have not yet put in a stock of cigars they would do well to give it a trial beginning now so as to take advantage of the holiday trade.

Tobacco Trade of Canada.

NO department of Canadian trade has shown greater expansion within the last six years than that falling under the head of tobacco and its manufactures. Imports of cigars, cigarettes, manufactured tobacco, raw leaf, etc., have increased from $2,028,331 in 1899 to $3,006,659 in 1904. At the same time it is to the credit of Canadian manufacturers that there has been a gratifying increase in the volume of the Canadian export trade. In 1868 the total value of the tobacco exports of Canada did not exceed $32,340. In 1899 these small figures had grown to $177,167, while in 1904 Canada's tobacco exports amounted to $644,605, an increase of $467,438 in six years. These figures serve to indicate that the tobacco industry of Canada is sharing the fruits of the growing time.

The manufacture of domestic leaf is only a development of the last few years, already, however, it has grown to gratifying proportions. The recent action of the Dominion Government in abolishing the "exclusive contract system" among dealers in tobacco will undoubtedly serve to give an impetus to the manufacture of Canadian tobacco such as it has never previously experienced.

It may interest readers of The Grocer to know how Canadian importations of tobacco are distributed among the different foreign countries. The division is for the year 1903, as the revised returns for 1904 are not yet available. In 1903 importations from the United States amounted to $2,357,534; Great Britain, $76,797; West Indies and Cuba, $50,830; Germany, $10,222; Holland, $4,815; Mexico, $258 and other countries $2,690.

Exports for the same period were distributed as follows: The United States, $253,774; Newfoundland, $14,334; Great Britain, $12,245; Germany, $9,119; Belgium, $8,848; Holland, $7,812; France, $3,485; British West Indies, $1,119; British Africa, $755; Norway and Sweden, $700; Australasia, $223; other countries, $826.

The tobacco growing industry of Canada can hardly be said to have been as successful this year as last. The output of leaf will, roughly speaking, be about 3,500,000 lbs., of which nearly half is damaged on account of being cut before it was fully matured.

In tobacco accessories there has been a steady increase in the volume of actual trade. In 1889 Canada imported to the value of $122,175 goods which may be classified as tobacco pipes, pipe mounts, cigar and cigarette holders and cases, smokers' sets and cases, and tobacco pouches. In 1899 these imports had grown to $191,890, while in 1903 they amounted to $368,603, an increase of $176,713 in five years. The relative distribution of the imports of 1903 was as follows: Great Britain, $162,852; France, $107,843; Germany, $38,054; United States,$34,667; Austria-Hungary, $23,358; Switzerland, $399; Belgium, $145; other countries, $1,285. The imposition of the surtax on German goods entering Canada has curtailed to a very large extent the volume of German-Canadian trade in pipes, tobacco pouches, cases, etc., this trade now going largely to Great Britain and France. Of course St. Claude, France, has always been the home par excellence of the pipe-making industry.

Contraband Tobacco in Great Britain.

IN view of the manifoldness and excellence of the properties possessed by tobacco it is difficult to understand the action of the British authorities in dealing with contraband tobacco seized by Custom-house officers. A few years ago a ton of tobacco and cigars was seized at Portsmouth, the whole of which buried in order to get rid of it. A protest was made, and the reasonableness of distributing instead of wasting such seizures of tobacco among the men of the army and navy could not be gainsaid; and it was satisfactory to learn that the Revenue Department had been moved to issue directions to the proper officers to, in future, supply troop-ships with seized tobacco at the rate of one ounce per diem for each man. But this humane practice was soon discontinued; indeed, the arangements for the disposal of seized tobacco present some curious features, and have varied considerably from time to time. The course pursued with such seizures, including that unreleased by consignees from the bonded warehouses at the London docks had been the very primitive one of burning it in an instrument known and recognized as the Queen's tobacco-pipe. Possibly some outdoor officer of Customs hit upon the device in order to shield himself from blame for thus wasting good stuff. It was a huge instrument of enormous ventrical capacity and would turn hundreds of tons into smoke in a few hours. Then an afterthought of economy crept in, and suggested that the ashes might make good manure. They were accordingly sold to agriculturists for what they would fetch; a ton of ashes it was found served as tillage for four acres of ground. But this monster pipe is now put out; it was arranged that future seizures of contraband tobacco, and also such as remained in bond unclaimed on account of its having sustained damage in transit from the place of exportation, should be thrown upon the market for sale, a course which did not commend itself to the trade, nor to the palate of dainty smokers. In face of the difficulty another arrangement was made for its disposal; the criminal lunatics confined in certain Government asylums were thought of, and gratuitously provided with tobacco from this source. Large quantities were also supplied to certain public botanical gardens where tobacco is required for the destruction of insect life, and which would otherwise have to be purchased at the public expense. If after meeting these demands a sufficient quantity of tobacco was available, then troops ordered on foreign service were furnished with a supply for use on the voyage. Strange to say, even this small chance of obtaining a little comfort for the men who are to fight our battles in foreign lands under hardships which tax the strongest powers of endurance has ceased. Troop-ships at the best of times are none too comfortable, and anything that can be done towards making those on board contented would be an appreciable gain to the service. Both policy and humanity indicate a little generous treatment of the men upon whose prowess the existence of the Empire so largely depends. It is hard to believe that criminal lunatics can have a better claim to the indulgence than our soldiers.—Macmillan's Magazine.

From Tokio, Japan, it is learned that the terms of the sale of the interests of the American Tobacco Co. to the Japanese Government, under the recently established monopoly have been concluded. The company objected to the price the Government first offered and appealed to the American legation. As a result of the extended representation made by Mr. Griscom, the American Minister, the consideration for the transfer of the company's interest has been increased by about one million yen, equivalent to about $490,000 American money. The total consideration has not been made public.

A VETERAN MONTREAL GROCER

ESTABLISHED over sixty-two years is the enviable record of the well-known Montreal wholesale grocers and wine and liquor merchants, L. Chaput, Fils & Cie. The present head of this time honored house is Mr. Charles Chaput, who was admitted to the firm in the year 1863. His father,

Mr. Charles Chaput of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal.

Mr. L. Chaput, had been running the business successfully since the year 1842. In the year 1855 Mr. Ed. St. Denis was admitted as a partner and the firm name was changed to L. Chaput & Cie. It was not until Mr. Charles Chaput entered the partnership that the firm name was changed to its present style. To-day the partners include, in addition to the two principals mentioned, Mr. Charles Chaput and Mr. Ed. St. Denis, Messrs. L. N. St. Armand and L. E. Geoffrion.

Mr. Chaput has for many years held the position of head of the firm. His wide experience, accurate knowledge of the requirements of the trade, and keen financial aptitude, placed him in a unique position in the grocery trade world.

He remembers well the days when Montreal had little or no railway accommodation, when the importing facilities were very poor indeed and the grocers' occupation was principally carried on during the Summer months. He tells in his own pleasing direct manner just how many hours he and his small staff had to work in those pioneer grocery days, and contrasts vividly the handsomely fitted up premises of five storeys and immense dimensions recently destroyed by fire with the small warehouses and inadequate office accommodation of forty years ago.

Mr. Chaput is a type of the alert, high-strung, excessively active French-Canadian, although distinctly English in his language and habits. When he starts to do a thing he drives fast and arrives at many conclusions in an amazingly short time. Physically he appeals to the observer as a bundle of nerves. While he trusts implicitly everyone who works with or for him, his vigorous motive temperament never rests until the ins and outs of all the departments are mastered by himself.

Notwithstanding the multiplicity of calls on his time in the prosecution of an immense business, Mr. Chaput has been able to identify himself in public affairs in the world of commerce, of politics, and of beneficence. He is vice-president of the Canadian Business Men's League, in which organization he has been a valued member since its inception. He believes in thoroughness in all his work and naturally not only the co-partners, but every member of the staff, feel the influence of his spirited enthusiasm. When the disaster of a fire recently overtook the firm in their handsome premises on DeBresoles street inside of twenty-four hours they had new premises engaged on St. Antoine street and were filling orders the next morning at a rate that would surprise almost any business men in any country. A glance at the new offices would see rows of desks with busy clerks working away as if the rude disturbance of the flames at their former commodious home had not interfered with their tranquility or injured their operative powers. Of all these things Mr. Chaput himself is duly proud. He is a generous chief, however, and accords to every member of his staff the greatest compliments for their united co-operation at such a trying crisis in their business career. What a strain he must have endured personally is only known to himself, and when it is remembered that the loss ran close on to $400,000 the courage which rises above such an obstacle is of no small importance in the commercial world. This is only cited as an immediate illustration of the man and of the firm of which he has the honor to be the head.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

COOL CURING ROOM FOR DAIRY PRODUCE.

WITH the object of providing a practical illustration on a scale sufficiently large to attract general attention and to get a comparatively large number of people directly interested in the results, the Dominion Parliament was asked in 1902 to vote a sum of money to be used in constructing four large central or consolidated cool cheese curing rooms. This plan was carried out, and curing rooms built at Woodstock and Brockville, in Ontario; and Cowansville and St. Hyacinthe, in Quebec; where sites, with siding accommodation, were given by the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railway companies.

CONSTRUCTION.

The temperature is controlled with refrigerating machinery at Woodstock and Cowansville, while ice is employed at Brockville and St. Hyacinthe. The buildings are all designed on one general plan, but where ice is used there is a separate chamber in which it is stored. The curing room proper consists of a basement 9 feet clear between floor and ceiling, and a little over half below the ground level. The stone walls, which do not rise above the surface of the ground, are laid with cement mortar to make them waterproof. The floors are constructed of the best quality of Portland cement concrete. The walls above the stone work consist of 7 ply of lumber and 8 ply of paper, 4 ply of which are damp-proof quality. The last two courses of lumber on the inside, with damp-proof paper between, are continued down to the floor inside the stone wall. There are 21 inch air spaces besides the space between the studs. The ceilings underneath the joists are made of 4 ply of lumber, 4 ply of paper and 1 air space. Above the joists there is a double flooring, with 2 ply of paper. The spaces between the studding and joists are filled with planing mill shavings.

The ice chamber is placed in one end of the building, but does not go below the ground level, which brings the floor of this chamber about 4½ feet above the level of the floor of the curing room. The insulation of the ice chamber is rather better than that of the curing room, and differs in two respects. The walls are constructed with "staggered" studding—that is to say, there are two rows of studs, one for the inside sheathing and the other for the outside, leaving a space between the sheathing of 1 foot with no connecting pieces. The ceiling is made in the same manner and the spaces between the inside and outside sheathing are all filled with planer shavings. The concrete floor of the ice chamber is covered with 3 inches of dry sand. Above this there is a false floor resting on 2 inch by 4 inch joists. The lower edges of the main joists are about 6 inches above the top of the false floor. The main floor consists of 2 inch T. and G. lumber covered with galvanized iron, which is flashed along the walls to a height of 10 inches. The space between the floors is filled with shavings.

The upper story of the building is not insulated, except a compartment used for boxing and shipping. The rest of this flat is utilized for office, receiving room, storage of boxes, experimental rooms, etc. The floor of the shipping room is on a level with the floor of a railway car standing on the track alongside.

REFRIGERATION.

The plan for utilizing the cooling power of the ice is simple and effective. Placed just above the floor level of the ice chamber, and therefore about 4½ feet above the floor of the curing room, are three openings, 18 by 9 inches, through which the cold air flows into the curing room. The warm air returns to the ice chamber through three flues, 18 by 9 inches, running the length of the curing room just under the ceiling, and rising to the top of the ice chamber. There are several openings in these flues, which, being fitted with slides, enable those in charge to regulate the temperature so well that it does not vary two degrees in any part of the room. The ice is not covered, so that the air passing over it is readily chilled, purified and dried to some extent. The insulation of the chamber is depended on to prevent waste of ice.

The mechanical refrigeration at Woodstock and Cowansville is effected with 6-ton vertical, double cylinder, single acting ammonia compressors of the Linde British type. During 1902 the brine tank system for cooling was used. There were two of these tanks, 15 feet long, 3 feet deep and 1 foot wide, placed near the ceiling about the centre of the room. A wooden casing surrounded the tanks, with opening at the top and bottom, through which the air circulated. The tanks were filled with saturated brine that was chilled by direct expansion pipes submerged in it. The advantage of the tank system lies in the reserve of cooling power which it provides after the compressor is shut down.

This system was not satisfactory. Owing to the sluggish circulation of the air the relative humidity was so high that the cheese could not be kept from moulding. A season's experience also showed that there was no necessity for a reserve of cooling power, even if the compressor was not in operation more than 10 hours a day. As a matter of fact the temperature does not rise over 2 or 3 degrees during the time when the compressor is not running. In the Spring of this year a change was made by substituting the Linde Air Cooler for the tanks. In this system the expansion coils are placed over a brine tank in a small chamber through which the air is driven with a fan, aod by an arrangement of suitable ducts is made to circulate through the curing room and back to the fan again. A stream of brine flows over the expansion pipes, and as the air is forced through them it is chilled, purified and dried. With this system there was no difficulty in keeping the relative humidity down to 88 per cent. at a temperature of 56 degrees, and there was no trouble with mould.

SIZE OF THE CURING ROOM.

The size of the curing room proper is 60 by 42 feet, and the five tiers of shelves hold exactly 2,700 cheese, and leave room for storing several hundred more in boxes. The temperature of the curing rooms is kept constantly between 55 and 58 degrees, as long as they contain any cheese. There is not the slightest difficulty in regulating it so that it does not vary more than one degree from day to day. The records of the temperature, both in the cool rooms and in the warm and uncontrolled rooms, are kept by means of thermographs, instruments which give a continuous record on paper, so that the temperature is known at any time of the day or night.

Further details need not be given of construction, as a bulletin with complete plans and specifications, such as will enable any one to make use of the ideas incorporated in these buildings, is now available, and will be sent to anyone who asks for it from the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The following is the form of agreement between the Department and the salesmen of the factories covering the reception of cheese at the curing rooms :

Dominion of Canada.
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.
Branch of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying.
Cool Cheese Curing Rooms.

Cheese will be received at the..... cool cheese curing room on the following conditions :

The Department of Agriculture will undertake

(a) To collect the cheese free of charge to the factory;

(b) To issue warehouse receipts for the cheese as received ;

(c) To store and take care of the cheese during the period of curing, without any charge except as hereafter specified, for a period not exceeding eight weeks ;

(d) To keep the cheese fully insured ;

(e) To provide boxes of good quality, box the cheese and ship them according to instructions received from the salesman.

The factories will be charged the usual price of good, ordinary cheese boxes delivered at the factory, and the cost of scale boards, nails, etc., used in preparing the cheese for shipment.

The Department of Agriculture will charge each factory a sum equal to the value of the weight of cheese saved on account of less shrinkage in the cool curing room, the amount to be determined by actual tests of shrinkage on the cheese of every week's make and the selling price; the factory will have full benefit of any increase in the price of the cheese per pound owing to the improvement of the quality.

The superintendent will not accept any cheese of inferior quality, poor finish or in unsuitable condition.

The department reserves the right to refuse the cheese from any factory which fails to comply with the requirements or rules of the cool cheese curing room.

The cheese are to continue the property of the factory, and to be at the disposal of the salesman.

J. A. Ruddick,
Chief of Dairy Division.

Ottawa, April 8, 1902.
Approved.

(Sgd.) James W. Robertson,
Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying.

On behalf of the.....I accept the above conditions for cheese delivered at the Government Cool Cheese Curing Room at.....

Salesman.

The curing rooms were not ready for use in 1902 until July 1, but from that time until September 30 cheese were received every week day until the latter part of September, when they were collected only every second day. During these three months 26,531 cheese were received at the four places from 37 factories. During the season of 1903, 47,205 cheese were handled from 54 factories during the period from May 18 to September 30.

Dairy experts, and especially those attached to the Department of Agriculture, do not urge the general adoption of a central or consolidated curing room idea such as has been outlined. The reasons for the establishment of these curing rooms now in operation were pointed out at the beginning. If they succeeded in convincing those engaged in the trade of the necessity for adopting some plan of cool curing, their object will have been attained. The desired result will probably be reached in different ways according to local circumstances and conditions. Large cheese factories will no doubt be inclined to make the necessary improvements in connection with their own building, and already large numbers have done so. The probabilities, however, are that exporters themselves may in the near future have something to do with the curing of the cheese. Nobody needs to be told that any saving of shrinkage or in inhanced value will go directly into the pockets of the patrons, and very little of it stick to the fingers of the manufacturers. It is hardly fair, therefore, to expect the man who owns a factory to meet all the expenses of these improvements, from which he will receive no benefit, especially in view of the fact that the commission which he receives at present is not sufficient to provide decent buildings and proper equipment, and at the same time leave a reasonable margin of profit. If patrons desire this increased revenue, and there is no doubt they do, they must be willing to make concessions to the factory owner to get it.

The following letters have been received by the Agricultural Department at Ottawa, more especially that section in charge of J. A. Ruddick, the dairy expert. They are copies of the original and speak for themselves regarding the cool curing station :

Montreal, Aug. 31st, 1904.
J. A. Ruddick, Esq.,
Ottawa, Ont.:

Dear Mr. Ruddick,—Your favor of the 29th instant received. I should be very pleased indeed to get the 100 cheese and to send them to some parties on the other side, who will no doubt appreciate them.

I am strongly in favor of this cool curing and waxing, and also to have nothing but cool air chambers on the steamers. It is the proper thing to have. I think all cheese should go to a cool curing room the way the factories are at present, and I believe it would bring into Canada at least ½-cent more on all the cheese, which would amount to $1,000,000 a year, and this is a small estimate too, about as low as a person could put it. To be optimistic, I should say it would amount to about $5,000,000 a year, because the consumption would increase about 25 per cent. With kind regards, I am yours sincerely, (Sgd.) A. W. Grant.

Glasgow, 17th September, 1904.
J. A. Ruddick, Esq.,
Department of Agriculture,
Ottawa, Canada :

My Dear Ruddick,—We are in receipt of yours of August 30th, and have received the Cowansville cool cured cheese and shown them to the trade. We have had quite a lot of criticism on them, and are pleased to report that it is all satisfactory, and the opinion is expressed that cool curing will do more for the Canadian dairying industry than any movement that has taken place during the last ten years. However, by next week I hope to send you a full report for official purposes.

J. A. Ruddick, Esq.,
Ass't Dairy Commissioner,
Ottawa:

Dear Sir,—We have to advise having received 80 boxes cheese marked "Brockville 1." We have shipped these on to Liverpool in refrigerator last week and have also sent them the circulars we received from you for distribution. We have informed Messrs. Hodgson Bros. that it is the wish of the Government that the whole trade in Liverpool and elsewhere should be given an opportunity of carefully inspecting these cheese before they are sold, and that you wish them to procure the views of all who inspect them as to their opinion on quality.

Our Mr. A. H. examined the cheese very carefully here before they were shipped, and we find those that were cured at a temperature of 58 to 60 vastly superior in flavor to those that were cured at a normal temperature. In our opinion they are worth fully ½ cent per lb. more. Some of the cheese that were cured at a lower temperature were equal to Septembers. We shall be very much surprised if you do not receive some very favorable comments on the cheese that were cured in cool air. Yours truly,

(Sd) Hodgson Bros., Limited,

Mr. J. W. Robertson,

Ottawa, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—Your favor of the 5th received.

We have examined the cheese in Hodgson Bros.' warehouse and consider the cheese made at the cold curing station far superior to those made at the factories. If this system was generally established we think it would improve the consumption of Canadian cheese. Yours truly, Provision Trade of Canada.

THE following statistics represent the exports and imports of dairy and meat products into Canada for the years 1889 to 1904 and 1899 to 1904 inclusive respectively. In importations there has been a considerable falling off as might be expected. Importations for 1899 and 1904 were valued at $2,725,615 and $1,746,974, the decrease being principally in lard, butter, cheese and eggs. The volume of importations of provisions will continue to diminish steadily as Canada's millions of acres become settled.

In order to get an approximate idea of the magnitude of the dairying and provision industries of Canada at the present time one has to remember not only the decrease in imports, which goes to show that the home consumptive demand is more and more being supplied by domestic producers, but also that the export trade in provisions has grown by leaps and bounds, being valued at $12,698,007 in 1889, $21,187,230 in 1894 and $46,472,132 in 1904 an increase of $25,284,902 in the last ten years.

BUTTER.

Exports of butter in 1894 were $1,114,712; in 1904 they amounted to $4,735,653, an increase of $3,620,941. As compared with 1903 and 1902 there has been a slight falling off this year, attributable to an inferior quality of butter having been shipped out of Canada in 1904 which has somewhat prejudiced Canadian butter in foreign markets; and to the keen competition of Danish, Swedish and Russian butter in these markets.

An improvement in the Canadian export butter trade on the whole, however, has been made possible by the action of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in arranging for cold storage facilities at the creameries, on the railroads and in the ocean steamers. Without this chain of cold storage transportation there could have been no such expansion in the export butter trade. A good deal yet remains to be done, however, before Canadian butter can successfully compete in the British markets with the finest grades from other countries. Temperatures that were considered low enough a few years ago to protect butter from deterioration while in storage and in transit, are now considered too high, and further efforts must, therefore be put forth, so that Canadian butter will be kept at a sufficiently low temperature from the time it is made until it reaches the British markets.

The weakest link in the chain of cold storage transportation as it exists in Canada at the present time is undoubtedly to be found in the creameries, where the butter is not cooled down to a sufficient degree before it is shipped. It is unreasonable to expect the refrigerator cars and the refrigerator chambers in the ships to cool butter to 30 degrees lower, when it has been delivered to them in a warm condition. These are not cooling agencies, but as designed to keep at a low temperature products that are placed in them in a cold condition.

Generally speaking, Canadian butter boxes are inferior to those shipped from other countries. The latter are more uniform in size, are better constructed and made of better wood. A box should be used that will hold 57 pounds when first packed, so that it will weigh 56 pounds net, good weight, when exported. The right size is slightly under one cubic foot, inside measurement, and the best height is 12 1-2 inches, outside measurement. Covers can either be nailed or fastened with four hooks, but, in either

CHEESE.

Perhaps in no department of the dairy and provision trade have the exports shown a more gratifying increase than in cheese. It is of course no news to readers of The Canadian Grocer that cheese "made in Canada" is without a peer in foreign markets, particularly Canadian Cheddars. As a proof of this it is only necessary to mention that in 1894 the exports of cheese amounted to $16,267,309 while for 1904 the figures are $24,224,470, an increase of $7,957,161.

The only complaint on the part of cheese importers in Great Britain regarding Canadian cheese is because of the large proportion of broken and damaged boxes found in each shipment of Canadian cheese. During 1903 and 1904 there has been some improvement over previous years, but the percentage of breakages is still high, approximating from 10 to 25 per cent. in every steamer-load of cheese landed in Great Britain. The improved showing may be ascribed to the fact that more care is being taken by the steamship companies in loading, stowing and discharging and boxes of better quality are being used. In last season's shipments the lots of cheese from the Dominion Government cool curing stations were especially noticeable when landed in Great Britain for their first-class appearance. A strong effort is being made by the Government, moreover, towards the removal of all such existing drawbacks in the cheese export trade.

The principal cause of breakages in transit of cheese packages for export is the use of boxes that do not fit the cheese—a practice that cannot be too strongly condemned. Poor, thin box material also contributes largely to swell the proportion of broken boxes, and no improvement may be expected in this respect until the factory men pay more attention to the quality of the boxes they buy, and less to an endeavor to get a supply at the lowest possible figure. It is false economy to purchase poor boxes at any price; while good boxes are an insurance against damage during transportation, and enhance the value of the cheese in the eyes of the English buyer.

EGGS.

The export egg trade has been more stationary, that of 1894 and 1904 aggregating $714,056 and $1,062,123 respectively. With increased transportation facilities, a big expansion in this department of the dairy trade may be looked forward to in the near future.

BACON.

That Canadian bacon is also in great demand in the British market is shown by the exports which totalled $2,938,551 and $13,037,519 in 1894 and 1904 respectively. Of this the amount sent to Great Britain was $15,873,739 in 1903 and $12,996,720 in 1904. Besides rapid progress in regard to quantity, there has been a marked improvement in the quality of Canadian bacon exported, so that to-day Canadian bacon, like Canadian cheese has become a staple article in the British markets. Great Britain is undoubtedly Canada's best customer in bacon. Canadian packers have not been slow to realize this, and have aimed above all else to supply a product that will meet the critical demands of the most fastidious British consumer.

In 1903 and 1904 Canada sent $6,554,014 and $4,403,094 in butter to Great Britain, while in cheese the exports to the same market were $24,683,404 and $24,138,291 respectively. Other provisions sent to Great Great Britain were valued at $1,169,313 and $2,748,610 for the same two years.

Canada and the U. S.

In connection with the trade between Canada and the United States a comparison of figures is interesting. In 1903 and 1904 Canada imported cheese, butter, eggs and lard from the United States to the value of $36,539 and $403,871; bacon and hams valued at $410,290 and $419,871 respectively, barrel pork in brine worth $497,279 and $390,084, and other meats valued at $394,664 and $434,791, making a total in dairy produce and provisions of $1,638,682 and $1,648,177 for 1903 and 1904. As against these imports, exports of provisions to the United States for 1903 and 1904 were made up as follows: Butter, $14,179 and $15,675; cheese, $7,842 and $6,003; bacon and hams, $7,004 and $15,883; other provisions, $63,337 and $76,923. In the above calculations the returns to the Department of Trade and Commerce for the year 1904 are unrevised, by the time the regular blue book is issued in November it is expected that the volume of exports will be added to in almost every particular.

Canadian Butter and Bacon in Scottish Markets.

IN his latest report on the state of the Canadian export trade in butter and bacon, J. Brown, inspector at Glasgow for the Canadian Department of Agriculture, says:

BUTTER.

All shipments of butter from Montreal to Glasgow this season have been landed in excellent condition, taking them as a whole. The quality of the butter has also been good, some parcels of extra fancy quality surpassing even last year's production and giving the utmost satisfaction. Nearly all the shipments have been carried at a temperature of from 20 to 25 degrees in the steamers' refrigerators.

I have only come across one instance of mold this season, which I reported to the department; the trouble seemed to be caused through some defect in the paper. It is a mistake to use anything but the best paper obtainable, as paper of inferior quality is almost certain to cause trouble of some kind. It is also important that creamery men should keep their paper in a clean, dry place, otherwise it is liable to get infected with spores which, in many cases, have been found to be the direct cause of mold and spots appearing on the butter.

The favorite package for creamery butter is undoubtedly the 56-lb box. These generally have arrived in good condition, although some are a little too light for the weight they have to carry. We have also had several shipments of 70-lb tubs, chiefly for the north. There is a limited demand for these, but it is not advisable to ship tubs of any smaller size. There has of late been an increasing number of Danish kiels shipped; some of the butter in these is of very fancy quality, and I have good reason to believe it is sometimes sold by the retailer as Danish butter. With regard to the question of sacks, I most certainly advocate the necessity of putting sacks on every package shipped from Canada, as they protect the packages to a great extent from breakage besides keeping them clean. I have carefully noted the difference between bare and sacked packages arriving here, and have invariably found that those which were covered were landed in better condition in every way than those which were bare. This season, as far as it has gone, the larger proportion of the packages received at this port have been sacked, which shows a marked improvement, in this direction, compared with previous years.

BACON.

The demand for Canadian bacon has been steadily increasing, and imports to Glasgow for the past six months show a large increase in the number of boxes shipped compared with the corresponding period last year.

One of the largest importers here of American and Canadian meats strongly advocates the desirability of bringing over hams and bacon in cold storage during hot weather at a temperature of 35 to 40 degrees, the idea being not to freeze the meats but to keep them thoroughly cool. This firm has brought over several hundred boxes weekly in this way during the past Summer, with marked success. The freight of course is higher, being 10s a ton more than the ordinary rates, but the fresh condition of the goods well repays the extra charge. Would it not be of considerable benefit to Canadian shippers, whose meats are all mild-cured, to send over some of their goods in this manner during the hot season?

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—Stocks of smoked meats are getting very small and will soon not be worth considering. Advances have occurred in long clear bacon, roll bacon, large hams and short cut. The demand for the former is particularly strong and has affected prices in short cut by lessening the quantity made up into short cut. In fresh meats hind quarters are down, but fore quarters remain as strong as ever. The coming of poultry is interfering with the fresh meats. Spring lamb is varying, $7.50 being received within the past few days, but $7.25 will be the limit when this is read. We quote these prices:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 08¾	$0 09
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09¾	0 10

Butter—Butter has seen no change of conditions. Prices remain firm at the same level as for the past month, with a possible hardening on creameries and a less low limit to dairy prints. Large rolls will commence just as soon as the cold weather arrives. The following prices are quoted:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 18	0 19
Dairy prints	0 16	0 17

Cheese—Everyone is in doubt as to the quantities of cheese on hand in the warehouses. It is certain that the amount is very large, much larger than last year and careful buyers are closely watching the situation. Last year foreign houses bought freely and were caught by the lack of demand by the foreign consumer. This year it is possible that it will be the Canadian shipper who will have to stand the loss. At any rate there will be a strain unreleased for some time to come. It is true that 9 5-16 has been received on the board and to this extent shippers seem willing to speculate, but there is a chance that they stand to lose money if held stocks are anything like what is suspected. Board prices took a decided upward trend during the past week and more was sold than has been usual for some weeks. The reports for the week ending October 17 are as follows:

Poultry—Poultry has commenced to come on the market although in such small quantities as to make prices only nominal. Very few geese and turkeys are seen, the lines consisting more of chickens and ducks. The demand is small on account of the high price asked as yet. Prices quoted are:

Provisions—The provision market has been strong all week, with plenty of arrivals, and the new feature was an easier feeling for live hogs. This was caused by the London cables which were lower on Canadian bacon. Sales were made early in the week at $5.40 to $5.50 for selected lots and at $5.15 to $5.25 for mixed lots per hundred. There is a good demand for dressed hogs and no change in price is noticed. Sales of fresh killed abbatoir dressed stock were made at $7.50 to $7.75 and common dressed stock at $7 to $7.25 per hundred. Trade in cured meats and lard was fair, with no notable change in price. Cheese—An improvement has been noticed in the cheese situation and was considered strong at the rise. Holders seemed firm in their ideas regarding the advance of last week, but certain members of the trade were inclined to the opinion that the rise had gone far enough unless there was to be curtailment in the demand. The demand for the upward movement was not as generous as might have been expected. Certain English buyers had to have the goods and they were compelled to advance their limits. Generally, however, their offers dropped one-quarter of a cent per lb. below the holders' views here and that condition is holding everywhere. Cable business may fairly be presented at 9 3-8c on Ontario goods, but holders are anxious for an 1-8 of a cent to a 1-4 of a cent more. In some cases their wishes have been met, as 9 1-2c to 9 5-8c has been offered over the cable for Ontario goods. Such a range is not general. There has been considerable enquiry for undergrades, and as a result they are considerably scarcer and higher priced than better stock relatively. Early in the week 4,000 cheese sold at the wharf at 9c to 9 1-8c. We quote: Finest Ontario, colored, 9 1-2c to 9 5-8c; finest Ontario, white, 9 3-8c to 9 1-2c; Townships, 9 1-8c to 9 1-4c; Quebecs, 9c to 9 1-8c; Summer goods, 8 1-2c to 8 3-4c. Arrivals of cheese for the past week ending October 17, show a decrease of over 11 per cent. compared with the same week of 1903, being 82,200, against 92,600 in 1903. For the season to October 17, the decrease is almost 6 per cent., the arrivals being 2,136,600, against 2,274,100 in 1903. Exports for the last week show an increase of 33 per cent. over the same week last year, the gain amounting to 23,681 boxes. For the season to date, however, there is a decrease of over 16 per cent, or of 364,121 boxes.

Butter—Butter is dull with a tendency to decline. All indications point to lower prices, unless either the local or export demand improves. Early in the week large quantities sold at 19c on the wharf. We quote, spot Townships, unsalted creamery, 19 3-4 to 20c; the same goods, salted, 19 1-4 to 19 1-2c in boxes, and in tubs, 19 to 19 1-8c; undergrades, 18 7-8c; dairy butter, 15 to 16c. Arrivals of butter for the week ending October 17th were 13,102 packages, against 11,402, being an increase of 13,000 packages. For the year to date there were 563,232 packages arrived, against 449,269, being a gain of 113,963. Exports for the past week were 18,151 packages, against 11,779 the same week of 1903, a gain of 6,372 packages, and for the season to date, 434,973, against 298,777, a gain of 136,196.

CANADIAN INDIFFERENCE.

NOT long ago the foreign representative of an American manufacturing firm remarked to a representative of The Grocer that Canadian manufacturers were not as much is evidence abroad as one would expect, and that too frequently where Canadian products were actually to be found the markets were so inadequately cared for as to be practically barren of reasonable returns. Meanwhile foreign competitors were camping in their tracks and reaping the fruits of a systematic exploitation of such markets.

As if to lend additional color to the above remark comes the news that not a single Canadian manufacturer has availed himself of the generous offer of Sir Alfred Jones, manager of the direct steamship line between Canada and South Africa, to provide members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association with free transportation to Cape Town. Evidently they have not thought it worth while to send over a commercial representative or even a trunk of samples or exhibits to the fair that is being held there during the present Autumn.

No one dreamed but that Canadian exporters would have jumped at the chance of sending over a few of their number to look into trade conditions in South Africa in view of the fact that it is bound to become one of the largest importing countries of the world within the next few years, and the key to the situation will undoubtedly be in the hands of those early in the field. It is no secret that American firms are reaching out after this trade, and in some cases have been extraordinarily successful in establishing a permanent market for American products. If one is to judge from appearances, however, Canadian manufacturers, instead of grasping the golden opportunity at the proper moment, are not only willing to let it pass them by but are deliberately turning down an invitation to go over and capture a share of South African trade. Canadians scarcely deserve the favor with which they are looked upon in South Africa. Yet the fact remains that a Canadian workman is regularly given the preference over a foreigner, and a product "Made in Canada" appeals irresistibly to the South African consumer. For this reason it is particularly unfortunate that the manufacturers have not thought it worth while to take a step which would have given an impetus to Canadian trade all over South Africa. They need blame no one but themselves if continued exhibitions of such indifference ultimately lose them one of the greatest markets of the twentieth century.

ANOMALOUS COAL TARIFF.

A RECENT issue of the Halifax Herald contains an article on the subject of Nova Scotia coal, which is of particular interest in view of the movement which is being made for a reciprocal arrangement between Canada and the United States in regard to coal.

The Herald rejects the idea "that there is any considerable market in Europe, West Indies or South America" for Nova Scotia coal, but points out that a larger market must be obtained if the output of the Nova Scotia mines is to be increased.

At present the geographical limits of the home market do not extend farther west than Montreal, although within the last few months a few small lots have reached Smith's Falls. Within that market there is a population of approximately 2,000,000 people. As the population therein has increased in a smaller ratio than the output of the Nova Scotia coal mines it is urged by our contemporary that there must eventually be a glut in the market.

"The question," it says, "is a serious one to the localities concerned and the province; it is also serious to the stock and bondholders abroad. A stationary business is only one step from loss of values and decay. We assume that most of the coal propositions are capitalized on the basis of a developing output—of increasing business and augmented earnings. What becomes of this assumption, when the available market is glutted?"

While directly the Herald does not propose a remedy, it does not require a very close analysis of its article to discover wherein it considers it to be.

In a word our contemporary would have the tariff raised to a point where it would practically compel manufacturers west of Montreal to use Nova Scotia instead of the Pennsylvania and Virginia product.

The manufacturers and the railways in Ontario and other points in Western Canada while concerned in the welfare and prosperity of the Nova Scotia mining industry will certainly not look with favor upon any proposal to increase the present duty on bituminous coal. Their natural sources of supply are Pennsylvania and Virginia, approximately 800 miles nearer than the coal fields of Nova Scotia. Already they are taxed nearly $2,000,000 a year because of the 53c a ton duty now imposed on coal from their natural source of supply plus a freight rate of about $1.85 a ton.

But after all it would be practically idle to talk of increasing the duty with the object of compelling the transportation companies and the manufacturers in Western Canada to buy their coal in Nova Scotia. Nothing but an absurdingly high duty could compel them to do this. The burden that the existing duty imposes on the users of bituminous coal west of Montreal is already grievous. Why, therefore, make it more so?

The remedy is not to be found in increasing the customs duty on coal. It is in a reciprocal arrangement between Canada and the United States, whereby the Nova Scotia mines will have access to their natural market in the New England States, and the manufacturers and the transportation companies in Western Canada will be able to draw upon their natural source of supply without being handicapped, as they are under existing conditions.

Such an arrangement would not impair the home market embraced within Montreal and the eastern provinces. That market is just as much beyond the sphere of the bituminous coal fields of the United States as is the market in Western Canada beyond the reach of the mines of Nova Scotia.

A reciprocal arrangement will be to the advantage of all concerned—to the mine owners of Nova Scotia, to the manufacturers and transportation companies in Western Canada and to the consumers in the New England States. And what is good for all is the desideratum to be sought.

INSPECTORS FOR CANADIAN FOOD PRODUCTS.

ONE of the most vital questions in Canadian manufacturing circles to-day is that concerning the adulteration of food products. So much so that the authorities at Ottawa within the past few months have undertaken a crusade in the interests of pure and unadulterated foods; and have discovered as the result of official analyses that many of the food products sold in Canada as pure are more or less adulterated, sometimes with harmful and sometimes with harmless ingredients. There seems to be no doubt in the minds of manufacturer and consumer alike that no food which is advertised as pure should contain foreign matter. The question, however, remains as to what extent the manufacturer is justified in introducing foreign material in his endeavor to supply the market with a cheap article. Undoubtedly it is in the public interest that there be some uniformity in the matter in the way of a Government standard by which all food products may be graded. Such a standard can be fixed only after detailed conferences of members of the Government with the manufacturers and others interested. Once the initial difficulties are overcome minor differences adjusted and a reasonable standard adopted, the consuming public as well as the manufacturer will know what to do and expect, and the necessity of certain recent exposures, in which the manufacturers were not in every instance to blame, be entirely removed.

A valuable suggestion along this line has been received from a valued friend of The Grocer to the effect that it might be well to have a factory inspector placed in each manufactory large enough to employ one, whose inspection duly certified to by the placing of a stamp on each package would be a guarantee of purity to the purchaser. Where the firm is not extensive enough to support an individual inspector, several firms might employ one between them. Such a scheme would commend itself to manufacturers desirous of giving the public good food, even if it were not agreeable to those whose aim is to make all the money they can out of their products, by fair means or foul. It seems likely that some such system of inspection will ultimately obtain, as it has the promise of being effective and the additional advantage of being feasible and inexpensive.

A RED TAPE POSTAL SYSTEM.

THE red tape system of permanent officials in the British postoffice is proverbial. Several instances of this have recently come under the observation of The Canadian Grocer, two of which might be cited. For instance, a letter was addressed to the editor of the Daily Post, London, Eng. Now while there is no Daily Post there is a Morning Post published in London, Eng., but the postoffice authorities could not deliver a letter thus addressed, and forthwith returned it to this office, stamped with the words "insufficient address." The editor also sent a letter addressed to "Mr. Harold Cox, secretary of the Cobden Club, Manchester, Eng." Mr. Harold Cox is known the world over as the secretary of the Cobden Club, but the postoffice authorities in Manchester did not know him. It was doubtless infra dig. for them to look up a city directory and get Mr. Cox's city address, and so this letter was also returned stamped with the words "insufficient address."

In Canada the postal system may not be perfection, but Postmaster-General Mulock would, we fancy, decapitate the official head of any one if he turned over to the dead letter office letters similarly addressed.

Canada is a country of magnificent distances. From the Atlantic to the Pacific it stretches over 3,000 miles, but in spite of this letters sent to this country from Great Britain, often with addresses much more obscure than those sent by this office to the Morning Post and to Mr. Harold Cox, would have reached their destination. For instance we often get letters addressed to The Canadian Grocer, Canada, and not long since a letter addressed by a business firm in London, Eng., to a Mr. John Blank, Owen Sound, Toronto, United States, was delivered by the Canadian postal authorities into the hands of the person for whom it was intended.

Surely if Canada can deliver letters which do not contain the street number of the person to whom they are sent, the postoffice authorities of Great Britain with their relatively circumscribed territory ought to be able to do the same, and particularly when the letters are addressed to well-known men.

It is a bad thing for postoffice officials as well as business men when they become so tied up with red tape that they cannot turn over the leaves of a city directory to find the address or to do anything which necessitates their stepping aside for a moment from some established and hard fast rule The laws of the Medes and Persians are unalterable. So, too, appear to be the methods of the British postal service.

CANADIAN FOODSTUFFS IN THE OLD COUNTRY.

OLD COUNTRY eyes are fixed on Canada just now, especially on the Canadian display at the Grocers' Exhibition, Agricultural Hall, London. In addition to stirring up British tradesmen to appreciate the resources and possibilities of the Dominion, it is having the effect of educating Canadian exhibitors to the vast possibilities for the extension of trade with the Motherland.

The object of Canadian exhibits heretofore in the Old Land has been to attract immigrants to our shores by alluring illustrations of our fertile fields in the great Northwest. This has had the effect of stimulating immigration very notably and acceptably. The present array of Canadian products has had the effect of not only directing attention to the resources of the country as a grain producing land, but is proving that the colony is a fruit growing country capable of producing almost all that is good for man.

At this Grocers' Exhibition may be seen such products as flour, meals, prepared foods, canned goods of many varieties, preserved and raw fruits, butter, cheese, hams and bacon, other hog products, dressed poultry, canned meats, canned soups, condensed milk, confectionery and maple sugar. It is more or less amusing to see that the Grocers' Gazette of London remarks concerning maple sugar that "it is a comparatively new product in this country, which has only to be tasted to be appreciated."

The other side, namely, the awakening of Canadians to the chances for trade in the markets of the Empire, is all important. Britain has not sufficient areas to produce her own foodstuffs, but in order to feed the immense working population is compelled to import. On the other hand Canada has a surplus of food products. Our "far flung fenceless prairies" produce wheat which makes the strongest flour in the world. The live stock reared on the succulent grasses and oxygenated air of the western plains is sound and in general demand. Notwithstanding the dull markets in cheese Canadian-made brands are in great favor and butter has simply ruled the markets in Britain during the past season. Our rare fruits have elicited the greatest admiration over there, while our vegetables have been pronounced the finest in the universe.

A glance at the growth of our trade in foodstuffs with Great Britain shows a marvellous development. During 1903 the exports of the eight leading food products had increased from $34,191,746 in 1893 to $89,901,956, an increase of over 160 per cent., while the total exports of bacon, eggs, flour, wheat, oatmeal, peas, apples, canned lobster and canned salmon, had grown from $27,747,962 to $103,509,984 for 1903. Thus a great work is being carried on and the remuneration which may result from a comparatively small expenditure at one of the greatest exhibitions of its kind in the world may be greatly enhanced by the time manufacturers and exporters of the Dominion have extended their campaign of usefulness and made their products better known in the markets of the world.

A REJOINDER.

IN last week's issue of The Grocer editorial reference was made to a charge preferred by one of our correspondents against certain Canadian manufacturers exhibiting at the Grocers' Fair, London, Eng., namely, that they had charged the Canadian Government an exorbitant price for their products, whereas they ought to have given them away for the sake of having them officially introduced in the markets of Great Britain. The article singled out was a section of maple tree, for which the Government paid $5.

In order to avoid any misapprehension which might possibly arise, it may be well to state that the above charge was made by one of our English correspondents who, while conversant with conditions of Canadian trade generally, was not, as has since transpired, informed as to the particular circumstance. The maple in question was a fine white maple, the finest sample obtainable, selected and cut especially for the purpose, and afterwards hauled, put into shape and burlapped at a cost of $1 per foot. The Government authorities required not a piece of wood at a commercial valuation, but a section of maple to illustrate Canadian woods; as a matter of fact, the maple selected was a road-side maple, on which the farmer from whom it was obtained refused to put a commercial valuation. These ameliorating facts serve to minimize in no small degree the seriousness of the charge that has been laid at the doors of Canadian manufacturers.

CANADIAN FLOUR AND THE WEST INDIES.

THE GROCER has pleasure in publishing in this week's issue the opinions of two leading Canadian flour exporters on "The West Indies as a market for Canadian flour." The attention of the trade was recently directed to this subject on account of certain assertions made by Mr. Bryson, Canadian Commercial Agent at Antigua, Montserrat and Dominica, and already referred to in the reading columns of The Grocer.

The James Goldie Co., Guelph.

We do not think there is the same prejudice now in the West Indies against Canadian flour that there was some years ago. Up to within the last year or two we did considerable business, but latterly have devoted our energies to working the business principally through New York houses. We find it more satisfactory for various reasons.

A great part of the flour business in the West Indies is done on the consignment basis. This we do not care to do. Of course we had to consign more or less in order to introduce our brands. When we succeeded in doing this we ceased business with several firms, and received direct orders, mostly through New York houses. We at one time sent quite a lot to Antigua, to the firm of which Mr. Bryson is a member.

We do not think there is anything in Canadian flour not keeping as well as that made in the States. We believe, however, there is a great deal in what part of the country the wheat is raised from which the flour is made. It seems that the further south the wheat is raised the better the flour will keep in the West Indies. For instance, Maryland flour will stand the hot climate much better than that made in Michigan or in Ontario.

We have not done as much trade with the West Indies the past year or two on account of our Winter wheat crop being such a small one that we were forced to grind more Spring wheat, consequently were unable to supply the grade of flour commonly known in the West Indies as "Superfine." There is no doubt when we have a good crop in Ontario again that there will be no difficulty in selling Winter wheat flours either direct or through New York houses.

There is a great deal in the argument regarding financial facilities. My experience is that Canadians have been greatly handicapped. The rate of exchange is very high on islands where no Canadian banks are established. New Yorkers do not feel this, as in most cases they get paid in sugar, molasses, etc., which is in itself quite a profit.

The Flavelle Milling Co.

We have never sold to Antigua, Montserrat, or Dominica, but have been selling to Port of Spain, Trinidad, Barbadoes and Jamaica, and have never had any complaints from these sources. Neither have we found it necessary to ship Canadian flour as American goods through an American port, and certainly as far as our experience is concerned there is no warrant for the statement made by Mr. Bryson.

Canadian Canned Goods in Great Britain

Written Specially for THE CANADIAN GROCER by W. P. Gamble, B.S.A., of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

ANYONE who has followed the development of the Canadian export trade must realize that we have an invaluable market in the mother country. Many, however, fail to appreciate the fact that in order to establish a sound business with Great Britain we must supply her merchants with goods of the very best quality. The average English consumer does not consider the cost of household commodities so long as his taste is gratified ; but he strongly objects to paying even a very low price for an inferior article. The price paid for Canadian cheese and butter illustrates this fact very well. In the case of cheese, there is a large and growing demand for this article in England, whereas, at the present time, there appears to be a very strong prejudice against Canadian butter. It is gratifying to know, on account of the large manufacture of cheese in Canada, that our output receives such satisfactory mention by leading merchants in London, Manchester, and other large centres. At the same time, it should be a matter of sincere regret to all true citizens of Canada that our export butter does not reach the same degree o excellence. Every effort should, therefore, be put forward to place our butter on the market in a condition such that it will command the highest price. The difference in cost of manufacture, and proper handling of this perishable product of the farm, would be practically nil as compared with the enhanced pric which it is possible to obtain.

What has been said of our cheese ar butter applies in a general way to ou canned goods trade. It was with t object of obtaining some reliable information along this line that the writer during the past Summer, visited a number of the leading wholesale houses in the old country.

CANNED PEACHES, PEARS AND APRICOTS.

A number of the wholesale houses do not handle Canadian canned goods at all. In other houses, where our canned goods are to be found, the general complaint is that our peaches, pears and apricots are pulpy in appearance. When our cans are opened and the contents compared with canned goods sent from the United States the difference is very marked. The fruit from the other side of the line retains its perfect form, and is certainly more attractive than ours, half of which is in pulp and has more the appearance of boiled turnips than of fruit.

The general impression among English merchants appears to be that our manufacturers purchase the fruit after it has become too ripe, or else that a very inferior variety of fruit is used, such as that blown off the trees, etc. Notwithstanding this fact, the flavor of our canned peaches is excellent ; in fact, much superior to that of the California fruit. The general consensus of opinion appears to be, however, that Canadian manufacturers must look more closely after the raw material if we are to have a leading place in this very important industry.

CANNED RASPBERRIES.

The writer was shown a very fine display of canned raspberries. The fruit was put up in glass sealers, which were neatly labelled. This particular kind of fruit presented a very attractive appearance, and sold readily at good prices. In speaking of this fruit, Mr. Robinson, of the firm of Hanson, Son & Barter, said : "We cannot get enough of your canned raspberries to supply the demand. We have had to cancel a large number of orders for this brand this season. Our customers say the fruit is excellent. If more of your fruit could be put up in glass the prices paid would certainly be much higher than they are at present."

CANNED TOMATOES AND CORN.

There is a steadily growing demand for tomatoes and corn in England. Some few years ago there was a decided prejudice against canned goods of any kind, the reason being that a few cases of poisoning supposedly resulted from eating such foods. This prejudice appears to be gradually dying out. But there is a complaint at the present time that our manufacturers are not sustaining their record in the matter of quality. One defect pointed out to me was a blackening of the corn at the top of the can. This was probably caused by the soldering iron scorching the corn during the process of sealing the cans. In contrast with the black surface exposed when a can of Canadian corn was opened, several merchants showed me how the American manufacturers overcome this difficulty. They place a clean piece of parchment paper over the corn, and in this way are able to obviate any blackening of the canned goods. One dealer told me that he did not so much object to a little of the corn being blackened, as the corn was not injured to any extent, but it gave the customers a bad impression of the goods to see this black surface when the can was opened. The customers often mistake this blackening of corn for foreign matter, and very strongly object to it. A little care in sealing the cans, and a small piece of parchment paper placed underneath the lid prevents any such false impression.

CANNED PEAS.

There is a very limited demand for Canadian canned peas on the English market, mainly for the reason that most of our peas are white. The most of the peas sold in England come from France, and are colored by the use of a dilute solution of copper sulphate. I may further add that the canned pea trade in Great Britain at the present time is in a very unsatisfactory state, because of a law prohibiting the use of copper sulphate in the process of manufacture. The merchants say that it is absolutely impossible for them to sell canned peas unless they are colored, and it is practically impossible for them to obtain sufficient peas to supply the demand of their customers unless they are permitted to sell peas which have been colored by copper sulphate solution. Several merchants have been fined for selling such goods, and a number of cases are now before the courts pending the decision as to whether or not a small percentage of copper sulphate may be used in the process of manufacture of this particular article of food.

CANNED BEEF AND TONGUE.

Some of our Canadian manufacturers have the reputation, in this particular line, of putting up a first-class article. In other cases the complaint is made that our canned tongue cannot compare with that placed on the market by Chicago firms. The main points of excellence in the American tongue appear to be, first, the attractive labels on the cans ; second, the tongue presents a more attractive appearance when the can is opened, and, third, there is a complaint that some of the Canadian manufacturers leave too much of the throat of the animal attached to the tongue. From the English buyer's standpoint the tongue should be freed from all appearance of the throat or

THE EATING QUALITIES

They tell. In food products the chief thing, next to wholesomeness, is the way in which they appeal to the palate. These brands of fish are both wholesome and good to eat. They taste good; they make up into appetizing-looking dishes, and for the table have everything to recommend them, as you will see by giving but a single trial. They get the good will of the consumer at once.

FRESH AND CURED FISH

SOURCE OF OUR FISH SUPPLIES.

ALTHOUGH nine Canadian grocers out of every ten know that the coast and inland waters of the Dominion of Canada teem with fish in as great if not greater variety than any country in the world, a few facts in regard to the principal fish consumed in our markets may not be without interest.

Sea salmon, which has come into general favor within the past few years, was comparatively scarce in Canadian fish markets 10 years ago. Then the demand was not sufficient to warrant the importation of one full carlot of sea salmon from the Atlantic and Pacific Coast fisheries per season by a single firm in a city the size of Toronto. Cold storage had not been brought to such a state of perfection as exists to-day; the fish had to be sent forward by express in small lots, at the rate of 8c a pound. As a result sea salmon retailed at about 15 or 20c a pound. Now one firm thinks nothing of importing in Winter 3 or 4 carloads of sea salmon, which sell at from 12 to 15c. The Summer trade in sea salmon is supplied from British Columbia exclusively.

In Winter supplies of white fish consumed in Canada come from Lake Winnipeg, Man. These are caught in the Fall and are frozen and kept in cold storage until required. A considerable number of white fish are also caught in the same lake later in the year through holes in the ice. A series of holes about 5 feet square is cut and a long net pulled underneath. Fish caught in this way, which practically freeze solid as soon as they are brought into the Western zero temperature, are teamed into the City of Winnipeg and shipped daily to eastern markets, weather permitting. During Summer season supplies of white fish come from Lakes Erie and Ontario and the upper lakes, principally the latter. The catch from this source has, however, gone into consumption by the time cold weather sets in.

The fresh water herring trade has undergone a complete change within the last few years. The time was, not very long ago, when fresh herring were sold by the hundred at prices ranging from $2 to $3. They became scarce, however, in Eastern Canadian markets, and as a result are selling to-day at from 6 to 7c a pound. The best fresh water herring are taken from Lake Ontario, ranging in size from 2½ to 3 pounds, although it is a peculiarity of the fresh water herring that until the last year or two the average herring was much smaller.

Halibut come from the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts in quantities that are increasing yearly. A remarkable feature about the halibut trade is that supplies are shipped from the Pacific Coas, direct to Boston and thence back to Canada on account of a preference in freight and express charges being granted on through shipments of halibut from the Pacific Coast, which enables Canadian fish dealers to buy their supplies of halibut back from the United States at a lower figure than they are to be had from the Maritime Provinces.

The source of haddock, another popular fish, is the Maritime Provinces, and in off seasons Portland, Me., and Gloucester, Mass. Lake trout come from Lakes Huron and Superior and Georgian Bay. Pickerel are fished from Georgian Bay, yellow pike from Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario, and perch mostly from Lake Erie.

Codfish, kippered herring, smelts, finnan haddie (cured fish) all come from the Maritime Provinces. The consumption of fresh codfish and finnan haddie in Ontario and Quebec markets may be said to be larger in Winter than in Summer, while smelts are in demand almost entirely in cold weather. In addition to the above list of fish we have soft shelled crabs from Baltimore and New York, hard shelled crabs (resembling Old Country crabs) from British Columbia, lobsters from the Canadian Atlantic fisheries, salt trout, lake herring, pickled salt water herring, pickled sea salmon, green cod in barrels, and codfish in quintals, pound blocks and shredded.

The outstanding feature of the Canadian fish trade as a whole during the past few years has been the phenomenal growth of consumption, the increase within ten years being fully 75 per cent. Fifteen or twenty years ago very little fresh fish was used except locally near the fisheries. To-day, as a result of improved transportation facilities and cold storage fresh fish caught in British Columbia may be served on a Montreal dinner table five days after. The other part of the story which is quite remarkable is that the same fish, provided it is properly stored, will be perfectly fresh a week later in the hottest weather of Summer. With increasing population and growing consumption fresh fish are getting scarcer every year. The wages paid fishermen are higher and the cost of nets, twine and general fishing apparatus is considerably above what it was formerly. In the old days the rule was "supply greater than the demand." Now this is exactly reversed.

In conversation with a prominent Toronto wholesale fish dealer The Grocer gleaned the interesting information that of out-of-town fish customers a city dealer usually reckoned on having from three to four hundred more in Winter time than in Summer. The reason for this undoubtedly is the fact that fish can be handled with greater facility during the cold weather. In the majority of cases retailers have not taken the trouble to instal even the most primitive kind of ice box for storing fresh fish in warm weather, evidently not being aware of the fact that with very little expense fish can be kept in perfect condition for 5 or 6 days, even in the month of July. In the few cases, however, where the experiment of keeping a supply of fresh fish in Summer time has been tried it has proved eminently successful. The direct profits to be had from the selling of fresh fish are big, and what is more, fresh fish, provided a separate department can be provided, is a valuable side line for a grocer to carry, as it will undoubtedly attract an extra volume of staple trade to his store. These remarks apply, of course, only to the retail grocery or general merchant in towns where there is sufficient proportion of fancy trade. A line, however, which may be profitably carried by even the smallest grocer are dried, salt and pickled fish, and last but not least fish prepared in packages such as boneless and shredded cod. The day has come when the average housekeeper, and even the farmer's wife, finds it convenient to pay a little extra for an article of food ready for the table and save herself the trouble of preparation.

The Delectable Haddie.

TO the stranger visiting the fishing centres of the Maritime Provinces no branch of this important industry excites more interest than that devoted to the Finnan Haddie, a form of fish food that has of late become very popular in Canada.

In his native element the Finnan Haddie of our breakfast table is the plain haddock, which is taken all along the eastern coast in company with cod, cush, pollock and hake. The haddock as a fresh fish ranks with the cod, which he very much resembles, the main distinguishing features being a dark line along the side and a couple of black marks just behind the head, to which the fisherman attaches a diabolical significance.

EVIL MARK.

Indeed, they attribute these marks to the Evil One, and even go so far as to quote the words of His Satanic Majesty when he grasped the unfortunate fish. It is generally agreed that "I've got you, Dick" was the salutation addressed to the fish by Old Nick, thereby proving himself again a liar, for the haddock seems invariably to escape until finally impaled on the hook of some Nova Scotia fisherman. At least no one has ever met with one that had not escaped, and haddock after all are reasonably plentiful. But the blot on the escutcheon, or, rather, the back of the neck, remains a fearful warning to evil doers, and an admonition to all men.

CONVERTING HADDOCK.

The converting of a common run of catch haddock into an aristocratic Finnan Haddie does not take so long as one might imagine. The curing process is rapid and, therefore, not permanent. Should the fisherman decide to make "Dick" over into a dry salt "Cod" it would take longer, but when the process was completed the product would be almost as indestructible as sole leather, only a deal more palatable.

In either case, the initial steps are the same. It is desirable of course that the fish be attended to as soon after being caught as possible. Very frequently they are caught from small boats by small fishermen. These land, remove the gills and entrails from the fish, and dispose of them to a larger dealer, or else sell them out and out just as they come from the water.

In any event, once landed in the fish-house, they are headed, gutted, cleaned and put in pickle if to be made into Finnan Haddie, dry salted and spread out in the sun to dry if intended for hard dried fish.

SMOKING PROCESS.

A haddock is left in pickle from two to five hours, according to its firmness, and then hung up in the smoke house for from 10 to 20 hours. This is a delicate process, and the success of your Finnan Haddie depends on a nice adjustment of your smoke. If well done, your fish comes out a beautiful golden brown, with an appetizing odor and a delectable flavor.

The fish are ready now to be packed in boxes of about 30 pounds each and expressed with all possible haste to the markets of Inland Canada, for the sooner the fish is consumed the better. It has been smoked only enough to give it the proper flavor and to preserve it for a reasonable time. As intimated above, your indestructible fish is hard salt dried.

The workmen engaged in curing haddies acquire a marvellous dexterity, and will clean a fish in a twinkling. A packer in St. John boasts of a record of 500 cases dressed, cured, packed and loaded on the cars in 24 hours. This feat was accomplished by a staff of two splitters, seven cleaners, two headers and three packers.

FINNAN HADDIE INDUSTRY.

The industry is handicapped by inability at times to supply fish regularly. Storms, for instance, may shut off all supplies for several days, while jobbers in inland centres are chafing at the delay. This difficulty is not insurmountable. Larger capital invested and the use of larger and stauncher boats will, experienced men declare, enable producers to fill orders regularly despite inclement weather, and the movement is now in this direction.

Codfish Philosophy.

THE Maritime Provincer is a firm believer in the value of a fish diet, and will back up his belief with arguments drawn from theology, pathology and the philosophy of the ages. There is no breakfast, they say, like a fish breakfast, and no fish like the cod. Unlike many mortals, he practices what he preaches, and the sojourner down by the sea is surprised and delighted with the variety and toothsomeness of the fruit of the sea he has to choose from.

The easterner is convinced that the reason a fish diet is not more common in the west is because of the difficulty experienced in the interior in securing first-class fish and consequent ignorance of the delicious breakfasts that can be made of many members of the finny tribe.

The old method of curing the cod was the dry salt method, and all readers of The Grocer are familiar with the hard slab of salteries that for years has passed current for codfish. A healthy diet in its way for some, it did not appeal to the many, and was but a faint imitation of the cod at its best.

About a year ago Black Bros. & Co. of Halifax and La Have undertook to place the cod on the western market in a shape that would preserve its native merits, and in this effort they have been happily successful.

In their curing special pains are taken to secure the most scrupulous cleanliness. The fish are cleaned as soon as caught, and transported straightway to the company's packing houses at La Have, and there prepared into "Halifax" and "Acadia" brands. All the bones are removed and only the very choicest and whitest of the fish used.

A new form of fish just begun to be put on the market by Black Bros. is their "Halifax Shredded Codfish," got up in cartoons for the retail grocery trade, enabling them to handle to advantage a line of goods hitherto unknown to some grocers in inland towns and cities. This fish is especially prepared for making fish balls, creamed cod and codfish omelets.

In conversation with Mr. A. H. Brittain of Montreal, who is in charge of the sales department for Black Bros. & Co., The Grocer learns that the recent disastrous fire in Halifax only temporarily affected the company. The Halifax warehouses alone were destroyed. But as the factory is situated at La Have there is no interruption to the supply of fish, and all orders can be filled without delay.

Very few grocers realize the extent of the cod fishing industry of the Atlantic, which ranks equally with the salmon fishing of the Pacific, the value of the catch for 1903 being $4,028,788.

Our Canadian Fruit and Fruit Trade

Fruit Trade in the Grocery Store.

NOT long ago a representative of The Grocer had occasion to pay a visit to a grocery store not far from Toronto and make a small purchase of Mediterranean fruit. To his great surprise the grocer found it necessary to dig and delve among a stock of miscellaneous boxes underneath the counter before he could locate his supply of lemons and oranges.

This experience suggested that more attention should be paid to the retailing of fruit by grocers throughout the country. Possibly the grocer referred to above is beyond the reach of suggestions of any sort—it is almost inconceivable how anyone could allow himself to be so blind to the possibilities of the fruit trade as to keep his oranges and lemons under the counter.

The consensus of opinion among grocers who have paid any attention to the department of fruit is that it pays remarkably well, in some cases even better than staple lines. No one needs to be told that a housekeeper when she comes to do her morning shopping is sure to give in addition an order for fresh fruit provided her attention is drawn to an attractive display. In addition to being a good line in itself, fruit helps to sell other goods, for instance few can withstand the temptation of an attractive display of fruit. Once they are attracted to a store, nine chances out of ten they will come back again, if not for fruit then for something else. The writer has in mind several grocers which have earned a reputation as being headquarters for certain varieties of fruit. "I think it was about time," says one housekeeper to another, "that I was dropping in at Smith's. You know he gets his pineapples in before anyone else, and I always patronize him." Mrs. Jones loses no time in purchasing a little of the fresh fruit in question from Smith, but what is more, she takes her friend along and both think of some little article in the grocery line that is required at home.

The secret in selling fruit is attractive display. Fruit should be shown near the front of the store; the more conspicuous the position in which it is placed the better. If a grocer has two front windows he is recommended to give one, or at least half a window, over to the display of fresh fruit and vegetables. The fruit stand in front of a store also makes a most effective display. The thing to be remembered always in connection with selling of fruit is that fruit attractively displayed is already half sold. Under no circumstances should a grocer mix his fruit and vegetables with anything else. He should keep his stock clean and fresh and exercise the utmost care in displaying none but first-class stock. A good scheme to follow in a window display of fruit is to have the prices ticketed. A passer-by may be attracted by the fruit, but be timid about going inside to purchase, fearing the price may be too steep. These price cards are effective silent salesmen and answer questions. Another good idea is to have an attractive display card printed from time to time advertising the arrival of new lines on the market; for instance, "The first Almeria grapes of the season." Now that tropical fruits are so easily procured and fancy vegetables are to be had in and out of season in such variety and at such reasonable prices there is no reason why a grocer should not have a fruit and vegetable display attractive enough to win over the most hard headed customer.

In the handling of fruit the other cardinal points to be observed are watching the season in order to buy at the right time, and buying fresh fruit and vegetables with the exception of tropical fruits, only in sufficient volume for trade a day or two ahead. The reason why many grocers have failed to make a success of the fruit trade is that they have gone into it head over heels and overloaded themselves with stock that wouldn't sell. The requirements of his district should also be studied with the utmost care by a grocer—in addition to the tastes of his own customers. For the grocer in the larger towns, more or less variety of foreign and domestic fruits and fancy vegetables are recommended; even the smallest country grocer, however, will find it profitable to stock a nice assortment of staple varieties of fruit, such as oranges, lemons, bananas, pineapples, etc.

The Export Apple Trade.

IN the United Kingdem the almost total failure of last year's apple crop led to a great demand for imported apples, and, fortunately, Canada was in a position to profit by the situation, the apple crop in this country having been good both in quantity and quality. Under those conditions it is not surprising that, for the year ended June 30 last, our export apple trade was the most valuable in our history.

The following table shows the values of the apples exported from Canada in the years 1895 to 1904, both inclusive, (years ended June 30):

1895	$1,821,463
1896	1,416,470
1897	2,502,698
1898	1,306,681
1899	2,621,352
1900	2,578,233
1901	1,482,927
1902	1,566,808
1903	2,758,724
1904	4,590,793

Last season Canadian apples realized uniformly higher prices in the British markets than apples from other countries, and fewer complaints were heard. re quality and condition, than in any previous year. The old criticism: "Too many varieties in each shipment" was again to the fore, however, and will continue to be heard each year until Canadian apple growers realize the fact that their orchards are planted with too many varieties, and that they are suffering financially in consequence. Consignments of one well-known variety of uniform grade, are wanted by the large dealers in Great Britain, while small lots, composed of different varieties and grades, are bought by small dealers at reduced prices.

The apple crop of the United Kingdom for 1904 will only be of fair quantity, and will not affect the demand for the best class of Canadian apples; but there will not be the keen demand for inferior grades which was met last season owing to the total failure of the English crop of apples together with a scarcity of other fruits. The outlook is that there will be sufficient English apples to supply the cidermakers leaving a surplus to meet Canadian shipments of early varieties. In shipping

Canadian apples to Great Britain, the following directions should be followed:

PACKING APPLES.

1. Cool all fruit thoroughly before packing.

2. Handle as little as possible.

3. Grade fruit according to "Fruit Marks Act."

4. Pack fruit tightly in packages.

5. Pack no inferior fruit for export.

6. Pack a limited quantity of fancy apples of the best varieties in boxes, holding not less than one bushel or 40 pounds net of fruit, a suitable size being the Canadian standard (10x11x20 inches, inside measurement). Little or no packing material should be used, but a sheet of cardboard at top and bottom of the case will reduce the amount of injury from bruises. Only very fancy fruit for dessert use, such as "Famouse," "King," "Wealthy" or other highly colored varieties should be wrapped in paper.

7. The barrel is the most suitable package for the bulk of the apple trade with Great Britain. It is popular with the wholesale trade, and the retailers like it as the net weight of fruit holds out, which is an object where fruit is sold by the pound; the demand for apples in boxes will increase when the trade find they get a good article combined with 40 lbs. net weight of fruit. Barrels should be well made, strongly nailed and should have eight hoops, two each at top and bottom, with four quarter hoops. Place at each end of the barrel a circle of heavy cardboard in order to prevent the fruit from being bruised and becoming unsightly when exposed for sale; these cardboard circles should have semi-circular holes at each side to allow of their being easily removed.

8. Use only new barrels or boxes for the export trade.

9. For making barrels or boxes use a wood that will not taint the fruit.

The bulk of Canadian apples shipped abroad are packed in barrels, but there is a growing demand on the part of retailers and consumers in Great Britain for a smaller package. The wholesale trade and large dealers prefer the barrel, as it means less handling, but the box is the most suitable package for fancy apples, as there is less danger of the fruit becoming bruised through pressure, or injured by rough handling. The scarcity of barrels last year caused many shippers to use boxes, but, instead of shipping only number one fruit, in cases of uniform size, all grades of apples were packed and sent forward in all kinds of boxes, ranging from a cheese box to a bacon case, the latter holding from 250 to 300 pounds of apples. It is to be hoped that these dubious experiments have not prejudiced the British dealers and consumers against Canadian apples in boxes, otherwise lasting harm may have been done to our boxed apple trade.

Canadian fruit growers and shippers should adopt a box of standard shape and size for export, in order that boxes of apples from Canada be uniform in shape and size no matter what particular district they were from.

SHIPMENTS FROM MONTREAL FOR 1903.

Although a considerable percentage of the barrels shipped last year were made of poor material and were therefore not strong enough to thoroughly protect their contents, yet, on the whole, the apples shipped from the port of Montreal were landed at the various British ports in better condition than in any previous year. Owing to the volume of business offering, the apple shipments received greater attention than usual from the steamship companies, and as a result, there was more care in the loading, stowing and discharging of this class of cargo. Owing to the efforts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture several steamers were fitted with additional ventilators in the holds where apples were stowed, and the increased ventilation, no doubt, contributed materially towards the delivery of the cargoes in good condition.

SHIPPING APPLES.

1. Ship only very choice fruit of the early varieties, as early apples have to compete with home-grown fruit on the British market. Table varieties of choice quality, packed in cases, should be shipped in cold storage at a temperature ranging from 35 to 40 degrees. A lower temperature is not required. A great and sudden change of temperature always causes damage to perishable food products, causing apples to become slack, wet and wasty. Apples in barrels should be shipped in holds which are equipped with forced ventilation, (electric or steam fans).

2. Ship regular supplies at regular periods and not too large quantities at any one time.

3. Do not force apples out of season on the British markets; for example, do not ship Winter varieties when there is a demand for early varieties. The British trade do not buy to hold in storage, so hold late varieties of apples until they are seasonable and in demand.

4. Ship as few varieties as possible in the same consignment.

5. Canada ships too many varieties. Export shipments should be confined as nearly as possible to the following varieties: Baldwin, Greening, King, Russet, Spy, Ben Davis.

The best class of trade buy when and where they can get large quantities of uniform grade and variety, leaving the shipments of different varieties and mixed grades to the smaller dealers and costers.

MARKETING APPLES

The leading fruit markets in Great Britain are London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Bristol, Manchester, Cardiff and Hull. These ports are the distributing bases for the bulk of the fruit shipments as well as other food products sent to Great Britain from Canada. Canadian shippers, as a general rule, will do well to confine their shipments to one or more of these ports, for the business reason that it is better to have the bulk of your goods at a good distributing base, than at a market which is confined to local demands and which may become glutted and demoralized under heavy supplies. Individual Canadian shippers may make good business connections with firms at inland British towns, and realize very satisfactory returns for their goods, but as a general rule it is not advisable to exploit new markets unless prepared to meet losses which are liable to be made in establishing new trade connections.

A Leading Toronto Fruit Firm.

WHITE & CO., wholesale fruit and produce merchants, Toronto, is an example of what 10 years of enterprise can accomplish in a Canadian city of 250,000 inhabitants. From a very humble beginning the business of this firm has increased by leaps and bounds until during the fruit season of 1904 they claim to have handled no less that 47 cars of California fruit alone within the short period of 12 weeks. Such a record goes to show that the consumption of California fruit in Canada is increasing every year; the reason for this is undoubtedly the attractive quality and comparatively cheap price of California fruit.

White & Co. handle very large quantities of tomatoes, their shipments for the season of 1903-04 totalling 250 cars, or an average of one car a day. Oranges, lemons, pineapples, grape fruit, cranberries, foreign dried fruits, sweet potatoes, onions and all kinds of fancy produce and vegetables also constitute a big item in their yearly turn over. On account of their excellent cold-storage facilities White & Co. carry a large trade in oysters and fish.

To look after their increasing trade the firm require the service of four suburban and four city travelers. Their office staff consists of 25 or 30 men who work under the able direction of Mr. F. J. White, proprietor and manager of the firm. As far as office and warehouse accommodation are concerned, White & Co., of Front street east, have no reason to be envious of any other firm conducting a similar business in the Dominion. A special feature of White & Co.'s business is their auctions conducted daily during the height of the fruit season, by means of which the Toronto trade is enabled to handle large quantities of perishable fruit and produce with profit.

The experience of White & Co. has been that the fruit trade is tending more and more in the direction of fancy and expensive lines of fresh and dried fruits. For instance, grape fruit, which until recently was comparatively unknown in this market, has become so popular among the fancy trade of Canada that fruiterers are considering the advisability of importing this delicious breakfast fruit at frequent intervals during the winter season in carload lots. In regard to the present season, shipments of Jamaica oranges are now on the Canadian markets, and Florida stock will follow in the course of a week or ten days. First shipments of lemons, of which White & Co. are direct importers from Messina, are due about the first of November. In Almeria grapes they have a direct account with the Spanish growers. This season's crop record for quantity and quality is one of the best in years. The ripening season has never been so satisfactory, the sun having colored the berries just to the requisite degree. White & Co. estimate that they will handle, during the season of 1904-05, from 1,500 to 2,000 barrels of Almeria grapes, the bulk being the tinted variety, which is so popular among the fancy trade, not only on account of its attractive appearance, but also its keeping qualities.

French Almond Crop.

Recent advices indicate that this year's crop of Provence almonds will much exceed that of last year, owing largely to the absence of late frosts. The following table shows the estimated output of the principal regions of production compared with the product of 1903:

Country.	1903. Bales.	1904. Bales.
Provence	8,000	50,000
Spain:
Majorca	75,000	70,000
Malaga, Murcia, Carthagena, Alicante.	60,000	60,000
Sicily	100,000	80,000
Bari	100,000	75,000
Morocco, Tunis, Corsica, Sardinia	50,000	60,000
Levant and other minor sources	20,000	20,000
Total	413,000	415,000

From these figures it will be gathered that in spite of a heavy crop in southern France the total quantity available is not expected to exceed materially that of last year. With 100,000 bales of the old crop still being offered, prices are expected to average $25.30 for 220 pounds, though possibly a considerably higher price may be reached.

A Bakery Test Attached to a Montreal Flour Mill

By C. D. C.

HOW vital a thing is flour to rich and to poor alike, in fact it is almost as essential to the life of human beings as the water they drink. Yet while great attention has been paid by scientists to the purity of water, it is surprising that only within recent years has such accurate attention been paid to the purity of flour. The old-fashioned country grist miller made money without injuring anyone, as far as he knew, but the old days of tin pockets and leather carriers which carried flour through long troughs from mill-stone to bin have faded entirely from usefulness in modern times, except perhaps for remote districts. The only test these old millers had for grain was to run their fingers through the bag as it was sold, or brought to the grist. They looked at the grain then at the farmer and said, "I will give you so much for this grain because it is of such a weight and of such a quality." They milled the flour and that is about all that can be said. All they knew was that they poured the grain into a hopper and it came out flour—just flour.

After that, screens were used to divide it into a fineness after which process it was sold to the baker. The way to be a tip-top miller in those days was to be honest, get in touch with a good number of hearty farmers, keep one's machinery clean, and see that the wheat was absolutely dustless and wholesome before it was milled. Nearly every young man who has lived a portion of his life in the country can recall the fact that their miller was a man among men, because he made the best flour in the district. Wherever there was a water-power such mills occupied prominent positions on the landscape.

Mr. F. W. Thompson,
1st Vice-President and Managing Director of Ogilvie Milling Co.

Mr. H. M. Gray,
Chemist of the Ogilvie Milling Co. at Montreal.

Now one can readily imagine he sees one of those old-fashioned millers visiting the flour testing laboratory of the Ogilvie Milling Co. at their offices, Youville square, Montreal. The old story of a bull in a china shop would be about as appropriate as his appearance in such a place. He would not have the faintest idea where he was or that the apparatus and machinery about him had any connection with that flour industry out of which he made his fortune. Yet, to be fair to him it could be explained readily that the actual milling process is very similar in essence to what it was half a century ago. In fact, ever since the primitive days when the savage beat maize with a stone, the gluten and all the elements which go to make up the nourishment of common flour have remained practically unchanged. True, the power of moving mill machinery has changed, the material within the mill stones may have changed. certainly the old mode of passing the grain into and through them, is no longer in use. The secret of milling, which makes it a science to-day, is that which controls what goes into the mill, so that, whatever comes out shall always be the same and shall be the best. Best, is still a relative term and the stronger the character of the firm, the less likely they are to use this word as an absolute term. In the Ogilvie Flour Milling Co. of to-day the millers are as positive as to the identity of to-day's output, and that of six months ago, as they are that their mill is running. Supposing the old-fashioned miller had been asked to bake a loaf of bread from his flour before his customer would buy it, he would have laughed. That would have been a mild test compared to the one to which the Ogilvie Milling Co. put their flour.

Samples of Bread made in Ogilvie Mills.

Mr. Gagnon, flour inspector for the Ogilvie Milling Co. and Mr. R. Boyd, head miller at Royal Mills in back ground; Mr. Smeltzer, manager of Ogilvies Mills at Glenora and Mr. F. W. Thompson, Vice-President and managing director of Ogilvie Milling Co., in foreground.

In fact, every well equipped mill of modern times should have a test similar to theirs, which will be explained in the succeeding description.

By scientific means it is possible to make a loaf of bread out of a sample from every day's output from the mill, under chemically exact conditions. Thus, it is found, whether or not, bread is of the exact quality of the standard. If there is a chemical variation in the make up of the flour, it is off-set by introducing new grain of counterbalancing qualities into the mixture under treatment. This is essentially the miller's guiding system, that is the new miller's. The old story of the Bible, which says, "yesterday, to-day and forever," is a part of the gospel of the miller. If the word "forever," will not hold, he puts in the clause, as long as possible, and declares that the policy of the miller to-day is to make scientific flour, from which the best baker can make the best loaf.

Scientific Laboratory.

It is now a little over a year since the Ogilvie Milling Co. established in Montreal a laboratory especially devoted to the science of grain blending for daily consumption. There are four rooms located on the second flat in the handsome head offices of the Ogilvie Co. There head offices of the Ogilvie Co. There are three rooms subsidiary to the laboratory itself, an office and recording room, a milling room, a baking room, and the laboratory itself which is equipped thoroughly just as the science department of a large university would be, for chemical analysis.

Daily samples from the mills are kept in air-tight jars for one year.

of the whole affair, was educated in Canada but secured his knowledge of this peculiar portion of science, in Minneapolis, where grain blending arose first. Working with him are two young women who have been trained to bake bread according to the dictates of a stop-watch as carefully as the druggist prepares his prescriptions. By baking this bread they establish a standard for the wheat blended into what is called, by different names, "Ogilvie" flour, and by tests from day to day, whip the Ogilvie Co. into line so as to be certain that the standard is absolutely adhered to. Mr. Gray will sometimes call upon the head miller of the Glenora mills in Western Canada, or the Royal mills in Montreal, so that they may see just how the flour they are manufacturing from certain grades of wheat falls below, or exceeds a certain uniformity, which they have established as a standard. Sometimes Mr. Hosmer, the president of the company, or Mr. Frank Thompson, is called, the latter being a frequent visitor, as he is not only the vice-president but general manager of the company. Here they see with their own eyes the expert evidence of science regarding the flour which they are sending out to the world. Can there be anything more convincing in trade than this absolute security, which is a never-failing guarantee of purity and excellence? If it should fail for one day's product every ounce of that flour is cancelled from the sales—withdrawn—and if it is fit, is re-milled, if not, it is put down to the profit and loss account.

Imagine the difficulty of analyzing and experimenting upon the new crop of the great Canadian Northwest. This laboratory in Montreal must decide by sample test what grain must be bought, and what must be left alone. The average individual looks at No. 1 hard wheat and believes that it is of that standard, no matter from what part of the country it may come. That is not the case, as wheat has ancestry. Thus if a western farmer has some cheap wheat which he brought with him from United States when he emigrated to the Northwest, and chooses to mix it with the first class No. 1 hard of Manitoba product, it is for the Ogilvie Milling Co. laboratory to detect it.

TESTING THE WHEAT.

Right within those four rooms is a miniature flour mill that sifts the chaff from the wheat. Each sample of wheat is milled through this little tester separately, then it is analyzed in the laboratory. Mr. Gray will tell you how the glutens, proteids, acids and ash are divided—the percentage of each, and among other interesting details how the various constituents affect the baker when he goes to make the bread. As soon as he bakes a loaf from the flour—it is examined by the millers. After a conference, cypher instructions are flashed out to the buyers in all parts of the country. The knowledge as to what they want is known only to the chemist and to the buyer. The prophecies about the crops have to be taken into consideration by the stock brokers, but a big milling company to-day puts more confidence in the test of the laboratory than in the opinion of any human being. When the buyer's work is accomplished and grain begins to arrive in the city freely, as it is now doing, and has been for some weeks, the office of the management has a record of the chemical nature of every shipment and the mixture for the mills is made up accordingly. Every mixture is ground, tested, analyzed and baked in sample in the laboratory before going to the mill, but to guard against any possible danger of violation, this does not end the test. Even when the grain is on the mill a fresh sample is drawn every six hours from the product, and passed through exactly the same test. Should there be such a possibility as a variation within any six hours, the whole output would be held up for that period. As a matter of fact this has never actually happened in the history of the Ogilvie Company.

A short time ago when a baker kicked vigorously about the quality of the flour he was using, no end of trouble was raised at the Ogilvie Co.'s office. To-day the company allow others to do the worrying; for the moment a man complains about a shipment of flour, they say, "Send us a sample." That sample is analyzed, baked and compared with the sample preserved in the laboratory office, pictures of which are presented herewith. In these little shelves a couple of pounds of every day's flour is put away in a sealed and labelled bottle. Convincing evidence is shown that the sample in the bottle was taken direct from the milling that contributed the flour against which the complaint is made, and many a baker has been compelled to apologize when he has found out that the flour was all right.

It is a common custom amongs bakers, as well as other human beings, to make bluffs in order to get a rebate in buying stock. The Ogilvie Co. have severe tests which will prove who is to blame, in fact they will send a man to the most remote corners of the world to investigate exactly why their flour has not fulfilled all they said it would do. The laboratory makes them confident; their success clinches this belief. Their system not only manufactures a uniform flour, but demonstrates as surely as a problem in mathematics that the flour is uniform, at the same time impressing upon the baker the necessity of treating it in a uniform way.

ELECTRIC OVENS.

After various tests of gas ovens and super-heated affairs of varied descriptions, electricity was applied, and electrical ovens have been universally adopted for testing purposes. The electrical oven has the advantage of producing an exact degree of heat for every volt put into the heater and at the same time avoiding draughts and the opening of doors to control it. Before mixing the flour sample, it is brought to sixty degrees of temperature.

Exact weighing of everything is essential and the dough of each sample is kneaded with perfect uniformity and then left to rise in an electrically heated case, where it and the thermometer can both be watched through a glass door. Asbestos lines the oven throughout and it is encased in sheet steel and oak; thus there can be no possible radiation from it. By the rotation of the steel shelf on which the loaves are placed, a guarantee is given of their receiving equal treatment from the heat of the oven. Afterwards the loaves are weighed and measured, which is a remarkably interesting process of getting at the exact cubical contents. The loaf is placed in a box and surrounded with mustard seed, which is measured for the displacement after the loaf is removed. The loaves are then cut, numbered and placed on a long table. There the millers meet, not one knowing the number borne by the bread from their own particular mill, and judgment is passed upon the whole batch. If the milling is at fault it is made evident by this searching examination. The tests and reports upon the bread are filed away in the archives of the company each day.

A dainty little furnace is employed by which means Mr. Gray determines the amount of ash in the flour. Here and there are noticeable retorts in which the flour is boiled into acids for various purposes. The delicacy of the instruments used may be shown in the fact that the variation of acidity between different grades of Ogilvie flour has to be detailed in hundredths of one per cent. To go into the details of gluten and gliaden contained in flour would be tiresome because of its technical interest only; but when it is explained that gliaden is simply a sort of vegetable glue which holds dough together, bread-eaters may be interested. It is from the relative proportions of gliaden and gluten that they get their nourishment. This fact has been known to science for only a few years.

WHAT BECOMES OF THE BREAD?

"What becomes of the bread after it is tested?" would be only a natural question of an active mind, and without any boasting it may be stated safely that this department of the Ogilvie Milling Co. has been a boon to the poor people of Montreal. Mr. Gray is somewhat diffident about describing the number of applications he has for the bread after he gets through with it, but he certainly has more applicants than he can supply. Many a starving person has been gladly given the test samples from the laboratory of this company and herein may be seen the remarkable good that goes hand in hand with the advancement of science.

Seed Trade of Ontario.

THE GROCER has interviewed a number of Toronto seedsmen during the week with the object of ascertaining conditions existing in the seed markets of Ontario.

At the present time there is just about enough home-grown seed to answer domestic requirements. Twenty years ago Canada exported considerable quantities of "Red" and "Alsike" clover. Meanwhile the disastrous midge, or weevil, has made its appearance, with the result that an average seed crop is only about one-quarter what it used to be. As an evidence of the ravage wrought by this little insect pest, Oshawa, formerly one of the principal seed shipping centres of Ontario, may be singled out. The year before the weevil appeared 10,000 bushels of seed were shipped from Oshawa; in the year succeeding, the farmers had to import grain for seeding purposes.

The weevil begins its work at the roots of the flower petals before the bloom opens. Thus instead of a field of clover having a beautiful appearance like a crimson mat, it is brown in color, caused by the dried petals. In order to save some of the seed farmers conceived the idea of cutting the crop early in the year, leaving the straw on the ground, and letting the seed fall to reproduce itself later in the year, when the season for the weevil would be over. By this means a second crop of clover is obtained, and a sufficient amount of seed saved for home use.

RED CLOVER.

At present there are two qualities of red clover seed; if kept from early cutting it is called "Medium," if from late, it is known as "Late" seed. During the last Winter and Spring clover seed had two drawbacks; (1) the weevil, and (2) heavy and late frosts. The crop on the shores of Lake Erie and Ontario and the Niagara Peninsula was totally destroyed, owing to the snow covering being insufficient to keep out the frost. It is doubtful whether the present crop of red clover will be sufficient to answer domestic requirements.

ALSIKE.

There has been an increase in the acreage of alsike within the last year or two on account of the increased demand for it in foreign markets. This year alsike blossomed profusely and gave every prospect of a large crop. Just as the crop was in full blossom intense heat set in and withered the blossoms. When the increase in acreage, however, is taken into consideration the yield of alsike will compare favorably with that of former years.

TIMOTHY.

Timothy is the staple hay crop of the Province. Owing to favorable weather throughout the present season an unusually heavy crop was gathered in first-class condition. The quantity of timothy reserved for seed depends upon the price of seed in U. S. markets; if the latter is low, Ontario farmers prefer to sell their hay and import seed, since the cost of importation is very cheap. This year so far the price of timothy seed has been relatively high, and as there has been a considerable increase in the acreage in Ontario devoted to timothy it is thought that enough seed will be kept for seeding purposes. In addition, there is likely to be a moderate amount for export purposes.

THE WM. McCANN MILLING CO., TORONTO

NO small part of the present prosperity of Toronto is due to the energy and progressiveness of her business men, especially of the younger generation, who have come to the front in the past twelve or fifteen years. One has only to note the number of concerns which have started in a humble way in that time and are now classed among the great industries of the country, to realize the important part played in the building up of the city by young business men, whose capital at the outset consisted of honesty, enterprise and little besides. A good example of this class of citizen is the subject of the present sketch, Mr. William McCann, of the McCann Milling Co., Toronto. Thirteen years ago Mr. McCann entered into partnership with Mr. Gadsby, under the title of Gadsby & McCann, in a small milling business on George street. They prospered in a quiet way, and in a few years found it necessary to remove to a larger building at 192 King street east. Originally the firm manufactured oatmeal, but they were quick to recognize the value of the cereals which have had such unprecedented vogue during the last few years, and added to the list of their products a variety of breakfast cereals granulated, standard and pearl oatmeals, and flaked and granulated wheat, which rank as the most popular of modern breakfast foods.

Meanwhile Mr. Gadsby sold out his interest in the firm. A year or two ago Mc. McCann decided that the time had come for a further enlargement of his business. Lack of room was his chief trouble. This could only be remedied by erecting a mill which would meet not only the demands of his present trade, but provide for its future expansion. Mr. James E. Knox, who had been taken into partnership after Mr. Gadsby's withdrawal, concurred in these views, and plans were drawn up for the erection of the fine mills which stand out so prominently at the bottom of Jarvis street, Toronto. Two handsome four-storey buildings, one 60x150 feet, and the other 45x150 feet, were put up. But Mr. McCann did not rest satisfied with a handsome new building. He determined that his equipment should be second to none in Canada, and accordingly furnished the mill with an entirely new outfit of machinery, the best and most effective that could be made anywhere.

The firm has now occupied its new quarters for some months, and Mr. McCann and his partner have not been disappointed at the results of the removal. Besides insuring greater comfort to the workmen the output of the mill has been largely increased. Between three hundred and fifty and four hundred barrels are turned out a day, and when the exigencies of trade require it a still greater amount can be manufactured.

In addition to the thirty men employed in the mill the firm keeps four travelers out for the greater part of the year, two canvassing the city and two seeking orders in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. Trade with the east is much better than with the west, and is continually growing. The company even ship an occasional consignment of goods to a customer in the Old Country, who has learned the excellence of their products. Their trade in the east might, indeed, have been much greater than it is but for the difficulty of shipping small quantities to small dealers wanting their goods. Mr. McCann, however, has found a remedy for this, which consists in loading a car with all twenty different varieties of cereals, so that in future small traders will be able to purchase their goods by the car lot without overloading themselves with any one variety.

The rapid growth of this business may appear marvellous, but the same thing is going on in dozens of instances in the City of Toronto. Its success is undoubtedly due in a large measure to the sterling qualities of the men conducting it. Mr. McCann applied himself early to learn the trade thoroughly and when he launched out for himself he was not only a capable miller, but an able machinist, and had the intricacies of business at his fingers ends. He was born in Oakville, but has lived in Toronto ever since he was 14 years of age. He is a member of the Board of Trade, but has been too busily engaged with his private business to take a very prominent part in the deliberations of that body. Mr. McCann's attention to detail and thoroughness can be seen in every feature of his establishment. Nothing has been overlooked which could possibly render the work of manufacture easier or more rapid. A railway siding leads up to the buildings and machinery has been provided by which a carload of grain can be unloaded in an hour. A site has been chosen for the mill which also enables it to take advantage of water transportation with equal convenience, and in fact the company does ship a considerable portion of its output in this way during the season of open navigation—Adv.

Our Foreign Trade in Breadstuffs.

PERHAPS the biggest item in the foreign trade of Canada is our yearly exports of grain and manufactures. Canada is coming to be looked upon more and more as the granary of the world, and it is only necessary to glance over the returns to the Department of Trade and Commerce for the present fiscal year to show one that Canada has a legitimate claim to the title. During 1903 Canada exported barley to the value of $457,283, as compared with $179,519 in 1899, the bulk going to Great Britain. Returns for 1904 are not available as yet. In Indian corn the exports for the present year have amounted so far to $2,775,807, in 1903 the volume was $1,085,601, and in 1899 $6,411,495. Great Britain takes by far the greater part of our corn. In peas, whole and split, the volume of exports from Canada for 1904 is $1,133,268, for 1903 $1,056,266, and for 1899 $1,837,303.

Buckwheat, although not a very large item in the export trade as yet, figured to the extent of $175,394 in 1903. In oats the exports from Canada have become a very important factor, those of 1904 totalling $1,603,461, while the volume of 1903 and 1899 was $2,632,886 and $3,536,937, respectively. Exports of oats in 1904 went principally to Great Britain, the volume being $1,213,413. Returns for 1904 are not complete; exports in 1903 and 1899 were $701,288 and $572,593.

The most interesting item is wheat. In 1899 the value of wheat exported from Canada was $14,043,972, in 1903 $29,088,781, and in 1904 to date $18,225,525. The latter figures are not complete, and it is expected that by the end of the present season, notwithstanding the partial failure of the grain crops in the Northwest, exports will at least equal those of 1903.

Exports of wheat so far this season have been distributed as follows: Great Britain, $17,309,285, United States $22,036, Belgium $487,548, Germany, $178,816, other countries $227,840. Other grains have been exported so far this season to the value of $857,439, as compared with $715,727 in 1903, and $103,699 in 1899. The grand total of grain exports for 1904 to date is $24,862,145, for 1903 $35,280,549, and for 1899 $27,127,113.

In breadstuffs Canada has exported during the present year oatmeal to the value ol $756,687 as compared with $538,149 in 1903, and $396,568 in 1899. Oatmeal exports for 1904 are distributed as follows: Great Britain $644,219, United States $1,529, other countries $110,939. Wheat flour exports in 1904 have amounted to $6,131,015, in 1903 they were $4,700,651, and in 1899 $3,145,874. Exports for 1904 are as follows: Great Britain $3,568,430, United States $165,851, Australia $45,893, British West Indies $204,201, Newfoundland $930,921, other countries $1,215,719. Exports of other breadstuffs for 1904 are $488,618, and for 1903 $337,845.

In comparison with exports, Canada's imports of breadstuffs represent a very small item. Total importations of Indian corn, wheat flour, beans, oats, peas, rye, wheat, etc., in 1904, were $7,014,488, in 190 $10,345,196, in 1899 $16,914,441—a steadily decreasing quantity as the enormous grain growing areas of Canada are more and more being brought under cultivation.

P. McINTOSH & SON'S NEW MILLS

THE firm of P. McIntosh & Son, millers, etc., Toronto, whose premises were destroyed by fire on July 10, 1902, have just completed the erection of their new plant in North Toronto, and are once more able to look after the wants of their many customers, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in some thirty odd cereal products, including their well-known "Swiss Food," "Rolled Oats," "Beaver Oats," and "Aunt Sally's Pancake Flour."

The main part of the new plant, as shown in the accompanying illustration, is the building formerly owned by the Ireland National Food Co. This building is five stories high and built of solid brick. The old basement floor has been replaced by a cement pavement with pillows resting on blocks of concrete, thus making the basement free from dampness and the inroads of certain insects and animals that are prone to meddle with the grain.

Alongside this building has been erected a grain elevator one hundred and twenty-five feet in height, and a warehouse of two flats with 12,000 feet of floor space. The warehouse will be used for storing "Swiss Food" alone. Both elevator and warehouse are covered with metal sheeting, thus making the whole plant practically fire-proof.

One of the most interesting things in connection with the new mills is that during the process of manufacture the grain is not touched by human hands from the time it leaves storage until it is packed in barrels, packages and bags as prepared foods. All transportation from hopper to machine and from machine to kiln is by means of covered chutes and carriers worked on the water-wheel principle, only instead of the buckets being placed on a wheel they are fastened to an endless rubber belt. A distinct novelty has been installed in the way of special dust-gathering machines which gather up every bit of chaff or dust so that the interior is entirely free from the coating of dust, etc., that one is accustomed to see in flour mills.

All grain shipped to this firm comes by rail; a switch from the main line of the C. P. R. brings the cars alongside a large grain chute leading to the "pit" of the mill. The grain is unloaded by means of an automatic engine and hardwood shovels, at the rate of one car every twenty minutes. From the pit of the mill grain is lifted by automatic buckets to a height of one hundred and twenty-five feet, where it is dumped into a large hopper, with capacity of 2,000 bushels, and weighed. The next stage in the journey is through covered chutes into storage bins, of which there are 12 in the McIntosh mills, each holding 5,000 bushels.

In the process of manufacturing "Rolled Oats," after passing through a series of graduated separators the grain goes to the clipper, which cuts off the tails of the oat kernel. The grain is next steamed in a kiln 9 feet in diameter with moving shelves and individual boilers, which produce a constant temperature of one hundred and fifty degrees. Every other shelf has a raised edge to hold the grain while the others are open so that the grain with the aid of an automatic rake is kept moving from shelf to shelf until it reaches the bottom.

After leaving the kiln the grain passes between two swiftly moving emery wheels which remove the outside hulls. This process is repeated again and again and finally the grain from which the shells cannot be removed is forwarded to be used in the manufacture of horse feed; the rest goes to the roaster and flaking machine, and finally to the packing rooms.

P. McIntosh & Co. claim they will shortly be able to handle grain at the rate of 3,000 bushels per hour. Their output per day will also include 15 tons of horsefeed and 40 tons of ground feed, the manufacture of which will require no less than 1,200 tons of hay and 500 tons of straw monthly, not to mention other ingredients. The mills will be equipped with a 300 incandescent light dynamo, thus furnishing the firm a complete Trivote electric lighting system.

Among other appointments may be mentioned the handsome new offices of McIntosh & Son, situated conveniently near the mills and railroad at 109 and 111 Cottingham street. The exterior is red pressed brick, with effective corner turret in stone. The interior is finished in panelled oak wainscoting with maroon burlap and ceiling in old ivory, mahogany doors, etc. There are commodious private offices for Mr. McIntosh, an up-to-date vault, and spacious waiting and mailing rooms and cloak rooms, all furnished in the most sumptuous fashion. In their new home this enterprising Canadian firm must be placed in the very front rank of modern flour milling industries.

placed a trial order in June for

RED ROSE TEA

Last month he wrote :

> "Please ship at once two more cases RED ROSE TEA, one Blue Label and one Bronze Label. I cannot wait for your traveller, and there is no other tea that will take its place. It can't be beat."

This is a pretty strong letter to receive from a merchant who is a complete stranger, and had to be urged pretty strongly to try the first lot.

He had on his shelves several other package teas which were selling very slowly, and he was afraid that RED ROSE would only be another one of the same kind.

The statement in his letter, " No other tea can take its place," goes to show the hold RED ROSE TEA gets on the consumer.

Canadians appreciate good tea much more quickly than our American cousins, and if you will order a case of and introduce it to your customers, I believe you will meet with even greater success than the merchant I have quoted.

RED ROSE TEA

Isn't it worth trying ?

BUILDING A NEW INDUSTRY

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S FRUIT GROWING AREAS—PRESENT AND FUTURE

By Geo. S. B. Perry

WIDELY scattered as the farthest confines of the largest province in the Dominion will permit, are the fruit-growing districts of British Columbia; as widely diversified as the climatic conditions which prevail in the province are the varieties of fruit and the conditions under which they are grown. But in every locality the prevailing mildness of the climate, which is characteristic of Southern and Central British Columbia, widely as it varies in conditions, is extremely favorable to the successful production of the finest quality of all sorts of fruit which can be grown in our latitudes.

The Fruit-Growing Districts.

and by that is meant the areas where the surface of the country permits of husbandry, and in which that industry has been to some extent carried on, may be roughly divided into the coast and interior sections. The coast section again sub-divides naturally into Vancouver Island and adjacent islands, and the lower mainland from North Bend on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the salt waters of the Gulf of Georgia.

The interior district may be subdivided somewhat as follows: (a) From North Bend to Kamloops, including Lytton, Ashcroft and Spence's Bridge, and familiarly known as "the dry belt"; (b) Salmon Arm to Enderby and Armstrong, and roughly speaking including the valley of the Spallumcheen River and the Shuswap Lakes and lake expansions, in which district the characteristic feature is the prevalence of sufficient rainfall to supply natural moisture, a distinctive feature of this district; (c) the Okanagan district, from Vernon south to the international boundary and including the valley of the Okanagan Lake and other valleys transversely intersecting it. In this district the natural conditions in nearly every instance require that irrigation must b resorted to, and the surrounding ranges of hills and mountains provide with their many streams a very gene source of supply. The land laws of the province decree that a supply of one "miner's inch" to the acre from contiguous streams goes with the land as an inalienable right. (d) The boundary district where, though a limited area, near the City of Grand Forks, there a prosperous fruit-growing industry; (c) Southern Kootenay, including Nelson, Robson, and the district along the Kootenay Lake.

In addition to the districts thus outlined there are many areas still awaiting cultivation which will some day in the near future be producing many thousands of tons of fruit from their still unproductive acres. These available districts are roughly described as follows: 1, the Similkameen district, including the valleys of the Similkameen and Nicola north from the international boundary to Spence's Bridge on the main line of the C. P. R., and east of the Hope Mountains, the range which forms the dividing line from the coast district, and hitherto forms the unsurmounted barrier cutting off one of the most magnificently dowered districts in the province from communication with the other parts; 2, Southeast Kootenay, east of the Kootenay Lake and lake expansions of the Kootenay River from the international boundary north to the line of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, and including in what is described as the Fort Steele district the towns of Fort Steele and Cranbrook. In this district there is a beginning of the fruit industry, but not yet on a commercial basis. 3, the Columbia River, including the upper Columbia Valley in Northeast Kootenay to the Big Bend, and thence south by the Arrow Lakes to the international boundary, this latter portion intersecting at Robson, the South Kootenay district listed above as being in the class of partially developed fruit areas. 4, Ashcroft to Barkerville in the Cariboo district.

In nearly all of these districts classed as undeveloped the transportation problem has yet to be solved, and until it is there can be little expectation of an influx of population to bring out the producing capacity of the country until means, both of access and of shipping produce, are provided. In the Cariboo district it would not be possible to grow peaches, and some other fruits such as are freely grown in the Okanagan and will be as freely grown some day in the Similkameen, but there is a big field for the growing of hardier northern apples, to which the country is well suited.

The Fruit-Growing Industry at Present.

What has so far been accomplished in the districts where some attention is paid to fruit-growing, and what these districts are adapted to and capable of producing, may be briefly referred to.

On Vancouver Island there has been some attempt at fruit-growing on the west coast from Clayoquot south to Victoria City, and on the east coast from Victoria north to Comox, but with the exception of the older settled districts close to Victoria the industry has not been put on a commercial basis. In the immediate vicinity of the City of Victoria not a few enterprising individuals have made a splendid showing, and the product from their orchards and plantations goes on the market in shape to compete with the finest packed fruit from any part of the world. It is a thorough orchard district and all kinds of northern fruits are grown of excellent quality, of the varieties adapted to the locality. One or two varieties of cherries seem to be peculiarly well suited to the Victoria district soil and climate. Duncans and Nanaimo districts further up the island grow fine fruit too, but there is a lack of the organization necessary to put the industry on a commercial footing, when there will disappear the present complaint that the crop of cherries cannot find a market. Comox, the town near Union Bay, which is the centre of the Cumberland district, the furthest settlement north on the island, has a home market in the coal mines for all its produce, and its distance from and lack of direct transportation to the railway hinders the advance of the fruit industry.

The Gulf Islands, close to the south and southeastern shore of Vancouver Island, are well suited to many varieties of fruit, both small fruits and many kinds of apples. On Salt Spring Island, which is the largest, there is a considerable settlement and many prosperous ranchers are resident there who have good orchards and plantations. Strawberries grow profusely here, as indeed they do everywhere in the province. There are still, however, many opportunities for fruit raising on the small islands, many of which have from one to half a dozen settlers on, who have easy access by water to the markets at Victoria and Vancouver.

The lower mainland, beginning with the Delta Lands and Islands at the mouth of the Fraser River, grow a good deal of fruit, such as plums, prunes, pears, apples and small fruits, but the conditions of soil and climate are more suitable for the dairying and stock industries, which are given chief attention, along with general agriculture and that of growing vegetables for Vancouver market.

The higher lands of the lower mainland in the district between Burrard Inlet and the Fraser River, and on the north shore of Burrard Inlet from Port Moody westward, are especially well adapted for fruit-growing, but the expense of clearing land has hitherto made the first cost so great that until recently advancement has been slow. Now there is a rapid movement forward, and as nearly all the settled land is in what is known as "small holdings" of from 2 to 20 acres, and in most cases nearer the latter than the former, it is astonishing the change which a few years has wrought. Many small orchards are quickly coming into bearing in the district, while the remaining land is being cleared off and homes built up with marvellous speed. This will undoubtedly be one of the most populous horticultural areas in Canada, its closeness to market at Vancouver and New Westminster making it particularly attractive. Small fruits have been very largely grown and shipped from the district which is known as Central Park, and the larger fruits are beginning to reach the market as the orchards come into bearing.

Up the Fraser Valley, to Chilliwack from the Delta section of the river, there are numerous small settlements, some of which produce a good deal of fruit. The Chilliwack district, which is the largest settlement, is essentially a dairying district, and a great deal of attention has been paid to that industry. A good deal of attention has, however, been paid to fruit, and small fruits are abundantly produced and shipped. The district also grows large quantities of prunes and some varieties of apples. Cherries have been a big success, as the market price of this fruit is always high.

At Agassiz, further east than Chilliwack, is located in a lovely district the Dominion Government Experimental Farm for British Columbia, under the direction of Mr. Thos. A. Sharpe. This district is perhaps the furthest east in the coast district proper, where there is any development of the fruit-growing industry, the municipality of Kent being a very prosperous community.

The dry belt of the interior district includes Lytton, Spence's Bridge, Ashcroft and Kamloops, all on the main line of the C. P. R. Where there is sufficient water to sustain the orchards all sorts of northern fruits are brought to the highest state of perfection. There is a good deal yet to be done in the way of filling up the district, and in some cases there will yet have to be plans carried out for irrigation, in which the Provincial Government will in all probability bear the burden of the initial cost.

In the Shuswap and Spallumcheen valleys, Salmon Arm, Enderby and Armstrong are prosperous centres of settlement, and large advances have been made in production as well as in the marketing of fruit. The industry has been given increasing attention every year, and already reaches a stage of considerable commercial importance. Armstrong and Enderby are sometimes classed with the Okanagan district for the reason that the line of railway serving the latter which runs from Sicamous Junction on the C. P. R. to Okanagan Lake passes through Enderby and Armstrong. These settlements are, however, from a fruit-grower's point of view, properly classified with Salmon Arm, as they are actually in the same valley and affected by the same climatic conditions, although there is less need of irrigation than in the Okanagan proper, the annual rainfall as a rule being sufficient for the needs of agriculture.

The Okanagan District.

In the Okanagan district, from Vernon south along the shores of the lake, and in the valleys tributary to the Okanagan Valley, irrigation prevails where fruit culture has been given attention. Throughout this district the conditions are most suitable for peach-growing. At Peachland and Summerland a substantial start has been made, and these settlements have amply demonstrated that the peach is a commercial proposition in the fruit industry of the Okanagan. Other parts of the district further south are, perhaps, even better adapted for raising this fruit, but little if any progress has been made as yet in growing the fruit or setting out orchards. In the Vernon, Kelowna, and other portions of the valley where the industry has been developed, more attention has been paid to apples, plums, pears, cherries, small fruits, etc., than to peaches. Nowhere in the province has there been greater progress than in the Okanagan district generally, along two lines, in the development of the fruit industry. These are the settlement of the district and the attention paid to shipping fruit on a commercial basis. In both ways success has attended all the efforts of those interested in developing the Okanagan.

Grand Forks, in the boundary district, has made good progress in developing fruit-raising. The area available is not large but well adapted for all varieties. There is ample market for all the production on the account of the multiplicity of mining towns and camps of importance in the district, where the demand will for many a day absorb all production.

At Nelson, Robson and elsewhere in Southern Kootenay, where attention has been paid to the fruit-growing industry, there has as yet been only just enough progress to show what the district is capable of. Along the shores of Kootenay Lake are many acres of considerable extent where fruit can be raised, and many settlers have already secured holdings and made a beginning in the industry. At Nelson an annual exhibition is carried on, and the quantity and quality of fruit is surprising, to those who have been accustomed to look on the Kootenay as a strictly mining district.

Fruit Output of British Columbia.

Briefly the volume of fruit marketed from British Columbia may be indicated by the following figures: In 1902 the C.P.R. carried 1,469 tons, and the Dominion Express Co. 487 tons; in 1903 the C.P.R. carried 1,987 1-2 tons, and the Dominion Express Co. 676 tons; an increase of 518 1-2 tons and 189 tons respectively, or a total increase by the two carriers of 707 1-2 tons. This year conservative estimates place the increased export at 15 to 20 per cent. over that of 1903. The large amount of home consumption not handled by the railway and express companies is, of course, additional.

Fruit-growing is constantly increasing in the amount of attention being paid to it, and it may become the largest industry of the province. The lumbering, fishery and mining industries may decrease by reason of the natural resources becoming exhausted, but husbandry is bound to increase, for nature always kind and indulgent, is here most lavish in her rewards to the husbandman.

Government Inspections.

While nature has done much in soil and climate to adapt the Province of British Columbia for fruit-growing and other branches of horticulture, there is now a steady forward movement in the direction of making the industry not only successful from the scientific and practical side of producing, but from the commercial side. Much has been done in the way of organization, while there is still plenty of room for progress. The inspection of fruit from the commercial aspect is more particularly the care of the Dominion Government, under the

THE DAVIDSON & HAY LIMITED

Wholesale Grocers,

TORONTO, ONT.

Fruit Marks Act; this inspection is by no means a policing of the industry to catch wrong-doers, though there is a strict watch kept for infractions of the regulations. It rather aims to be educative in its tendency. In order to bring up the standard of fruit and fruit packages, so that the grower will realize the highest price for his product, it is necessary, not only to impress upon him that it is against the law to neglect certain rules and observances, but that neglect of them causes direct loss in money realized from the crop.

The Provincial Government has in charge the protection of fruit from the inroads of fruit pests and diseases. The transportation problems too have been given a great deal of attention by the Provincial Department of Agriculture. It may be well to say that the officers of the Dominion and Provincial departments are working in harmony for the common object, the advancement and upbuilding of the industry. The Board of Horticulture is a Provincial Government institution, comprising the officials of the department, interested in the fruit industry. This body has the formulation of regulations for the care of trees and fruit, as well as for the inspecting of importations of fresh fruit and trees which might bring in pests and diseases.

A very important and well-organized body is the Fruit-Growers' Association, which while not official under the province, is endorsed and recognized by the Provincial Government. It is composed of leading fruit-growers and the Government aids its work by an annual grant. Its recommendations are also taken into consideration by the Board of Horticulture and the Department of Agriculture.

Requirements of the Industry.

What the fruit-growing industry wants now is better rates and facilities for transportation, ventilated cars to carry the fruit to market, and other improvements if fruit-growing is to become as important a commercial factor as it is capable of becoming. In British Columbia apples are quite equal if not superior in size and color to Ontario stock while in texture and flavor they are far superior to fruit coming from the south. A realization of the immense possibilities of the industry is just dawning on the majority of people in British Columbia. The Northwest market has been captured, that of Manitoba also is open to the products of this province. All that is necessary to hold what we have, is to send good fruit properly packed and graded and put up in neat packages and British Columbia may plant fruit trees as fast as she likes, and will probably never catch up to the vast demand market of the Canadian Northwest.

The difference between British Columbia and eastern Canada has been aptly described by one gentleman prominently connected with the industry. Under the present efforts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture the aim in British Columbia is to build an industry on a stable foundation. In the east it is to resurrect and reorganize an industry which has largely fallen into decay. In that way the work accomplished under the fruit inspection is greater than in the east. The idea is not to use severity in the enforcement of the Act, but that the work shall be largely educative. It would be useless to put on a large force of inspectors to go into every orchard and see that each grower is grading and packing his fruit properly and putting it into proper packages correctly marked. Education will teach the growers that on the trees is where a great deal of grading and selecting can be done, and that by use of spraying and by thinning out the heavily fruited branches, better samples and results can be secured.

Do a Cash Business

Do a cash trade; it costs three per cent. to do it by giving solid oak rocking chairs or imitation mahogany, oak or golden oak rockers with arms; seats made of cobbler leather, flat material, cane, or of three-ply mahogany finish. These are up-to-date and well finished chairs. Also card tables, 24 x 24 inches square, oak, solid or imitation mahogany, or golden oak finish. These pieces of furniture will draw you a large cash trade. Leading merchants over Canada are using Furniture to draw a cash trade at the present time. Goods shipped direct from the factory.

These lines are proving to be appreciated by those that receive them as a premium for their cash trade. They are not plated ware; they never need re-plating. To secure these lines in your own town or city and control them in future address

Oriental and Forest City Extracts...

The Best at any Price

These extracts are not equalled anywhere for purity, strength and fine flavor---have been the standard extracts in Canada for years.

Thousands of families use them and cannot be induced to use any others.

Most grocers sell them; if you don't, do so now and you will find that the goods not only sell themselves, but that your extract trade will increase.

Our stock is now complete, and you should order early for the 'Xmas trade and make sure of getting prompt shipment.

If, indeed, it be true that "An honest tale speeds best being plainly told" then the following bit of "Pure Candor" should make a rapid impression.

No mystery surrounds the instant and universal acceptance by critical connoisseurs of "SALADA" Natural Green Tea of Ceylon wherever it has been offered.

Here is its simple story in a nutshell.
In it we offer an actually pure, untampered with Natural Green Tea of exquisite flavor, and unadulterated strength, that renders it more economical and healthful in use than the Japan Teas it is so rapidly displacing all over the Continent. It is of a light color in infusion, with a peculiarly delicate taste and "bouquet."

The rapidly growing list of enterprising dealers all over the land who are now handling "SALADA" Green Tea is evidence that they recognize as inevitable its dominating influence over the Japan Tea sales of the future, and they do not propose being left behind in catering to the public demand for something so infinitely better than the old-time Japans that they have hitherto been.

We pack and sell "Salada" Natural Green Teas in sealed packets only —same form style and prices as the celebrated Black and Mixed Teas of "Salada" brand.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Oct. 20, 1904.

Groceries.

LIVELINESS marks the grocery business everywhere just now. The height of the Autumn trade is in progress. Collections have improved. Abundant quantities of stock are being sent out daily all over the country. Prices are firm in general lines. The striking feature of the week is the decline in sugar of 10c. This, it will be remembered, was anticipated owing to the decline which took place in New York last week. The drop of 10c will bring granulated down to $4.45 per barrel and so on through the list. Country produce of all descriptions hold their firmness and provisions and eggs, notably, are strong with a tendency towards the advance. Molasses is unchanged, but there seems to be an increased demand for Barbadoes and offers of 28c are common in the market. Pure lard has maintained its advance last week, and there is a good demand. The demand for new crop canned goods has increased and corn and tomatoes are still very high. In spices all kinds are firm, with a decided tendency to the advance which was indicated during the past two weeks. The tea market seems absolutely dead. Quotations are interesting, but from the Old Country there seems to be a feeling of an over supply of tea of very poor quality. Deliveries, however, are considered satisfactory, both for home consumption and export, notwithstanding these conditions. Late mail advices from London say that the disturbing effects of the increased duty are now being seriously felt by producers of tea and they are already paying a considerable percentage of it. The season's average price to date from every separate district in India, as well as Ceylon, is appreciably below last year. The dried fruit markets have presented a brisker appearance during the week, and all descriptions have been moving with more freedom. The demand for currants continues to increase in volume. New figs are noticed in advance express shipments. The green fruit market is extremely quiet. There seems to be an over supply of Canadian grapes on the market and there is little demand for these goods, in fact they are selling for 12½c to 15c, which is less than they can be bought for in the west. In fish there is a steady demand for oysters and haddock, and cod are almost unobtainable, there having been an advance of 100 per cent. on the price, both locally and in Boston. Coffee still remains an interesting product and is firm.

SUGAR.

Sugar declined 10c in sympathy with the decline of last week, which took place in New York. An easier feeling has been prevalent in the sugar situation, increasing in volume from day to day during the last week. In the London speculative market raw sugar declined 3d since the 5th of October, and options are now quoted at 11s. There has been no change in the market for raw cane centrifugal sugars, which are nominally quoted at 12s 3d, and Muscovado at 11s. It is officially reported that the French fabricants are disappointed with the sugar crop, especially in the light soils, and are buying considerably, while German consumers entered the market and made the refiners repurchase their old contracts there. With the big increase in German consumption the home trade has become a more important factor and the same may be said of France. The report goes on to say that unless they have an exceptionally favorable October they will have for the present probably a greater deficiency in Europe than the increase in cane, and without a reduction in consumption there would hardly be a fair working stock left over; therefore speculators consider it safe to hold for full prices. Locally the grocery market has been quiet, partly from the extreme firmness of holders, partly from the disinclination of the trade to pay the prices asked. The tone of the market remains steady, in spite of the easiness of the general situation and the modified cable advices on raw beet sugar, as well as the inactivity of the New York market. The volume of new business for the month, so far, has not been as large as that of last month at the same period, but considering the general condition of the market the demand has been fair for the season. SYRUPS AND MOLASSES

A general quietness is noted in the molasses market and prices remain unchanged. There have been very few new arrivals in foreign molasses, and what have come in have been taken care of and marketed. Jobbers are busy, but the quantities exchanging hands are not large. We quote :

COFFEE.

Interest in coffee is still prominent, and the remarkable figures sent out from the countries of production should serve as a proof for almost any position. Take for instance the increase in the world's visibly supply, which amounts to 40,000 tons. In ordinary times and without any unusual reason this would look like a bad feature for prices. On closer examination and inquiry from the different sources of supply, it may be found that the increase is entirely due to the rate at which the Brazil crop is coming forward, yet in spite of that, and the fact that the stocks in Brazil are almost a record, there is no pressure from them to sell and prices are still kept at the high level they have been for some time. Another feature to account for the increase in stocks is that the deliveries are considerably behind those of last year, and certainly no one would suggest that the world's consumption is not only thoroughly maintained, but is increasing. There is some intelligence, therefore, in the report that dealers in the interior are holding off buying as long as they can with the hope of lower rates in the future. Supplies are noticeably smaller and Colombian coffee is noticeably dearer. Home trade kinds are selling steadily and rates are well maintained. We quote :

SPICES.

The advance in spices has been well maintained and there is a good demand generally. Black pepper is inclined to be quiet after the recent activity; quotations continue firm. There is a slight lull in the demand for white pepper, owing to the recent advances. Considerable inquiry has been noted for West Indian nutmegs, and a slight advance has taken place. Prices for spot and early shipment of Zanzibar cloves remain firm. Canary seed is quiet and rather less firm. We quote :

TEA.

The tea market is in a bad shape. Very little is doing and the demand is slight. Dodwell & Co., Limited, report from Colombo considerable quantities of black tea having been brought forward and there was a good demand for medium to finest grades. Competition, which was keen, forced quotations to a higher level, extreme rates being realized for choice brands. Common descriptions were somewhat neglected, but rates on the whole showed a steady market. Dusts were distinctly dearer. The exports to the United Kingdon for one week in September were about two and a quarter million pounds. McMeeking & Co. report from London that there is a falling off of offerings of Indian tea at the public auctions in comparison with the same month of 1903. The imports were about 24,126,000 lbs., and the deliveries 12,959,000 lbs., leaving in stock 41,956,000 lbs. Production in India still shows a large increase over last year and should planters continue to manufacture in heavy volume inferior and undesirable teas like many of those recently received, there is much risk of quotations falling back to a very low level indeed. The shipments from Calcutta to the United Kingdom up to the end of last month show a large increase over last year, while the quantity put up for auction in London has been much under the previous year's total. This would prove that either more tea is passing direct from the import vessels into the distributor's hands, or that offerings later on must be on a relatively heavier scale. In Ceylons the shipments from Colombo to London showed a marked advance in volume, and may be expected to increase for some months to come, as many estates have reverted to the production of black tea, any access in which must come to Great Britain. An important and satisfactory feature in the market, however, is the continued good demand for the better class of medium and fine teas. This points to the conclusion that consumers are alive to the fact that good, and at the same time the most economical, tea can be obtained in the neighborhood of 35c a lb. The tea market is decidedly uninteresting to the jobber, owing to the quietness prevailing. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

Great interest is being taken in the maintenance of high prices in both corn and tomatoes, new crop. Canned salmon has called for a better inquiry, principally the Alaska grade. There is a tendency towards an advance. All reports from the French sardine fisheries are still anything but satisfactory, and as the fishing practically closes at the end of October there can be very little hope of an improvement in the position. Occasionally catches are made up to the middle of November, but these late fish are undesirable, the flesh being dry and lacking in flavor. Whatever the October results may be, it is certain that the larger sizes of tins will be in very short supply throughout the season. Anything like normal prices need not be expected. Canned meats are in good demand. In fruits the spot trade is quiet. Considerable trade is being done, however, for forward delivery, and prices are hardening based on the reports of probable short crops in certain varieties of fruit. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits.

An increased demand has set in for dried fruits of all descriptions, probably owing to the early opening of Christmas trade. Trade in currants is said to be hardly equal to the normal October dimensions. It may be remembered that grocers took advantage of the low prices existing for fine fruit during July and August last, and are only just coming into the market. Lower grades are quoted slightly in the buyers favor and their level seems to almost shut out the probability of any further reduction. In Sultanas it is reported from the countries of production that there is no hope of the new crop of good quality being purchasable for the purpose of retailing at about 8c a lb. Old fruit which has been held over is subject to good selling price, as large quantities of it have kept remarkably well. Figs are selling freely at full values. Muscatels are in fair request, and owing to limited supplies the market remains firm. The fruit is reported of excellent quality and appearance. French plums are arriving in excellent condition and a satisfactory trade is commencing. The spot market for dates is rising and considerable business is being done. New figs are in evidence and meeting with ready sales for first advance lines. We quote :

Permanent Trade versus Temporary Profit

Selling a poor article at a big profit sounds like good business when you are dropping the money from the sale into your till: but when months pass by and that fooled customer doesn't return it is time to figure out how much loss that "big profit" means to you. Good merchandise cannot be produced to give anyone an abnormal profit.

The following lines are manufactured to give the grocer a fair profit and give his customer the best starch products that can be produced. They are the kinds that make profitable, permanent trade.

Celluloid Starch

A package starch that requires no cooking. It has met with wonderful success and is well known throughout the Dominion.

Lily White Gloss Starch

This is an excellent starch which we pack in handsome drum and trunk packages, each containing 6 lbs. starch, 8 packages in a case. They make a handsome display.

Brantford Corn Starch

This is a most wholesome food which can be served in many dainty ways. Most of your customers know it—the rest need but try it once to become steady users.

Green Fruits.

Again apples are dominating the fruit market, and notwithstanding the drop in prices abroad an immense export business is being carried on. The latest cable advices from the principal markets of Great Britain are of a more cheerful character; not only are prices somewhat better, but the demand is good and large, more especially for red fruit. Sales give nets in Boston of $1.50 to $2.50 per barrel for Fameuse, Wealthy, Gravensteins, Kings, McIntosh reds. Some very fancy lots of Kings and MaIntosh reds netted $2.75. Sales of the same fruit in half barrel cases sold to give nets in Boston from $1.10 to $1.50 per case. One fancy lot of Kings netted $1.75. Otherwise green fruits are comparatively quiet, and grapes are selling poorly, extremely low prices being obtainable for Canadian grapes. We quote :

Vegetables.

A firstrate demand has kept up for all kinds of vegetables. Cucumbers are found to be much more plentiful than was at first expected. The interest in onions is still noticeable and the demand is still strong for red onions. The change in putting up yellow onions in bags instead of barrels seems to have met popular favor, and a steady demand is ruling at 2c per lb. Mushrooms have advanced 75c a lb., and are hard to get at that. We quote :

Fish.

Oysters are maintaining a strong popularity, and owing to the abundant supplies prices have not risen to any exorbitant rate. Fresh fish and sea fish are scarce. Haddock and cod have advanced fully a hundred per cent. and are almost unobtainable. This applies also to Boston, which is one of the best fish centres of the east. In other lines prices are about the same, but the scarcity tends to apply to haddies, owing to the recent storms on the coast. Green cod is scarce and the prices will certainly be higher than usual this season. We quote :

EGGS.

The advance in eggs has been maintained and a general firmness rules. The receipts increased early in the week and notwithstanding that fact the market remains strong and prices have an upward tendency without any actual change to note. The demand is good and sales of straight gathered stock took place at 20c to 20½c, and in some cases 21c was realized, while good straight cold storage eggs sold at 19c. to 19½c per doz. For selected eggs the demand was faair and sales were made at 24c, and Montreal limed eggs at 20c per doz.

BEANS.

The bean market is quite notable. Primes have been sold for December at $1.40. Mr. Chouillou, one of the largest dealers in the city recently shipped 2,500 bags of beans to Havre, showing that there is a scarcity on the Continent. It is said that the crop of France, Austria and Germany has been bought up by Russia for use in the war. The trade with France has tended to stiffen the market. We quote :

Choice primes	1 30	1 35

POTATOES.

There is a good demand for potatoes. Offerings are increasing, and on this account there is an easy tone to the market. Sales of carlots of good choice lots were made at 55c to 65c per bag, and in a jobbing way at 70c to 75c.

HONEY.

The honey market is still featureless, although considerable demand has been noted. We quote :

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Flour still remains high in sympathy with the strong wheat market. The millers report an excellent demand with no chance of an accumulation of stock for export. Business generally is very good in all grades of flour. We quote :

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Oct. 20, 1904.

Groceries.

TRADE is reported fair to good during the week under review, the wholesale trade being principally busy filling orders for the close of navigation. Not much stir will be experienced until the arival of direct shipments of Mediteraneau fruit chronicled for next week, which always gives an impetus to the grocery trade at this season of the year. The requirements of the retail trade in foreign dried fruits for the holiday trade are usually filled from first shipments.

Interest still continues in canned goods, especially corn and tomatoes, supplies of which are slow in arriving on account of the congested conditions prevailing in the canneries. Latest estimates of the corn and tomato pack are 70 and 55 per cent. respectively.

Salmon deliveries are incomplete as yet and are being delayed later than usual, which makes it particularly difficult to fill orders to far inland points. Sugar has dropped 10c following a similar drop in New York and considerable buying is reported at the reduction. Nevertheless the sugar trade as a whole is being carried on after a hand to mouth fashion and will continue so until the end of the season and until the raw market opens.

An easier feeling is reported in the glucose market with a livelier market on this account. Teas continue quiet, while coffee, especially Rios, dropped a point or two from their sky-high position, and brokers report a tendency on the part of the wholesale trade to buy. Pepper and cloves continue firm with a reported advance in tapioca. Reassuring reports come from France regarding the walnut crop which will be average in quantity and excellent in quality.

CANNED GOODS

Interest in the outcome of new tomatoes and corn continues keen. The new pack in both these articles is coming slowly, and in certain quarters supplies are very scarce. They are moving to the hands of the retail trade, however, as soon as they are received from the packers. The pack was practically over on October 15, corn being estimated at 70 per cent. and tomatoes at 55 per cent. of the average crop. This department of the canned goods trade has been congested within the past month, and the conditions prevailing in the canneries are not at all extraordinary.

The demand for canned fruit has been confined to raspberries, strawberries, peaches and apples; for which a brisk market will not set in much before Christmas.

Salmon deliveries are also late, not being closed even yet. On account of car shipments being delayed, considerable difficulty and delay is being experienced in filling orders to inland points. Sales are confined to deliveries on account of orders taken ahead, by the time these are filled the wholesale trade does not expect to have much left to offer. Other lines of canned fish are firmly held, while sales of canned and potted meats are falling off as usual at this season. We quote the following prices:

SUGAR.

The development of the sugar market during the week under review has been a surprise. The market after having maintained its quietness of last week assumed a decidedly stronger tone on Saturday last, on receipt of the first official estimates of European beet crop for all Europe of 5,120,000 tons, as against 5,852,043 tons, the actual outturn of the crop of 1903-04, a reduction of 732,043 tons. On the strength of this European markets jumped 3 3-4d per hundredweight after declining to 9s 3 3-4d and were quoted firm at 11s 1 1-2d for 88 test centrifugals. Considerable reliance is placed on this estimate the reason being evident when we say that the first estimate of last year's crop was 5,850,000 tons, showing only a small discrepancy of 2,000 tons between that and the final outturn. Unfortunately the improvement has not been sustained; beets have lost 1 1-2d of their gain and are now quoted at 11s per hundredweight f.o.b. Hamburg for October and November shipment.

There are no transactions in cane sugar in the New York market to record, and in the absence of business the market is quoted nominal at 4 1-4c for 96 test centrifugals. Refiners are believed to be buyers on this basis, but offerings have been light and there has been no opportunity of further testing the market. The nearest available sugars are new crop Demeraras firmly held at the former figure of 2 5-8c c. and f. New York which would make them cost 1-16 above to-day's duty paid equivalent. Refiners, however, are indifferent buyers, being in no immediate ueed of supplies as receipts for the week ending October 12 were heavy, namely 50,558 tons, with meltings unchanged at 46,000 tons, thus increasing stocks for the week by over 4,000 tons. Total stocks in all hands are now 155,608 tons compared with 132,236 tons for the same week last year, an increase of 23,372 tons. These when combined with U. S. and Cuban stocks show a deficiency as compared with last year of 108,628 tons. Cuban holdings now are only 7,500 tons, and the only hope of U. S. refiners replenishing the same is the large number of Java cargoes afloat, most of which are coming to Atlantic ports and have already been bought by refiners. There have been no recent transactions in disparity in favor of cane sugar is still disparity in favor of can sugar is still maintained, to-day's price for beets being 4.34c for 96 test centrifugals. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,058,108 tons against 1,551,666 tons last year, the decrease being 493,598 tons.

At the close there is a decidedly unsettled feeling prevailing regarding the immediate future of the market and the opinion is firmly held in certain quarters that the ultimate future is perfectly safe. Present uncertainty though has had a prejudicial effect on the refined situation leading to concessions by U. S. refiners of 10 points on prompt deliveries, making the net price now 4.80c f.o.b. New York. This has been followed by a similar decline in Canadian prices and we now quote Montreal granulated whole continues in an indifferent attitude. It is rumored on the street that actual buying has not been a matter of choice as spot stocks are practically exhausted.

The mild coffee situation which was responsible for the depression which existed last Spring after the collapse of the bull speculation of a year ago is expected to be a much more favorable one this year. The yield of the coffee crops other than Rio and Santos for the crop year 1903-4 proved to be larger by about 1,000,000 bags than for any previous year, and went far beyond general calculations. The reason for this unexpected large supply of coffee other than Rio and Santos was found in the marketing of large quantities from the United States of Colombia and Venezuela which had accumulated in these countries during a period of insurrection from which they had just recovered. The Hayti crop also was a record-breaker and was a factor in the increase. The information now at hand, however, indicates that the coffee crop other than Rio and Santos will be only a moderate one for this year, and current estimates place the total yield of all coffee other than Rio and Santos, including Victoria and Bahia at 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 bags. Taking the maximum figure and adding to it the estimated yield of the Rio and Santos crops of 9,500,000 bags makes a total production for the year of 14,500,000 bags. Deliveries for consumption are seriously estimated at from the same as last year—16,000,000 bags—to 16,500,000 bags, which would indicate that consumption this year will exceed production by 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bags. Existing stocks at the opening of the present year were 12,350,000 bags, and if the above calculations are correct there should be on July 1, 1905, existing stocks of 10,350,000 to 10,580,000 bags. The world's visible supply on November 1 it is expected will be about 14,500,000 bags, and on the theory that the assumption of the bull interests in the market is correct a decrease in stocks during the next eight months of in the neighborhood of 4,000,000 bags is indicated.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

A fair volume of trade in rice and tapioca is reported for the week with a tendency towards an advance in tapioca. Last week's quotations remain unchanged. We quote the following prices:

SPICES.

A strong market for peppers and cloves is reported, although the strength of the market has not influenced quotations as yet. Stocks in European and New York markets are reported as moderate and well concentrated. Advices from the east indicate firm and advancing markets. We quote the following:

Foreign Dried Fruits

In the foreign dried fruit market there is little of special interest this week except that the low prices at which new California seedless raisins are offering may become a factor in the dried fruit situation. California raisins and prunes are both moving freely.

The first direct steamer "Esealona," which is reported in Montreal now, carries a big share of the Mediterranean fruit to supply the Christmas trade. Some fancy stock of course arrived previously, but this as a rule brings a fancy price and does not affect the market materially. Wholesalers say there is a good deal of unnecessary delay in connection with the delivery of Mediterranean fruit, for instance from the date of the arrival of the fruit in port until the cargo is assorted takes a week, and the distribution another week. Spot stocks will be entirely used up by the time the bulk of the new fruit arrives.

Cable advices from Smyrna indicate a very firm market in sultana raisins. Advices on Valencia raisins from responsible packers indicate the market firmly held at the lower quotations. Our quotations are as follows:

trade the market has brightened considerably. A general change in conditions is not expected till the middle of November, when buying for Christmas trade begins. During the week under review the price on roasted peanuts has become easier. Grenoble walnuts have advanced ½c per lb., while Jamaica cocoanuts have declined in price and are now selling at $4.25 per sack instead of $5, as formerly quoted. The price of other items on the list remains unchanged.

Walnuts grown in France, which it was thought in the earlier part of the season would be of poor quality, on the contrary are said to be of good quality, and a sample of new Grenobles received this week by Watt & Scott prove the latter to be the case. The expectations of poor quality were based on the severe drought and heat in the countries of growth during June and July, which it was feared would give a large proportion of shrivelled kernels. Later reports state that the poor fruit has actually fallen from the trees and that the fruit which will be gathered though smaller than the usual crop, particularly in the Grenoble district, will be of good quality.

DRIED FISH.

The volume of trade in dried fish can hardly be said to have set in in any bulk as yet. A fair business is doing, but wholesalers complain that supplies are coming very slowly and irregularly as a result of which trade is seriously hampered. Last week's prices continue unchanged. EVAPORATED APPLES.

Evaporated apples have been quiet during the week with only a few moving to the Northwest to complete orders booked for the close of navigation. Prices continue at 5 1-2 to 6c in view of the large crop of apples, however, it is thought that prices will be cheaper for later shipment. The local trade will not set in before November 1 and will not become brisk until Winter is well advanced when housekeepers' supplies of fruit begin to run low.

EGGS.

Receipts of eggs are growing less and the price is going up in consequence. They are quoted at 20 to 21 cents as they come, strictly fresh being as high as 25 cents, although they are seldom offered in this way. The warm days of the week will no doubt stimulate laying for a few days.

HONEY

Comb honey has a tendency to become firmer. Although receipts are light everything is moving more freely. Owing to scarcity prices have advanced on No.'s 1 and 2 during the week. Our quotations are as follows :

BEANS.

As the result of a strong export demand the market continues very firm. Since date of last quotations the price on limas has advanced from ¼c to ½c per lb. The general impression is that the crop is not as large as the initial reports estimated. Prices quoted are as follows :

Green Fruits.

Owing to better weather trade has brightened to an appreciable extent. During the week Canadian grapes have been arriving in large quantities, though the quality is not as good now as a week ago on account of the recent frosts.

At present the trade is paying more attention to Almeria grapes, which are arriving in good condition; reports state there is a good crop; on account of the ruined crop in California the outlook is for a firm market. Since date of last writing California fruit has been cut off the market. Canadian pears and peaches are arriving in fair quantities.

Bananas still continue to be cheap, although the supply has not been heavy of late. The trade anticipates a firmer market.

Smyrna figs are arriving in good condition, the quality of the figs of this season being unusually good and thin and tender in the skin. Comadre figs are also on the market and are selling at from 3½ to 3¾c.

Fair sales are reported in crab apples. Good supplies of Canadian chestnuts are arriving. Prices will not be as high as last year owing to the good crop in United States. The season for Idaho plums is over.

Verdelli lemons still continue to supply the market, although the last consignment expected on this market arrived yesterday. New Messinas are not expected before the end of the month. As a result of the scarcity prices have advanced.

The market continues to be steady on Cape Cod cranberries and a good crop is reported. Canadian cranberries are moving more freely and are selling at from $6 to $7 per bbl. Jamaica oranges are arriving in good condition. Trade in apples is very quiet. Our quotations are as follows :

Vegetables.

The season for a number of articles on the list has come to a close and accordingly they have been struck off. On the whole prices have been firmer than in previous years. Potatoes are arriving in good quantities, the "red" is not up to the standard of former years, while the quality of "white" varieties has improved, making it the only brand of potato fit for storage.

Reports state a general shortage in onion crop of Canada; yellow skins are selling at from $1.40 to $1.50 and red skins at from $1.35 to $1.40. The market for foreign onions has advanced over 100 per cent. since August and quotations to-day show an advance of 1s 1d over those of last week. Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

Up to date reports state a strong market with the exception of tallow which is weakening. Prices on the Chicago market have dropped and although there is no material change here, indications point to a slight decline in the near future. Shearlings have been removed from the list until next season. Prices are unchanged and the general outlook

Salt Sense.

The ordinary Salt of ordinary trade must not be confounded with Windsor Salt, which is sifted, not ground. Think of the goodness that slips away from the Salt crystal that is mangled, bruised, ground—think of the impurities that must creep in. Windsor Salt contains nothing but pure, white, dry, whole Salt crystals —no matter that they are fine and small crystals, they are whole crystals all the time.

Windsor Salt

is prepared in the only safe, sure way, by the Vacuum process. Every particle of moisture is dried out, which prevents the "caking" of the Salt. If you will stop to consider you will quickly see why Windsor Salt is best. Any man of intelligence and sense will agree to that.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Oct. 15, 1904.

THE threshing of the Manitoba wheat crop is progressing very rapidly, and is reported by the Canadian Northern Railway to be more than half over, and a week or ten days will complete the harvesting operations for the year of 1904, providing the weather continues fine. Throughout Manitoba and the Northwest for the past few weeks the weather has not been very favorable in spots, but for the past week threshing has continued without interruption and remarkable headway is now being made. The yield along the line will range from 15 to 30 bushels per acre, but on a whole it will average up about 26 bushels to the acre.

Mr. F. W. Thompson, vice-president of the Ogilvie Milling Co., after an extensive trip through the west reported that he was well satisfied that the wheat crop of Manitoba and the Territories would this year be approximately 65,000,000 bushels.

Business continues very bright with all markets fairly active. On the whole trade is quite up to the expectations of all, and the prospects are splendid.

Sugar.

The market continues active but quite firm. Montreal granulated in barrels is still quoted at $5.30, in sacks at $5.20, and yellows at $4.70. Wallaceburgh in barrels holds the price firm at $5.20 and in sacks at $5.10.

Evaporated and Dried Fruit.

The market continues bright and quite firm. Only the first shipment of Treynor's brand of Valencia raisins is yet available. They are of a very fine quality and the market still quotes them at $2.10 per box.

Canned Vegetables.

A general firmness in all lines of canned goods is now quite noticeable, but canned corn is very scarce owing to the smallness of the crop due to the frosts to a great extent. The market now quotes corn at a slight advance at $2.50 per case. Canned tomatoes are now available at $2.75 per case, and will likely be higher in the course of a short time. Canned peas are still quoted at $1.80 per case and canned beans at $1.80 to $1.90 per case.

Coffee.

The market is still quite unsettled, with a strong tendency towards an advance in price. It continues to quote green Rio at 10½c to 11c per lb.

Rolled Oats.

The market is still active but prices are now quite firm. 80 lb. sacks are quoted at $2.35, with the other sizes ranging accordingly.

Cornmeal.

A general brightness is now quite noticeable, and the market continues firm with a good demand, quoting cornmeal at $1.75 per sack, and 80c per ½ sack.

Beans.

The market is disposed to be very active and unsettled, quoting beans in advance of last week's price list. They are now held at $1.70 per bushel.

Canned Fish.

Shipments of the new catch of sockeye salmon which have been on the market for the past few weeks are quoted at $7 per case. A shipment of the new "Digby Chicks" are now available, which the market is quoting at 17c per box.

Honey.

The new stock of honey is now on the market and is of a very fine quality. It is quoted in 5 lb. tins at 13c per lb., 10 lb. tins 12½c per lb., and 60 lb tins 11c per lb.

Tapioca.

The market now shows a slight stiffening in prices, and quotes tapioca at 3½c per lb.

Flour.

The market is at present very active and has advanced No. 3 patent flour 10c while No. 1 patent is still quoted at $2.90, No. 2 patent at $2.70, and No. 4 patent at $1.55.

Canned Fruits.

A firmness prevails which is general in all lines of canned fruits at present. Owing to the scarcity of strawberries we may still look for an advance in this fruit at any time. The market is still quoting strawberries at $3.25 per case; raspberries at $3 per case of 2 doz. Upton's and Aylmer's jams in pails are still quoted at 47½c per pail. Canned peaches and pears are now available and the 1904 crop quotes peaches, 2 lb. yellow, at $3.75 per case; 4 lb. yellow at $5.75 per case, and pears 2 lb. F. B. at $3.25 per case, and 3 lb. F. B. at $4.25 per case.

Green Fruit.

The market is still very active. Late Valencia oranges are now quoted according to quality from $5 to $5.50 per case; California lemons $5.50 per case; fancy Montana crab apples $1.90 per case; Washington Italian plums $1.25 per case; Washington peaches $1.25 per case; Washington pears $2.25 per case; Ontario Fall apples per barrel $3; Ontario snow apples per barrel $1.50; Ontario basket tomatoes, pears and crab apples, 65c per basket; Ontario basket grapes, blue and green, 28c per basket; California (Tokays) $3 per case; cranberries, Cape Cod, $10 per barrel, Jersey sweet potatoes, Bell brand, $5 per barrel; Spanish onions, $1.50 per case, celery, per doz. bunches, 50c; green tomatoes, per lb., 3c; Chinese figs, $2 per case doz. boxes; dates, 5½c per lb., California figs, $1 per package; and maple sugar 12c per lb.

Eggs.

For the past few weeks there has been a heavy demand as the amount of stocks available is rather limited. The market has advanced slightly and eggs are now jobbing to the trade at 23c per doz.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. W. Mills, formerly of the American Coffee Co., has joined the coffee department of the Eby-Blain Co.

F. J. White, manager and proprietor of White & Co., wholesale fruit and produce merchants, Toronto, is spending a few weeks at the St. Louis Fair.

Mr. James Bromley, of John Bromley & Sons, Bloomsbury Works, Leeds, Eng., who is president of the Leeds Road Club, has been appointed official timekeeper of the Northern Road Records Association.

Mr. W. H. Thompson, representing Taylor & Mulveney, Hamilton, was showing some fine lines of crockery specialties to the Ottawa trade during the past week.

Mr. A. J. Rankin, representing S. H. & A. S. Ewing, Montreal, was met in Ottawa last week by the Grocer representative. The new advice card of his house is certainly an attractive and remindful advertisement.

Mr. L. J. Levy, representing the United Factories, Toronto and Newmarket, was a caller on the Ottawa trade during the past week.

CANADIAN FIRM WINS A PRIZE AT ST. LOUIS.

On Wednesday of this week the Salada Tea Co., Toronto, received official notification that their green and black packet teas had been awarded a gold medal at the St. Louis Exposition. The Grocer offers its heartiest congratulations to "Salada," which as a Canadian firm has been given first place among the many tea firms represented at the fair.

ITS FIRST BIRTHDAY.

ONE'S first birthday is always a time of rejoicing—perhaps because there are so many things that threaten the tender life of infancy. And so in Kingston, Ont., at this time there is an anniversary occasion that is giving delight to one family—the Frontenac Cereal Co. The name of its one-year old child is Orange Meat, and silver spoons are in evidence.

A year ago in the columns of The Grocer was heralded the advent of a new ready-for-serving breakfast food, bearing the happy name of "Orange Meat." The promoters of this new claimant to public favor were possessed of much enthusiasm and many sanguine hopes, but one is safe in saying that they were alone in their expectations for big things. A year has passed and the makers of Orange Meat have had their fondest hopes realized. From an unknown food, it is to-day a household article all over the Dominion. And all this in the face of competition of the most strenuous sort.

It has cost money to achieve such results but Mr. H. E. Pryor, the energetic sales agent for Orange Meat has a courage equal to spending money and what with trade, daily and weekly newspaper advertising, bill boards and premiums he has made all sorts and conditions of men, women and children consumers of Orange Meat. This is a prety fair record for one year.

QUALITY COUNTS.

The following letter has been received by Balfour & Co., Hamilton, from one of their customers in the Northwest, enclosing an order received from a large ranch:

"Enclosed you will find an order for car of groceries which we have been working on for some time and have landed at last.

"It is all for one ranch, being their Winter supplies. They are big buyers and their supplies run into about two cars a year.

"I might say that the reason we got this order in preference to other big houses here, is the superior quality of the goods we have been selling and the name that Tartan has made for itself here.

(Signed) "B. F. M."

A GROWING SOAP INDUSTRY.

In May, 1904, the Ritchie-Hearne Co., Brampton, Ont., took over the soap business at Brantford known as the Brantford Soap Works, as well as the right to manufacture their old lines, including "Ivory Bar" laundry soap and "Tip-top" soap chips. Quite recently they introduced a paste soap for toilet use which readily removes ink, fruit and vegetable stains, grease and paint. This is put up in 10 and 25c tins and neat jars for household or office use; is guaranteed to be perfectly neutral and harmless and is on sale by all the leading grocers, druggists and hardware dealers.

Owing to the increasing demands of business the Ritchie-Hearne Co. have sold the old Ivory Bar factory in Brantford and removed to Brampton, Ont., where they are erecting what will be one of the most modern and complete soap factories in Canada.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Balfour & Co. have made quality their first care, although their prices have not been higher than "Aylmer," "Delhi" or other good brands. They thank the Western trade through The Grocer for their generous patronage this Fall and wish them every success.

Leonard Bros., Montreal, advise the arrival of Malpecques and other oysters of excellent quality. Write for prices per barrel.

Balfour & Co., Hamilton, wish to direct the attention of the trade to their "Tartan" brand of goods. The success of this brand has been phenomenal from the start, particularly in the West, where its reputation has been firmly established, as is evidenced by the increasing shipments each season, all going to show that the Canadian trade is beginning to appreciate quality more and more.

Leonard Bros., Montreal, have some excellent new Labrador herring, ripe, just arrived in barrels. As this line is exceedingly scarce, dealers would do well to communicate with them. This firm also has an abundance of haddies, which are of excellent quality.

Sugars, Limited, Montreal, report extensive business in maple syrups, the absolute guarantee of highest quality and moderate price of their goods securing increasing orders.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, calls special attention to values in teas. The market is favorable for buyers.

REFERENCE.

On page 76 of this issue is reproduced an interesting picture of an auction sale in Montreal away back in the sixties. The man in the centre is the late Mr. J. G. Shipway, the leading auctioneer of 1867. Reading from left to right are Mr. J. Semple, of Moore, Semple & Hatchett and Mr. U. Villeneuve, of the firm of Villeneuve & Locaille. Immediately behind Mr. Villeneuve with only a portion of his face discernible is the late Mr. L. Chaput, Sr., founder of the firm of L. Chaput, Fils et Cie. Mr. W. Desmarteau, now superintendent of St. Helen's Island, Montreal, and then of the firm of N. Desmarteau & Co., Mr. M. Brassard formerly in the provision business in Montreal; Shipway's clerk; Mr. Magor, formerly clerk for Lord, Magor & Munn, and afterwards a member of the firm; Mr. C. P. Hebert; Mr. J. M. Kirk; the late Mr. N. Quintal, of the firm of Quintal et Fils, and the late Mr. W. D. Stroud of the firm of W. D. Stroud & Sons, tea merchants.

COFFEE IMPORTERS

How is your Coffee Trade?

BRAID'S BEST COFFEE is increasing in popularity every day because consumers appreciate its merit.

ARE YOU SWIMMING WITH THE TIDE?

If not, now is the time to change.
Don't let your neighbor outstrip you, as he surely will unless you carry a good stock of Braid's Best Coffees.
Bucking the current has carried down many a strong swimmer.

BRAID'S BLENDED COFFEES are the best for grocers to buy—

FIRST—Because they yield him a satisfactory profit.
SECOND—Because the quality never varies.
THIRD—Because they give the public better satisfaction than any other coffee sold.

These Coffees are a triumph of the expert coffee man's art. An order will make you a permanent customer of ours, and every sale a steady patron for you.

OUR TRADE IN PICKLES AND CONDIMENTS.

CANADIAN manufacturers of pickles and condiments report that their trade for the year 1904 has been on the whole the most successful in the history of the industry. The vegetable crops of 1903 were a pronounced failure, cucumbers being particularly scarce. This year shows a decided improvement in crop conditions, although gardeners have proved indifferent sellers except under contract. Pickle men have also experienced considerable difficulty getting tomatoes owing to the shortage of the crop. Canners have been buying up supplies right and left, and competition has been very keen. The report has reached The Grocer, however, from a reliable source that the requirements of manufacturers of catsup, sauces, etc., have been fully met, and that prices will not be higher this season than last, notwithstanding the shortage in raw material.

A representative of The Grocer gathered from an interview with a prominent manufacturer that the outlook in the Canadian pickle industry is improving steadily. This year high-class goods "Made in Canada" are selling more readily than ever before. For instance, until within the last two or three seasons pickles in bulk and a line sold to retail at 10c were the most popular articles on the market. Lately the demand has switched over to fancier goods, in fact several firms have stopped puting up cheap stuff altogether. Fifteen years ago practically no fine goods were put up in Canada; now one hasn't the slightest difficulty in selecting 30 or 40 varieties of fancy pickles or sauces, every one of which compares favorably with the imported article. The feature of the pickle trade in Canada to-day is the increasing favor with which the domestic product is meeting.

Our pickle manufacturers have begun to consider the possibilities of the export trade and are looking to South Africa, Australia, the West Indies and Japan as suitable markets for their products.

In 1899 our impotts of pickles, sauces and catsups amounted to $184,387, in 1903 to $313,514, and in 1904 to $365,403. The latter figures were distributed as follows: Great Britain $233,663, United States $114,662, and other counteries $17,078.

IRISH.

BUYERS are not yet over-stocked with Canadian lines. Shippers wanting quick markets should communicate with J. SHERIDAN, Commission Agent, 6 D'Olier street, Dublin. (46)

Just like fishing

Building up trade is just like fishing.

If you use the right kind of bait and cast your line where the kind of fish you want are most plentiful, you'll quite likely get a number of bites.

Then if you go about it right you are pretty sure to land most of them.

Apply the illustration to business.

If you want to catch the grocery trade, cast your line where all the good grocers in Canada congregate every week —looking for bait to build up their businesses with — in THE CANADIAN GROCER. But

Suppose results don't come at fust
What be yew goin' tur dew?
Take out yewr ad, and kick yewrself,
An' go ter feelin' blew?
Uv course yew hain't; yew're goin' tew fish,
An' bait an' bait agin;
Bimeby some nibbles 'n bites 'll come,
Then yew'll pull 'em in.

Our Department of Advertising Service is now providing good bait for a number of our advertisers—and stands ready to help a few more in this connection.

Drop us a line about it.

Let us talk it over.

Old conditions in the grocery trade should not last forever.

If a new and better order of things has been evolved, it is surely sound business sense to drop the old and adopt the new.

Take the tea business for example. Our fathers and grandfathers and great-grandfathers used China and Japan Teas. That was all right. But now that better teas are to be had—

CEYLON TEAS

—we mean, the present generation is not called upon to cling to the old-time article.

Neither does the grocer require to keep on carrying a stock of China and Japan Teas. He should move with the crowd.

Ceylon Teas come in Black and Green.

The Potato Growing Industry in Ashcroft, B.C.

Written Specially for THE CANADIAN GROCER by H. L. Roberts.

ONLY a small percentage of the tourists who visit British Columbia think it worth while to stop off there a day or two at Ashcroft, not knowing that it is one of the most interesting towns along the route of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Some of the largest sheep ranches in America are located thereabouts, the outstanding feature, however, is the Ashcroft potato growing industry, which is assuming very large proportions in territory that until recently was thought unproductive owing to the comparative absence of moisture. This difficulty has been effectually overcome by irrigation, and to-day the visitor to Ashcroft may enjoy the novel sight of hundreds of acres of luxuriant potato crops surrounded by areas utterly devoid of vegetation.

Ashcroft is a small town on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, about 204 miles east of Vancouver, situated in the midst of what is known in British Columbia as the "Dry Belt." The town owes its importance to the fact of its being the forwarding point for the whole of the Cariboo and Lillooet districts; all freight and passengers destined for points in these districts leave the railway at Ashcroft and reach their destination either by stage coach or freight wagon via the well known Cariboo road, which terminates at Barkerville, 285 miles from Ashcroft.

Shipping Potatoes at Ashcroft.

Outside freighting and forwarding the main interests of the town and surrounding district are cattle and potatoes. Large numbers of prime beef cattle are shipped every year, principally to coast markets. There are many large cattle ranches in the immediate neighborhood whose herds grow fat on the succulent bunch grass of the ranges and the excellent alfalfa provided for them at the home ranches.

The fame of the Ashcroft potato is almost national; it is certainly provincial, and "Ashcrofts" are the ideal to which less fortunate potato growers aspire.

These potatoes are grown on the lower benches of the Thompson River Valley, and as the soil is especially suitable, the moisture scientifically supplied, and the requisite amount of sun and heat always to be depended upon, the crops are enormous and the quality second to none.

Sample of Potatoes Grown on an Ashcroft Ranch.

Ten tons of marketable potatoes to the acre is not considered a very large return, and occasionally this yield is doubled. Three years ago a crop of 84,000 lbs. was taken off 2¼ acres of land.

Throughout the "Dry Belt" irrigation has to be resorted to in all agricultural operations, and it is this which is probably the main reason for the extraordinary keeping quality of the Ashcroft potato. The crops are only given sufficient water to enable them to grow, and there is no possibility of a wet Summer keeping the ground and crop constantly soaked, thus producing a watery and soggy potato.

The potato grown is a large, white, smooth variety, somewhat kidney shaped, and is in great demand throughout British Columbia. Occasionally it is shipped to the Northwest, and even as far east as Winnipeg.

The price varies, of course, with the season from $10 to $25 a ton, sacked and on board cars at Ashcroft, the average for Fall delivery being about $12. This year the price is very good, viz., $18 a ton, owing to short crops throughout the west.

AMONG OURSELVES.

A SUBSCRIBER to The Canadian Grocer in Christiania, Norway, writes asking to be put in connection with some first-class and sufficiently large manufacturers and exporters of Canada in such lines as flours, grains, rolled oats, oatmeal, feeding stuffs, fresh and dried fruits, lard, oleo oil, meat and pork, tinned goods, cheese, salmon, lobsters, sardines, etc.

He remarks that Canada has a splendid chance of competing favorably in that country, and our correspondent is desirous of making Canadian produce a specialty.

A list is attached of firms already known in Norway, and it is worthy of notice that nine-tenths of them are advertisers, either in the regular or special numbers, of The Grocer.

Mr. McLeod, the largest wholesale grocer in the Republic of Mexico, has been kind enough to say a word of appreciation of The Canadian Grocer. Provided the volume of trade between Canada and Mexico becomes sufficiently large, there is no question but that it will be possible to work up a large circulation in Mexico for Canada's premier trade paper, simply because it covers the grocery trade thoroughly and cannot but be more acceptable to the Mexican grocer than certain American publications occasionally seen in that country.

GOVERNMENT AGENT FOR MEXICO

Mr. McLeod, president of the International Grocery Co., Mexico City, Mexico, who is on a visit to Canada, suggests the immediate appointment by the Dominion Government of a commercial agent for Mexico, who will be able to follow up trade questions at first hand. As president of the Canadian Commercial Club he has promised the co-operation of leading Canadian business men in Mexico in putting such an agent in direct touch with Mexican manufacturers, etc. There isn't the slightest doubt but that the time is ripe for Canada to inaugurate an aggressive trade policy with the Republic of Mexico.

MR. WOTHERSPOON.

MR. I. S. WOTHERSPOON, Montreal, has returned from a trip to England and Scotland, after spending some ten weeks abroad. He reports business generally as dull, the country having not fully recovered from the effects of the late war. Canadian affairs are receiving more attention and consideration from the business community than ever before, and there is a strong sentiment in favor of extending trade with Canada. Those merchants and manufacturers who have had commercial relations with Canada are anxious to extend the same. While abroad Mr. Wotherspoon made arrangements for representing some of the largest houses in their respective lines, among them the following:

Mr. I. S. Wotherspoon, Montreal.

Black & Ferguson, Aberdeen, established in 1797, makers of the well-known "Belted Plaid" brand of Scotch Whisky.

Poulet Pere & Fils, Beaune, France, established 1747, vintners of red, white and sparkling wines under the following brands: "Moulin-a-vent," "St. Armour Beaune," "Tommard," "Chambertin" and "Poully-Fuisse."

Alvarey & Co., Cadiz and Oporto, sherries and port.

Besides the above Mr. Wotherspoon will represent one of the largest beer agencies in the United Kingdom, who have the only royal warrant on Burton-on-Trent. Particulars of these will be made known later through The Canadian Grocer.

Mr. Wotherspoon also represents Boutillier G. Briand & Cie., Cognac, one of the largest shippers of French brandies and cognac.

FIRMS INCORPORATED, ETC.

The Farmers' Supply Co., of Rosthern, N. W. T., has been incorporated with capital of $30,000, to deal in wheat, binder twine, etc. The company will either purchase or build an up-to-date elevator.

The Peachland Real Estate and Fruit Co., of British Columbia, with share capital of $50,000, has been incorporated to carry on the business of fruit and vegetable dealers and canners in the Okanagan district.

CANADIAN WHISKY IN JAPAN.

In a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, A MacLean, Canadian commissioner to Japan, says there is a good market there for Canadian whisky. Of $62,830 worth of whisky imported last year, Canada contributed only $415 worth, but this trade is on the increase on account of a preference lately shown by the Japs for the Canadian product.

Jams and Jellies

are a pure fruit natural flavor product. This is One of the reasons why they are popular.

THERE is one characteristic in every one of your customers on which you can work to good advantage, if you sell the right goods, and that is that they are all partial to good things to eat.

Now, take Halifax Fish Cake. There's nothing nicer, tastier, or more healthful, and if you sell a package once to a customer you will sell lots of them afterwards and will continue to sell them as long as you do business.

The reason lies in the permanency of the article. It isn't a fad or a fancy. It's just a good wholesome, nourishing, tasty food that people will like to use on their tables quite frequently.

There's a good profitable trade in Halifax Fish Cake for you if you only take the pains to be sure that each of your customers has tried it once.

Once is enough. The merit of the article will do the pushing for you.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Western Canadian Fish Trade.

PROBABLY the most neglected and uncultivated branch of trade in that portion of Western Canada extending from Winnipeg to the Rocky Mountains is that pertaining to fish. True it is that the population on the whole is not a fish eating people, nor as a matter of fact is the fish offered to the customers the best as regards flavor or variety, still there is no doubt but that the population might be tempted to eat more of this wholesome food were dealers to offer or exhibit a larger variety. This portion of the west depends very largely upon inland waters for its supply of fish, and consequently the bulk of the trade consists very largely of whitefish, goldeyes and trout. These fresh water denizens lack very materially the flavor and nutritive qualities of those taken from the salt water.

Occasionally halibut, salmon, smelts, and some other varieties may be procured, but fresh cod and halibut are a scarcity, one may almost say an unknown quantity. In Eastern Canada a profitable business is carried on in cured fish of all kinds, and such is the case in a small degree in the west, but there is ample room for further development in this department of the fish business. In the smaller towns of Manitoba fish stores are scarce, and it is extremely doubtful if they would pay. Until quite recently the city of Brandon could boast of nearly every kind of store but a fish store. This want was, however, seen by an enterprising inhabitant who is now doing a flourishing business. Before that time the only fish offered to the consumer was by meat dealers during the Summer as a side issue only, while in the Winter the place was bombarded by Jews with the most unwholesome looking cargoes. In the Spring these sons of Jacob departed, leaving the trade in the hands of the butchers.

The comparatively small amount of salt water fish used is imported from British Columbia. Owing to the long route freight rates are high and the price of fish brought to a very considerable figure.

In this way are procured smelts, flounders, halibut, and shrimps. All these salt water fish find a ready market notwithstanding the prices. Owing to the large influx of Maritime people into this portion of Canada, who are in the habit of consuming large quantities of sea fish, there is no doubt a first-class field in the centre of Canada for a trade in salt water fish, both fresh and cured.

Fish Weirs, St. John Harbor.

Poor Salmon Outlook.

Mr. J. P. Babcock, provincial fisheries commissioner, has just completed a tour of inspection of the salmon spawning grounds tributary to the Fraser River, B. C., and reports that the outlook for salmon in British Columbia is poor Very few sockeyes are to be found on any of the spawning grounds, save at the head of Lillooet Lake and at Morris on the Harrison. The take of eggs so far this season is considerably less than it has been at this time of the year for the past three seasons, while the closed season from August 25 to September 15 inaugurated this year does not appear to have been as advantageous as was expected, owing to the fact that there were no fish running this year.

The one thing to be done to bring about better conditions is to give the fish greater protection, thus ensuring a sufficient number to reach the spawning grounds. Judging from the observations the past season the present outlook for a good run of sockeye four years hence is a blue one.

Fish Guano Works Stopped.

AS a result of strong representations made to Ottawa, B. C. Fisheries Inspector Sword has ordered the Japanese "fish guano" industry at Nanaimo to cease operations.

For a long time the white fishermen have been making efforts to drive the Japanese out of the business on the grounds that they were doing permanent injury to the British Columbia fisheries and that they were conducting an illegal industry.

The law distinctly states that edible fish may not be caught for the manufacture of fertilizers. The fish used by the Japanese are herring—not only edible by mankind, but the main source of food supply for the larger fish which make the waters of British Columbia's coast so valuable to the province. The salmon, cod and halibut depend to a great extent upon the herring for their food.

When the Japanese first started operations, representations were made to the department, but as the Japanese claimed that they were manufacturing oil and that the guano or fertilizer was only a by product, no orders were issued to have their factories closed. The venture was a very profitable one, but it can be plainly seen that as the guano sold at nearly eighteen dollars a ton while the oil brought only some fifteen cents a gallon, the chief revenue was derived from the former.

Having succeeded in their first efforts, the Japanese were about to launch out on a larger scale when the Ottawa department interfered. They were ready to open new factories at Nanaimo (three in number), a new one at Vancouver, and two new ones at Pender Bay.

Fish Reduction Plants.

The plant for the three fish reduction works to be erected in the Maritime Provinces has already been shipped. One of the works will be situated at Canso, N. S.; points for the other two are yet to be selected. Dogfish, cod heads and fish waste generally will be treated at the reduction works, at a cost of from two to three dollars a ton, whereas the resultant product will bring $30 a ton.

The Biggest Swordfish.

To Captain Manuel Enos, of the sloop Malicia Enos, belongs the honor of having brought in the largest swordfish of the season. The fish with the sword on must have measured fifteen feet. With head and tail off it measured ten feet, and trimmed for the market weighed seven hundred and five pounds. Allowing a conservative figure for head, tail and sword, the fish must have weighed nine hundred pounds when it was taken out of the water.

The fish was caught off Jeffers, abuot thirty-five miles from Thacher's Island. It put up a strong fight against capture, and but for the fact that it had lost part of its sword in some previous battle would probably have been able to get away. When it was tired out and killed it took all the strength of the captain and five men of the crew to get it on board the sloop.

Captain Enos had only four fish in all, but three of them were big fellows. The second in size weighed five hundred and thirty pounds, and the next three hundred. The smallest weighed a hundred and fifty pounds, making 1,685 pounds of fish in all. Swordfish sold this morning for eight dollars a hundredweight, and the three days' fishing brought to Captain Enos and his five men, $134.80. —Boston Globe.

Fish Notes.

The largest cargo of cased salmon ever taken from a Canadian port by steamship was that of the Telemachus, which sailed this week with considerably over 65,000 cases of salmon.

The strike of the halibut fishermen at Vancouver, B. C., still continues, notwithstanding the efforts put forth to arrange the dispute between the fishermen and the New England Fish Co.

A company known as the Crescent Oyster Co. has been formed in Vancouver to develop the oyster fishing industry in British Columbia. Among those interested are W. J. Bowser, G. J. Wilson, F. W. Burpee, J. M. Letson and A. Lormbert. There ought to be a good field for such a concern, as it will have a decided advantage over the American companies on the Pacific Coast, the duty on oysters in the shell being 25 per cent.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

No Bogus Canadian Cheese.

WORD comes from London, Eng., that the High Commissioner's staff is giving the closest attention to the development of an important case that has arisen at Hastings affecting the quality of Canadian cheese.

The facts of the case are as follows: A quantity of alleged "margarine" or "loaded" cheese bearing no distinguishing label was recently seized from a firm of provision merchants at Hastings, Eng. The cheese was purchased by this firm from a wholesale firm who received it in turn from the largest importers of Canadian cheese in London, Eng., and sold it in exactly the same state in which it was shipped from Canada. The local sanitary authorities entered an action on the grounds that the cheese in question contained 20 per cent. of fats not obtained from milk. Through the intervention of Lord Strathcona the cheese was submitted to the Government laboratory, which reports the cheese contains no fat other than milk fat. The case will be decided on Nov. 24. Obviously the outcome is of the highest interest and importance to Canada.

Margarine cheese is made in many parts of the United States, and it will likely be shown on fuller investigation that the cheese which is the subject of the present inquiry was made in the United States, shipped through Montreal and, not being branded or labelled, became inadvertently mixed with a shipment of Canadian cheese in transshipment from railroad to ocean steamer. One thing is certain, it was not made in Canada, where the manufacture of "margarine" or even "skimmed" cheese is prohibited under very severe penalty. If there were the faintest suspicion that the "margarine" cheese seized had been made in Canada there would be an outcry from one end of the country to the other, since the Canadian cheese industry is too vast and too important to be tampered with. The Canadian Department of Agriculture is to be congratulated on its prompt and vigorous action and for its determination to see the blame placed where it belongs.

Canadian Dairy Produce in England.

Canada is receiving congratulations on the excellence of her display at the Fall Dairy Show, London, Eng. The exhibit consists of a most appetizing collection of dairy produce, including cheese, butter, eggs, condensed cream and milk, dressed poultry, hams, and bacon. The high standard of Canadian produce is admitted on all hands though, as an English official remarks, while welcoming Canadian friends, the British dairy farmer cannot forget that to some extent Canada competes with his own produce.

Mutton Canning Enterprise for Russia.

NEWS has been received from Russia that the war has stimulated the establishment of a mutton canning enterprise in that country. The immense armies of the Czar in far-off Manchuria must have meat. The live meat supply was long ago exhausted and imports by water from America were practically shut off by Japanese supremacy of the seas. Russia had to look to herself for the supply in a great measure, and this mutton canning project is said to have been one of the attempts to solve the problem.

It is reported that Brand Bros. are erecting a canned mutton factory in the Kokchetav district, Province of Akmolinsk, at a cost of 500,000 roubles. Besides canning sheep meat, the blood, fat, skins, bones, etc., will be handled in by-product factories, and the works will have its own can factory. It is expected to have the plant in operation this month, and a contract for 200,000 poods of tinned meats for the Russian army will be the first output.

Canadian Cheese Vindicated.

The following message was received by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, from Lord Strathcona on October 22:

"Understand local authorities assent to dismissal of case without further discussion. Will make a statement through the press vindicating the purity of cheese."

The last shadow of suspicion is now removed from Canadian cheese against a sample of which the charge of adulteration was brought by the authorities in Hastings, Eng. The sample was finally forwarded to the leading official bureau of analysis in the United Kingdom where it was pronounced pure.

English Butter Market.

ACCORDING to latest English market reports the Copenhagen committee, tired of waiting for trade to come along at the high levels recently ruling in butter, have reduced the official quotation by 2 kroner. This reduction, however, comes at a time when supplies have become too numerous from all quarters and the net result is not an accretion of business to Denmark. Unless there is a very great alteration, there will have to be a further declension in price before demand is set running on Danish. It is altogether too dear a purchase at the present time with such a lot of colonial about. The Australian import is big for the time of year, and combined with a liberal assortment from the continent and a not insignificant contribution from English dairies, the tendency is certainly towards lower levels. Canadian has not taken the drop in value that other imports have as it has taken up the demand which the others have let go. The supply has kept up remarkably from Canada and the quality is of a high order, which accounts for it being able to maintain its price with all other imports tumbling round it. There has been a slight improvement in the tone of the Canadian butter market, but not sufficient to improve prices.

Provision Notes.

It is reported that P. Burns & Co., the largest wholesale and retail butchers and packers in the Northwest, intend building an abattoir, cold storage and pork packing plant in Vancouver, to cost in the neighborhood of $150,000.

The Toronto Milk Producers' Association has decided to take immediate steps to organize a co-operative company for the delivery of milk throughout the city. A complete system for the proper handling and distribution of the products of the association's dairies will also be introduced.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The provision market is unchanged and prices remain the same. The demand is good and stocks are low in bacon and hams. No changes are recorded in fresh meats, but there is a slightly stimulated demand on account of the cold weather. We quote the following prices:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 08½	$0 09
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09½	0 10
Small hams per lb	0 13	0 13½
Medium hams, per lb	0 13	0 13½
Large hams, per lb	0 12	0 12½
Shoulder hams, per lb	0 09	0 09½
Backs, per lb	0 15	0 16
Heavy mess pork, per bbl	15 00	15 50
Short cut, per bbl	18 00	18 50
Shoulder mess pork, per bbl	14 40	14 50
Lard, tierces, per lb	0 08	0 08½
" tubs "	0 08½	0 08¾
" pails "	0 08¾	0 09
" compounds, per lb	0 07	0 07½
Plate beef, per 200-lb. bbl	11 00	11 50

Mutton	5 50	6 50
Lamb, spring	6 50	7 25
Veal	6 00	8 50
Hogs, light	7 50	7 75

Poultry—Slightly larger quantities of poultry are being received but the amount and demand are so small at present prices that the market cannot be said to have opened up. However for what is to hand the following prices rule:

Chickens, spring	0 10	0 11
Hens	0 07	0 08
Geese	0 07	0 09
Turkeys	0 14	0 16
Ducks	0 10	0 11

Butter—Creamery butter has strengthened a little. Large dairy rolls are beginning to come forward and the amount of prints received is increasing. Tubs of all qualities are offering, much being of no commercial value on account of the length of time country merchants have carried it, and their poor facilities for storing. For this week the prices are:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 19
Dairy prints	0 16 0 17
" in tubs	0 13 0 16
" large rolls	0 14 0 15

Cheese—Conditions in the cheese market remain as they were last week. The boards drew high figures and there was little sign of a drop. The export demand is not especially strong, but buyers must be in hopes of an increased sale abroad to pay as high as 9 1-4 on the board. Reports for the week ending October 24 are as follows:

Board.	Boxes.	Price.
Ingersoll	280	(no sales) 0 09
Campbellford	750	(530 sold) 0 09½
Woodstock	3,350	(no sales) 0 08¾ 0 09

Montreal.

Provisions—Considerable easiness has been noticed in the provision market, especially live hogs, where a decline has taken place of from 12c to 15c per hundred. Abundant supplies have come to hand and choice lots been sold at $5.25 to $5.37 1-2. Mixed at $5 to $5.15 and heavy fats at $4.50 to $4.75 per hundred. Steadiness marks the dressed hog market, with a good demand, while fresh killed abbatoir dressed stock has sold at $7.25 to $7.50, and country dressed at $7 per hundred. Cured meats of all descriptions have been selling well, and lard remains unchanged with good demand. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 00	$18 00
American short cut clear	16 50	17 00
American fat back	17 00	17 50
Bacon, per lb	0 11¼	0 12¼

Cheese—The cheese market is in a peculiar condition. No startling change has taken place during the week, the improvement of last week having been fairly maintained. A large quantity changed hands at 9 to 9 1-8c. Considerable excitement has been occasioned among exporters, owing to the noise in the Old Country over an alleged batch of filled cheese. Exporters generally have denied the possibility of Canadians being implicated in this business, and to their credit it may be stated that a complete exoneration has been telegraphed by Lord Strathcona to the Department of Agriculture. The following prices are the ruling ones at present: Finest Ontario, colored, 9 1-2c; white, 9 3-8c; Townships, 9 1-8c; Quebec, 9c; Summer stock, 8 1-2 to 8 3-4c.

Butter—No improvement has been noticed in butter, the market ruling about the same as last week. Considerable quantity was sold at the wharf at 18 3-4c. The following prices rule: Townships, unsalted creamery, 19 3-4c; salted, 19 1-4c to 19 1-2c in boxes, and in tubs 18 3-4c to 19c; undergrades, 18c to 18 1-2c; dairy butter, 15c to 16c.

Winnipeg.

Lard—The market has now resumed a more even basis this week and our quotations are as follows:

Lard, 50-lb. pails	4 70
" 20-lb. "	1 95
" 10-lb. "	5 90
" 5-lb. "	6 00
" 3-lb. "	6 10
" compound, in 20-lb. pails	1 65

Cured Meats—A general firmness is now pronounced in the cured meat lines. The market now quotes prices at the last advance as in last week's price list. Our quotations are as follows:

Hams, per lb	0 14
Breakfast bellies, per lb	0 13½
Breakfast backs, per lb	0 10

To Establish Dairy Exchange.

J. X. Perrault at the Chambre de Commerce has raised the question of the establishment of a dairy produce exchange in Montreal. He recommends its establishment on the ground that, merely for lack of market facilities, cheesemakers in the Province of Quebec are not obtaining a fair price for their commodities, the loss being as much as one-fourth of a cent per pound. One result of the present system, he says, is that dairymen sell their produce at points in Ontario and at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., at a higher rate than they can obtain in Montreal. He argues that the business might be kept in Montreal if the chambre would provide facilities to enable them to make profitable sales here.

The proposal is favorably regarded by the chambre and a special committee has been appointed to look into the matter and report at the next meeting.

A MUSHROOM FACTORY.

THERE seems to be little doubt that Middle Sackville, N.B., has the unique distinction of possessing the only mushroom factory in America. Factories for canning mushrooms are found in France, but, so far as can be learned, no similar factories are found on this side of the Atlantic. J. R. Ayer, proprietor of the Sackville cannery, has for years been making experiments in the putting up of mushrooms, but until recently he has not been able to can them to his satisfaction.

This is the third year that Mr. Ayer has been canning the mushrooms. The first year he put up only about twenty cases, as he had no facilities for canning them, and the work was largely experimental. Last year the mushroom season opened earlier than was expected, and was over almost before the factory was in operation. In consequence of this, only about half a dozen cases were put up. This year, however, things are running smoothly, and over sixty cases, each containing ninety-six half-pound cans, have already been made ready for market.

Pickers scour the marshes every day for the delicious fungus, and at present about ten cases of 480 pounds are being canned each week. Upon being brought to the factory the mushrooms are first carefully assorted and cleaned. The highest grade are canned, the second grade made into catsup, while the poor ones are thrown away. About fifteen persons are at present employed at the work of picking, assorting, canning, etc.

USEFULNESS OF TRADE JOURNALS

A MERCHANT or manufacturer, an industrial or professional, or a manager or operator, who assumes to "get on" without the trade journals directly or collaterally bearing on his particular specialty, is seriously handicapped in the stress of competitive strife, says a writer in the Boston Herald. Wilfully, though perhaps not wittingly, he deprives himself of sources of information and of material for progress and profit, lack of which must inevitably leave him in the lurch. The managing head of every "house," no matter how large the "concern," should, above all things, see to it that each department head and so many of the working force as by their intelligent interest show that they would profit by technical and professional information—that all these men are provided with the trade journals best fitted to promote the advancement of each in efficiency. This at the expense of the firm, of course, since the firm, in turn, cannot fail largely to profit by such policy. And don't commit the folly of balking at the preponderence of ad. pages. The information these contain is never less and often far more valuable than that found in the "reading matter."

THE EBY, BLAIN CO., LIMITED, Wholesale Grocers, TORONTO

A SIDE LINE FOR THE GROCER.

ENTERPRISING grocers or general merchants are beginning to appreciate the value of an attractive side line both as a means of attracting new business and holding and rejuvenating regular trade. Confectionery and crockery departments have been tried and not found wanting in the majority of instances where they have been carefully handled. For the town, and particularly the country merchant, no better or more profitable side line can be suggested at the present time than a reliable stock food, of which such a great variety are being manufactured. Farmers and stockraisers throughout the country are welcoming the advent of these animal foods and veterinary preparations wherever they have been introduced, which in itself is pretty good evidence that stock foods are already recognized as a distinct boon to the stock-raising industry of Canada. It is an indisputable fact that the ordinary grass and cereal foods which serve as fodder for horses, cattle, etc., require reinforcement if they are to serve their purpose fully; it is to fill this need that stock foods have been placed upon the market.

The Fall and Winter is the season when animals require the extra tonic supplied by stock foods. After being taken off the grass and put on a regular diet of cured hay, etc., horses and cattle require an occasional judicious mixture of medicinal herbs and drugs with their food if they are to be kept in good condition during the long period of Winter confinement. Thus a stock food is an article of necessity, and the retail trade can make no mistake in stocking it for the requirements of their customers. Where its merits are known so much the better; where they are not it is the pleasant duty of the merchant to educate the farmers within his territory to the advantage to be derived from using a reliable medicated stock food.

One of the leading Canadian firms manufacturing the article in question is the Naisbitt Co., of Toronto, Winnipeg and St. John. Under the head of "Anglo-Saxon Stock Foods" they manufacture a variety of medicated foods suitable for all kinds of stock, as well as remedies for the ailments peculiar to domestic animals.

These preparations are sold only with the guarantee of the Naisbitt Co., and are offered on absolute trial. Since "Anglo-Saxon Stock Foods" were put on the market the firm report that there has not been a single case of dissatisfaction, nor of an order being lost.

The Naisbitt Co. started in business in February, 1904. By June 15 the volume of trade had increased so far beyond the expectations of the firm that a complete reorganization was found necessary. The capitalization was increased and additional support secured from a number of the most eminent agriculturists in Canada. In order to facilitate the rapid handling of goods branches were established in Winnipeg, Calgary, St. John, N. B., as well as a distributing agency in British Columbia.

Within the last five months the capacity of the plant has been increased five times, which speaks volumes for the success of "Anglo-Saxon Stock Foods" on the market. The motto of the Naisbitt Co. is "nothing but the best," and as it imports and grinds its own drugs and roots, and guarantees its products to be non-injurious, a ready market for them will doubtless be found among farmers and stock-raisers all over the Dominion.

ANOTHER GRAND PRIZE.

The officials at the World's Fair, St Louis, have awarded the grand prize for superiority of cocoa and chocolate preparations to Walter Baker & Co., Dorchester, Mass. This firm was established in 1780, and has received 13 awards from the great expositions of Europe and America.

OUR DAIRY INDUSTRY.

THE disastrous wind up of last season naturally put operators on both sides of the Atlantic in a cautious frame of mind at the opening of the present year. Fortunately factorymen did not begin operations as early as usual and the output of fodder-made goods was much below the average. This proved to be anything but an unmitigated evil as supplies of old stock held over from last season were more than sufficient to supply the demand until full grass goods could be placed on the market.

Opinions have differed since the beginning as to how the season would end. Prices paid factorymen during the first two weeks in May ranged from 6 1-2 to 7 1-8c and all sorts of reports were sent out by cable, circular and letter. Some predicted that cheese would go below record prices, and in addition that factories would shut down and milk be fed to stock; prices, however, have not been the lowest on record and factories have not shut down.

In some instances in factories equipped for making both cheese and butter the patrons decided to make butter instead of cheese, particularly in some parts of the Province of Quebec. The result is that there will be some decrease in the make of cheese, and some increase in the season's output of butter for the season. The following figures may prove interesting to our readers:

May	16	to	21	7½	to 8 3-16
"	23	"	28	8½	" 8⅝
"	30	"	June 4	8	" 8⅜
June	6	"	11	7¾	" 8 5-16
"	13	"	18	7⅞	" 8 3 16
"	20	"	25	7½	" 7¾
"	27	"	July 2	7¾	" 8⅜
July	4	"	9	7¼	" 7⅝
"	11	"	16	7¼	" 7¾
"	18	"	23	7 1-16	" 7⅜
"	25	"	30	7½	" 7¾
Aug.	1	"	6	7¾	" 8⅛
"	8	"	13	8¼	" 8¾
"	15	"	20	8	" 8⅜
"	22	"	27	8⅜	" 8⅝
"	29	"	Sept 3	8⅞	" 9 5 16
Sept.	5	"	10	8½	" 9
"	12	"	17	8⅝	" 9
"	19	"	24	8¾	" 9 3-16
"	26	"	Oct. 1	8⅝	" 8⅞
Oct.	3	"	8	8¾	" 9

The above figures are the ruling prices bid and paid on different boards or markets in Ontario. In the best sections of Quebec where regular sales take place there has been little, if any difference. There are those in the business to-day who can well remember buying cheese as low as from 5 to 6c per pound at the factories; hence it will be seen that prices have not touched a record low price.

The quality for the season has been fully up to the average, some say better, while there are those who make the statement that the quality has been poor. From reliable sources we are told that there are poor cheese made every year; but while this is a fact, the percentage this year is not larger than in others, if as large. The cool season has been a great boon to the trade as a whole. Actual figures up to about October 15 show receipts to be about 125,000 boxes less than last year, the decrease in shipments being 385,000 boxes.

While some have endeavored to "bear" the situation there are others who have made desperate efforts to bring a boom. British importers have repeatedly and persistently refused to follow any spasmodic advances from this side, their experience of the past evidently justifying their actions. While Canada is a cheese producing country it is not a cheese consuming country. We have only one outlet, namely Great Britain, on which we are dependent to handle and consume our cheese. It is well that all interested should do all in their power to cultivate and foster an industry which is bringing to our shores a portion of the great wealth expended to feed the millions of people across the seas.

AIDING BRITISH EXPORTERS.

A GOOD example has been set recently by some of the Canadian importers which, if generally followed, would go a long way to enlighten British exporters and dispel the doubt and uncertainty existing there regarding the latest changes in the Canadian tariff laws. A notice, in the form of a letter, is being sent by some jobbers to all the British firms with whom they deal informing them to the letter of the requirements necessary, and they are not a few, in fulfilling the law when sending goods to this country. Although no doubt the British importer is already aware of what is required of him in this direction to a certain extent at least, and more or less vaguely perhaps, yet a letter sent, as the one mentioned, coming from a customer, is going to bring the matter before him more prominently and in a more definite manner than would be possible of accomplishment in any other way.

The form of the declaration to accompany all invoices is given in full, in six clauses, as called for by the Dumping Act, with a note added regarding German goods. Below appears an invoice form, such as is required by the department, and underneath the specific directions regarding triplicate invoices, addressing and marking of packages, inserting extra goods, bills of lading, etc., concluding with the request that all regulations be carried out. If this practice were more generally observed it would doubtless do away with a lot of inconvenience and delays that at present exist. The British jobber or manufacturer would probably not appreciate such a letter, as far as the notice itself is concerned, but will recognize the spirit in which it is sent, and that it was instituted with a view to helping both parties and to obviate the vexatious delays attendant upon the non-fulfillment of the required regulations.

SHALL MANITOBA WHEAT BE MILLED ABROAD?

IN a recent issue the New York Journal of Commerce makes the statement that the milling industry in the United States is in a position not only to convert every pound of American wheat into flour before sending it to foreign markets, but actually needs to import raw material in order "to keep busy" The American Northwest is so situated that it can do this to great advantage, not only to itself but to the country's transportation and export trade on account of the large and increasing production of wheat across the border in Manitoba and the Territories. Our contemporary goes on to say there is no reason why the United States should not receive supplies of material from Canada free of duty and convert the bulk of the Canadian surplus into flour for export. Unfortunately an import duty of twenty-five cents per bushel prevents this, and encourages the building up of manufacturing and transportation in Canada instead of the United States, and that, too, by an expatriation of capital and labor.

It cannot be gainsaid that American millers have become "wise" to the exigencies of the wheat situation in the United States, where the surplus of wheat and flour for export is getting smaller every year, and that they are casting longing glances on the wheat fields of Canada as the only available source of supply for raw material in a time of need.

They are beginning to appreciate the vast possibilities of the milling industry in relation to foreign trade, and are determined to have a share in supplying the non-producing cereal countries of the world with manufactured breadstuffs.

Clearly it is in the interest of the American miller that if American industries can use more raw material than is available at home they should be permitted to import it free of all tax. At the same time, however, Canadian millers have not been blind as to the possibilities of the export flour trade, and judging from the rapidly increasing number of milling industries springing up in the Canadian West, Canada will have less and less wheat to export as raw material, but will require the bulk at home to feed domestic mills. When it comes to an aspect of trade so important as the flour milling industry Canada is not likely to be as unselfish as the New York Journal of Commerce supposes. She certainly would not be content to sit with arms folded while Canadian wheat was being milled for export by her next door neighbor. So far from this being the case Canada is sparing no pains in developing the milling industry within her boundaries, and we may expect to see as a direct result gn impetus given to the live stock and kindred agricultural industries such as this country has not yet experienced.

CANADA AN EXAMPLE.

CANADA has a new role to play, namely, that of preceptress to the nations of the east in the science of agriculture. Most of the colonies have recognized her claim to be the "Granary of the Empire," and are already emulating her example, the latest convert being the Orange River Colony, which wishes to effect a thorough reorganization of its staple industry and to that end is recruiting from our agricultural colleges experts in Canadian methods of farming.

It is particularly gratifying to hear that Mr. Palmer, recently appointed director of agriculture for the Orange River Colony, is giving the utmost satisfaction, and that he promises to be a living example of what Canadian agricultural colleges can produce in the way of practical, scientific and technical equipment.

NOTICE THE CHILDREN.

IN any retail business the personal element wields such influence that the merchant should be constantly on the alert to win confidence and sympathy. Unless the merchant has the confidence of his customers he is ever in danger of losing them, whereas if they are his friends they are likely to continue his customers.

To win confidence in any neighborhood one cannot afford to neglect the children in the slightest degree. If a child and a gentleman come into the store together it is a safe rule to wait on the child first, engaging the adult customer in conversation at the same time. In no case should a child be left until a later arrival is first served. Each child is a good friend to win and as children are more sensitive in every way than older persons, their friendship is more easily won or lost than that of the adult customer. Above all, never neglect them.

HIDES AND WOOL SITUATION.

THE Canadian market for wool, hides and skins at the present time may be said to have reached the highwater mark. In wool the tendency has been steadily upward during the past three years, present prices being the highest since 1898. Many factors have been influential in bringing about this state of affairs, among them the absence of a surplus of wool in the world's markets the war between Russia and Japan which has increased the demand for military supplies, and the comparatively small and steadily decreasing crop of Canadian fleece wool.

The hide situation is similar. Supplies are being readily taken up at home and abroad and prices ruling to-day are higher than they have been at any time since 1900. The outlook is for a fairly steady market since tanners will consume the output as fast as it arrives on the market. At the same time there is the possibility that if the price of leather does not advance a large percentage of tanners will be obliged to curtail operations or perhaps shut down, thus throwing a great many hides on the market. These remarks are equally applicable to calfskins.

The price of sheepskins is influenced directly by the wool market. Owing to high prices and scarcity ruling in the latter there has lately been an active inquiry for sheepskins. In fact quotations on this article have become somewhat exaggerated and working margins for both dealer and puller reduced to a minimum.

Until three months ago the price of tallow was below the normal. During the interval, however, there has been a decided improvement and two weeks ago prices reached a record mark. Since then there has been a slight decline with the market at the close so uncertain that it is impossible to forecast prices.

TRAVELERS' TALES.

ON the occasion of the travelers' holidays in July last The Grocer offered three prizes for the three best answers to the question:

> What is the best stroke of business you ever heard of?

The competition was open to the grocery travelers of the Dominion. The prizes were:1, a silk hat; 2, a silk umbrella; 3, a seal wallet.

A goodly number of stories were submitted and after a careful weighing of them all the three best, according to the judges' views were sent in by G. W. Prescott, 507 Huron street, Toronto, with Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal; C. Masters, St. John, N.B., with R. Herron & Co., Montreal; and R. E. Smith, of Toronto, with the Eby-Blain Co. The winners rank in the order named.

Not a few of the stories submitted, while excellent in their way, missed the mark by not conforming to the demands of the question. Many sent in "good stories," but these did not purport to be accounts of "the best stroke of business," and were barred accordingly.

The Grocer may in the near future call for something new. In the meantime it extends its thanks to all who took enough interest to send in answers to the question propounded; to the winners it offers its congratulations.

First Prize Story.

Sent in by G. W. Prescott, with Hudon, Hebert & Cie.

The best stroke of business ever undertaken and completed successfully was by William Kyle (of late Wm. Kyle & Co., carrying on business about the year 1882 or 1883). Hope & Co., of Montreal, were then, and are, I believe yet, the Canadian agents for John De Kuyper, of Rotterdam, of Holland gin fame. Kyle went over to Rotterdam and got acquainted with De Kuyper and shortly got upon very intimate terms. Later he invited him and his daughter to the Charing Cross Hotel in London, England, where they were his (Kyle's) guests for some time.

While they were there visiting Kyle or shortly after their return to Rotterdam, he succeeded in securing for his firm an agency for "The United States" except the state of New York, with a proviso in the agreement that he might from time to time bring so much of the gin here to Toronto to his own order as he (Kyle) might require for the use of his customers. This gave him a sole agency in every state of the Union except "New York State" and so far as Toronto was concerned gave him and his firm what was tantamount to an agency here, for while he could not bring "De Kuyper" Holland gin to Toronto to the order of his customers as Hope & Co., the agents for Canada could, yet still he could bring it to his own order and compete with them in price.

In short he was in a position if he saw fit to sell Holland gin of "De Kuyper" brand to the retail trade at as low a price as other Toronto wholesale houses got it from De Kuyper via John Hope & Co. The only proviso made by De Kuyper in the agreement that enabled him to nullify it was in case the said William Kyle & Co. became bankrupt or insolvent then said agreement was to be null and void.

This to my notion was the best stroke of business ever done, and it was cleverly done too, obtained largely by showing a combination map of United States and Canada and a skeleton combination map showing the State of New York, island of Montreal and city of Toronto.

Second Prize Story.

Sent in by C. Masters, with R. Herron & Co.

A, a country trader, visits the city on business bent. He owes B, a jobber, an old account of sixty dollars. A, however, goes to C a neighbor of B, and also a jobber, to purchase his season's supplies. B, hearing of this, is naturally annoyed at losing a customer, as well as at the prospect of losing an overdue account. Among other goods A requires 6 barrels of beef, which C has not in stock. C takes the order, and buys the 6 barrels of beef from B, promising to send his (C's) teamster with 6 address cards for the 6 barrels which are to be delivered at once to a schooner. On arrival of teamster B discovers from the address cards that the 6 barrels of beef are for country man A. B delivers beef to teamster and watches him place goods on the schooner for A, and immediately takes legal proceedings and garnishees the 6 barrels of beef for payment of his old bill of sixty dollars against countryman A.

Third Prize Story.

Sent in by R. E. Smith, with Eby, Blain Co.

One evening I was writing out my orders in a wayside hotel writing room. In the same room two fellow travelers were discussing business, etc., when laughter attracted my attention; naturally thinking it was a new yarn or joke, I butted in and learned that one man had sold nineteen carload lots of coal oil during the first three days of that week, leaving little or nothing for the opposition that was following him.

His explanation was as follows: At the first town he struck he sold to his man then called the man at the next town up by phone, and informed him that he would pass through on such a train asking him to be at the station with his order. Arriving at the station he would jump off, shake hands, get his order, run over to telegraph operator, hand him a telegram (and charges) to be forwarded to his customer at the next town at which he was due to call. He would write and address the telegrams while on the train between stations. They were all the same with the exception of the hour and read as follows: "Will pass through at ————. Be at station with your order."

He kept this up for three days with the result that he sold nineteen carloads. He said he felt a little tired and wondered if the firm would make a kick if he rested half a day.

ENTERPRISING BUTTER CO.

The William Murphy Co., manufacturers of Jersey cream butter, have recently opened a branch office in Montreal, under the management of R. J. Russell, and are temporarily occupying premises at 509 St. James street. Mr. Russell is familiarly known to a large circle of friends in the trade as "Bob.," and since he opened has shown conclusively his fitness for the appointment. In addition to Mr. Russell's personal qualities as a hustler, he has behind him one of the best brands of butter to be found on the market to-day. In a circular the Murphy Co. deal very pointedly with the merits of this butter. In the course of this circular one line reads: "A triumph of purity from the meadow to the home. A table delight that adds new charm to the breakfast, dinner and supper." In addition to these nice things which Mr. Murphy claims for his butter, he has adopted a new system of packing and delivery. The firm uses Cowan & Sons', Edinburgh, parchment paper, and the butter is sold only in pound lots; it therefore cannot leave the creameries unwrapped, which means hands off, dust out, and immaculate cleanliness. The market price is all that Mr. Russell quotes. The business has always been a good one, and is most likely to increase.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Oct. 27, 1904.

Groceries.

EXCELLENT activity is noticeable in all lines. Orders are numerous, and collections are prompt, and abundant. Notwithstanding the fact that the whole country is more or less occupied by election influences, trade has not been better for many years. Country produce of all descriptions continues in good demand at strong prices. Sugar is still in good demand, but the prices are showing a tendency to easiness, and the drop of the past week has been thoroughly maintained. Canned goods are holding up well and salmon is still in its statistical position of strength. Canned corn and tomatoes are still holding at the advance of ten cents which opened the new pack goods. Dried fruits are tending towards easier prices, owing to abundant supplies. Excellent new figs are being sold at very reasonable prices, in all the different brands. Molasses is comparatively uninteresting although spot offers are being made at somewhat reduced prices, with not much turnover taking place. In the grain market the feature is peas, which are selling at advanced prices to the New York market and in car lots, bring as high as $1 a bushel. The tea market is still inclined to dullness. Dodwell & Co., Limited, of Colombo, report that there has been less competition for black tea of all kinds and common to mediums were rather irregular, with a tendency towards lower rates. Green Ceylon tea has been quite neglected though a few import orders were taken this week. Coffee maintains a steadiness, with a declining inclination, in sympathy with the easier New York, European and Brazilian markets. The European political situation may have had something to do with the uneasiness in foreign markets. In green fruits the abundance of grapes still keeps up and plenty of new apples are on the market at good prices. Pears, peaches, and Italian plums from California are retailing in large quantities. New chestnuts are on the market at 12 cents a pound, and large quantities of new crop nuts are attracting attention and suggesting Christmas trade. In vegetables, Spanish onions are very scarce and high-priced. Red onions in bags of 75 pounds are bringing $1.50 per bag. Fish of all kinds are coming in more freely and oysters are showing a briskness never before equalled in this district. Flour and other cereals maintain their strength.

SUGAR.

The market for refined sugar remains steady, with the decline of last week still dominating. Still all prophecies of experienced men point to a stronger sugar market. No distinct change has taken place in the local market, but considerable increase in the demand has taken place and all kinds of refined sugar have been selling freely. News from the different sugar experts regarding American beet sugar announce that for the season of 1904-5 the estimate is about 191,000 tons, dependent upon the favorable conditions until the beets are harvested. The production last season was 208,135 tons. Willet & Gray in their report add that their estimates which correspond with the ones quoted are as close as possible at this early date, and it must be remembered that the weather during October and November may affect the outturn of the crop in nearly all the States. They conclude their report with the paragraph: "According to our latest information from the best sources, there are now 10,100 acres of beet in good stand in Canada, which it is estimated will yield 5,900 tons of sugar, with favorable conditions during the next two months. Last year there were 16,100 acres in good stand, and the actual yield of sugar was 6,710 tons." We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Molasses is very quiet, although the advance of a month or so ago has kept up and the market is quite firm. Changes if anything, are expected in the upward direction, and the whole tendency seems to be against buyers. We quote:

COFFEE.

Considerable easiness has been noticed in the coffee market, in sympathy with the cables from Europe and Brazil. Advices from Santos increasing estimates of current crop, also had some effect locally. There is, however, a steady demand for good coffee and business is brisk with a tendency towards higher prices and greater consumption. We quote:

SPICES.

Spices are interesting. Scarcity of spot stocks of pepper and some due to arrive, coupled with the fact that sellers in the countries of production have been asking higher prices, causes the firmness still to hold. The advance in white pepper has been maintained, the Singapore price being quoted at 17c, Penang at 16 1-2c. Holders of cloves in London are firm at the equivalent of 17 1-4c ex dock, New York. Nutmegs are likely to go higher, owing to short crop. Ginger is still quoted at 8 1-2 to 9c Cassia seems to be growing more popular, presumably owing to the good fruit crop. The tendency is towards higher prices. There is a reported scarcity in Batavia cassia. We quote:

where quality was maintained, while such gardens as Attempettia, Tommagong, Glassaugh, etc., realize satisfactory averages. CANNED GOODS.

The advance made in certain new pack canned goods has held firmly and large trading has taken place. Corn and tomatoes are still scarce and the demand is sharp and brisk. Salmon maintains its strong position and buyers are watching the market with the same nervousness as a month ago, feeling, however, that the tendency to advance has not been realized to such an extent as was expected. The unfavorable reports from the French sardine fisheries have continued to come in, and appear more disastrous than ever as October nears the close. Nearly all the good fish are finished when this month ceases. It would be well to prepare for abnormal prices in sardines in the near future. In canned fruits there are likely to be shortages in some varieties and prices have stiffened considerably. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Plenty of dried fruits are now in the market and the demand is steady. Prices are inclined to be easier. The position of these articles seems to be stronger than last year at the same period. The customs returns of the fruit in bond show considerable increase over the same period of last year. In addition to the Escalona which arrived in Montreal last week with dried fruit, the Frederica has arrived in New York, and the Regina Elena, which is now loading in Greece, is expected at New York later. There are signs of a stiffening in prices for currants, according to news from Greece. Some new boats with raisins are expected in within a week and best grade four crown layers have been offered at 7 1-2c.

In Malaga fruit, the market shows a slight advance, in sympathy with the market in Malaga. A new cargo of dates direct from Persia has arrived in New York. Figs are also attracting attention in the market. Washed figs are moving freely. The new crop of almond nuts from Spain are on hand and are bringing good prices, offerings being quoted to arrive at 12 3-4c. Valencia shelled are expected in a few days and the first of the new crop are in excellent demand. Reports from France indicate a falling off in the crop of walnuts, and higher prices may be expected. Filberts are reported easier. We quote:

Dried Fruit Report.

Valencia almonds advanced 2s this week above the price of goods shipped by Jacona.

Pure Mayette earliest Grenoble walnuts shipments will take place on 29th inst., and are due in New York on the 7th November. Crop is reported only moderate in quantity but the quality is turning out better than was expected.

No change is reported in filberts except that speculators who rushed into the market during the Summer and hoisted prices to their present high level are finding some difficulty in realizing a profit.

Valencia raisins have eased off somewhat and are now offered at 23s for selected and 21s for f.o.s. for both brands Trenor's Blue Eagle. The market for sultanas is very firm and there are no changes to report.

The market for currants as might have been expected after the sailing of the Jacona, advanced in proportion to the increased freight and remains steady.

Comadras figs are now close at hand and quality is reported fine.

Cables this week from England advise present stocks of cocoa butter exhausted and until next auction in November no prices can be obtained.

Green Fruits.

Trade is active in green fruits of all descriptions, with plenty of California fruit coming in. Tokay grapes are still bringing $3.50 a crate, and Italian plums $2.25 a box. Florida pineapples have dropped to $4.00 for twenty-fours. Grape fruit are selling at $6 for sixty-four size and oranges are holding firm at strong prices. Selected Jamaicas bringing as high as $5.50 per barrel. New stock of cocoanuts are selling at an advance of 25c per bag. We quote:

Vegetables.

A steady demand has continued for vegetables of all descriptions. Red onions are still scarce and are bringing big prices. The advance in mushrooms has been maintained and in other lines little change has taken place, although considerable trading has been carried on. We quote:

Fish.

Fresh fish of all kinds are coming in freely and prices have eased off a little, in haddock especially. Other kinds remain about the same. Haddies in consequence are in brisk demand and prices are firm. Green cod is scarce and prices have a tendency to the advance. New Labrador herring are now arriving and dealers can fill orders promptly, which they were unabfe to do during the past week, owing to the scarcity. Oysters are in good demand. For bulk oysters the trade has not been so brisk for years. The demand for bulk oysters, as well as shell, has been increased this week, owing to the approach of Hallowe'en. Supplies of shell oysters are considerably better in some lines, especially cheaper grades. Fancy malpecques continue scarce and prices are higher than ever before. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Eggs are continuing firm. The demand is steady and supplies have not been abundant. Prices have a distinct tendency to advance. At wholesale straight gathered stock is sold from 21 to 21½c, and in some cases 22c was realized, while the best cold storage stock sold at 19 to 19½c per doz. Selected stock still brings good prices, and in a jobbing way 24c is the ruling price, and for Montreal limed eggs 29c is the figure.

BEANS.

The bean market is very strong and the demand is excellent. Advances are probable. December sales have been made at $1.40 for primes. Scarcity in Old Country markets is affecting local demand. We quote :

Choice primes	1 30	1 35

POTATOES.

The potato market is active, there being a steady demand from local and outside buyers. Carlots of choice stock sold at from 55c to 65c per bag, and in a jobbing way at 70c to 75c per bag.

HONEY.

No change has taken place in the honey market and quietness rules. We quote :

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

The strong position of flour has been maintained and dealers and manufacturers are inclined to believe that it may remain high for some time, especially as the wheat market holds out. We quote :

FEED.

The strength of feed is based largely on the cereal market, which is very firm. Peas have sold freely to the American market, owing to scarcity in the United States, as high as $1 a bushel having been paid for carlots. We quote:

BUTTER AND CHEESE EXPORTS.

The exports from the port of Montreal for the past week include 95,822 boxes. In this amount the through shipments amounted to 18,617. For last year the shipments up to Oct. 23 were 72,958.

Butter.—The butter shipments have increased considerably, amounting to 12,834 boxes, in comparison with last year for the same period, to Oct. 23, 8,115 boxes. Total shipments of butter since May 1 to date were 447,087 boxes, in comparison with 301,592 boxes for the same period last year.

Cheese For the Season.—Since May to Oct. 17 the total exports of cheese were 1,791,436 boxes; for the corresponding period of previous year 2,132,693 boxes, showing a considerable falling off for the present year. These figures, however, cover a certain period and might be much improved upon during the remaining months of the export season.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Oct. 27, 1904.

Groceries.

TRADE in groceries during the week is reported as satisfactory, the feature being a heavy volume of back orders in canned goods, Mediterranean fruits, etc., now being filled. Orders for the close of navigation are also receiving a good share of attention. Firmness rules in the canned goods department, particularly in tomatoes and corn, each of which has advanced from 5c to 10c on opening prices owing to the shortage of the pack. As the bulk of orders were booked at opening prices, very little of these goods will remain after requirements have been fully met. For such, however, high prices will rule. Sugar is quiet and easier; since the drop of 10c in Canadian refined there has been a partial recovery of 5c in American refined, although there is no further change as far as Canadian is concerned. Tea is quiet at prices favorabfe to buyers. Supplies of coffee on spot are reported low and there has been some buying in Rios, notwithstanding the fact that the tendency of Rios is still upward. First direct shipments of Mediterranean dried fruits have arrived on the market, and orders for the holiday season are now being attended to. New crop beans are on the market at prices slightly stiffer than last year's, owing to shortage in crop. Evaporated apples are moving slowly and prices quoted are ¼c easier than those ruling last week.

CANNED GOODS.

The corn and tomato packs are practically over, the former being about 75 per cent. of its usual volume, while the latter is estimated at 55 per cent. Owing to the scarcity opening prices of tomatoes have been advanced from $1.15 to $1.20 and $1.25, and corn from $1.10 to $1.15 and $1.20. As compared with even dates last year the shortage is greater. It transpires that both these articles were pretty well sold out at opening prices. For the little that is left, however, high prices are expected to prevail. The season of congestion with the canners is now over and supplies are now coming more readily.

A fair trade is reported in canned fruits, particularly strawberries, peaches and plums. Apples, standard 3's, are quoted this week from 5 to 10c lower than last week. Standard gallon apples are also cheaper. The situation in salmon remains firm. "Clover Leaf" brand sockeyes, 1-lb. talls, have advanced 7½c. Our quotations are as follows :

SUGAR.

Dullness has been the prevailing note during the week under review, and transactions in raws have been limited to a few spot or nearby parcels with the exception of a lot of Java of 5,300 tons for September shipment at 11s 9d c.i.f. New York, equal to 4¼c duty paid for 96 test, thus confirming the market on that basis. Other sales made embrace a small lot of 300 tons British West Indian centrifugals in port at 4¼c basis 96; 2,500 tons Iloilos ex store on private terms and 5,000 bags Cuban centrifugals in port at a price equivalent to 4¼c for basis 96. There is no further business to report in new crop Demerara, which is still held firm for shipment at 2⅝c c. and f., equal to 4.31c duty paid; but buyers will not pay over 2 9-16c c. and f. Offerings are light, however, and holders show no disposition to recede from their position. A cargo of Java nearly due is held for 11s 10½d c.i.f., equivalent to 4 5-16c duty paid, but holders are indifferent sellers.

European markets have been dull with slight fluctuations. In last week's issue of The Grocer, page 156, appeared a slight error in English quotations. The item should have read "the European markets jumped 3¾d per hundredweight after declining to 10s 9¾d," instead of "declining to 9s 3¾d."

From the close of last week prices advanced ¾d per hundredweight to basis 11s ¾d; they have since reacted to the extent of 1½d per hundredweight, and are now quoted at 10s 11½d for 88 test.

Latest cable advices indicate no change in the situation for the growing crops, and as the weather has been more favorable of late it is believed by some that the crops may have derived some benefit. While there will be a heavy deficiency in the yield, the quality of root, it is believed, will partly compensate for the deficiency. There has been a large home trade doing in Germany, particularly during September, as the fruit crop there was exceptionally good, and it is hoped that the improved consumption will continue.

Stocks at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending Oct. 19 were 152,105 tons, a decrease of 3,503 tons for the week. Meltings remained unchanged at the former figure, say 46,000 tons, while receipts were only 42,497 tons. The reduction in Cuban stocks still continues and for the week figures have declined to 5,500 tons as compared with 133,000 tons at the same time last year. Combined U. S. and Cuban stocks show a reduction of 114,000 tons compared with the corresponding figures of 1903. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were down to the abnormally low figure of 798,605 tons, the decrease being 438,652 tons.

Preliminary estimates of the growing cane crops have been made by Willett & Gray, who figure the total for the season 1904-05 at 4,591,000 tons, a net increase of 278,426 tons as compared with last year's actual results of 4,312,574 tons. Against this increase in cane production we have to figure on a decrease in European beet production of 732,043 tons. It is also interesting to note that Willett & Gray's preliminary estimate of the American beet sugar crops shows a deficiency of over 17,000 tons, being 191,000 tons against last year's actual production of 208,135 tons. It must be understood, too, that the estimate of growing crops is presumed upon fair conditions continuing until after harvesting. Taking all figures together the net decrease in new beet and cane crops is estimated at 470,752 tons, while during last season the world's crops were 480,669 tons in excess of the previous year's production. This, however, was more than absorbed by the enormous increase in consumption. It may be that we shall see a falling off in the consumption owing to the higher level of values which must almost certainly prevail, otherwise there will be no surplus stock to carry over at the end of the campaign.

The U. S. refined situation has been unsettled for the week. Two refiners advanced the price 5c on sugar in 100 lb. bags, bringing quotations for sugar in that package to the same level as sugar in barrels and having the effect of stimulating the demand as stocks were running low. Since then the entire list has been advanced 5c per 100 lbs., making the New York net price 4.85c and leaving the margin between raw and refined at the abnormally low figure of 60c per 100 lbs.

The local market has not been affected by these changes, and we understand there has been no exceptional demand, the consumption being ordinarily light at this season. Our quotations are as follows :

TEAS.

Locally the tea market is quiet; some business is doing with prices exceptionally low. The trade, however, is prone to hang back waiting for a market still more favorable to buyers. The question of chief interest in the tea trade generally is whether Ceylons or Japans will ultimately capture this market. For some time Ceylons have apparently had the better end of the trade. This year, however, the low price ruling for Japans has had a tendency to improve the Japan situation. The Canadian trade, moreover, likes a straight rolled leaf. Latterly Indian teas have been giving great satisfaction.

The chief feature in Ceylon blacks is a widening of the range of prices between common and fine tea, the latter being exceedingly scarce, all parcels of stand out quality selling readily at about 1d advance. On the other hand, long medium to common teas might be quoted ½d lower. Samples of Indians coming forward seem to point to an early closing of the season. Some lots are already showing traces of red leaf. This would have the effect of shortening the crop estimate according to reliable London opinion by about 12,000,000 lbs., which would necessarily bring about an advance in price of lower grade teas, which advance might easily be accentuated if reports which have gone to many gardens are actually carried out, namely, to pluck finer and avoid the rougher leaf characteristic of this year's crop. Our quotations are as follows:

COFFEES.

There have been more inquiries for Rios during the week under review, and some transactions are reported, notwithstanding the high prices ruling.

We are indebted to Geo. Musson & Co., agents for F. J. West, New York, for the following report on the New York markets. The last week has seen a livelier coffee market. Prices advanced 35 to 40 points, and the situation is favorable to a further advance. The two largest interests in the coffee business in the United States are the heaviest holders and are increasing their holdings on every break in the market. What is good policy for these interests might be considered good policy generally, namely, to buy on every break and carry full stocks.

It is generally conceded by all coffee interests that stocks in the interior of Europe and the States are abnormally small, that consumption was never greater, and that it is only a question of a short time until these interests must come into the market as buyers. Brazil has remained firm with exchange about 1-16 higher. Receipts continue smaller than at eveo dates last year and the best authorities in Brazil cable that these receipts will fall off rapidly. The situation at Rio is particularly strong, stocks there being only about 5,000,000 bags. Although it is cabled that Santos has received 65 per cent. of the crop of 1904-05, its stocks show an increase of only 2,000 bags for the week. With the expected early decrease in receipts, and the demand which must naturally come from the interior of the United States and Europe, these stocks must decrease rapidly before the end of this year.

Mild coffees locally are steady, without special feature. Our quotations are as follows:

Foreign Dried Fruits

Dried fruits are at present the most interesting item in the grocery markets. First direct shipments of Mediterranean fruit have arrived, deliveries being much more prompt this year than usual. Orders will begin to be filed during the coming week and by the time the second direct steamer Jacona lands her cargo supplies for the Christmas trade will be practically in. Supplies of 1903 stock are generally exhausted. We quote the following prices:

EVAPORATED APPLES.

A small volume of trade is reported in evaporated apples at 5 1-4 to 6c, the reason being the bulk of green fruit still available.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

There has been a fair quantity of egs received by the dealers during the past week, and prices on "fresh gathered" have not advanced. It is certain that laying will gradually fall off from this time as little more warm weather can be looked for. Stocks of pickled eggs are about the usual size, and it is likely that what is kept for home consumption will be much in excess of last year, when the bulk was exported. One of the largest dealers says his stock of pickled eggs is entirely contracted for. Winter prices will in all probability not reach the high level of last Winter. The total receipts for the year, while less in the aggregate than for 1903, have been of ordinary volume since May. It was the shortage in April and May that told against the year's receipts. We quote this week:

Eggs, fresh	0 20	0 21

HONEY.

Comb honey is cleaning and market conditions are reported brighter. During the week prices have remained unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 08	0 08½
" sections, No 1, per doz	1 90	2 00
" " No. 2, "	....	1 65

BEANS.

According to latest reports this year's crop now on the market is slightly larger than that of 1903. At present there is a good export and local demand. Prices remain unchanged. We quote the following prices:

Beans, handpicked, per bush	1 60	1 65
" prime, No. 1	....	1 50
" prime, No. 2	....	1 40
" Lima, per lb	0 07	0 07½

SEEDS.

The absence of foreign demand has occasioned an unusual dullness in the market. Reports state that Germany has an excellent crop of seeds; that in the United States is also reported fair; this no doubt is largely the cause of the dropping off in Canadian exports. Red clover, mammouth and timothy are beginning to move on the market. During the week mammouth has become firmer; otherwise prices remain the same. Prices quoted are as follows:

Alsike clover, per bush	4 65	6 25
Red Clover	6 75	7 25
Mammouth clover, per bush	6 75	7 25
Timothy	1 00	1 35

Green Fruits.

Reports to date state that the supply of local fruit during the week has been of first-class quality. Trade in general is brisk, brightening up to an appreciable extent at the beginning of the week. Of domestic fruits, grapes are arriving in large quantities; on account of the heavy frosts early this Fall the quality may be classed as medium. Canadian pears are also arriving in fair volume, and fine quality. The cool weather of the past Summer is hindering to a certain extent the sale of Canadian cranberries which have not colored well. As a result Cape Cod cranberries are selling much more readily. Apples are moving freely owing to the fact that a great number have been blown down by recent windstorms and growers are shipping those already picked. The season for crabapples is practically over, during the week we have struck off our list bananas in the loose state, tomatoes and California Tokay grapes.

Jamaica oranges are arriving more freely than in previous years. As a result of improved shipping conditions cars can now be unloaded with loss of less than one per cent. from waste, where as before the improvements were made dealers had to count on from ten to fifteen per cent. loss. Heavy storms are reported in Honduras, affecting the banana crop to an appreciable extent. Owing to these unfavorable weather reports the price of bananas has advanced. New Messina lemons are expected on the market next week to sell at from $3.50 to $4 per box. The supply of Almeria grapes is expected to be larger this year than formerly, but owing to the ruined California crop the market will be firm. Second shipments of figs (Smyrna) are arriving in good condition, also a small consignment of naturals. We quote the following prices:

Vegetables.

During the week under review "carrots" in bags and "beets" in both bags and bulk have become easier in price, owing to the fact that farmers have gathered the larger portion of their root crop and the supply has been somewhat larger. A better supply of citrons has caused prices to decline slightly. Green corn, green peppers and pickling cucumbers have been struck off of the list as the season is practically over for these vegetables. The present outlook is for a smaller supply of vegetables and steady prices at present quotations. We quote the following prices:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Recent reports state a shortage in the rye crop which has resulted in a stiffening of prices. Owing to the strong export demand for buckwheat prices have advanced. Speculation on the United States market has caused the price of wheat to advance. Oats are steadier and selling at 35 to 35 1-2c per bushel. There is a stronger demand with a good supply in most cases to meet the demand. Prices this week as are follows:

BREAKFAST FOODS.

The trade in breakfast foods is seasonable and brisk. Oatmeal and rolled oats in bags, wood and broken lots are 15c easier, due to the fact that oats in the grain state have been steadily declining for the last few weeks. Other prices remain unchanged. We quote the following prices:

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 20, 1904.

LOCAL features are few this week. Business keeps up well and payments are prompt. Prices for corn and tomatoes have been fixed and, as anticipated, are higher than last year. Corn is 50c to 55c per case dearer, and tomatoes 25c. Another increase during the week is dairy butter, which has gone up a cent per pound. Prices in general are very firm, and with the advent of Winter advances may be looked for. Coffees are very firm with no sign of a reduction and a probable increase.

Apples this year are the best for many years, owing to the fine dry weather which prevailed throughout the entire Summer. Great care is being taken by the orchardists, and instructions as to the production of the finest specimens are being followed. As most of the orchards are being set out, the growers are starting in the right way, and the result will be that in a year or two British Columbia will have some of the most magnificent fruit grown. As it is the premier on Tuesday received a cablegram from Hon. J. H. Turner, agent general of the province in London, stating that the exhibit of British Columbia fruit had taken first honors in England in competition with the fruit of the world.

Valencia oranges have stiffened considerably, and are now held at $4.50 to $5 per case. Early grapes are about over, and the first shipments of Concords are expected this week. They will be worth 35c and 50c per basket. There are no changes in flour or foodstuffs to report this week.

Another scheme to bring a portion of the interior of the province under cultivation is proposed by Messrs. W. H. Armstrong and C. F. Law, of this city. Mr. Armstrong is of the firm of Messrs. Armstrong & Morrison, of this city, and both are interested in mining ventures in the Similkameen. The idea is to sub-divide the Coulthard ranch in the Keremeos district into small holdings, establish a town, and settle up what holds the undisputed reputation of being a fruit region surpassed by none on the Pacific Coast except the Hood River section of Oregon. The ranch, 1,650 acres, has been purchased and the whole will be irrigated. This is very easy, as there is abundance of water. A Winter resort will also be made of the fine hotel to be erected, as little or no snow falls in the Keremeos Valley, and the climate all the year round is nearly perfect.

All through the west there has been prosecution of milk vendors who use various kinds of preservatives in the milk they offer for sale. The action was first taken in Seattle, and was followed in the other cities of Washington, British Columbia centres now taking the matter in hand. Formaldehyde was the favorite adulteration, while in Rossland the name of the drug used was "Freezine." The effect has been that many people are confining themselves to the condensed variety in the hope that it is free from such ingredients.

Following the example set by owners of many large ranches in the Okanagan district, the Lambly property at Peachland, containing 400 acres, has been divided into 70 lots, which are being rapidly disposed of at good prices. This property was the one which first gave the locality of Peachland a reputation as a fruit growing centre, the orchard being one of the oldest and best in the district.

Mr. Wm. Braid, of Braid & Co.'s tea and coffee house, left yesterday on a business trip to Calgary, Edmonton, and other points in the Territories.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22, 1904.

THE first crop report of Manitoba and the Territories to be issued by Mr. F. B. Fowler, of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, was published yesterday, and indicates that, despite the sensational reports of rust and frost and delayed harvesting, the yield this year can truly be said to be a bumper one. In spite of the drawbacks encountered, Mr. Fowler estimates the total yield of wheat at 59,957,190 bushels, or on an average of 3,420,411 acres an average yield of 17.5 bushels. Mr. Fowler's estimate at this date last year of the production for 1903, was 50,290,974 bushels on 3,223,663 acres, an average yield of 16.1.

Business continues bright and trade is good, but collections are rather slow at present.

Sugar.

The market is quite firm in every respect, quoting Montreal granulated in barrels at $5.30, in sacks $5.20, and yellows $4.70. The market still quotes Wallaceburg at $5.20 in barrels, and $5.10 in sacks.

Evaporated and Dried Fruit.

All lines of California varieties are now moving towards the advance. Only a half crop of raisins and prunes is now being realized owing to the effect of the heavy rains which damaged the crops generally to a great extent. Valencia raisins, Treynor's brand, are still quoted at $2.10 per case. Quotations on evaporated apples will appear in the price list about the 10th of November.

Canned Fruits.

Market continues firm but active, quoting strawberries at $3.25 per case, raspberries $3 per case of 2 dozen, and peaches (1904 crop) 2 lb. yellow $3.75 per case, and 3 lb. yellow $5.75 per case. Pears are still holding the price good, 2 lb. F. B. at $3.25 per case, and 3 lb. F. B. at $4.25 per case.

Canned Vegetables.

The market is very lively but firm in all lines, quoting canned beans at $1.80 to $1.90 per case, canned pears at $1.90 per case, tomatoes at $2.75 per case and corn at $2.50 per case. Owing to the untimely frost we may look for an advance in both tomatoes and corn before long.

Beans.

The market continues active and bright, quoting beans the same as in last week's price list at $1.70 per sack.

Coffee.

The market is still quite unsettled with the continued tendency towards an advance in price, but so far the quota

FIRE-PROOF GLASS WINDOWS.

They give absolute security—resisting intense fire heat, as well as the action of water.

Arranged to open with this "fusible link" attachment, they close and lock automatically if a fire occurs—150° melts the link—thus giving complete and perfect protection.

This "wired glass" admits the light as freely as plain glass—is rather ornamental in effect, and greatly lessens insurance rates.

Tapioca.

The market is now a little quieter than last week, but is still somewhat unsettled, quoting tapioca at 3½c per lb

Cornmeal.

Activity prevails with a general firmness in prices, quoting cornmeal at $1.75 per sack and 90c per ½ sack.

Rolled Oats.

The market is still holding rolled oats at the old advance in the price list, but a general firmness is now reported quoting 80 lb. sacks at $3.25 and the usual list prices on smaller sizes.

Flour.

The market continues very bright but firm, quoting No. 1 patent at $2.90, No. 2 at $2.70, No. 3 at $2.20, and No. 4 at $1.55.

Eggs.

The market is very active with a heavy demand on all available stocks and supplies from the country are rather light. Eggs are now jobbing to the trade at 23c per doz.

Syrups.

The market is now quite firm with a splendid demand. The market now quotes Imperial brand, ½ gals., 12 in a case, at $6; and Edwardsburg 2 lb tins $2.40 per case; 5 lb. tins $2.70 per case; 10 lb. tins $5.50 per case; and 20 lb. tins $2.40 per case.

Honey.

The new stock of honey which has now been on the market for about two weeks is holding prices firm but very active, quoting 5 lb. tins at 13c per lb., 10 lb. tins at 12½c per lb., 60 lb. tins at 11c per lb.

Green Fruit.

The market continues bright and very active, quoting late Valencia oranges $5 to $5.50 per case, California lemons $6 per case, fancy Montana crab apples $1.50 per case, Washington plums $1.10 per case, Washington pears (Winter Nellies) $2.25 per case, Ontario Fall apples $3 per barrel; Ontario snow apples $4 per barrel, Quebec famous snow apples $4.50 per barrel, fancy XXX Kings $3.50 per barrel, fancy XXX Greenings $3 per barrel, Ontario basket crab apples and pears 65c per basket, Malaga keg grapes $7, Ontario basket grapes (blue and green) 25c, Ontario basket red grapes 35c, California Tokay grapes $3 per case, cranberries (Cape Cod) per barrel $10, celery per doz. bunches 50c, green tomatoes 3c per lb., Jersey sweet potatoes $5 per barrel (Bell brand), Spanish onions $1.50 per barrel, and oysters (per express only) $2.50 per gal.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,

St. John, N.B., Oct. 24, 1904.

THE advance in California dried fruits, particularly raisins, is perhaps the matter of chief interest here. New goods are now due. There have been few changes in prices. Onions are higher; cream of tartar is firm.

Oil.

Burning oil is at this season a very active line. Shipments are large. Prices have shown no change for some time. Lubricating oils are unchanged in price and business is somewhat dull. Paint oils continue to have a fair sale at quite full figures. In candles prices are rather easier. The receipts of cod oil are not large but price shows no change.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salts there is good steady business. There continue to be quite regular arrivals. This is an advantage to the importer enabling him to fill orders from ship's side at the lowest possible price. The salt is chiefly brought in Manchester steamers which have continued a regular service during the Summer. In fine salt while some Liverpool factory filled is sold the market is chiefly supplied from Ontario.

Green Fruits.

There is active business. Apples are very plentiful, very good and very cheap and there is a fair sale. Nice Jamaica oranges are now offered. Lemons are quite firm. Large quantities of Ontario grapes are now here and prices are low. Pears and tomatoes are also offered. Peaches have a light sale. Bananas are about out of season. The Cape Cod cranberries are very good with prices reasonable. Some native berries are offered.

Canned Goods.

Market is very firm, particularly corn and tomatoes. All lines of canned goods are held at full figures. Salmon is firm, springs and cohoes being the two grades offered. Lobsters are very high. Gallon apples are low. There is but a limited sale. Blueberries are quite plentiful. Meats have less sale. In domestic fish there is a fair pack of sardines. Kippers and haddies are rather light supply. Clams, which have a continued improved demand, are not a large pack.

Dried Fruits.

New California goods are now offered to arrive and are due. There is a wide range in price. Coast prices are higher and in some cases have been withdrawn. In both raisins and prunes crop will be much smaller than was expected. New Valencia raisins are here. Prices are lower than usual for first arrivals. There are no Malaga seeded imported this year and very few loose Muscatels. Even in layers the quantity is smaller than usual. Evaporated apples are rather easier with a fair sale only. Onions are moving freely and some Valencia stock is still here, but market is chiefly supplied with Canadian stock. Prices are higher. Shippers, if they want to hold the confidence of the trade, should be more careful, shipping only reliable stock.

Sugar.

While market is still firm, prices have shown no further advance for some time The continued receipts of foreign sugar no doubt affect the situation.

Molasses.

Market is quite well supplied. There is quite a full stock of Porto Rico held. While market is unchanged there is some range in price.

Fish.

There is little variety in fresh fish and supply is light. In dry fish and pickled herring prices are very high, perhaps as high as ever quoted. Smoked herring still holds at full figures. The slightly lower price of some weeks ago is unchanged. Quite a quantity of our alewives are going to Halifax for shipment south.

Flour and Feed.

Flour remains unchanged at the high prices and market is firm. In feed, supply is very light. Oats are not very freely offered, but oatmeal is rather lower. Cornmeal remains unchanged. Beans are a light stock. Market is firm. Barley of late years has but a limited demand. Price is quite high. Split and round peas are quite scarce.

THE LATE MR. J. L. MATHIEU.

The late Mr. J. L. Mathieu, chemist, Sherbrooke, P. Q., is remembered chiefly as founder of the J. L. Mathieu Co., and inventor of Mathieu's Syrup of Tar and Cod Liver Oil, one of the most successful cough remedies ever marketed in Eastern Canada.

On the death of Mr. Mathieu, which occurred in 1902, his business passed into the hands of a joint stock company, which is now extending its operations throughout Canada.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. Johnson, canner, of Apple River, N.S., is dead.

Mr. H. Saunders, of Victoria, one of the pioneer grocers of British Columbia, is dead.

Mr. J. Murray, seed merchant, of Cayuga, was married last week to Miss M. Enright.

Mr. W. H. Millman, of the firm of W. H. Millman & Sons, Toronto, is in Dunnville this week.

Mr. R. J. Matheson, Dartmouth, N.S,. has retired from the wholesale flour, feed and milling business.

Mr. F. J. White, of White & Co., Toronto, has returned from a two weeks trip to Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

Mr. Thomas Smith, of McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, after a few weeks of quietness and seclusion, is again on the road.

Lieut.-Col. Labelle, manager for the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Montreal, is out of town for a couple of weeks, enjoying his annual holiday.

The marriage of Mr. T. J. Williamson, of the Acadia Sugar Refinery, Halifax, to Mrs. M. E. Skelly will take place on October 31.

In last week's issue of The Grocer appeared an item to the effect that Mrs. W. Mills, formerly of the American Coffee Co., had joined the coffee department of the Eby-Blain Co. This should have read Mr. W. Ellis.

The Liberal candidate in the constituency of East Kent for the coming Dominion elections is Mr. D. A. Gordon, president and general manager of the Wallaceburg Sugar Co., one of the principal beet sugar industries in Canada.

Mr. C. Westaway, secretary-treasurer of the Brantford Starch Works, was presented with a handsomely bound set of Thackeray's works by his fellow employes last week on the occasion of his departure for Winnipeg, where he has secured a position with the Massey-Harris Co.

Mr. L. C. Archibald, of the Canadian Milk Condensing Co., Antigonish, N.S., was in Montreal last week. It will be remembered that this company's "Owl brand" milk got the Government analyst's highest award at the last analysis of milks sold in Canada. J. S. Creed, 525 Board of Trade Building, Montreal, has received the agency for this product.

Mr. Dickie has been appointed manager of the Sarnia Salt Co., in place of Mr. Wanness. Some changes in the plant are also contemplated with a view to manufacturing a higher grade of salt.

Mr. F. A. Graham, of the grocery firm of Graham & Co., Halifax, has severed his connection with that firm to accept a position with De Long & Seaman. His territory will be in Nova Scotia and Cape Breton.

Mr. Frank Loggie, of A. & R. Loggie, Loggieville, N.B., was in the city this week on his way west to complete his annual tour of inspection of the large centres. In addition to visiting Western Canada he will take in St. Paul and Minneapolis. The Loggie firm is one of the largest packing and canning industries in the east. They have so stamped their enterprise and personality upon the district that the town has been namd after the family. Mr. Loggie reported business very brisk.

Mr. R. B. Ellis, insurance agent, Vancouver, has received the nomination as Conservative candidate for Vancouver in the approaching Dominion elections. Mr. Ellis was formerly associated with the old Toronto coffee and spice firm of Ellis & Kneighley, predecessors to the Toronto Coffee and Spice Co. Every one in the trade will remember him as a prominent Front street tea broker. He removed to Vancouver about 10 years ago to take charge of the Pacific coast branch of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Co.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

White & Co., Toronto, expect their first car of Florida oranges November 5.

"Grimo," the new cleansing soap paste is in stock with the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto.

Leonard Bros., Montreal, report the arrival of large quantities of haddies, bloaters and kippered herrings daily by express, and are able to fill all orders promptly. This is a good time to buy a barrel of shell oysters for customers. Leonard Bros. have a large supply of all grades at reasonable prices.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., wholesale grocers and tea importers, Guelph, advise Mediterranean dried fruit in stock per steamer Escalona as follows: One carload Mouton's choice selected Valencia raisins: also one carload Dem Schisas cleaned currants, Filiatras, Amalias and Vostizzas in cases and half cases. They have also in stock new top figs, seeded raisins, prunes, peels and choice quality Sultana raisins at 6 1-2c. The trade is recommended to stock vinegars before the weather gets too cold.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, reports arrival of 57 chests Saryune Congou teas showing fine cup quality and good leaf. This is offered to the trade at 12 1-2c; samples supplied on application.

The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, reports the arrival of Fall shipments of imported cheese of the finest quality which they are offering for immediate delivery.

The first Florida grape fruit of the season arrived this week for White & Co., Toronto.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, has an attractive line of washed and stuffed figs and dates that sell and pay well.

Since the beginning of 1904, sales of "Salada" in black and mixed tea, in the Toronto branch have shown an increase of 168,087 lbs. This shows an average weekly increase of 4,000 lbs. during the present year over the year 1903, and this in Ontario and the Northwest alone, which markets have been exploited for fourteen years. This is not taking into consideration sales of "Salada" green tea (which doubled last year's sales) nor the sales of the Montreal nor United States branches where the increase has been equally large.

Intending purchasers of potatoes or those desiring information would do well to write H. L. Roberts, commission merchant, Ashcroft, B.C.

The Walter M. Lowney Co., Boston, Mass., are showing a splendid line of Christmas goods in fancy cartons at their Montreal sample rooms on St. Paul street. Buyers will find it profitable to write for particulars.

"White Dove" brand cocoanut is a favorite with the grocery trade; orders received are taxing the capacity of W. P. Downey's Montreal plant.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, is quoting close figures on guaranteed Fall caught fresh water herrings, trout and white fish. Dealers will do well to book their orders ahead for requirements.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, are expecting the arrival of one car of new Messina lemons, one car of Jamaica oranges, and three cars of Spanish onions.

TOOK TWO GRAND PRIZES.

The jury of awards at the St. Louis World's Fair has awarded to H. J. Heinz Co., of Pittsburgh, two grand prizes, one for the purity and excellence of their "57 varieties" of food products and the other for the advanced work accomplished by that firm in welfare work among their employes.

Copy of Extract from "The Canadian Grocer."

"A decided stand was taken by the Association on the 'Premium' question, the majority of the members being of the opinion that any firm giving away premiums with goods cannot carry on a legitimate business, since the retailer, not the manufacturer, has indirectly to stand the cost of the coupons as well as the profit cut off by the use of coupons. A suggestion was made by the President that measures be taken immediately to investigate the tea trade, and that the members of the Association give a special amount of business to firms selling the best brand of tea without premiums."

The opinion expressed above by the Retail Grocers' Association of Toronto is the opinion that I have held and maintained strenuously ever since I have been in business.

Premiums, prizes, coupons of all kinds savor of deception ; somebody is led to expect "something for nothing." Goods that are not worth their price, and can only be sold by the giving away of some premium, should not be on the shelves of any respectable store.

The Tea trade has been very much abused by the use of premiums, and I am much pleased that the Toronto Grocers' Association have taken steps to immediately investigate this important part of their business.

RED ROSE TEA is one of the brands that from the time it was first put on the market has sold on its intrinsic value only. It has not been connected with any premium, prize or coupon scheme, and the enormous sale it has attained without extensive advertising is, I think, very good proof that merchants generally appreciate goods which have real merit, and value the premium schemes for what they are worth.

A CANADIAN CAPTAIN OF INDUSTRY.

THE term "Captain of Industry" has become hackneyed principally because it has been used in connection with cheap puffs and paid write-ups. The ocean, however, cannot be condemned because it sinks one ship and floats a million. One Canadian business man who thoroughly deserves the title, and as thoroughly detests cheap notoriety, is Mr. Robert Meighen, for fourteen years president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co.

Mr. Meighen is a man of strong personality. His methods are entirely his own. He is known for these peculiarities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in fact in many parts of the Old World. In Montreal his familiar presence on 'Change Hall is looked for every day. When exciting and critical corners turn up in the grain and flour markets, the brokers stand around and frequently exclaim, "Where's Meighen? Let's hear what he has got to say." The cause for such remarks are two-fold. First, Mr. Meighen is keen and thoroughly posted on the probability of the market. He makes it his business to be well informed always and his anticipations of changes are based upon a judgment ripened in the severe school of hard-earned experience. He has a faculty of seeing through any scheme like a search-light, and the slightest attempt at "rigging" the market will be scented by him in a trice. The grain brokers know well that they need never try to put up any job on Mr. Meighen.

Sometimes his fondness for some particular policy, political or commercial, upon which he has very definite opinions, causes him to be argumentative. It is usually the custom with those who know him, to jokingly gloss over any excited words with the remark, "You have studied that subject too much for me, Mr. Meighen." These arguments sometimes hinge on Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal policy, sometimes on politics, and sometimes on grain prices. Whatever it may be, Mr. Meighen is usually very positive about his information, and the man who measures swords with him must be sure of his fact else he will be floored in the first round.

It is now many years since Mr. Meighen advocated the policy of Imperial preferential trade. His confident belief in it has been instrumental in educating Canadians in many parts upon this question. His clear-cut, original expressions, his quick decisions in business and withal pleasant aggressiveness at all times, make him a business man easy to remember. He has stamped his character on the extensive business of which he is the head, and his individuality runs through all their important ramifications.

Mr. Meighen is an Irishman, being born near Londonderry, at Dungevan, Ireland. His father died when he was very young and the family came to Canada and settled at Perth, Ont., where the children were educated. It was there the Meighen boys established themselves in business as wholesale and retail general merchants. The firm of Arthur Meighen & Bros. soon became widely known for probity and enterprise, in fact they were known as one of the largest firms doing business in the old Bathurst District. In 1882 Mr. Meighen removed to Montreal, where he became associated in business with Sir George Stephen, now Lord Mount Stephen, whom he succeeded as president of the

Mr. R. Meighen, President of Lake of the Woods Milling Co.

New Brunswick Railway, which now forms part of the Canadian Pacific Eastern line. This position Mr. Meighen still holds. It was in the Canadian West that he first became interested in milling, having made some investments in the Portage Milling Co., at Portage La Prairie.

Shortly afterwards he participated in the founding of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. The immense growth of this company since its inception has been due in no small degree to the foresight and judgment exercised by Mr. Meighen, not only in his own personal efforts, but in securing heads of departments capable of carrying on so extensive a business with marked success. To know such a man one would be a first-class guarantee for investing money in a business over which he had control. In the natural course of events he has been chosen to fill important positions in the world of finance. He is a director of the Bank of Toronto (one of the strongest financial institutions in Canada), the Northwest Land Co. and the Dominion Transport Co. As a member of the Montreal Board of Trade and the Corn Exchange Association he is always active and progressive, and was a delegate to the fifth congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire.

In his public utterances Mr. Meighen is famous for his common sense—one of the rarest of gifts. He can translate moods and manners of merchants, intricate financial problems, and complexities of all kinds into the simplest and plainest of English, which tells in an incisive, effective manner exactly what he is getting at. It was such a speech as this that he made at that congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire. That vast audience, comprising the master commercial minds of the British Empire, listened attentively to the hard sense of his expression, and so attractive was that public address that it was afterwards published in pamphlet form and widely circulated.

Notwithstanding the excessive calls upon his time for business, he has found time to become the author of another pamphlet on the fiscal question, which he has especially addressed to the farmers of Canada. A strong principle in Mr. Meighen's business creed is that he believes in Canada, first, last, and all the time. Mr. Meighen has a great belief in the young men of Canada, and his open-handed generosity to the energetic and capable young men in different walks of life is known only to the donor himself and those whom he helps. He is a Presbyterian and a trustee of St. Paul's Church. In politics he is a Conservative. His palatial residence at 140 Drummond street is one of the finest homes in Montreal. His clubs are the Mount Royal, St. James, and Canadian. Mr. Meighen has achieved his personal success by his adherence to the principle of prudence, hard work, and the "neglect of nothing." He has frequently been asked to take part in public life, but he believes that his duties run in the lines of business more than in the active arena of publicity. In fact, it was difficult indeed to induce him to allow his photograph and character sketch to appear in the public press

THE Board of Trade of Innisfail, Alberta, is distributing a small brochure containing information about Innisfail, "the dairying centre of the Canadian Northwest," which ought to interest prospective settlers. The enterprise shown by the Innisfail Board of Trade might well be copied by similar organizations in the west desirous of pursuing an aggressive immigration campaign.

The Grocer is in receipt of a booklet by H. E. Sloan, manager of the Western Grocer Co., Kansas City, Mo., on "Salmon Catching and Canning on Puget Sound."

"Tea Hints for Retailers." By J. H. Blake.

This publication is one which should appeal to every retail grocer. Perhaps no department of the grocery trade requires such close attention as that of tea, and the retail trade throughout the country is coming to realize more and more the necessity of knowing something about the commodities that pass over the counter daily. For these reasons Mr. Blake's book on "Tea Hints for Retailers" will serve to meet a long-felt want. It is divided into two parts, the first being historical, while the second comprises half a dozen pertinent and timely essays on subjects of vital interest to every grocer and general merchant, such as "Where to Buy Teas," "Bulk versus Package Teas," and "How to Establish a Tea Trade." The work will undoubtedly prove valuable to the trade not only from an educational but from a practical standpoint.

The Trust Company Idea and its Development. By Ernest Heaton, Barrister-at-Law, Osgoode Hall, Toronto. Price $1.00.

In this little handbook of 45 pages, a short account is given of the American, Canadian, New Zealand and Australian trust companies, and of the trust company idea in England. In the latter country the least progress has been made. According to our conception, a trust company exists principally or solely to discharge the functions and perform the duties of a trustee, an executor or administrator of an estate. Such is its legitimate and sole function and as such its duties are performed with much advantage to those requiring its assistance. In the United States, trust companies have proceeded far beyond this conception. Some of them have become in finance a departmental store, in addition to the duties just mentioned they reorganize and promote corporations and underwrite their stock or act as a bank and particularly in the savings branch.

In 11 years from 1893 to 1903, 41 failures of trust companies are reported in the United States. This we are told compares very favorably with the records of national and state banks during the same period. To us this appears a shocking record. Mr. Heaton might with advantage emphasize more strongly the contrast between a properly managed trust company on the Canadian or English plan and the American departmental store.

We note the legislative provision in Ontario against excessive competition and the excellent record of trust companies in Ontario and notably of the pioneer, the Toronto General Trusts Corporation whose careful and conservative management has been the means of averting much loss to its clients and patrons. We hope the author will issue a further edition with more extended information on this important subject.

BUSINESS FAILURES IN 1903-04

FOLLOWING is a comparative statement of business failures in Canada and Newfoundland for the first nine months of 1903 and 1904 as just issued by Bradstreet's. It indicates 832 failures, involving $7,696,688 of liabilities for 1904, an increase of 16.8 per cent. in number and of 22.6 per cent. in liabilities over those of 1903:

GREEN FRUITS

Foreign Fruit and Vegetable Trade of Canada.

THE following figures concerning the Canadian export and import trade in green and dried fruits, vegetables, nuts, etc., have been taken from the Blue Book of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa :

IMPORTS.

Imports are distributed as follows : Dried apples, currants, dates, figs, prunes, raisins, almonds, brazil nuts, pecans, walnuts, etc., in 1899 amounted to $1,220,546. In 1903 these imports were valued at $2,061,979, and in 1904 at $2,000,634. The following countries contributed to the importations of dried fruits, nuts, etc., in 1904 : The United States $887,860, Spain $491,567, Greece $213,795, France $118,974, Great Britain $46,792, other countries $241,616.

In 1899 Canada imported bananas, oranges, lemons, pineapples, limes, guavas, mangoes, plantains, pomegranates, shaddocks, blackberries, gooseberries, raspberries, strawberries, cherries, cranberries, grapes, peaches, plums, quinces, blueberries, to the following values : $1,892,209 in 1899, $2,555,158 in 1903, and $2,152,898 in 1904. Importations of green fruits for the year 1904 were distributed as follows : The United States, $2,102,761, Great Britain $130,885, Italy $116,015, other countries $93,237.

In fruits, canned and preserved, jellies, jams, preserved ginger, fruits preserved in brandy or other spirits, rind and peel of citron, lemon and orange in brine, Canadian importations for 1899 amounted to $166,786, for 1903 to $169,552, and for 1904 to $204,524. To the latter amount Great Britain contributed $100,431, the United States $62,514, and other countries $41,579.

In vegetables Canada imported in 1899 melons, potatoes (American and sweet), tomatoes, corn, and fancy vegetables, to the value of $328,332, in 1903 to the value of $717,866, while in 1904 Canada's importations of vegetables totalled $694,407 ount was: Germany $194,168, Great Britain $25,539, the United States $27,451, other countries $131,350. In Canadian green fruits, from which apples are excluded, the exports were valued at $657,910 in 1899, $579,820 in 1903, and $624,867 in 1904. Of the exports of green fruits in 1904 Great Britain took to the value of $331,448, the United States $263,189, and other countries $30,230. The total value of fruit exported from Canada, excepting green apples, in 1899 was $1,091,036, in 1903 $992,920, and in 1904 $1,003,275. Canada's exports of vegetables in 1899 and 1904 were $152,597 and $243,125, respectively, the bulk going to the United States.

Latest Prices for New Figs.

The Shipment of Apples.

Both the G. T. R. and the C. P. R. eastern lines are giving notice that after November 12, 1904, apples will not be received at Port Arthur or Fort William from connecting lake steamers for transportation to western markets. It is, therefore, pointed out that with the close of business, November 5, agents of the companies mentioned will discontinue the acceptance from shippers or connecting lines of consignments of apples for transportation via lake and rail when destined to points west of Port Arthur or Fort William.

The Grain Situation.

ACCORDING to the latest report of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, this year's yield of grain in Manitoba and the Northwest will be a bumper one, in spite of drawbacks of rust, frost and delayed harvesting, namely, 59,857,190 bushels on an acreage of 3,420,411 acres, an average of 17.5 bushels. The percentage of wheat grading under No. 4 is figured at 30 per cent., or 17,955,000 bushels, due largely to the effect of the rust blight and early frosts, while the threshing of grain this Fall before the grain was dry is also a reason for the lowering of the grade.

The oat crop is estimated at 44,620,520 bushels on an acreage of 1,205,960 acres, an average of 37 bushels per acre; barley 10,520,850 bushels on an acreage of 392,569 acres, an average of 26.8 bushels; flax 530,550 bushels on an acreage of 46,540 acres, an average of 11.4 bushels.

The grain movement in Manitoba has now attained maximum proportions, the average daily shipments from Winnipeg for Fort William aggregating 400,000 bushels, and the railways have their hands full transporting the wheat—in fact they are now refusing to supply cars for uses other than wheat shipment.

Mr. W. P. Wood, president of the London, Eng., Corn Trade Association, who has recently completed a tour of the wheat areas in the Canadian west, says "it is merely a matter of getting settlers on this land until instead of a yearly output of sixty million bushels of wheat the output will be raised to six hundred millions. The fertile plains of Western Canada will grow the wheat of the world."

The American wheat crop is estimated at 554,713,000 bushels, compared with 703,000,000 bushels in 1903. The Russian wheat crop is fourteen million quarters less this year than last, so that it is doubtful whether Russia will be able to spare as much as last season unless she draws upon old stocks. India promises a good crop unless weather conditions should interfere with present bright prospects. France, notwithstanding a marked falling off this year, would still have enough wheat for home consumption, even if all the old wheat were used up and the country left bare. Cable advices from Argentina represent crop prospects as excellent, with a largely increased area under wheat cultivation this year as compared with 1903.

Owing to the increase in the visible wheat supply of the world usual at this season, which has amounted to 1,236,000 bushels in Canada and the United States alone during the past week, the feeling is for the present somewhat easier abroad, notwithstanding the fact that the world's crop is estimated at 133,556,000 bushels less than that of a year ago.

Canadian Wheat in States.

An epoch in the grain trade of the United States was reached last week with the first importing of wheat from Canada since the duty of 25c per bushel was imposed. The shipment was comprised of 10,000 bushels of Manitoba No. 1 northern wheat, and went to the Consolidated Elevator Co., Duluth. In the past wheat has been imported by American interests for seed or other special purposes, but this wheat will go into the same channels as ordinary American grain. It is thought that much more Canadian wheat will be imported during the crop year on account of the shortage of good milling wheat.

To Expedite Grain Deliveries.

In order to expedite grain deliveries the C. P. R., it is understood, is sending special representatives to the outlying communities in the district of Virden, Man., to notify intending shippers to order cars without delay.

Cereal Notes.

As a result of protests on the part of Ontario grain dealers, standards of oats for Ontario have been fixed by the chief Dominion grain inspector. Barley standards will be fixed as soon as additional samples from Western Ontario are received. Wheat standards will be determined about the same time.

The cleaning and drying plant recently installed by the Canadian Northern Railway in its Port Arthur terminal elevators is now in working order, and in addition to handling no-grade grain arriving over its own rails, is receiving damaged grain from the C. P. R. for treatment. The C. P. R. cleaning plant at Port Arthur has been disabled, thus throwing the entire work on the Canadian Northern.

Have You Taken Note of Its Growth?

PEOPLE

said that Orange Meat would never have any success They were not concerned about its worthiness. They said that the public and the grocery trade were sick to death of new breakfast foods.

And yet to-day

ORANGE MEAT

is sold from ocean to ocean; has conquered prejudice, and is pronounced to-day to be the very best of all ready-for-serving cereals.

Such is history.

These are reasons why the grocers of the country have given their support to this triumphant cereal.

Pipes and Pipedom.

IN pipes and smokers' accessories there is not a great deal to chronicle in new season's goods with which the connoisseur of tobacco is not already familiar. For the Christmas trade a large assortment of American silver and gold-mounted pipes in bent, square, bull-dog and billiard shapes with and without silk lined morocco cases is being shown. There is also great variety in briars, with flat, round and square bent and bull-dog shapes up to B.B.B.'s and G. B.D.'s to be bought wholesale at from 90c to $6 a dozen. Companion pipe sets in handsome cases are in great demand for the holiday trade. Another attractive line is the B.B.B. pipe with sterling silver hall mark.

Match safes are seen this season in endless variety, made mostly of sterling silver to sell at from 75c to $4. There are in addition the usual lines of cigar and cigarette holders, with and without cases and a very attractive assortment of fancy tobacco pouches in buck and kangaroo skin, more or less richly embossed in silver and oxidized metals.

Leaf Exports of Cuba in 1903.

FOLLOWING are the official Cuban statistics on imports and exports for the calendar year of 1903 which have reached the Canadian Grocer. The value of exports of leaf tobacco to the United States for 1903 is given at 9,940,406 pesos, a considerable falling off from the exportations of 1902, which were valued at 10,554,033 pesos. The exportation to the United States in 1902, was, however, much larger than that of any other year since 1888, and the exportation in 1903 is the largest of the past five years, with the exception of 1902. The next largest importation of local tobacco is to Germany, valued at 1,921,559 pesos. The total exportation of leaf tobacco for 1903 is valued at 13,255,146 pesos, which is larger than that of any other year within the past five years except that of 1900, when the exportation of leaf tobacco was valued at 13,793,783 pesos. The exportation of cigars to the United States in 1903 was valued at 2,888,111 pesos, an increase from the exportation of 1902, which amouted to 2,775,500 pesos. The total exportation of cigars in 1903 was valued at 12,391,969 pesos of which England took 5,197,785 pesos' worth Germany, 1,768,385 pesos; France, 556,933 pesos; Spain 405,385 pesos, and Canada 370,500 pesos. The total exportation of cigars shows a falling off from 1902, when they were valued at 12,374,911 pesos' and from 1901, when they were valued at 12,481,775 pesos. The exportation of cigarettes amounted during year 1903 to 404,173 pesos, of which Colombia took 191,854 pesos. The total exports of leaf and manufactured tobacco in 1903 amounted to 26,042,319 pesos. In 1902 they were 25,404,180 pesos; in 1901, 25,327,175 pesos; in 1900, 26,087,968 pesos and in 1899 21,084,750 pesos.

Problem of Selling Matches.

The difficult problem of selling matches in such a way as to satisfy both the consumer and the retailer has been solved by the United Cigar Stores Co. A number of the stores of the company are equipped with a penny in the slot machine which dispenses matches. All that the customer has to do is to put in his penny, yank a handle and out drops a neat little sack containing matches. The transaction is easily and quickly accomplished, the consumer does not have to buy what he does not want or accept of charity, nor is the dealer bothered with picayune transactions of a cent or two. The earnings of the machine, too, are said to be considerable.

Cheap Cigars in the Orient.

A gentleman now in Toronto, who has lived fifteen years on the Malay Peninsula, states that fine cigars are very cheap in the free ports. Fine Manila cigars sell for $3 per hundred to the consumer in Mexican money, which is worth about one-half American money. The indulgence of a fine cigar in that country is therefore not a very expensive habit.

Personality in Business.

Other things being equal, people in cities the size of Montreal and Toronto buy their cigars from some man whom they know personally and with whom they deem it a pleasure to deal. While this is not true of every individual purchaser of cigars, as a matter of course, yet it is true of the great majority. It is individuality that counts. Of course, there must be the attractiveness about the store, and the quality of goods to back it up, but the biggest single item in the year's business is the personality of the dealer. John Smith might step into a store where Richard Jones had done a successful business, and not hold the trade because the personality of Jones is lacking.

QUALITIES THAT WIN IN BUSINESS.

"THERE is room at the top for any young man who is energetic and resolves to serve his employer and the business in the same manner as though the business were his own. The young man animated with this spirit, if he applies himself and dedicates his time and abilities to the work in which he engages, whether professional or mercantile, has every opportunity to reach the top."

That is the opinion expressed convincingly by no less an authority than John C. Juhring, vice-president and secretary of Francis H. Leggett & Co. He is a thorough believer in the existence of opportunity for every one, but he doesn't believe that opportunity is waiting idly round to be discovered. The young man, to succeed, must seek it persistently. He must be energetic, cool-headed, ambitious, enthusiastic, capable, thorough and economical. "He must," says Mr. Juhring, "understand the practical meaning and application of the qualities that these words stand for. There is more incentive for a young man to succeed now than there was twenty years ago, and to the willing, struggling aspirant for success—the man who is not daunted by competition, and whose purpose is honest, and whose methods are above reproach—the way is open.

"A young man choosing a business or profession should enter that one for which he shows capacity. A pronounced preference for any calling is not necessary to full success in it, but where a preference is combined with ability and adaptability the road is easier. Strict honesty is necessary to business success. Ability to work— to 'keep on keeping on'—contributes more to success than experience. Ability will acquire experience and make a study of what is necessary to win in the battle. Incompetency, lack of thoroughness and self-discipline are causes of a majority of the failures. The doing of a duty, simplicity in living, earnestness of purpose, hard work, careful study of what is to be accomplished, energy, enthusiasm and the will-power to surmount obstacles mean success, and wherever success is attained you will find that these qualities have been present in living force."

Words like these coming from a member of one of the most successful business houses in the world to-day carry conviction of their importance. The principles laid down are more than the foundation of Mr. Juhring's success — they are its structure. In all the years since 1873—the year when he became associated with the company in the capacity of clerk—his aims were high. His motto is "keep on keeping on." He has kept on to some purpose. In the first year he was promoted to the position of assistant cashier. A year later he was made assistant to the general buyer. In another year the opportunity to add one or two outside lines to the business presented itself, and he seized it. In 1887 he was given an interest in the business, and in January, 1902, was admitted to a partnership. Ten years later the firm became a corporation and Mr. Juhring was then chosen vice-president and secretary.

As an illustration of his prestige and influence in the business world and his loyalty to New York City, Mr. Juhring was made vice-president of the Merchants' Association, and continued an active worker in the organization until 1903, when he resigned. He has induced one hundred and fifty representative New York business firms to join its membership. He is a trustee of the Citizens' Savings Bank of New York, a director of the Coal and Iron National Bank, and is connected with many other interests.

The names and addresses of the firms making these inquiries may be had by application to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. Parties making inquiries will be careful to mention the office under which said inquiry appears and the number.

PICKLE CUKES.

As the season for handling pickle cucumbers advances, considerable interest develops concerning the growing and handling of little cukes for market.

There are several kinds of pickling cukes, determined by the size and variety. These differences, of course, make a difference in the price. The salt pickle is a little smaller than a cuke, then there is the "dill pickle," a size smaller; next is the "mediums," which are a little smaller. Then comes the "gherkin," still smaller, and last the "midget," whose size is implied by the name. As the size diminishes the price is higher, for it takes more of them to make a bushel, and besides they are harder to pick and are more tedious to handle in every way. They come in bushels and halves, mostly in boxes and barrels, and from all accounts the growers realize good profits for the time and labor expended in producing them.

It appears that the large pickling concerns over the country contract for what cukes they buy before they are ever gathered. Contracts are made with growers direct. But most of the pickle companies have large cuke farms in charge of experienced growers. Hundreds of employes are kept on the premises during the growing season to pick and ship the little cukes.

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

TEA SHIPMENTS FROM JAPAN.

The Grocer is indebted to C. M. Bernard, agent for Bernard & Co., Yokohama, Japan, for the following figures regarding tea shipments to Japan for the present season to September 15, 1904 :

	Lbs.
To New York and East	12,314,870
To Chicago and West	11,042,740
To San Francisco	3,336,055
To Canada	3,456,149
Total	30,149,814

Against 32,780,963 lbs. to same time last year. The increase to Canada for the period was 515,092 lbs.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THERE still seems to be a lull in the freights for ocean tonnage. The most optimistic shippers and freight managers expected greater things and now that the middle of Autumn has been reached and ocean navigation as well as the lake traffic on the last few weeks of open water has shown no marked sign of a spurt, it is depressing for all concerned. For instance queer questions are being asked such as "If the Winnipeg market for wheat is too high for export at 94 3-4 cents December how can Minneapolis do any export with the same class of wheat at $1.13 3-8 December?"

Grain space is not what it ought to be in Montreal. Apples are coming along at a good rate and they are being shipped abroad in large quantities, but the price has dropped in the Old Country and now there is a sign of depression in these cargoes. Grain, however, or lack of grain is the chief worry and so the daily expectation is that there will be a rush at the last moment. The bookings for November are good and at better rates, but in comparison with last season or any good previous season the condition of things is alarming. Few new charters have been recorded, in fact the chief charters are for deals to go to the South American ports. A South African steamer is due to sail on October 30th and a varied cargo will be carried at good rates.

A point that is interesting to shippers at this time is the fact that the Railway Commission has not changed the freight standard on the railways anywhere and the date fixed for the change was October 1. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association again stepped in and asked the Commission to allow the existing tariff to remain in force for some little time yet—it is surmised until after the elections—until the manufacturers are ready to express their opinions of the changes that the new tariff proposes. The existing temporary rates are, on the whole, satisfactory to shippers as a result of the concessions that were obtained through the Commission a few months ago, so they are in no hurry to see them changed. There have been so many complaints from fruit shippers concerning the manner in which their shipments are handled by the railway companies that the Railway Commission has decided to ascertain the best type of car for fruit carriage and impress the desirability of its adoption upon the railway companies. One of the officers of the board will, acting in conjunction with a representation made by fruit shippers, make an examination of the various types of cars used on American as well as Canadian roads. If possible they will endeavor to pick out one that can readily be used for the carriage of other goods when the fruit season is over.

Webster's definition of "the Best" is :

"Having good qualities in the HIGHEST degree."

The application of this expression applied to Edwardsburg Starches

stands unchallenged and unchallengable.

The Canadian consumer knows THE BEST by ordering

Edwardsburg "Silver Gloss" Starch

AND Benson's "Prepared Corn."

The only real value of money lies in making use of it.

The money that lies there in your safe from day to day doesn't do you any good until you commence to use it.

Then its value to you depends on how you use it.

Now, if you would only invest some of it in advertising space in THE GROCER, and then use the space right you'd have a valuable assistant, working to increase your trade with grocers and to make yourself and your goods better known among them.

Some folks would sooner save (?) the money—but they are "penny wise and pound foolish."

But you're not.

A MODERN MIRACLE

is the changed conditions of the tea trade. Once China and Japan supplied all the teas produced in the world. Now India and Ceylon are battling for this distinction.

CEYLON

has succeeded marvellously in establishing a hold upon the tea drinkers of Europe and America. In Canada, the consumption of Ceylon Teas shows astonishing figures. Each passing year sees progress made. It indicates a better condition of things all round, especially for the grocer, and the grocer who booms and pushes Ceylon Teas is investing in his own business.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Lighting the Window.

THE merchant who lives in a town where electric lighting is available should not hesitate to make use of it. Both in the store interior and in the window there is no light so suitable as that given by electricity, whether incandescent or arc. There are other lights that throw a whiter light than the average incandescent, but, as chromatic effects are of little importance to a grocer, the advantages of the incandescent place it far above all others.

Electricity is cleaner, gives less trouble, is easier to keep in order and is safer than any other. It does not vitiate the air, is more convenient for lighting and extinguishing, and is odorless. In a window no other light is as satisfactory, principally because the heat generated is so small that it can be placed close against any wood or glass without danger. This is the only position for window lights. An enclosed window with any other light would soon be filled with foul air and the illumination with an elaborate display rendered unsatisfactory.

Incandescent lights should be out of sight and placed near the top of a window in the front so that the light will be thrown on the side of the goods seen from the street. As a rule the lights are placed at the top close above the glass, in a trough reflector. If a sufficient number of lights cannot be used, the position could be altered to lower down on the glass, the lights being hidden by a sign across the front. Where lights are few, single cone-shaped reflectors are best. The key for these lights should be at the entrance to the window.

There is a possibility of having too much light, making a hard glare, which is very disagreeable to the average eye, Some use frosted globes on window lights to soften the effect, but, unless too many lights are used, there is nothing gained by this. A few have found an added attraction in placing lights down the sides of the window frame; such lights should always be frosted. Colored lights are of use in a general store only in special displays, and then at rare intervals. Bulbs of colored glass can be kept for this purpose and screwed on when desired. The same or a better effect can be produced by the use of adjustable colored paper shades, a novelty particularly suitable for the Christmas season.

Where electricity is not obtainable acetylene, gas, gasoline or coal oil are the lighting agencies. Whatever provides the light, the fixtures should be as inconspicuous as possible, and the odors always considered. Expense in any form is an important factor, and it is on this account that electricity is often passed over.

Floors, Backgrounds, and Other Trimmings.

APART from what are usually termed the fixtures, there are in most displays anxiliaries which are really of as much importance as any part of the arrangement. The background and floor must be considered; in addition there are often temporary structures built which are intended to enhance the general appearance. About these every window dresser has his own ideas, which only too often he uses to the exclusion of all others.

The floor of a grocery window, or rather of the display, should almost always be of paper. Plain white or yellow sheets will sometimes be suitable, while at others a more fancy style is demanded. Crepe paper of any color can be bought very cheaply, a sufficient quantity for the average window costing no more than ten cents. This paper is very effective and can be used with any class of goods, giving just the small touch that is necessary to take away the stiffness and coldness of the usual grocery display. The reason that paper is used so extensively is on account of its cheapness and cleanliness both in appearance and reality. For a change, cheesecloth, puffed or gathered in some way to conceal its flimsiness, is of service. For further variety tightly stretched baize can be used, and as it is quite durable can be kept from time to time.

Mirrors make one of the best backgrounds and sides possible for a grocery window. Plain hardwood is of considerable merit, and for variety can be covered with puffed cheesecloth. A patterned wall paper should never be thought of, nor indeed an ordinary wall paper of any kind. In a meat and provision window the floor may be of tiling, and the walls covered with a sanitary paper patterned in imitation of tiling. Even draperies can be used for special displays.

In the arrangement of the goods themselves there are numerous devices that offer themselves to the thoughtful window dresser. Dummies or people working in the window are always of interest and can be extensively used in connection with the display of the lines that enter into a grocery stock. A woman baking, a child using soap, or dummies in the same positions, will always attract a crowd.

Backgrounds or decorative adjuncts can be built from rough frames, or empty cartoons fastened to a frame work in the form of arches or pillars. The ornamental top is simply made from cardboard, the whole being covered with cheesecloth. Boxes of any kind decorated in the same way serve as stands. Pictures placed through the display or around the walls add to certain windows, if not used too frequently, provided always that they themselves possess some artistic merit. Altogether too much use is made in some stores of the cheap, tawdry, inartistic premiums which many companies give with their goods.

A good scheme for bringing out prominently any special article is to build a framework in the shape of the window front, only a couple of feet smaller. Place this on its side about two or three feet from the glass and connect it all round with the edges of the glass by means of some black material. Back of the framework place the article to be shown on a stand, and have nothing else in the display. A variation of this is to make a frame like a picture frame. Suspend it from the ceiling and inside fix the required article.

A point too little observed by window dressers is the advantage of constructing all this detail work in a substantial manner so that it may serve a number of times before it is worn out. There is always a corner where it can be kept and many hours of thought and work, besides many a dollar, may be saved by having at hand the framework that has done duty in former displays. Dozens of different designs of pasteboard for decorative purposes can be cut out and covered so that they look as good as more solid structures.

A MONTREAL "BEE" TRIP.

WINDOW dressing as a drawing card for retail business is one of the most efficacious of the many means employed by the up-to-date grocer to attract trade. The grocer's window is a great educator for the consuming public, it is by means of the advantages obtained by a good window that the progressive manufacturers obtain the trade desired. Canadian grocers are not a whit behind their southern cousins in using this means of fostering trade already established or of cultivating the business of the passing consumer not already on his books.

Montreal numbers among its numerous storekeepers many who are past masters in the art of showing their wares. Montreal also is the centre of a great grocer's specialty and sundries manufacturing trade many proprietors of which are progressive and energetic users of grocers' windows as advertisers. Among the leaders in this respect may be mentioned the firm of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., manufacturers of "Bee" brand grocers' specialties.

The Grocer's attention has been strikingly called to this fact during the past two weeks, and it was at the request of the Montreal representative of this paper that Mr. Arch. Snowdon, of the firm, took the writer for a tour of the city. The drive in itself was an allurement. but the study of a phase of advertising in which the grocer is always interested, was a still more potent factor. The seriousness of the trip did not manifest itself to the scribe until he had been driven around for three and a half hours and had looked upon and criticized some forty odd windows located in every prominent street and business centre of the metropolis, and with an excuse to his genial guide had taken the rest of the displays for granted. It would take up too many columns of space to draw attention to every store examined, and with apologies to those overlooked, it may be said that they were all creditable, attractive and business-bringing ads. for the enterprising firm and its customers. Among the many, however, special attention may be given to a few striking examples of display.

The first prominent store was that of Z. A. Lambert & Co., corner Park avenue and Sherbrooke, where the two corner windows were one mass of "Bee" brand starch, coffee, baking powder, borax, etc., the handsome labels (for which the goods are strikingly prominent) immediately catching the eye.

J. McKerley's stores, Park avenue and Prince Arthur, were the next on the list. and being in the centre of a large residential section were bound to attract attention. Mr. McKerley, as an old grocery traveler, is up-to-date in whatever is conducive to business, and as he also has an extensive bakery in connection with the grocery his customers are numerous and of the best class. Out towards the northern suburbs Burns Bros., corner Laurier avenue and Hutchison avenue, have a double corner window artistically dressed and backed with "Bee" brand cut-outs and clock hangers. Still further out on Fairmount and St. George, C. McFarland's grocery is located. This window, though small, was attractively dressed. At the next corner, Waverley and Fairmount, Swift's new large plate glass window offered a fine display. Eastward and south again Arsene Lamy's large departmental store at the corner of Duluth andSt. Denis, had a window which was considered especially well dressed, and which should prove a powerful attraction for "Bee" brand trade. Further down St. Denis near with its splendid show windows. E. Upton's on the corner of Favard and Bourgeois streets, where the newly elected first vice-president of the Retail Grocers' Association has large and attractive show windows, and thence along to J. A. Dionne's, Favard and Congregation streets.,

After this long drive The Grocer knows the city of Montreal well enough not to lose himself; in this particular trip it would have been a difficult matter as by following the trail of "Bee" brand goods he could in the natural course of events have landed on St. Paul street, the headquarters of Snowdon, Forbes & Co. The feature that impressed itself on the mind of The Grocer was the matter of expense which must have been of considerable magnitude. Mr. Snowdon explained that their policy was to put up good goods in the first place, attractively labelled, judiciously and extensively advertised and the use of the grocers' windows amply recompensed. A great believer in window displays, the firm also believes that the grocer's premises are entitled to valuable monetary consideration, and it may be said that every grocer whose windows were used received the sum of $10 for the two weeks' use, the dressing of the same being done by the firm and its employes. Many grocers are too busy to attend to window arangements themselves, nor can they spare the time of their clerks for the purpose, though the more progressive ones endeavor to interest some one of the hands to make a study of this necessary feature of modern retailing. As far as the city of Montreal is concerned there has never been such an extensive display at one time in the stores of the grocers, as that of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., during the past two weeks, and certainly "Bee" brand goods ought to be known. If "seeing is believing" they certainly are in Montreal.

NEW BEET SUGAR FACTORY.

The mammoth Knight Sugar Factory, with capacity of 300 tons daily, has commenced operations at Raymond, Alberta. 1,000 sacks of sugar are also manufactured every twenty-four hours, and it is expected the run will last sixty days. The beets are yielding from six to fourteen tons per acre and are of high quality.

AN AMUSING APPLICATION.

FOLLOWING is an extract from a letter received by a Montreal firm from one of its country customers applying for a situation as traveler:

Dear People,

I wish to ask By This Note If their woulD be an Opening In your Firm To get on the Road by Spring off 1905. THERE is one characteristic in every one of your customers on which you can work to good advantage, if you sell the right goods, and that is that they are all partial to good things to eat.

Now, take Halifax Fish Cake. There's nothing nicer, tastier, or more healthful, and if you sell a package once to a customer you will sell lots of them afterwards and will continue to sell them as long as you do business.

The reason lies in the permanency of the article. It isn't a fad or a fancy. It's just a good wholesome, nourishing, tasty food that people will like to use on their tables quite frequently.

There's a good profitable trade in Halifax Fish Cake for you if you only take the pains to be sure that each of your customers has tried it once

Once is enough. The merit of the article will do the pushing for you.

The Fisheries of New England

By W. S. Birge in Booklover's.

ONE of the largest business enterprises in existence conducted on a co-operative basis is that of the New England fisheries. There are combined together in this industry, on an equal footing, the labor of 39,000 men and a capital of $20,000,000. More than 100,000 persons depend upon the New England fisheries for a living. More than half the total capital invested in the fishing business in the United States is represented in New England. More than half the vessels engaged in the fisheries in the United States are New England vessels. More than one-fourth of all the fishermen in the United States are New England fishermen. More than one-quarter of all the fish caught and sold in the United States are taken by New England fishing vessels. New England has engaged in her shore and deep sea fisheries about 1,500 vessels and 12,000 boats. This combination of labor and capital represents to New England an annual revenue of more than $17,500,000.

Labor and Capital Combine.

Labor and capital are here combined in perfect harmony, both sides striving equally to make the business pay. These conditions have prevailed in the New England fisheries since the business began in 1623; and throughout a period of nearly three centuries—during which time the country itself has passed through many varied and trying ordeals—there has never been any dissension or severance of the pleasant relationship existing between labor and capital. The New England fisherman works for himself. The capitalist in the business furnishes him with a vessel and supplies him with the gear necessary to carry on the work. In the division of the proceeds the fisherman, who is the laborer, gets the larger share. In the New England fisheries the profit-sharing method has been known since the beginning, and is designated by the general term of "going on shares." The proportion observed in dividing the proceeds of the catch, or trip, or voyage to each individual fisherman making up the crew is called the "lay," and is arranged at the beginning of each voyage, or continued from trip to trip. On the "half lay" the crew divide with the owners equally; the latter generally paying out of their share for the stores, towage, charges, and so forth, and the crew paying the cook's wages out of their share.

By another method called the "quarter lay," the crew charter the vessel from the owners and receive three-quarters of the proceeds of the catch, leaving one-quarter for the owners. Such vessels are principally engaged in the fresh, or "market," fishing. On the quarter-lay the crews furnish the fishing apparatus, bait, and provisions at their own expense. As an illustration of this method, a vessel's fare may amount to $2,000. The owners receive one-quarter, or $500; the balance, $1,500 is divided among the crew, after deducting the cost of the fishing apparatus, provisions, and bait expenses. Some of the more lucky fishermen make a good living at the business.

Methods of Handling Fish.

During the past ten years the new methods of handling fish have changed the base of operations from numerous small ports to a few large ones. What falling off there has been in the number of vessels engaged in the fisheries has been offset by the building of larger, faster, and better equipped vessels. The money invested in vessel property in New England and the tonnage of the fleet are greater now than they were ten or fifteen years ago.

The improved methods for the handling and transportation of fresh fish have made it much better for the shore fishermen of Cape Cod and the Maine coast. They are now able to send their catch to Boston fresh, and can get a good price for it. In the old days this was impossible. Within the last two years the introduction of engines in fishing boats and dories has made a great improvement in the shore fisheries. Three years ago a fishing boat with a gasoline engine was scarcely known. Now a large number of shore fishermen have engines in their boats. This insures certainty in reaching port with the day's catch, besides making the labor much less for the fisherman.

The preparation of salt fish for the market has undergone a marked change in the past few years, the dealers realizing that to keep abreast of the times they must present their wares to the buyers in an attractive form. Nowadays a salt fish becomes a manufactured article before it reaches the dealer. It is skinned, the bones taken out, cut up in squares, reduced to fibre or chipped. It is then wrapped in glazed paper, placed in a pasteboard box, sealed, and labeled. The old-style method of curing cod, up to about 1848, was called the hard-cured or hard-dried. The fish were lightly salted and dried in the open air until they were as hard as a rock. Later on it was found that codfish salted down in hogsheads or put in pickle would keep sweet for an almost indefinite time. Before the fish are prepared for market they are taken from pickle and spread out on wooden flakes, and dried in the sunshine and fresh air. These fish are somewhat softer than those done by the hard cure, but are liked better for general use in New England. One of the most popular forms in which salt cod is prepared is the fibered product. This is put up in half-pound and pound packages for making codfish balls, creamed fish, and the like.

Some of the largest industries in the world for preparing salt fish for the retail trade are at Gloucester. About 1,000 persons are employed there in putting up "boneless" fish. Women and girls do a large part of the work, though the heavier work, such as the cutting up and packing, is done by men. The first step toward the preparation of the "boneless" package is skinning the fish, which is done by men. The fins are cut out, the backbone removed and the fish trimmed. The small bones are next removed. This is done by girls, using a plyer made especially for the purpose. The fish next goes into the hands of the cutters, who are very expert in their work of dividing it into pieces. After cutting up the fish a sorting is made of the various pieces, the choicest part being the middle of the back, which is thick and clear. This goes into the packages which bring the highest prices. Cheaper grades of fish, such as cusk and hake, are also cut up in similar manner, and though not as attractive are very good eating. The cheaper grades find a ready sale, particularly among the Italians and others of the foreign element in our large cities who are not over-particular.

A favorite form of putting up clear fish is in "bricks," weighing a pound each. They are done up in an inner wrapper of glazed paper, after which various kinds of outer wrappers are used. The labels are always attractive and the "boneless" fish compares favorably in appearance with any of the prepared foods placed on the market.

Nowadays nothing is wasted in the preparation of fish. Even the bones and skin are utilized in the manufacture of glue, which is a separate business by itself. In the early days, the skin and bones removed from the fish were considered almost worthless, but since it was found that this waste product made an excellent glue, they are now valued at $40 or more a ton.

Pickled Fish.

The demand for fine quality of pickled herring during the past few years has increased enormously and as it is now difficult to obtain the "Labradors" that were so plentiful some 10 or 15 years ago, the demand is rapidly increasing for Holland herring, considerable importations of which have been made into Quebec, Montreal and the west, this year. While the price is slightly higher than for the ordinary Canadian cured fish, the excellence of quality and packing could not possibly be surpassed anywhere.

Owing to the poor catch of fish this season the price of green cod is higher than it has been for years, sales of No. 1 Quebec inspection having been made as high as $6.50 Montreal. The prospects are that very high prices will rule throughout the season.

A Herring Venture.

The steamer I. N. Veasey has sailed for Bay of Islands to operate the herring fisheries there. At Bay of Islands the herring will be cured, packed, and with good prices offering, sold frozen.

Fish Notes.

Owing to the lateness of the Spring fishing season the open season for trout and whitefish has been extended from October 31 to November 15.

Mr. J. J. Cowie, the Scottish herring expert, has left for Nanaimo, B.C., to investigate the possibility of developing the herring fisheries there.

The difficulties between the New England Fish Co., Vancouver, and the halibut fishermen which has been at a fixed point for several days are reported to be nearing an end.

POULTRY TRADE WITH GREAT BRITAIN.

By A. W. Grindley.

THE Canadian poultry trade with Great Britain is in bad repute. With the exception of chickens from the Government poultry fattening stations, and poultry shipped by a very few people who have followed instructions issued by the Canadian Department of Agriculture (which have been most favorably received in Great Britain), Canada has made little if any advance as regards the quality of the poultry shipped during the past five years. While Canada has been marking time other countries which export poultry to Great Britain, have been advancing rapidly, both as regards the quality of the birds and the style of packing.

There is no class of produce exported from Canada which deteriorates so quickly in quality and value as poultry, the trouble being due to one or more weak links in the long chain reaching from the Canadian producer to the British consumer. It is the Canadian exporters, however, who are chiefly to blame for the poor position taken by Canadian poultry (more especially turkeys), in the British markets.

The poultry business is conducted under the following branches, one or more of which may be under the control of the Canadian exporter: (1) Rearing poultry. (2) Fattening. (3) Killing and packing. (4) Shipping. (5) Marketing.

REARING AND FATTENING.

Full practical information covering these branches is issued by the Canadian Department of Agriculture, from time to time, in bulletin form.

Copies of these bulletins, in English and in French, may be obtained free upon application to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

KILLING

1. All poultry should be starved thirty-six hours before killing, so as to prevent any food being left in the crop and intestines to decompose and spoil the flavor of the meat. This is a point that is very often neglected, with the result that when the birds are landed in Great Britain they are full of sour food or full of maggots.

2. Kill by dislocating the neck and bleed only by cutting in the mouth; the British importer does not want birds that have their heads chopped off, or are made unsightly in any way. The best class of trade demand bled poultry, as this method improves the color of the flesh; the practice of killing by dislocating the neck and leaving the blood therein is not advisable, as it injures the appearance as well as the keeping quality of the bird.

3. All poultry should be dry plucked, and the cleaner plucked the better.

PACKING.

1. Medium sized birds, well set up and fleshy, but young always sell well, there is also a limited demand for large, heavy birds; there is, however, always a glut of undersized, crooked or short breasted, scraggy looking birds. It is good policy, therefore, to ship choice birds only, keeping the poorer grades for home market and canning factories.

2. All poultry should be graded, that is birds of the same weight should be packed together.

3. All poultry should be thoroughly cooled before being packed, and while being cooled should be placed on wire-netted shelves for if placed on a floor or solid shelf the heat will settle in the part not exposed, which will become discolored if not putrid.

Care must also be taken not to cool too quickly; if warm poultry is placed in a refrigerator at a low temperature (below 28 degrees) is becomes quickly chilled and frozen on the outside, the remaining heat cannot escape and is finally driven into the bones, which become dark colored, and as soon as the birds are thawed out they become putrid next the bone. Nearly always when poultry is discharged at British ports in a damaged, or partially damaged condition, the exporters ascribe the blame to poor transportation facilities, while, as a matter of fact, the damage has often been done before the poultry left the exporters' hands. Too much attention, therefore, cannot be paid to the proper cooling of poultry before it is packed.

SHIPPING.

1. Ship regular supplies of poultry over as long a period as possible; it is a mistake to ship heavily for the Christmas markets, as there is nearly always a glut at that season.

2. For the Christmas trade only a limited number of very choice turkeys should be shipped in full feather. A few years back a choice "Canadian" turkey in full feather made a most enjoyable Christmas present, but for the past two seasons instead of Canadian turkeys we find the same people giving a barrel of Canadian apples, the latter being now honestly packed under the "Fruit Marks Act." This makes a much more acceptable present than a turkey, which, when the feathers are removed, is found to be badly shaped, badly fed, more or less bruised, and with a crop full of sour or putrid food.

Poultry should be frozen hard before being shipped. Of course the ideal method is "chilling," which means a uniform temperature of about 28 degrees, but, under present conditions of transportation, that uniform temperature cannot be maintained throughout; while we have a very good system of refrigeration in Canada and across the ocean, the damage is sustained after poultry is landed in Great Britain, where the shipment may be exposed to a high temperature for several days while being taken in railway cars from seaport to destination. It is during this period that the damage is done to chilled poultry which, if frozen hard, would have been placed in cold storage again before being injured.

Shipments from the United States and Russia are frozen hard and give general satisfaction provided the poultry is properly defrosted, which means taking about three or four days to gradually thaw the birds.

MARKETING.

Many Canadian exporters ship produce not only to towns in the same district, but to different firms in the same town, with the result that the buyers play one against the other and very often get the goods at much less than their real value, the loss having to be sustained by the Canadian exporter.

Large American concerns, which have made a close study of exporting food products to Great Britain, choose reliable firms to handle their produce, giving each a district in which they have the sole agency, these districts being of such size that they do not compete against each other. This policy appears to give general satisfaction.

The mistake is still made of consigning poultry, especially turkeys at Christmas time, to firms that are not in the poultry trade, who either turn the consignment over to a poultry dealer to sell and deduct two commissions from the returns, or else have the birds sold at public auction, often at a sacrifice in price. The better plan is to ship to a poultry dealer who controls cold storage, the shipment can then be held back in the event of glutted markets, and, in case of warm weather, forced sales would not be necessary.

In order to show the demand there is in Great Britain for poultry, I may mention that the value of poultry and game imported into the United Kingdom for the year ending December 31, 1903, amounted to a total of $5,846,997.96, while the value of poultry exported from Canada to Great Britain for the year ending June 30, 1903, amounted to a total of only $132,099, the chief supplies last year being imported from Russia, Belgium and France.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—Every market, even during its strength, has its moments of retrogression in prices. This week has caught provisions in this way and prices are lower in almost every line. The direct cause is not the weakness of demand, but the lowering of the price of hogs. These, as will be noted in the fresh meat list, have dropped 1-2 to 3-4 of a cent. The drop in provisions is 1-4 of a cent. The fresh meat market has been quiet during the past few days on account of the warm weather. We quote the following prices:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 08½	$0 08¾
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13

Poultry—Chickens, hens, geese and ducks are coming forward in fair volume. The demand is strong, however, and there is an opening for larger receipts. There are practically no turkeys on the market and the signs are that there will be a dearth of them for Thanksgiving. Next week may bring better offerings as prices are usually very firm at that time and growers often hold back. We quote:

Hens	0 07	0 08
Geese	0 08	0 09
Turkeys	0 14	0 16
Ducks	0 10	0 11

Butter—There is no change in conditions or prices in the butter market. Supplies are satisfactory and the demand is good. Large rolls are offering more freely. We quote for this week:

Cheese—Board prices developed remarkable strength during the week in some cases, but the quantity offering is of course less than it has been and many of the boards have closed. Almost all the rest will close this week. Nine and five-sixteenths is the highest point reached this season. Reports are as follows:

Cheese—The cheese market is unsettled and firmness rules. Little encouragement has been reported from the old land. Importers seem to have been on the alert lately for any bargains they might catch. Locally considerable business was done at the wharf when as many as 2,000 packages sold at from 9 cents to 9 1-2 cents. Last year at this time on the corresponding day as many as 3,000 boxes changed hands at one cent per pound higher in price. We quote finest Ontario colored, 9 1-2 to 9 5-8c; white, 9 3-8 to 9 1-2c; Quebec, 9 1-8 to 9 1-4c; Townships, 9 1-4 to 9 3-8; Summer goods, 8 3-4c.

Butter—Great steadiness marked the butter market and the ruling prices were from 19 to 19 1-2c at the wharf. We quote: Unsalted Townships, creamery, 19 3-4c; salted, 19 to 19 1-2c in boxes, and in tubs 19 to 19 1-4c; under grades sold at 19 3-4c; dairy butter at 15 to 16c.

Winnipeg.

Cured Meats—The market continues bright and firm with a good demand in all available stocks. Our quotations are as follows:

Hams, per lb	0 14
Breakfast bellies, per lb	0 13½

Lard—The market, which has held a general firmness for the past few weeks has now taken an advance on last week's price list. Our quotations are as follows:

Lard, 50-lb. pails	4 85
" 20-lb. "	2 05
" 10-lb. "	6 20
" 5-lb. "	6 35

Provisions—In barreled pork even the low prices will not sell goods. The fact that little lumbering will be done this season greatly effects the demand. Beef is rather firmer with a limited business. Smoked meats show a fair sale at even prices. Local trade is largely supplied by local curers. While pure lard is quite firm, refined lard is rather easier. Fresh beef has but a fair demand with price low. Lamb is freely offered. Mutton remains dull; veal, while in light supply, sells slowly; pork is low.

Cold-Cured Cheese.

The following report on the quality of Canadian cold-cured cheese consigned to commission merchants in Great Britain has been received:

(a) Cold-curing during the Summer months is a decided improvement over the ordinary method and improves the quality of the cheese not less than two shillings, and in some cases four shillings per cwt.

(b) Parafining in some cases is an improvement when thoroughly applied on well-made, close-textured cheese, but does harm to mushy, soft and acidy cheese.

Provision Notes.

CANADIAN SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

THE following notice from J. A. Bucknell, secretary of the Canadian Society of New York, will be of interest to friends of THE CANADIAN GROCER at home and in New York.

"At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Canadian Society of New York, a program of entertainments for the members and their guests was arranged for the months of November and December.

"The evening of November 19 will be designated as 'Ladies' Night,' when a special dinner and entertainment will be provided for the members and their guests, including ladies.

"The annual dinner will be held on the evening of December 6. Representative men of Canada and the United States will be the guests of the society. An instructive program of speeches and music has been arranged for this occasion.

"The Canadian Society is composed of 340 members, all Canadians by birth, now residing and engaged in business in the city of New York and vicinity. Its objects are to foster cordial social relations among Canadians and to advance in every possible way their interests.

"The society makes its entertainments during the Winter months occasions of genuine hospitality to all Canadians whether members of the society or not.

"All Canadians are requested to send the names and addresses of their relatives and friends who are Canadians and reside in New York city and vicinity, to Mr. J. A. Bucknell, secretary, No. 170 Broadway, New York, so that the courtesies of the society may be extended to them."

CROCKERY DEPARTMENT

The J. L. Cassidy Co., Montreal.

THE GROCER has pleasure in presenting its readers in this week's issue with an interior view of the warehouse of the John L. Cassidy Co., Montreal. In a section of the city that has all the distinction and disadvantage of being both historical and picturesque, between Bonsecours Market and the spot where once dwelt La Salle, it is something of a surprise to find show rooms that in point of size and equipment are perhaps second to none of their kind in Canada.

For obvious reasons it is impossible to give in one picture more than a partial view; there is enough, however, to indicate something of the requirements for a representative display of the enormous stock carried. The rooms pictured cover nearly the entire area of the three adjoining warehouses occupied by the Cassidy Co., three rooms having been thrown into one by means of broad arches so that a general view of the whole meets the eye immediately upon entering.

The western half is devoted to staples, a long perspective of toilet, dinner and tea sets being the most noticeable feature. Specially constructed stands for fancy lamps occupy available interspaces while shelving for glassware, etc., covers the walls. In the eastern half, which has come pretty completely within the range of the photographer's lens, is shown fancy china for the approaching Christmas trade, comprising salads, pudding sets, celeries, cheese, bread, pickle, cake trays, tea and chocolate pots and cups and saucers.

In the room furthest removed is a unique exhibition of those "high class" goods of which the John L. Cassidy Co. makes a specialty. Here, the real connoisseur's interest is equally divided between the registered trade mark which he recognizes as genuine, and the more elaborate and apparent part of the decorations. Along with costly specimens of the manufacture of world famous potters, are sterling silver plated ware and cut glass in profusion. All these are represented in the accompanying illustration although this class of goods has to be actually seen to be fully appreciated.

A Novelty in Toiletware.

Everyone is familiar with the old "Blue Willow Plate," and not a few possess dinner sets of this pattern, but Willow pattern toiletware is a novelty we believe not hitherto seen. Barnard & Holland Co., Montreal, are showing this pattern in four different colors on toilet sets, inexpensive but quite artistic. Lovers of the quaint and old-fashioned in pottery decoration will be glad to know that such sets are procurable.

HERB SEASONING.

There is just as much difference in seasoning herbs as there is in meats.

And, like meats, you cannot always tell the quality by the looks.

You must therefore depend on the salesman and the price you pay, for quality.

If we charge you a fair price for seasoning herbs and tell you that they are the purest and choicest herbs in the world, you know you are getting the best and can pass the same strong talk on to your customers.

We have a large fresh stock of the choicest select ground herbs for seasoning fowls and meats.

Salt Sense

The ordinary Salt of ordinary trade must not be confounded with Windsor Salt, which is sifted, not ground. Think of the goodness that slips away from the Salt crystal that is mangled, bruised, ground—think of the impurities that must creep in. Windsor Salt contains nothing but pure, white, dry, whole Salt crystals—no matter that they are fine and small crystals, they are whole crystals all the time.

Windsor Salt

is prepared in the only safe, sure way, by the Vacuum process. Every particle of moisture is dried out, which prevents the "caking" of the Salt. If you will stop to consider you will quickly see why Windsor Salt is best. Any man of intelligence and sense will agree to that.

The Canadian Salt Co., Limited, Windsor, Ont.

TO SHIP APPLES VIA MONTREAL.

A LETTER has been received by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, from the official inspector in Glasgow urging that Canadian shippers of apples give a preference over the New York route to lines sailing from Montreal. Several reasons are given in favor of the St. Lawrence route and among others is the fact that the distance of New York from the fruit centres of Canada is much greater than that of Montreal. What carries most weight, perhaps, is that the steamships sailing from New York to Glasgow have very poor ventilation, the up-to-date fan system being entirely lacking in many instances. Freight rates to Glasgow from New York are 12c cheaper than from Montreal, but owing to the poor condition in which fruit arrives from New York there is usually a net loss to apple exporters of 36c on every barrel shipped via that route. The Glasgow authorities cite three recent shipments of apples from New York which occasioned complaints from consignees because of the heated condition of fruit when landed there. At the same time fruit shipped via Montreal came through in good condition and gave general satisfaction. In view of this Scottish fruit importers are strongly urging that all fruit be shipped via Montreal and are cabling their shippers in Canada not to send shipments to Glasgow via New York on any account.

Such a development is interesting at a time when the fruit growing industry of Canada is assuming such big proportions and Canadian growers are endeavoring to win first place in the world's export markets. At the outset it cannot be denied that freight rates in Canada are abnormally high, and that for no other reason a considerable bulk of merchandise is being carried out of Canada in foreign bottoms. There is only one way of bringing about what should be, namely, a monopoly for Canadians of the carrying trade of Canada, and that is for Canadians to compete with foreign carriers. Their inability to do this in the matter of rates has militated against Canadian trade to an extent that we are just beginning to realize. In connection may be cited the West Indian export trade which until recently went entirely via New York. It goes without saying that Canada labored under a big disadvantage before the establishment of a direct steamship service between Halifax, St. John and West Indian ports. Directly, however, an all Canadian company entered the field as a bidder for this trade, there was a gradual veering around and according to recent reports from reliable sources it will not be long before the carrying trade between the West Indies and Canada will be entirely in our own hands.

There is no reason why a single barrel of Canadian apples should be shipped via New York, or any other foreign port. Not only is it in the interests of Canadian trade and commerce that the export trade be controlled at home but it vitally concerns the carrying trade of the country, and it is hoped that such timely suggestions as the one from Glasgow may have the effect of rousing Canadian steamship companies to the importance of making possible for themselves a monopoly of the shipping trade between Canada and foreign countries.

TRADE AND PURE FOOD.

RECENT efforts of scientists and legislators throughout Canada and the United States to regulate the sale of pure foods are deserving of the highest commendation. In no district, perhaps, has there been more discussion on "pure foods" than in the Province of Quebec. There they have pure food laws, and what is more Quebec is considered on the whole a law-abiding province. In the matter of pure foods, however, there seems to be a more or less laxity in the enforcement of the law which is worthy of rebuke.

The question has arisen who is to be reproved, the manufacturer or the retailer? For illustration purposes, the grocery trade is particularly apt. Take for instance the manufacture of spices, when the different varieties are sold in open lots to the retailer all over the country. What is easier than for the retailer to adulterate these products, and blame the manufacturer? It is almost essential in order to avoid the "lie of business," to have some individual protected by a severe and rigidly enforced law, so that blame could be brought home to some one. The Government inspector should be a man subject to an oath whenever he makes a report upon a grocer. The man who has sold the goods alleged to be impure should be held under oath. Three packages of the alleged adulterated product should be sealed with the Government stamp. One should be left with the grocer who was selling the goods. Another should be sent to the Government, and the other held by the inspector. By some such means the blame might be brought home to the individual, whereas at the present time it is almost impossible to get at the man.

The old saying that there are wheels within wheels is aptly applicable to the situation. If, for example, five different grocers are arrested for selling impure food, and each one knows that he got this food from a certain wholesale man or manufacturer, what will happen? Indeed, we might add, what has happened in the city of Montreal? Simply when fines were imposed the manufacturer went and paid them. They have stood by one another, and so no doubt the slavery embodied in an attempt to make a dishonest living will continue until the Government steps in and enforces a law which will not only prohibit, but will control and regulate this question of impure food.

To this problem there are many sides, all tactitly concealed in that so-called "lie of business." Many distributors of supplies will not tell their sources of supply. These should be compelled to assume the responsibility of distributing any packages or goods concerning which they conceal information. They should be compelled to stamp the place and the packer upon every package distributed. Thus the law would have no power to compel them to disclose what to them might be a valuable trade secret.

When the present law is interpreted according to the letter business men as a rule have reason to complain of severity. The retail man declares the responsibility should rest upon the manufacturer and the manufacturer declares the antithesis. What is most frequently against the retailer is his lack of information regarding the food laws. So-called "sharp" retail merchants sometimes do tricky things to make money, which they would not have disclosed for all they are worth, and the same may be said of certain manufacturers, so that, without attacking any section of the trade directly it is difficult to place the responsibility where it belongs. The methods suggested are worthy of some attention, and now that the Government has taken the matter up seriously an improvement may be looked for in the near future. Examples will be given in a later issue of a miscarriage of the intention of the pure food law, where injustice has been done through the system at present employed by the Government in the collection of samples for analysis.

CANNED GOODS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

ON the subject of "Canadian canned goods in Great Britain" the following observations by our English correspondent are of interest at a time when Canadian canners are beginning a systematic exploitation of British markets.

First in regard to packing: The package in use by Canadian shippers at the present time is the ordinary wooden box. Too frequently upon being opened the labels on the cans are found to be scratched and otherwise damaged. This point has been frequently emphasized by The Grocer; if there is one thing above all others the English trade wants it is an attractive package. American canners have not been slow to take advantage of this, and, almost without exception, wrap each tin in cheap tissue which not only protects the varnish of the labels, but also preserves the lacquer on the top and bottom of the tins from being scratched.

It is no secret that the British public has a distrust of the tinned package and much prefers goods in glass. In order to humor this whim California fruit-growers are sending over their fruits preserved in large tins holding from one to two gallons each. These are opened as soon as they arrive in Great Britain and bottled, sealed and labeled according to the English custom. In this way there is a big saving on freight, since the charges on tin packages are lighter than on goods shipped in glass bottles; the expense and damage of breakage is also avoided. By bottling the goods in England moreover they reach the consumer in perfect condition and command a better price.

Many of the Canadian tins seen on the British market seem to be of an inferior quality. One cannot fail to notice a superfluity of solder on one end of the tin which looks clumsy to say the least, makes unnecessarily conspicuous the sealing up of the air-hole. Machinery can be had which enables canners to turn out a can practically free from solder, and such cans are already in evidence in many of the grocery stores of Great Britain.

The suggestion is made that Canadian produce men, packers, canners, etc., make more frequent visits to Great Britain, in order to learn the requirements of the English market at first hand. It has been demonstrated to a certainty that there is practically no limit to the trade to be done over there by Canadians if it is approached in the right way. This can be done only by making a thorough study of the wants of the English consumer, than whom there is perhaps none more exacting among the nations of the world.

UNPRECEDENTED SUGAR MARKET

THE advance of 20c per 100 lbs. in the price of Canadian refined sugar duing the week ending November 2 is almost without precedent in the history of the grocery trade; certainly no similar advance within such a brief period has taken place during the last few years.

An advance was not altogether unexpected by the trade in view the strong statistical position of raws as outlined from week to week in recent market reports in The Canadian Grocer. At the same time a jump to the extent of 20c came as more or less of a surprise to even the hardest-headed grocer. A scramble to cover contracts followed the first hardening tendency at the beginning of the week; in addition the market developed bull interests in London, Eng., and on the Continent where the real seriousness of the situation is appreciated.

At present it looks as if the market would advance still further. In the event of the situation becoming unduly aggravated there is always the reservation of the New York market, where the price of sugar is controlled by supply and demand. The basis of Canadian refined is now 65c per 100 pounds above that for the same time a year ago, and 80c above the lowest point touched during the present year. The accompanying statistics represent the fluctuations in granulated and yellows from January 1, 1904 to November 2, 1904, inclusive. The figures represent refiners' prices, basis f.o.b. Montreal.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Nov. 3, 1904.

Groceries.

APART from the extra volume of trade which has accrued during the week under review on account of orders booked ahead for present delivery, the grocery trade cannot be said to be quite up to the level of former years. One thing which is undoubtedly responsible for present conditions is the falling off in the consumption of sugar during the past season owing to the shortage in the fruit crop. Sugar is one of the biggest items in the grocery trade, aggregating fully 1-3 of the total trade in staples. During the week there has been an advance of 20c all round in Canadian refined and an equally strong statistical position is reported in raws. Canned goods, especially corn and tomatoes, are firm, with prices in tomatoes tending to harden, the advance since the opening of the season being 10c. It is not thought there will be much left over for futures after orders booked at opening prices have been filled. Wholesalers are buying in limited quantities at high prices to answer such requirements. Sockeye salmon is reported scarce, with several well-known brands already out of first hands.

An increasing demand is reported for corn syrups, large quantities of which are being shipped. Coffees are slightly easier and beginning to move in considerable volume; at the close the market is reported still lower, although the fluctuation is largely speculative, and as such cannot be accurately gauged for any time ahead. Foreign dried fruits are arriving on the market freely for the holiday trade, and the wholesale trade is beginning to ship on advance orders. There is an exceptionally big movement in figs this year on account of the fine values offering. Dates will arrive about the end of the present month. Shipments of beans to outlying districts in the north and west have been larger this week than usual at this season of the year.

CANNED GOODS.

Supplies of corn and tomatoes are now arriving sufficiently freely from the packers to meet the requirements of the trade. After orders booked at opening prices have been filled it is thought very few tomatoes will be left for sales on future account. Already wholesalers in one or two instances have been buying for their customers at high prices. The canned corn situation is similar, although the shortage is not so pronounced as in tomatoes. There is a considerable range of prices in corn, one or two dealers quoting as low as $1.10, while others give a range of $1.15 to $1.20. Canned fruits are moving freely.

Several brands of sockeye salmon are scarce, "Horseshoe" being already exhausted. Other brands, such as "Maple Leaf," have not arrived on the market as yet. We quote the following prices :

TEAS.

Some quite low quotations have been made on commonest description Indians, but owing to cables being received to the effect that sales went ⅜d higher than was anticipated by those who made the offers, no business resulted. Generally the leaf is rough and much inferior to that of last year, which makes business on last year's type somewhat difficult. Another feature of the season is the fact that teas of commoner kinds with any pretense to quality are bringing ½ to 1d over teas in the same class lacking point or character. Ordinarily the difference in price is much less marked. This is, of course, in consequence of the scarcity of teas possessing quality.

Ceylons are ranging about 1d higher than Indians, grade for grade. Green teas generally are slow of sale and dull locally, but the position abroad suggests that higher prices will be demanded as soon as local stocks are cleared up. The Ceylon association has withdrawn the bonus formerly paid on green teas exported, which adds 1c per lb. to the first cost of the tea, and as the market in Ceylon will be on a higher level than the market on this side, importations have stopped. There is little doubt but that as supplies on spot diminish there will be a gradual hardening of prices.

COFFEES.

Locally the Rio situation has improved considerably from the buyer's standpoint, and several carloads have changed hands during the week. The sky-high prices which have ruled the market for some weeks broke to the extent of ½ to ⅝c, and latest advices say the market is still easier by ¼c. The season of largest coffee consumption has begun in this country and will continue during November, December, January and February. Locally there are no changes to report in mild coffees.

Advices from New York say there have been no particular developments during the week. European markets were slightly easier. The movement of the Santos crop continued on a smaller scale but had little influence upon the market, as most of the trade were inclined to the opinion that the decrease was due to rainy weather, which has been experienced for about the last week in Brazil. Foreign Dried Fruits Importations of dried fruits have been on a very moderate scale so far this season, and if the consumption should be normal a shortage in various lines is likely to manifest itself before the end of the season. Spanish raisins were not imported freely in consequence of the low price of California fruit. Now that half the California crop is known to have been destroyed by rain and there has been an advance in prices in consequence, it is thought that importations will not be adequate to supply the demand.

The crop of California prunes for 1903 and the carry-over for the preceding year amounted to about 175,000,000 lbs. Of this there was sold and consumed about 162,000,000 lbs., leaving a carry-over to the present year of 13,000,000 lbs. This year's crop is estimated at 10.000.000 lbs. more than last or 120,-000.000 lbs., leaving the amount to be disposed of this year 133,000,000 lbs. Oregon had a phenomenal prune crop, while this year it is practically a failure.

The second direct shipment of Mediterranean dried fruits due to arrive in Montreal per steamer Jacona will bring a considerable bulk of raisins for the Christmas trade. Fancy layer raisins are not on the market yet; advices, however, say that the price will range from $2 to $6 for 27-lb. boxes. It is thought that the price of raisins has been pretty well established for the season notwithstanding the fact that quotations usually fall after the opening prices. There is a big movement in figs this year and unusually fine values are offering. New dates are not expected until the end of November.

Wholesalers have already begun to ship on advance orders and it is expected all orders for the holiday trade will be filled by two weeks before Christmas. Our quotations are as follows:

FOREIGN NUTS.

Generally speaking nuts are on a much higher basis of prices this year than usual. New walnuts are now afloat and some shipments are expected to arrive during the ensuing week which will be satisfactory to the trade as it is frequently difficult to get supplies in time for general distribution for the holiday trade.

Reports state large consumption as a result of Hallow'een trade. Owing to the fact that Christmas trade begins shortly, the outlook is for a continuation of present demand. Steamship Jacona has arrived with first importations of almonds; reports state average crop. No other varieties of new crop foreign nuts are reported on the market. We quote:

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Supplies of evaporated apples are arriving more freely on the market and the demand likewise shows signs of improvement. The quotation ruling this week is 5 1-2c.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Receipts of eggs are falling off very rapidly now and "new laids" are bringing a good price. Another week will be certain to see this raised by a cent. Stocks of pickled eggs are said not to be very large, and one large dealer predicts considerable shortage. Cold storage eggs have not yet been touched as there are enough fresh to supply the demand. We quote these prices:

Eggs, new laid	0 22

HONEY.

The demand for honey continues fair. There are no indications of an advance in prices in the near future. Our quotations are as follows:

BEANS.

One of the features of the grocery trade this week is the comparatively large shipments of beans to western and northern points, particularly No. 1 prime and hand-picked. The consumption of beans in these outlying districts is increasing steadily; another reason for the increasing demand is the improved quality of the 1904 crop of beans.

Reports from California indicate severe damage to the Lima bean crop owing to heavy rains. The loss may reach 500,000 sacks after the beans are hand-picked and the spotted beans thrown out.

Locally trade is active while a strong export demand continues. We quote the following prices:

SEEDS.

Reports state good timothy crops in United States. Fancy qualities of alsike and red are bringing higher prices than those given in quotations. Trade is dull, and alsike has advanced. The price of timothy is 25c lower this year than last. Our quotations are:

Green Fruits.

During the week new Messina lemons have arrived, and are selling from $3.25 to $3.50 for 300's and from $3 to $3.25 for 360's. The absence of small fruit has strengthened the demand for bananas, resulting in firmer prices. The sweet potato crop is practically gathered, early as it is, and prices have become firmer. Good quality of Almeria grapes has caused an increase in sales: this year's prices are a shade lower than usual. A good supply of Cape Cod cranberries still continues with prices unchanged, although the purchase price has advanced 25c.

The supply of domestic fruits has been poor in comparison with previous week. Canadian grapes as a result of frosts are not first class stock, and prices have declined from 2 1-2c to 5c on small baskets and 5c on large. Canadian apples are ariving in fair quantities; reports state that quality is good. Jamaica grapefruit is selling at $7 to $7.50 per barrel and Canadian catawba grapes at from 30 to 35c per basket. Trade in general has been quiet, but indications point to a brisker trade next week. Our quotations are:

Vegetables.

Large supplies of cauliflowers arrived during the first part of the week; recent frosts, however, have injured the crop and indications are for smaller supply. Owing to the advanced price of Canadian onions as a result of poor crop many buyers are selecting Spanish stock in preference to Canadian. Greenhouse grown stock is beginning to arrive. Sugar.

The week under review is notable for the sharpest advances which have occurred in sugar in a long time; the situation being perhaps without parallel in the experience of recent years. The dulness noted in our last report was maintained for several days following, and it was not until Saturday, Oct. 29, that an upward turn occurred. The lead was taken by Europe with a sharp advance of 4½d in beets, jumping from 11s 0¾d per hundredweight to 11s 5¼d, equal to 4.44c for 96 test centrifugals c. and f. New York. This was followed on Monday by a further advance of 4½d, making October shipment 11s 9¾d basis f.o.b. Hamburg equal to 4.51c for centrifugals c. and f. New York, thus establishing a disparity between beet and cane of over ¼c per lb. As we go to press the market has made a further advance to the extent of 3¾d, and is now quoted firm at 12s 1½d for 88 test beet, basis f.o.b Hamburg equal to say 4.57 for centrifugals c. and f. New York. Just prior to the last advance London cabled : "Market stronger; we look for a further advance and decreased estimates."

Thus far Mr. F. O. Licht has made no amendment in his estimate for the growing beet crop of 5,120,000 tons, but the European beet factories' combined estimate is only 4,630,000 tons, while Mr. Otto Licht, who must not be confounded with Mr. F. O. Licht, now estimates only 4,950,000 tons, a reduction of the previous estimate by 190,000 tons. Later private advices indicate that Mr. F. O. Licht has already, or will probably, reduce his estimate by 180,000 tons, or say to 4,940,000 tons which, compared with the actual outturn of the crop of 1903-04 of 5,865,000 tons, would indicate a deficiency of 925,000 tons. This estimate has had its effect, as will be seen above, and private advices to New York report heavy speculation in Europe, stating that the advance looks permanent. It is rather early yet to predict a further appreciation in values, and it may be that the influence of the reduced figures has been fully discounted. At the same time we note that May auction is now held for 12s 4½d.

While American refiners have shown indifference it is reported that Canadian refiners have been active buyers of new crop Demeraras, paying 1-16 more on c. and f. basis than holders were asking for the same goods in New York markets.

New York refined has met with active demand and quotations are 10 to 15c per 100 lbs. above those of a week ago. In local refined after declining 10c per 100 lbs. the market has quickly reacted and is to-day 20c per 100 lbs. higher than last week's quotations, as will be seen by the quotations given below. The trade was surprised at the advance of 5c per 100 lbs. effective Saturday afternoon, Oct. 29, which was followed by a similar advance on Monday afternoon, Oct. 31, and again by an advance of 10c per 100 lbs. on Wednesday a. m., Nov. 2. This basis is now 65c per 100 lbs. above the same time last year and 80c per 100 lbs. above the lowest point touched during the present year.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 27, 1904.

Trade with the Yukon during the past six months from this city shows a falling off from the season of 1903, and even that of 1902. That does not mean, though, that the business is being lost. The Dawson camps are now getting down to the rock-bottom stage and fluctuations will not be so frequent in the future as in the past, and trade next year is expected to fully equal this. Wholesalers state that one reason for the falling off this season was that last Winter the merchants around Dawson were overstocked. To prevent a repetition and a consequent investment of money in goods which could not be realized for many months, the Dawson merchants concluded this year not to buy so heavily. Another reason is that last Spring 3,000 tons of general merchandise, left over at White Horse for the Winter, went down to Dawson. Although these goods were practically in this season's business they were shipped last year and were counted then. From May 1 the total amount of goods shipped from Vancouver to the Yukon was 21,272 tons; in 1903, 30,675; 1902, 24,169.

The Empress of Japan, which departs for the Orient on Monday, is taking no cargo for ports beyond Yokohama, and the story is being circulated that she is to be requisitioned by the Imperial authorities, being in the naval reserve class. The reason advanced by local C. P. R. people is that a very large shipment of cotton for Shanghai must be taken out this trip, and other cargo is necessarily displaced, being left over for the Athenian. Considerable flour for Hongkong is left here.

It is now thought that only about 200 tons of freight will be left over at White Horse this Fall, the lowest amount of any season yet.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Nov. 3, 1904.

Groceries.

IN some departments the volume of trade has been comparatively small this week owing to the election day keeping so many merchants in an unsettled state of mind and causing both themselves and their usual customers to be preoccupied. However many orders are in hand and the grocery trade has gone along steadily without the usual liveliness of the first week in November. Sugar has advanced in price ten cents in all grades of refined and granulated and is once more selling at $4.65 per cwt. since last issue. The advance is considered in the trade to have been justified and it will no doubt become general. Syrups and molasses are dull and little trade is noticeable. Canned goods remain unchanged with the demand strong and the scarcity of corn and tomatoes unabated. Teas are still inactive and it is expected there may be some stir immediately after the elections. Some reports have been received regarding the scarcity of flake tapioca and the market in Singapore is not by any means well supplied. White pepper is dearer and the prospects are that a stiffer market may be expected for the next two or three months. A decline has been recorded for Jamaica ginger of about a shilling a hundred. Cloves are inclined to advance and a dear market may be anticipated. Dried fruits are plentiful and in good demand so that the market is easy. Plenty of new figs are attracting attention and a lively trade is being carried on. Prices of coffee have fluctuated during the week and in some places a notable decline has taken place. Green fruits are still copiously supplied and this week will see the end of Canadian grapes which have sold as late as Thursday in car lots at from one to five cents a pound. Malaga grapes are now dominating the market and are selling from $4.50 to $6.50 according to quality. Fish of all kinds are selling well and the oyster craze is being carried to such an extent that the dealers are making money. In fact the season has been unsurpassed for demand in oysters. Tuesday was a French holiday and all the largest wholesale houses were closed in honor of All Saints' Day.

SUGAR.

Sugar advanced 5c on Saturday last and 5c again to-day. Foreign and New York markets are very strong. The refined market generally is quiet with only moderate demand. Refiners do not seem inclined to sell much sugar at existing prices. In the Old Country prices have advanced and locally the tone is towards a stronger market. We quote:

Granulated, bbls.	$4 75

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Some interest has been taken in the local market by the offering of some considerable quantity of molasses at a price away below market quotations. The offer was refused and therefore there is quite a little amusement among the big houses who know that molasses must be stronger before long. We quote:

COFFEE.

From abroad our mail advices point to a receding of coffee prices. This is said to have been caused by a lack of confidence regarding the crop which may not turn out to be as short as it was at first expected. This would be most suitable for lower grades of coffee which are always affected by the Santos quotations. East India stock has held its price and not a drop has taken place in Costa Rica. We quote:

SPICES.

Business in black pepper has been dull and the market for white has been strong with a tendency towards a dearer market for some time to come. Prices have improved for Cochin ginger and Jamaica ginger is considerably lower. The arrivals of West Indian nutmegs seem to be small and prices are firm. An advance has taken place in Zanzibar. TEA.

Notable dullness rules in the tea market and things are only moderately interesting. From the countries of production comes the news that thre is a weakness. The supplies of Indian teas seem to have fallen off in quality especially in the lower grades. Many of the Assams have been reported to have gone off in quality. Advices from Calcutta report some fine weather for manufacture in the districts of Dooar and Sylhet. Japans are being inquired for somewhat more freely this week both locally and from western points. Shipments therefore from these parts may be expected to be of improved quality. For high grade teas the market has not changed. In Ceylons little change has been recorded, all desirable teas selling at last week's quotations. Broken Pekoes have remained firm for all grades above the ordinary. Colombo purchased teas are on the market in abundance and an easiness is noted in these sorts. Japan teas are quiet. A sign of stir is visible and next week some lively trading is anticipated. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

The same old cry of scarce stocks of tomatoes and corn is to be heard everywhere. Salmon is interesting and its strong position statistically may lead to a further advance in prices, both on spot and to arrive. Plenty of Alaska fish are to be seen on the market and they are said to be in many cases better value than the Fraser River stock. In sardines great interest is being taken in the importation of Norway stock and the first time they have been imported to this country makes them all the more interesting. With the shortage of the French sardine catch the Norway fish ought to have a fine sale. They are said to be well packed and already have created a sensation in the local market. Canned meats are selling freely at firm prices. We quote.

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Great interest is centred in the currant trade which seems to hold a position not justified by the records of previous years. Currants are believed by experts to be selling to-day at less than they ought to. Last year was declared to be the largest crop on record and then the price was never less than a shilling below present values. The crop this year is said to be under the average weight of the yield and this coupled with the new legislative arrangements gives currants a fairly strong value. Recovery has been noted in the Sultana market and trade is once more fair. Valencias have sold freely and arrivals are more plentiful now than they were. Higher prices may be expected as the crop is limited. Values in figs continue to be attractive. French plums and prunes are now on the market in excellent form. Some early supplies of fancy fruits have arrived and the stock is said to be ahead of that of last year. Apricots and cherries are considerably cheaper than they were last year. We quote:

Green Fruits.

The end of Canadian grapes seems to have been reached and with the big sale on Thursday, November 3, practically closed the market. Cocoanuts are selling at an advance of 25 cents per bag of 100. From Ottawa a fruit inspector has reported that the shipment of Stark and Ben Davis apples and other large Winter varieties to Great Britain is injurious to the fruit trade. These apples of course are not fit to be consumed for three months yet and as this man said they at present would go to a consumer and would be tasteless and not acceptable.

Other fruits are active and Messina lemons have declined slightly. Nuts of all kinds are selling freely and fine varieties are on the market. New chestnuts have declined to 10 cents. Almeria grapes are selling at $7 per keg. We quote:

DAIRY PRODUCE EXPORTS.

For the week ending October 31 cheese exports amounted to 47,335 and for the corresponding period of last year to 42,141 boxes. The total exports for the season to the same date were 1,838,671 boxes and for the corresponding period of 1903, 2,174,834 boxes.

Butter—For the week 11,150 packages, corresponding period of last year 7,144 packages. For the season to the same date the total exports were 458,957 packages and for the corresponding period of 1903, 314,036 packages.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The attention of the trade is directed to a reduction of 10c all round in the price of Gillett's lye—effective this week.

White & Co., Toronto, are receiving large shipments of Almeria grapes.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, calls the attention of the trade to Madame Huot's coffees, and to interesting values in Saryune Congou and Ceylon black teas.

The John L. Cassidy Co., of Montreal, are showing samples of four or five new stock patterns from Copeland's for Spring delivery. These are particularly choice even for Copeland's.

W. H. Dunn, Montreal, has just received a consignment of 300 cans of Norwegian smoked sardines in olive oil —Aurora brand—30 fish in ¼ tin).

In The Canadian Grocer of Oct. 7 reference was made to Jacob's celebrated Irish biscuits being stocked by Eby-Blain Co., Toronto. Owing to an unfortunate typographical error the word "biscuits" was spelled "besents."

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, are offering a fine sample of Barbadoes raw sugar in barrels at a very low price.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, report an unusually heavy demand for their "Gold Medal" granulated, the finest of Canadian refined sugars. They can now fill all orders for both barrels and 100 lb. sacks.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, are quoting cranberries in barrels at close figures, f.o.b. Midland, Ont.

Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto, wish to direct the attention of the trade to their "Red Seal" brand maple syrup, which is guaranteed first-class quality and warranted to keep in any climate.

McWilliam & Everist, wholesale fruit merchants, Toronto, are expecting the arrival of one car of new Messina lemons, one car of Almeria grapes and two cars of Spanish onions.

Leonard Bros., Montreal, report large quantities of new Labrador herring in barrels and half barrels arriving direct and fresh, large, bright and of excellent quality. This firm also have the finest of shell oysters brought direct from the beds. They also have Caraquets.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Limited, Montreal, are offering, ready for delivery, fine lines of new Valencia raisins and a full assortment of Griffin & Skelley and Castle Bros., California prunes. They are offering to arrive on 15th November, new Mayette Grenoble walnuts, also new Marbots walnuts.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29, 1904.

THE latest crop bulletin shows that the Spring wheat area this year in the Territories is 1,049,799 acres, with a yield of 20,340,000 bushels, Fall wheat 5,483 acres estimated yield, 106,000.

Business for the past week has been very bright with all markets at an even tenor with a splendid demand in all lines.

Sugar.

The market continues bright and quite firm. Montreal granulated in barrels is still quoted at $5.30; in sacks at $5.20; and yellows at $4.70; Wallaceburg in barrels holds firm at $5.20, and in sacks at $5.10.

Canned Fruits.

The market is firm on all lines of canned fruits, but we are still looking for an advance in strawberries owing to their scarcity. Strawberries are still quoted at $3 for case of 2 dozen. Upton's and Aylmer's jams in pails at 47 1-2c per pail.

Canned peaches and pears which have been on the market for the past two weeks are still being quoted at the last week's price list; peaches, 2-lb. yellows at $3.75 per case; 4-lb. yellows at $5.75 per case, and pears, 2-lb. F.B., $3.25 per case and 3-lb F.B., at $4.25 per case.

Evaporated and Dried Fruit.

The market is very active and quite firm and only the first shipments of Trenors brand of Valencia raisins are yet available which the market continues to quote at $2.10 per box.

Canned Vegetables.

Firmness continues and canned corn holds the same quotation as in last week's price list of $2.50 per case, although this line of canned goods is very scarce. Canned tomatoes hold the price good at $2.75 per case but will undoubtedly go higher. Canned peas are still quoted at $1.80 per case and canned beans at $1.80 to $1.90 per case.

Rolled Oats.

The market is active but prices continue quite firm, quoting 80-lb at $2.35. Other sizes ranging accordingly.

Cornmeal.

The demand is strong and the market is active but firm, quoting cornmeal at $1.25 per sack and 80c per 1-2 sack.

Coffee.

The market is still quite unsettled with a tendency towards an advance in price, but still continues to quote green Rio at 10 1-2 to 11c per pound.

Canned Fish.

Shipments of all the new catch of sockeye salmon which have been on the market for the past few weeks are still being quoted at $7 per case, the shipment of the new Digby chicks are still available at 17c per box.

Honey.

The market is lively but firm and the new stocks of honey coming in are of a very fine quality. The market quotes the 5-lb tins at 13c per pound; 10-lb tins at 12 1-2c per pound; and the 60-lb tins at 11c per pound.

Flour.

The market is at present very active, but now firm, quoting No. 1 patents at $2.90, No. 2 patents at $2.70, No. 3 patents at $2.20, and No. 4 patents at $1.55.

Green Fruit.

The market is bright and active, quoting late valencia oranges at $6 per crate; California lemons at $6 per crate; Washington Italian plums at $1.10 per crate; Washington pears, $2.50 per crate; Ontario apples, $3 per barrel; Ontario snow apples, $4.50 per barrel; Ontario basket pears and tomatoes, 65c per basket; grapes, blue and green, 25c per basket; California grapes Tokays, $3 per barrel; cranberries, Cape Cod, $10 per barrel; celery per dozen bunches, 50c; green tomatoes, per lb. 3c; Spanish onions, $1.50 per case, and Jersey sweet potatoes, $5.50 per barrel.

Eggs.

The demand during the past few weeks has been very heavy. Stocks now on hand have been rather limited as there are few eggs moving in from the country at present. Eggs are still jobbing to the trade at 23c per dozen.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., Nov. 1, 1904.

DEALERS are very busy. All lines of dried fruit are arriving early. The market is in better shape than was expected, and a fair profit should be made. The election continues to some extent to interfere with business. The merchants, particularly those who feel they must give some time to this important event, and their number, if we are to have clean politics, should be much greater than it is, will be pleased when it is over. The high price of canned corn and tomatoes is still a matter of general interest. The dates of the Winter sailings of the Atlantic steamers from St. John have been announced. We would particularly ask western shippers and importers to see that their goods are shipped and imported via Canadian ports. It is for the people to decide if they will use Canadian or American ports. The facilities are provided; will they use them? Less talk and more doing is what is needed.

Oil.

In burning oil the market is very firm and an advance in price is not unexpected. Sales are large. Lubricating oil is very quiet. Paint oils also have a light sale. Values are unchanged. Cod oil is rather easier. There are fair receipts and but a limited demand.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt the present demand is rather light. There are fair stocks and further supplies on the way. Prices are unchanged. In factory filled while there is still a fair quantity of Liverpool salt used, the market is chiefly supplied from Ontario. In box salt, of which a large quantity is used here, a part of the demand has been supplied this year by local dealers boxing a special grade of English salt.

Canned Goods.

Neither in corn nor tomatoes will the association be able to fill their orders.

Fast Selling Goods

Nothing so handicaps the grocer as "slow" goods. There is no profit in merely buying goods; but, buying at one price and selling quickly at another makes the grocery business interesting. If you handle is made by a bird lover, a bird student, a bird specialist.

NICHOLSON & BROCK, TORONTO

Prices are high and will be held firm. Peas are quite plentiful. Fruits, except apples, are firm, particularly peaches and strawberries. Gallon apples continue easy with a light sale. Salmon are no higher. Sockeyes are not sold here. While springs are firm there seems to be plenty of cohoes and pinks. Domestic fish are unchanged. Sardines are average pack.

Green Fruits.

Apples are very plentiful and prices are low. There are almost daily auction sales, but only of second-grade stock. In oranges, Jamaica stock holds the market. In lemons, prices are unchanged. Canadian grapes are low. There is a fair sale for Tokays and Malagas. Cape Cod cranberries are freely sold. Bananas are only imported in limited quantities.

Dried Fruits.

It is unfortunate, but in our market some dealers will not take advantage of advanced prices, though when markets go the other way they have to follow. This is particularly noticed in California seeded raisins. Earlier goods now arriving were bought very low. Prices on the coast are higher and the market is very firm, but because some are giving away their profit all suffer. New fruits are to hand, though as yet in limited quantities. Receipts of valencias are very light this year. Evaporated apples are rather easier. Onions are higher. In shelled walnuts and almonds quite low prices are quoted.

Sugar.

Market is particularly firm and a further advance in price is expected. There is a reported change in duty which may affect the importing of foreign sugar.

Fish.

In fresh fish, stock is scarce and variety is small. Chiefly cod and haddock are offered with a few small or chicken halibut and mackerel. In dry fish it is many years since prices were so high at this season. Market is almost bare. Pickled herring are also very scarce and high. There is a fair supply of smoked herring, but prices are still high. A few pickled shad are offered.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour the market is still very firm at the advanced price. A further advance in bread will take place this week. Feed is quite scarce, but there is only a fair demand. Oats are quite high. Oatmeal and cornmeal are unchanged. Beans are tending higher. There is quite a large demand here for yellow eyes. In barley there is but a limited sale. Peas are scarce and high, and demand for round peas light.

G. McGowan, general merchant, Avoca, has sold out to C. S. McCallum.

CONSUMPTION OF BUTTER.

SINCE 1894 the quantity of butter imported by Great Britain has increased by fully ninety per cent., a pace with which the countries that were formerly the principal sources of supply have been unable to keep up. Denmark in 1903 had only been able to increase her exports to Great Britain by 52 per cent.; those from France had actually decreased; Swedish butter exports were one-third less than they were in 1895. Those from Australia were less than half of what they were in 1895. As a matter of fact Great Britain was compelled to seek new sources of supply to meet the increased demand, namely, Canada, New Zealand and Russia. The imports from Canada increased 376 per cent., from New Zealand 369 per cent., and those from Russia by nearly 280 per cent. Canada's keenest competitor is Denmark at the present time, which in 1903 supplied nearly 44 per cent. of the British demand or 200,000,000 lbs.

Biscuits And Confectionery

A Model Syrup Factory.

THE GROCER recently had the opportunity and pleasure of a visit to what may justly be called a model syrup factory, namely, "Sugars Limited," 11 St. Therese street, Montreal, whose brands of maple syrup and maple sugar are known throughout the land. The building consists of a two storey stone and brick building fitted with every convenience and modern machinery for the proper preparation of maple products. The boiling is done on the top floor, in large tanks, each holding several hundred gallons. After the boiling process, the syrup is passed to the lower floor, through pipes, and triple filters. These filters are mechanical, and arranged in such a manner that not the slightest residue can pass through into the storage tanks.

The storage tanks, of which there are four, are connected with automatic filling machines, having such a large capacity that it is not necessary to stop the flow of the syrup, until the tanks have been emptied.

The boiling of the maple sugar is done in steam jacketed copper kettles, covered with galvanized iron lids, which makes them perfectly clean and dust proof. Every night these kettles are thoroughly cleaned out and scrubbed to a high degree of brightness and cleanliness, thus insuring absolutely healthy and clean products. It takes about 20 minutes to run a batch of syrup through, and as several hundred gallons are manipulated at a time, it can readily be understood that a large quantity of syrup is turned out daily.

The filling room on the ground floor is connected with the labelling department, which is also a large repository for sugar that has been run into moulds. The labelling is attended to by young ladies in a neat and expeditious manner, the greatest care being taken in turning the goods out brightly and neatly labelled and packed.

A feature that struck The Grocer, was the general air of brightness as regards light, flooring and walls, the former being concreted, and the latter kalsomined. Everything was thoroughly clean and bright; as Mr. McMillan explained, the concrete floors are scoured and scrubbed every night, and there is a lack of that syrupy condition frequently found in factories where syrup products are made.

The store room has a large capacity, and at present a stock of between 400,000 and 500,000 pounds of pure Quebec maple sugar is held in reserve. Since its commencement in the Spring of the year the business has extended in a very satisfactory manner, orders for "Diamond Brand," and others of their products having been received from every large wholesale centre in Canada. It is expected that the capacity of the factory will be taxed to its utmost during the coming season.

Stoddart & Millar, of Winnipeg, have erected a confectionery establishment at Abernethy, N.W.T.

JAPAN TEA AT ST. LOUIS FAIR.

MR. SHAW T. NISHIMURA, of the Japan Central Tea Traders' Association, has returned from a three weeks trip to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, where he made a special study of the tea exhibits, particularly of the Japan section and Formosa products; he expressed himself as very much surprised, satisfactorily so, at the exhibits made by Formosa and was delighted with Japan's exhibits. The tea exhibits of Japan were very fine and complete, everyone of them receiving "Le Grand Prix." The products of the Island of Formosa were also numerous and interesting; tea, camphor, peanuts, and all products which have been experimented with by the Japanese Government on the island show a wonderful development and the future outlook for trade is very bright.

The Japanese pavilion has a splendid location on the side of a hill, facing beautifully arranged landscape gardens. The building itself is a model of a well-known building of Kioto, Japan. The interest in Japan tea shown by the thousands of visitors to the pavilion is very keen, the attendants serving nearly 3,000 tea drinkers every day. There is no doubt that American visitors in particular have been highly impressed with the fine qualities of Japan teas.

GREEN FRUITS

Dried and Evaporated Apples.

A GENTLEMAN just returned from Europe reports that the fruit crops almost without exception have turned out remarkably well this year and that all countries, England, Scotland, Ireland and the Continent, will require very short supplies from Canada and the States. This especially applies to sun-dried apples, and he would like to warn the Canadian curers and the storekeepers to produce only the best quality and then to look only for very moderate prices. Stock with many burnt pieces and thin brown slices will be simply unsaleable at any price, and therefore should not be offered to shippers only to be rejected. Buyers on the Continent will be very exacting this year in any purchases they may make in order that the quality should be first-class and dry; therefore it will be extremely dangerous for storekeepers and others to add moisture in any shape or form to the apples.

The green apple crop in these countries is simply immense, and so long as they can get green fruit they will not buy sun-dried. The green fruit will probably last until March or April next. New York houses are offering freely prime evaporated slices in 50-lb. boxes at 4¾c delivered to European ports.

New Potato Imitation.

"The wooden nutmeg of Connecticut was the first imitation food," said a grocer, "and then came the mean Bostonian who dried snow and sold it for salt. This year we have an imitation new potato.

"A westerner put the imitation new potato on the market, and they say he has made about 80 per cent. profit out of it. I am speaking seriously, now, mind. Of course, it was in a joking way I alluded to the nutmeg and the salt.

"The westerner, to accomplish his deception, plants on toward the end of the Summer a crop of late potatoes of a kind that keep well. These ripen and are dug up just before the first frost. They are sorted and all the bad ones are thrown out. Then the rest are buried in a field.

"The crop lies buried, preserved from all harm under the soil, till early Spring. About two months before the first genuine potatoes have appeared it is dug up.

"A great bath of a solution of lye is prepared, and in this bath the potatoes are dipped. When they emerge from their plunge their skins are pink and curly, and their flesh is hard and firm. In a word, they are to all appearances new potatoes, and they would deceive any one.

"There are many imitation foods," the grocer ended. "We have imitation butter, imitation coffee, imitation honey and imitation maple sugar. Not one of these frauds though, is as hard to detest as the imitation new potato."—Washington Post.

A Curious Plant.

An amateur Hamilton gardener has succeeded in producing a combined potato and tomato vine that has fine ordinary potatoes on its roots and two tomatoes on the top of the vine. And it is no chance that brought it about. The gentleman who raised it has been working at the idea for seven years. He believed it could be done, and by grafting and hybridizing by means of bees, he succeeded. The seeds of the tomato, when planted, will grow potatoes on the roots of the vine and tomatoes on top, and the same result can be got from planting the potatoes.

To Protect From Frost.

Canadian fruit growers will be interested in a method now under investigation by Professor J. B. Reynolds of the Ontario Agricultural College, by means of which frosts may be forecast and immature fruit thus protected. A sling psychometer is used, which indicates the amount of moisture in the air. When the thermometer indicates the dew point of 40 or below about sundown there is danger of frost, especially if the sky is clear and the air still.

California Orange Crop.

The California naval orange crop is estimated at 26,000 cars for the coming season, as against 27,500 cars last year, and should the weather prove milder than last Winter the entire crop will be marketed at a fair price. One thing is certain, there will be plenty to go round, and at a price at which the general public will be able to consume freely.

Fruit Shipments to Ireland.

A prominent Irish fruit grower writes that Ontario fruit growers are not receiving the full benefit of shipments of fruit to Ireland. The fruit is shipped to Ireland and then across the channel so that Irish middlemen get all the profit. The suggestion is made that the fruit growers should petition the Dominion Government asking that subsidized mail steamers be compelled to call at Irish ports in order to give a direct service.

Florida Fruit Crop.

A conservative estimate of the entire Florida fruit crop for the season 1904-05 is about 30,000,000 crates. Of this the orange crop will total approximately 1,750,000 crates; this would have been much larger but for the drought during the growing season, and the ravages of insect pests.

Fruit Growers to Visit United States.

The fruit growers of Ontario are much pleased at the recent action of the Railway Commission in appointing a special committee, including the president of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, to visit points in the United States for the purpose of seeing what measures have been adopted by railroads and fruit growers across the border for the transportation of fruit.

A special effort will be made by the committee to see if a car cannot be found suitable for transporting fruit during the fruit season and that can be used for other purposes at other seasons.

Fruit Notes.

A movement is on foot in Grimsby to form an association for the sale and distribution of fruit.

The new "Climax Grocery," Fort William, Ont., is about completed and will be occupied by the proprietor, J. E. Rutledge, within the next few days.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

A Flurry in Oatmeal.

THE oatmeal interests of Ontario have been rudely disturbed within the last few weeks by the dumping on the market of several cars of American oatmeal products, which have been sold at a figure considerably under the level of quotations ruling here. Unfortunately the dumping clause of the new tariff regulations is not framed to cover such a case to the satisfaction of the Canadian manufacturer, since conditions at present in the United States are favorable to the production of cheap oatmeal, the oat crop there being fair while that of Ontario is practically a failure. For this reason American oatmeal products can and have actually been brought into the country and sold on this market at a price 25c cheaper per barrel than the domestic article. And this after paying an import duty of 64c per barrel on the manufactured product, or $1.20 per barrel on the raw material. Canadian manufacturers, on the other hand, have to pay $1.80 per barrel on the raw material and the same duty on the manufactured product exported to the United States.

On the arrival of several cars of American oatmeal in Canada no other course remained open to the Canadian manufacturer but to reduce his price to meet the competition which he considers is unfair and robs him of his legitimate profit. Meanwhile the Canadian consumer is enjoying cheap oatmeal and the prospect of seeing American oatmeal mills established in his midst.

Breadstuffs in Great Britain.

IN the past year the harvest has proved very interesting in regard to British supplies of breadstuffs (wheat and flour) says J. B. Jackson, commercial agent at Leeds and Hull, Eng.

The British home crop was 9,459,680 bushels less than the previous year 1902-3, but even with this great shortage in British home supplies, which was also increased by the poorness of the quality, there has been a shrinkage of about one-third in the supplies of wheat and flour which the United States sent. Heretofore, the British chief source of supply has been the United States. To make up the balance Canada, India, Russia, Australia and the Argentine exported to Great Britain larger amounts of wheat than in any previous harvest year, and made up for the deficiencies in the home crop and in the supplies formerly received from the United States.

It appears from the above figures that the United States consequent on the rapid increase of its population, and its export of grain being less and less, has caused wheat production in the other parts of the world to be revived. Especially does this seem to be the case in India and Russia. This is rather a hopeful sign, indicating as it does that the sources upon which Great Britain can depend for food supplies in the future are increasing, and that the influence of the United States in the world's wheat markets has obviously declined.

The probabilities of the market at present are that Great Britain will pay rather more for her breadstuffs than last year.

Western Grain Situation.

IN the course of an interview with Mr. D. Plewes, flour exporter, of Toronto, who has just returned from a six weeks' trip to Manitoba and the Territories a representative of The Grocer gleaned the following interesting information:

The outturn of grain in Manitoba and the Northwest will total considerably over 60,000,000 bushels. There will be a larger percentage of shrunken wheat this year than usual; probably one-third of the entire crop has been affected by rust, and as a result it will grade lower although its bread making properties will not be seriously impaired. An impetus has been given to business generally throughout the west such as has not been known for a long time; farmers are congratulating themselves on the realization of their hopes for dollar wheat and grain growing has taken such a hold on the western mind that even the artisan is in many cases giving up his trade to go into framing. It is probable that high prices will continue to rule until there are immediate prospects of another bumper crop, which is many months distant.

A considerable quantity of Manitoba wheat grading from No. 3 down is being bought for export. Higher grades have been kept at home so far, or, as happened within the last few days, have been exported to the United States there to be ground and exported by American millers. Prices in Canada are just about on an export level except in the higher grades; it is a question whether the latter will not remain above a level at which it is profitable to export. For instance Manitoba wheat, No. 2 is bringing $1.07 to-day, whereas the price at Fort William is only 8c under this, nominally 99c per bushel.

Prices in the United States are away above an export level. It gives one only a vague idea of the shortage in this year's wheat crop over there to say that the quantity of good wheat grown this year will not be sufficient to bread the population. At the same time Canada is in the fortunate predicament of having 30,000,000 bushels beyond domestic requirements. What is more natural than that American millers should want some of this surplus for domestic use, particularly when it is remembered that the American consumer will have high grade flour at any price, whether or no hard wheat is a scarce article over there. The next thing to be considered is that American flour exporters made extensive contracts abroad before it was known that there would be any crop shortage in the States. In order to hold their place in foreign markets these contracts have had to be met even at a loss, which accounts for American exports at a time when prices ruling in the United States are away above an export level. Canadian shippers have been caught in the same way, one case in point netting the shipper $135 loss on a single car. The shrinkage in the American cereal export trade during the present year is easily seen from the actual return, namely 10,000,000 bushels as compared with 80,000,000 bushels in normal years.

There is little question but that the United States will continue to export wheat and flour for many years to come under ordinary conditions, notwithstanding their enormous increase in population. If, as seems likely, there is an increasing demand for Manitoba wheat for consumption in the United States it will be imported in the raw state and milled in Minneapolis. The surplus wheat of Canada for some years to come will probably be divided between the United States and Great Britain. Canadian wheat exported to the latter country will be milled at home or in the consuming markets. The direction which the milling industry for this trade will take in the future depends altogether on whether the British miller is given protection or Canadian flour is admitted free to Great Britain. If the latter, the milling for the export trade will be done in Canada. If the preference is given to the British miller he will ultimately control the milling industry.

Number of Elevators Growing.

ACCORDING to the official report of the chief grain inspector for Manitoba the number of licensed elevators and warehouses in Manitoba in 1902 was 662 with a total capacity of 30,356,440 bushels. In 1904 there were 822 elevators and warehouses with a capacity of 41,186,000 bushels. The elevators increased by 176, and the warehouses decreased by 18. There was a gain in capacity of 10,829,560 bushels. In Manitoba the Canadian Northern last year had 37 more elevators than the year before and 7 less warehouses. The C.P.R. had 56 more elevators and 6 less warehouses.

In the Northwest Territories the C.P.R. has increased its elevators by 85, but has 5 less warehouses.

U. S. Mills and Canadian Flour.

As if to lend additional color to the surmise that the milling of Canadian wheat in bond will be carried on extensively this Winter in Minneapolis, comes the announcement that the Washburn-Crosby Co. has bought a round lot of Manitoba wheat totalling nearly one million bushels for grinding purposes.

The wheat supply in the United States is such that millers can already see a scarcity of milling wheat. Much of the Minnesota and South Dakota wheat is of too low a grade to make good flour.

Winnipeg Quotations for New York.

The Committee on Statistics of the New York Produce Exchange has decided to arrange for Winnipeg quotations and will in future secure telegraphic prices of the leading grades of wheat at Winnipeg at intervals of less than half an hour during the day. The reason for this is that wheat in the Winnipeg market is much cheaper than in any American centre and that Winnipeg prices reflect what the markets of the world will pay, whereas New York at the present time does not come into direct contact with the world's markets on account of New York prices being away above an export level. American exporters must have some way of knowing what prices foreign buyers will pay for wheat. New York will do her "hedging" in Winnipeg.

Japan's Tobacco Monopoly.

THE law relating to the monopoly of leaf tobacco was promulgated in March, 1896. This law provided that all leaf tobacco grown was to be bought by the Government and in turn sold to the manufacturers by the Government at a fixed rate of profit. The Government has realized a good profit from this system, but in studying the customs in respect to tobacco monopoly of other countries it was seen that the monopoly of leaf tobacco was but a step to the establishment of the monopoly of tobacco manufacture, with the result that the law of monopoly of tobacco manufacture was established in March, 1904.

According to this law, though the Government has the exclusive right of tobacco manufacture, the cultivation of leaf tobacco is left to private growers, as heretofore. Tobacco is to be made at public factories established in various parts of the country. The manufactured article is to be sold to retailers through the hands of wholesale merchants and then to the consumer, the wholesale merchants and retailers to be appointed by the Government.

In the case of cigarettes, the new monopoly law went into effect in July, 1904, and the requirements regarding cut tobacco will go into effect in April, 1905.

No More Yaguas.

PRESIDENT PALMA, of Cuba, has signed the "Yagua" bill, prohibiting the further exportation from the island of yaguas.

The yagua is the outer covering of the pod from which the leaves of the palm tree of Cuba issue in clusters or groups, and when the leaves have attained their mature growth, the yaguas fall off. They are of considerable thickness and strength and have the firmness of thin wooden boards such as are used in fruit and bicycle crating. They are used by the tobacco planters and shippers of Cuba for wrapping tobacco and cigars in every form and quantity and afford to the material every natural protection in transit.

The Cuban tobacco cigars having come to be associated with their wrappers of yaguas, Georgia and Texas growers and wholesalers of the plant adopted a few years ago the idea of importing the yaguas to serve as a covering, at once protecting their product and giving it a marked resemblance to the Cuban tobacco. Soon the effect began to be felt in the American consumption of the latter, and the passage and promulgation of the hotly-debated "Yagua bill" is the result.

Points About Tobacco.

TOBACCOS are frequently differently named, and often smokers are surprised that tobacco bearing widely separated names as Turkey and Virginia could grow in the same field. Speaking upon this point, a representative of a leading tobacco interest says:

"A smoker can generally tell the difference between Turkey and Virginia tobaccos at the first whiff, but if you ask him what the original distinction is between the two he will tell you that one comes from this country and the other from Turkey. He is wrong. You could grow Turkish and Virginia tobaccos in the same field, for they are merely two different varieties of the same plant. Turkish is the leaf of 'Nicotiana rustica,' while the Virginian is 'Nicotiana Augustipolia.' Of course the two are often blended by tobacconists.

"Again, there is the difficulty most persons find in telling the difference as to what constitutes 'strong' and 'mild' tobaccos. It is simple enough. The strong product is so manufactured that it burns badly, or slowly. The result is that the contained nicotine is distilled in an unaltered state.

"You often hear, too, no doubt, cigars spoken of as 'cabbage leaves,' and many persons believe that these are actually adulterated with other substances than tobacco. Often in such a weed the outside wrapper is noticed to be patched with pale green, and that fact is held proof of the cabbage-leaf libel. The piece of greenish leaf is real tobacco which has been picked unripe or not properly cured. It is only to be found, however, in thin, poor leaf.

"There is an old-standing tradition, also, that cigars with spots on them are better than others. One grower has invented a machine for sprinkling growing tobacco with a solution of potash to produce such spots. I need hardly tell you, however, that the whole idea is an absolute delusion.

"Tobacco, too, for cigarette smoking is sprinkled with water before use. A U. S. Cigar Leaf Crops.

The cigar leaf crops of the United States for 1904 are estimated at 427,700 cases, equivalent to about 150,000,000 pounds. This total is about 41,000,000 pounds less than last year's crop and 67,000,000 pounds less than the 1902. The deficiency is chiefly in the Wisconsin and Pennsylvania crops; the yield of the Wisconsin is estimated to be 115,500 cases against 158,500 of 1903, and the yield of the Pennsylvania is estimated at 82,000 cases against 86,000 in 1903. Ohio is credited with a larger output by 2,300 cases, and New England with one of 7,400.

The Tobacco Crop in Western Ontario.

(By E. Bailey.)

AS far as the tobacco crop is concerned there is a larger acreage in Western Ontario than last year, although on account of the failure and scarcity of plants in the earlier part of the season. and later on a drought which extended over a period of six weeks the crop was much under the average in growth. The latter part of the season has been favorable for the growing crops and some have turned out fairly well which at one time were not expected to be of much value. The frost of September 25 greatly damaged the tobacco crops, especially those growing away from the lakes and many fields were not harvested but ploughed under. A considerable percentage harvested was cut before it had fully matured and will not be worth much. A good deal also is frostbitten which will be almost valueless

The average harvested before the Autumn frost came will not go over 800 pounds to the acre, which means less than three-fourths of a crop. It is questionable whether more than two million pounds will be marketable although we hear speculators talking of a four million pound crop.

The annual consumption of Burley leaf grown in Western Ontario is about three million pounds and in view of the fact that there was no 1903 crop carried over to this year the price will be in the neighborhood of 10 to 12c per pound from growers of the best grades.

There can be little doubt that within a few years cigar leaf will be more largely used than Burley, although during the past year very little was grown, the only consumer in the Kingsville section being the British Canadian Cigar Co., Kingsville, Ont., which operates a combination factory. Cigar leaf will be much needed before another crop can be grown. Pitts, Wigle & Co., of Kingsville have a large warehouse in connection with cigar leaf and will be unable to secure a stock of new leaf, although they have on hand about 150,000 pounds of Zimmer Spanish, Havana and Connecticut seeds. There is a feeling among the growers in favor of growing Zimmer Spanish and other varieties of cigar leaf if only they can get a price bearing a proper ratio to that paid for Burley which produces several hundred more pounds to the acre than cigar leaf. There can be little doubt that if the growers were paid an average price for it they could produce quite as good a working leaf as the foreign. For this reason the manufacturer should encourage the Canadian grower to cultivate cigar leaf, which as a matter of fact is already in considerable demand in eastern markets.
